A fleet of more than 50 boys and girls, nine through 14 years, from West Palm Beach to Key West are expected to sail in the event originated by the MYC's Edna Bond.

"On the day of regatta," said Mrs. Bond, "admission to the club grounds to watch the races will be by donation to Variety Hospital."

Idea of an East Coast regatta came from Bill Brothers and Jim Bailey, who direct the MYC's Pram class sailing program.

"After we determine our coast's champ and other top sailors, we'll attempt to arrange match races with a similar group representing the West Coast of Florida."

Expected to be among entrants is 13-year-old Larry Mullins of West Palm Beach, current state champion and runnerup in the 1958 Internationals.

MIAMIANS will go out of town today to compete in three regattas.

A flock of senior skippers will participate in Mount Dora's annual sailing regatta, which has the Miami Yacht Club's Arthur Bosworth and Charlie Wilson directing the race committee.

At Hollywood, youthful Pram, Penguin and Moth sailors will [illegible] honors in Recreation Department's fourth annual Green Hat Regatta.

TEAMING on March 29 to offer their annual Sombrero Beach Winter Regatta will be the Marathon Yacht Club and Key West Outboard Club. The combined inboard - outboard races will be at the Boot Key Harbor in Marathon and will be chairmanned by Ralph Cunningham . . . In the focus of attention next Sunday will be the Key West Outboard Club's 60-mile marathon in memory of the late daughter of well-known driver Bascom Grooms. She died early this year in a motorcycle accident. It is open to all classes of outboards, including multi-engine and alcohol burners . . . Quarterly series champs at Miami Yacht Club are: Fred Darlow, handicap free for all and sail area; Ed McCue, Crickets; Pat Twitchell, Prams; Norma Smith, Snipes; Ken Lacey Jr., Junior Snipes; Bill Brothers, Ravens; Ken Klare, Moths; Billy Spencer, Junior Moths; Forrest Lee, Blue Jays; Dr. J. F. Keeley, Jet 14's and Steve Billings, Junior Jet 14's . . . Snipe fleet captain Jim Morris did a remarkable job in luring America's foremost Snipe sailors to last weekend's Miami Yacht Club Mid-Winter Regatta. Said winner Terry Whittemore, Middlebury, Conn.: "I'll be back next year. I like racing on this ever-varying course between the islands. You get tired of the same old triangular and windward-leeward courses." . . . The 1959 Moth Class International Championships will be sailed at Miami Yacht Club, June 25-28 . . . Pram Internationals come up next Saturday and Sunday at Clearwater.

Double Bill Today

MOC Schedules Both Inboard, Outboard Runs

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Miami Outboard Club takes a progressive step today when it offers both outboard and inboard competition in the Festival of Spring Regatta between MacArthur and Venetian Causeways.

In addition to popular 48 inch hydroplanes, swift 135 hydros are on the schedule for the first time in the history of MOC - sponsored events.

EVANS

If these inboard classes prove successful, future regatta programs will be expanded to include 266 and 280 inboard hydros.

Chairman George Whitney also has scheduled six outboard divisions — A, B, C and D stock hydro, and AU and BU runabout.

All the above classes are sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association and will be decided by two heats.

Only non-sactioned race will be for non-racing rigs owned by MOC members and guests.

Ample spectator and parking space is available north of the MOC clubhouse in Watson Park. Drivers' meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m. with A stock hydros launching the 17-heat card at noon.

Leading the inboard contingent will be F. C. (Doc) Moor, Hall of Fame member and National Champ in 48 hydros, and Weldon Ropp, the nation's high point 135 driver in 1958.

Outboard fleet will include such "name" drivers as Bob Brown, Skipper Ritter, Chris Erneston, Harry Pinner, Don Baldaccini and the father-son Hutchins team.

* * *

A 35-MILE Predicted Log Contest will be run off in Biscayne Bay today by the University Yacht Club.

Top team of three boats from one boating organization will earn the "Deichmann Team Trophy," a sterling Wassel bowl of 17th Century origin brought over from England by Dr. Deichmannn.

* * *

WHEN Bob English was elected commodore of Miami Outboard Club for the second time, he promised "a major league program of expansion."

Evidence that he intends keeping his word came Saturday in announcement of the inauguration of an annual International Invitational Speedboat Regatta.

It will be staged May 31, will be co-sponsored by the MOC and City of Miami, and already has been sanctioned by the APBA.

"We have been assured," says Leo Johnson, "that several drivers from foreign countries will participate in the inboard and stock outboard classes."

Bob Pettit Tops NBA Star Team

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— The Sporting News Saturday named record scorer Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks as player of the year, heading a National Basketball Association all-star team selected by a poll of NBA players.

Others on the first team were Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis, also voted rookie of the year, and three Boston Celtics — Bill Russell, Bob Cousy and Bill Sharman.

Outdoor Tips

TO CLEAN a greasy camp frying pan, throw in a handful of gray ashes from the fire and then wipe with paper towels or a wad of dry grass. The ashes mix with the grease to make the equivalent of soap. A thorough rinsing completes the cleaning job.

ANGLERS subject to sunburn should be especially careful in cool weather. That Florida sun keeps blazing even when your teeth are chattering, and you might cook before you're aware of it.

MOST artificial lures will provide better action if fixed to braided or monofilament lines by means of a snap, instead of being knotted directly to the line. With a wire leader, though, no snap is necessary.

Fishing Club Opposes Salt Water License

Address letters on fishing or hunting subjects to Outdoor Editor Vic Dunaway.

* * *

DEAR VIC,

The Islamorada Fishing Guides Association is opposed to the proposed law requiring a salt water fishing license. We feel that there are other means to support fishing. Our opposition is also based on many other factors.

We have a committee which will attend the reading and discussion of the bills by our representatives and senators at Key West at a later date. By presenting our reasons for not favoring the bill, we might help a little to prevent it.

State Fresh-Water Anglers May Get Exemption Clause

Florida land owners may get homestead exemption in a proposed amendment to Florida's fresh-water fishing license law.

A present law allows unlicensed resident hunters to take game on their homesteads or the homesteads of their spouses, and allows minor children to hunt on the homesteads of their parents.

DUNAWAY

"The same homestead exemption should apply to our resident fresh water fishermen," said A. D. Aldrich, director of the Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. He adds that many states have such exemptions, and that public opinion seems to favor it in Florida.

Present plans call for addition of the fisherman's homestead exemption clause to the proposed amendment that would require a uniform $2.00 license of all other freshwater anglers between 15 and 65.

Mate's Swim Helps Land Marlin /

A CHARTER BOAT mate went for an ocean swim off Boynton Beach, and as a result, Edward Dingee of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., landed a 260½-lb. blue marlin to take the lead in the Boynton Fishing Tournament.

Dingee hooked the blue from Capt. James Lunsford's Carol K, but mate Charles Lunsford needed help in getting the fish aboard. Consequently, Dick Griner swam over from the Lucky Penny to lend a hand.

The longest sailfish to date also was posted in the Boynton Beach tourney last week. Albert H. Pearce of Newton Square, Pa., caught the 7-foot, six-inch fish on the Southern Comfort, Capt. Herb Schulz.

Lake 'Monster' Snaps 20 Lines

"We had a very interesting afternoon," says Mixon.

"We don't know what it was," Mixon reports, "but he was well fed that day. Every time a shiner hit the water he'd grab it and head for the weeds. None of us were able to keep him on more than a minute or two."

Mills' Wahoo Finest

A 75½-lb. wahoo caught in the local Gulf Stream was the top fish of the week in the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament.

Action was heavy altogether.

Outstanding in the light-tackle division was the 91-lb., 4-oz. tarpon subdued on plug-casting gear in Government Cut by Dr. D. E. Schang of Miami. It is believed to be the heaviest tarpon ever taken on plug gear in the Cut.

John Alden Knight, author of the Solunar Tables, made his first fly-casting mark in the Met with a 2-lb., 12-oz. ladyfish, but has his sights set on heavy tarpon and snook. Last year the author won the fly casting division with an 8-lb., 13-oz. trout that set a Met record. Knight, from Williamsport, Pa. is accompanied by his son, Dick, who is outdoor editor of Newsday on Long Island.

Leonard Sands of Miami, scored again in the spin casting division with a 20-lb. barracuda out of Key West. His 72-lb. tarpon, caught in the same area, still leads the tourney.

Nancy L. Burdick, Loudonville, N.Y., claimed the leading 9-lb., 11½-oz. bonefish on spin gear off Key Biscayne. Dr. Carl W. Behrens of Bunker Hill, Ill., fished out of Marco Island Inn to boat the 12-lb., 3-oz. redfish that now leads the standings.

All anglers are invited to compete. There is no charge or obligation in registering any of 33 eligible fish at more than 100 weighing stations from Sunny Isles Rd., south to Key West and east from Bimini and Cat Cay to Marco.

Rogers Gets Oligarchy

Chris Rogers, who has enjoyed a big winter season so far through victories of Bayard Sharp's Troilus in the Bahamas and Flamingo, has accepted the mount on Brookmeade Stable's Oligarchy for the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap for next Saturday.

Thus Rogers gets another shot at the winner's share of a $100,000 event.

Oligarchy won the Widener in 1958 and in a recent race at Gulfstream Park was a handy winner, indicating he is coming up to the handicap in good shape.

Suggs, Smith Still Tied

AUGUSTA — (AP) — Louise Suggs and Wiffi Smith finished the third round of the 10th Women's Titleholders Golf Tournament Saturday the same way they started — deadlocked for first place.

Each fired a 3-over-par 75 for a 226 total.

Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., picked up two eagles en route to her 74 and climbed into third place at 228. She started the round tied for fifth.

Fay Crocker, of Montevideo, Uruguay, who was only one shot off the pace in the first two rounds, putted herself out of the picture. Four 3 putt greens plus a triple-bogey 7 on No. 3 sent her to 80 and 323.

QUICK PASS far back for first half mile, moved quickly along outside thereafter to wear down GYALBO WANG with a rush in midstretch and won with something left. Latter always prominent, moved between horses to gain command on second turn, drew clear momentarily but was no match for winner. MELODY MAGIC improved her racing position steadily but posed no threat to winner. CARRIE LEE went evenly. FAROTOL lost all chances when she bolted on final bend. OO LA LA stopped badly.

SCRATCHES: Rimonte, Gift Of Valor, Same Thing.

GAME CONQUEROR far back through early running, rallied fast from between horses entering stretch and wore down PLEASANT TIME in closing strides. Latter engaged LEGAL LARCENY at once, put that one away to draw clear in midstretch but could not withstand belated bid of winner. BEST FLIGHT was going strongly at the end. ANFITRION raced wide and made up some ground. MONOGRAM could not keep up.

831—THIRD—Purse $3,200, 3-year-olds,

MONKO engaged GO RIPPEY from outside at once, put that one away when ready to draw clear in stretch and then just lasted over DAINTY LADY in a long drive. Latter, unprepared for start, was forced wide thereafter and just missed in a strong effort. ETERNAL COUNT worked his way between horses and finished full of run. PAPSREDMAN was closing in at the end. GO RIPPEY was used up early.

AUDIENCE had speed from start, saved ground much of way, turned back FIRST NATIONAL when ready to draw clear at will and won with authority. NOBLE SEL worked his way up steadily following a sluggish beginning. FIRST NATIONAL tired after showing speed for five furlongs. PROTHALAMION was through early. MCLELLAN was never a serious factor. PONDERING EVE was unprepared for the start.

834—SIXTH—Purse $3,400, 4-year-olds and up,

TILE SON restrained off early lead to stretch where he was sent along outside and wore down MICROBE. Latter had all his speed, saved ground throughout and gave way suddenly. LUCKY ME loomed boldly through upper stretch but could not sustain his bid. INVALIDATE was never a factor. RARE MUSIC, TELLARIAN, BLESSING COUNT, ROYAL BRIAR and CLUB CHAMP were unprepared for the start. TYUS could not keep up and was not persevered with in late stages.

BETTER BEE made the pace under a well judged ride, raced slightly wide and held AMERIGO safe while under pressure. Latter followed within striking distance of winner from start, raced wide and was easily best of others. BILL'S SKY BOY commenced tiring after going five-eighths. BELLEAU CHIEF was forced to come wide in late stages. NOUREDDIN was forced to lose too much ground on entering stretch. GREY MONARCH was forced to steady when blocked on entering stretch. AJACCIO saved ground to no avail. NASCO could not keep up.

N.C. State Cager Signs With O's

RALEIGH, N. C. — (AP) — George Stepanovich, North Carolina State basketball star, has signed a contract with the Baltimore Orioles to play baseball, reportedly for a five-figure bonus.

A fireballing left-handed pitcher who played only a little baseball while at State, Stepanovich will report at Thomasville, Ga., next Tuesday and will train with the Class AA Amarillo, Tex., club.

Tobin, Bow Ditch 'Trade', Point Out Favored Edison

Trades in high school baseball? They don't have 'em, but the subject provided an interesting conversation piece for Miami Jackson Coach Red Tobin and Tech's Johnny Bow last week.

"Tell you what," said Tobin. "I'll trade you two outfielders and two infielders for your pitcher (Andy Monteagudo)."

"What," screamed Bow. "You want to trade away practically my whole team? I'll give you two outfielders and an infielder for a catcher."

"No," countered Tobin. "If you want a catcher, you'll have to talk trade with Edison's Ted Alexander. He's loaded with catchers. Matter of fact, he's just plain loaded."

In Track, Grumbles and Rumbles

But what hurt Collins worse was having to face the North Miamians without Darrell Cox, whom he had counted on for 10 points in dual meets.

Two days before the Pioneer test, new X-rays revealed a chipped bone in one of Cox' ankles that had been hurt in the Miami High-Edison football game. He went immediately into a cast.

No Asphalt--Who's Fault?

FAILURE OF the City of Miami to install asphalt runways in the broad jump, high jump and pole vault pits at Moore Park will hamper South Florida stars in preparing for the state meet at the University of Florida. However, local coaches are hopeful the work will be completed before the regionals.

All boys have been equipped with special tennis shoes to cope with the revolutionary asphalt track at Florida. They're being wasted at Moore Park, which still has dirt runways.

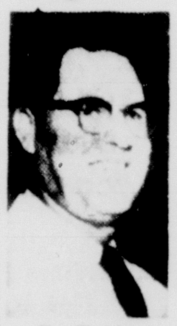
Big Golf Test Slated



R. Tobin

ONE OF THE SEASON'S largest golf meets will be held March 30 at LaGorce. It will match unbeaten Pompano Beach against unbeaten and defending state champion Miami Edison.

Jay Tobin's on the Move

Monteagudo

Sullivan

BASKETBALL player showing the biggest improvement this season was Southwest's Jay Tobin. The 6-2 center came up to lead the Eagles to the state tournament . . . Edison Tackle John Albrecht, headed for the University of Miami, is recovering from a cartilage operation . . . Hialeah Coach Hal Lannom has added Gold Coast Conference foe Palm Beach to his football schedule . . . Addition of Pompano Beach makes the Gold Coast one of the strongest conferences in the state . . . A rugged baseball battery: South Broward Pitcher Frank McAninch and Catcher Lenny Prisciandaro . . . Coach Paul Davis has lost only one home game in three years of Fort Lauderdale High baseball coaching. His career record is 115 wins, 21 loses . . . Former North Miami Coach Howard Lipscomb enjoyed a student council meeting at Fort Worth, Texas . . . Curley Coach Sam Scarnecchia is recovering from a tonsilectomy . . . Edison Tackle Rollie Benson is up to 260 pounds. The 6-3 athlete will play for the University of Miami.

Tennis: Karabasz' 'Love'

IT DIDN'T take long for John Karabasz to make the change from basketball to tennis. The lanky Coral Gables star won his first match, 6-9, 6-1 . . . Edison swimmers Betty Ann Hosack and Pat Causey are sisters of ex-football stars Bob Hosack and Jim Causey . . . Ex-Miami High track star John Uelses will compete in the Irish Relays Tuesday at South Broward High field. Uelses' roomate at Alabama, ex-Raider Tony Hogan is recovering from a flu attack . . . St. Louis Cardinal scout John Buik thinks Jackson's Roy Sinkovich "can go all the way to the top." Buik signed the all-city outfielder last week.

Miamians on All-Gold Coast Squad

MEMBERS of the Gold Coast Conference's Northern Division All-Star basketball team include Hialeah's Bernie Butts, South Broward's Ray Fishel, West Palm Beach's Verle Beebe, Fort Lauderdale's Charlie Moore, Stranahan's Bill Mazzola, Bill Rutz, Ron Hamilton and Vernon Rogers, Central Catholic's Frank Bean and North Miami's Tom Baxley.

Selected for the Southern Division team were Southwest's Chris Lefferts and Brainard Dorris, Key West's Boog Powell, George Mira and Ron Young, South Dade's Larry Evans and Racey Timmons, and Miami Beach's Jeff Joseph and Norm Roskin.

Praznovsky New Pin Boss At Pinerama

Praznovsky

Al Rosen, who represents the controlling syndicate, said Friday that Praznovsky will replace Abe Lapides Monday in the 32-lane establishment.

"We plan no other personnel changes," added Rosen.

Cage Coach Huskies Name

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — Charles Glenn Smith, 31-year-old Washington graduate and coach at Parkway High School in St. Louis County, Saturday was named head basketball coach at Washington University, replacing the late Blair Gullion.

Jockeys Find 'Good Thing'

LIMA, Peru —(AP)— Twelve jockeys were under suspension Saturday pending an investigation of charges that they have been fixing races. Also suspended were eight apprentice riders and trainers.

The Jockey Club of Peru is seeking the extradition of Jockey Antonio Marchesini from Panama. He went there to deliver some horses.

Jockey Club officials said movies definitely show that the accused jockeys held back their mounts to let longshots win.

NYU Fencers Overcome Navy

NEW YORK — (AP) — New York University piled up 26 points in the sabre competition Saturday and edged Navy, 69-65, for the three-weapon title in the Intercollegiate Fencing Association championships.

Lincoln Jockeys 'Strike'

LINCOLN, R.I. —(AP)— After completing the first two races of the original 10-race program, jockeys at Lincoln Downs refused to ride any more horses over the frozen racing strip Saturday and the remainder of the card was cancelled.

A crowd of 15,000 that wagered $204,320 on the first two races and the double were given passout checks entitling them to admission at any later day of the spring meeting scheduled to run through April 18.

The jockeys reported that the track was frozen very solid under a small surface of water with so little cushion available to make it dangerous in their opinion.

At 1:30 p.m. they agreed to ride the first two races and then decide about continuing. The original program had been cut from 10 to eight before any start was made.

After the second race the stewards and B. A. Dario, treasurer and managing director of the track, met with the jockeys seeking to persuade them to ride.

Dick McLaughlin, one of the three Lincoln representatives for the jockeys' guild, said that three times the riders voted unanimously not to continue.

The meeting is scheduled to resume Monday.

Programs on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of this week were cancelled because of two severe storms.

The Week in Finance

Public 'Wants In' And Stock Market Hits Historic High

By JOHN G. FORREST
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—The stock market gradually picked up momentum last week and reached a historic high.

It was a familiar story. The special situation stocks attracted investor and trader interest, as they have in many recent sessions. Again, companies in the so-called glamour fields of electronics and missiles got a big play. It was apparent that the public "wanted in" regardless of dividends, if any, or the ratio between earnings and price. Trading was heavy in these issues throughout the week.

The increase in the lending (discount) rate from 2½ to 3 per cent into effect on March 6 by four Federal Reserve banks and later by others apparently had little sobering effect on the stock market. Short-term borrowing rates were raised by commercial paper dealers. Short-term Treasury bills also went up ⅛ of a point.

President Eisenhower's decision to impose mandatory controls on oil imports generally was no surprise. Most domestic oil companies welcomed the new limitations. But some importers felt the controls were too drastic and might result in price increases.

Under the new quota system, imports of crude oil and unfinished oil products are fixed at 750,000 barrels a day for the area east of the Rocky Mountains.

The voluntary quota was 883,000 barrels. Imports of finished petroleum products and of residual oils—used as industrial fuel — are being brought under control for the first time. The quota for finished products is 60,000 barrels a day, compared with recent imports averaging 300,000 parrels a day.

The recent flood of steel orders reflects fear of a steel strike. Producers report that their order books are about full, with buyers demanding, in some cases, immediate deliveries to build up inventories.

This activity has helped push up the steel operating rate. Last week, furnaces operated at 91.8 per cent of capacity, turning out a record 2,600,000 tons. That followed the preceding week's production of 2,556,000 tons and operations at 90.3 per cent of capacity. In February, 9,603,000 tons of steel were turned out, the largest output for any month since May, 1957.

Detroit is doing its part to spark the boom in steel production. Auto makers are increasing their orders as production continues to rise. This week they assembled 132,049 cars, 53 per cent more than the 86,441 units built in the like week of last year.

The small car of the Big Three of the auto industry is closer to reality. Ford said it would introduce one this fall, "barring changes in the market." This statement came on the heels of one by L. L. Colbert, president of the Chrysler Corp., who said his company also was prepared to come out with an economy car.

Bus Ride Pleases Investors

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Sixty-one financiers took a multimillion dollar bus-ride through part of Miami and Miami Beach Saturday and liked what they saw through their investment-wise eyes.

Riding a pair of buses were officials of the top banking and investment firms of the nation who were sizing up the area's potential.

Usually noncommittal, the financiers were downright loquacious about the growth and investment prospects.

There was a unanimity of feeling that Florida, and especially South Florida, is possibly the hottest spot in the nation for growth.

It was a multimillion dollar ride because state officials hope to persuade the investment people to purchase 25 million dollars in bonds next month at interest rates favorable to the state.

Most of the money will be used to finance the 36th St. expressway and the bus-ride included much of the proposed expressway route.

Two companies which will play important roles in selling the bonds are Smith, Barney & Co., and Blyth and Co.

Alfred Mante, on hand for Smith, Barney, said:

"It's fantastic — there is no question about the future — it will be just tremendous."

R. George Levind of Blyth and Co. was equally enthusiastic:

"The obvious growth is phenomenal. The expressway is a needed development and I think there will be a good market for the bonds."

Florida's First Steel Mill Fills a Need

By JAMES RUSSELL
Herald Business Editor

TAMPA — On the outskirts of Tampa, an unlikely new symbol of Florida's industrial progress is turning out vital materials for construction projects all over the state.

It's a full-fledged steel mill with a modern electric furnace that is turning the rubble from automobile scrap yards into tough reinforcing bars for buildings, homes and bridges.

As you stare into the mouth of this fiery monster of industry, it is hard to realize you are not in Pittsburgh or Cleveland or Birmingham. Yet, on the same 39-acre site of Florida's first steel mill there are palmetto bushes and pine trees growing under a warm winter sun.

"Why shouldn't there be a steel mill in Florida?" asks Sam Flom, president of Florida Steel Corp., which operates the mill. "We have the raw material — the scrap metal—and we have the demand."

Why not, indeed?

The scrap metal comes from Florida and the reinforcing bars that eventually evolve from the scrap are sold entirely to Florida consumers.

Miami's new 36th St. Causeway across Biscayne Bay contains some of these steel bars. So does the bridge now under construction across Tampa Bay, a new link between Tampa and St. Petersburg. And so do hundreds of homes and small office buildings.

Every 2½ hours, on the average, the electric furnace pours out 15 tons of molten metal. Since the mill operates 24 hours a day, that's about 150 tons a day.

Florida Steel Corp. has been in business since 1937 but until last fall its four plants, including the Bushnell Steel Products firm in Miami, operated only as fabricators and suppliers of steel products. The basic steel came from outside the state.

White Hot Ingot Enters the Roughing Mill

. . . heavy rollers squeeze it to size at Tampa Steel Mill

Since it's a costly operation to ship the stuff, the company built a regular steel rolling mill east of Tampa just north of U.S. Highway 60 and installed the electric furnace. Now, the entire steel-making process is handled right here.

There are 85 employes at the rolling mill. All but four were recruited in Florida. The four outsiders were steel-making specialists like R. R. Black, who designed the mill and now is its general manager.

"As soon as a little notice about our mill appeared in Iron Age magazine," said Flom, "we had thousands of applications from steel men in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Gary — in every steel center where it gets cold in the winter."

The Tampa steel workers are non-union and if a steel strike materializes this summer, they'll keep right on working. Then how would a strike affect this operation?

"We would just disconnect our telephones, I guess," said Flom. "We would continue to supply our regular Florida customers but we couldn't begin to fill all the orders that would come in from outside."

One of Florida Steel's toughest jobs has been convincing customers that it can turn out just as good a product as some of the old established giants of the industry up north. In the eyes of a corporation planning a new building, steel and Florida somehow don't seem to mix.

"We've overcome that in a lot of cases," Flom said, "and in every case the customer has been satisfied."

As Florida continues to grow industrially, the unlikely steel mill near Tampa expects to grow, too. It is far enough away from residential areas so that the little amount of smoke the electric furnace throws off is a nuisance to nobody except the men working there — and they expect it.

Florida Steel has in mind the future addition of two more electric furnaces and the production of light structural beams as well as the reinforcing bars it now makes.

"We feel sure," said Flom, "that this mill will fit effectively into Florida's growing construction and industrial future."

Wolfson, Meyer Ask FCC's OK of Split

Wometco Partnership Is Breaking Up

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

The long-time partnership of Mitchell Wolfson and Sidney Meyer in Wometco Enterprises Inc. may soon come to an end.

The company has asked the Federal Communications Commission to approve a corporate reshuffling which would take Meyer out of the active management and leave Wolfson in control.

Wolfson declines to comment on the move, beyond saying that "Nothing is definite yet; nothing has been signed."

But it is known that a public offering of 35 per cent of Wometco's stock at a price between $10 and $12 is under consideration.

MEYER

WOLFSON

The company owns WTVJ (Ch. 4) in Miami, 20 per cent of WFGA-TV in Jacksonville, a controlling interest in an Asheville, N.C. television station, a string of 33 Florida theaters, and a vending machine business.

Under the plan filed with the FCC, Meyer — who is Wolfson's brother-in-law — will sell 5 per cent of his stock to the Wolfson family, retain 10 per cent, and sell the remaining 35 per cent to the public.

The arrangement would give Wolfson working control of 55 per cent of Wometco's stock. Meyer would retire as vice president and become an honorary board chairman, director and consultant.

It was not clear whether WTVJ would remain in Wometco Enterprises after the reorganization is completed. The company has also asked the FCC to transfer an equipment license from its name to the Wolfson family.

Margin Changes Proposed

Dow Jones, AP, UPI

The Federal Reserve Board has proposed several changes in its rules governing the sale of stocks on margin in an effort to close loopholes.

The new rules will tighten up the use of "restricted accounts — accounts in which more credit is outstanding on the securities than is now permitted by law.

The second major change would stop leaks whereby ordinary bank loans find their way into stock purchases in violation of the spirit of margin requirements.

It would bar loans for any purpose by a bank against stocks as a collateral if a loan had already been made against those same stocks for purchasing or carrying stocks.

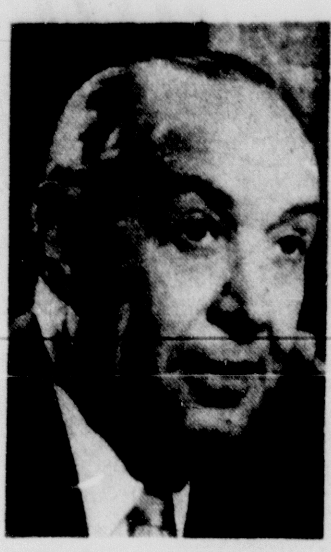
Alger Hero Eyes Florida

By PAT MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer



Henry Garfinkle
. . . millionaire newsboy

Henry Garfinkle, an East Side Horatio Alger who hustled a one-man newsstand into a 98 million-dollars-a-year business empire, is in Florida looking for new ways to turn pennies into millions.

This he will do, so long as people read, eat, smoke and have a knack for bric-a-brac.

Garfinkle is president of American News-Union News Co.-American Match Co. whose lattice work of consumer services makes it the General Motors of the concession business.

Sooner or later, almost every American pays into the Garfinkle till — cigarets or cigars from a bus station newsstand, magazines or newspapers on a train or in an airline terminal, haircuts in a hotel, soda pop from a vending machine in a theater lobby, a highball in a restaurant, matches to light a pipe or souvenirs from a novelty stand.

In the last year, Garfinkle, a stubby, gravel-voiced, in-fighter, has quietly taken over newsstand, barbershop and bootblack concessions in Miami Beach's plushiest hotels.

And from his suite at Hollywood's Diplomat Hotel, he has his eyes on other virgin fields.

To date, his Florida investment in equipment and facilities has cost a million dollars in a year's time, but Garfinkle is counting on 10 million dollars worth of business by 1960.

He sees these profits coming from proposed concessions in county and state parks and from food and beverage services in airline terminals sprouting up at Florida's major airports.

He lost in his bid to run all consumer concessions at Miami's new airport terminal, but is trying to recoup by negotiating for operation of a self-service restaurant, exclusive cocktail lounge and bar atop the hotel at the terminal.

He already has concessions at Broward International Airport in Fort Lauderdale.

The parent American News company was in hot water last week with the Federal Trade Commission which charged in anti-trust complaints that it was forcing suppliers to pay promotional allowances not offered on equal terms to competitors.

Garfinkle's fortunes have been built on a foundation of newsstands. But when he took control of American News-Union News in 1949 with a strategic stock coup, the base was broadened to include anything that Mr. and Mrs. America has a taste for—bowling alleys, liquor operations, hardback books, soda pop vending machines, ice skating rinks.

It was 38 years ago when he borrowed $600 and opened a newsstand in the Staten Island ferry terminal. He built it into a chain of newsstands and the Manhattan News Co. With a major chunk of stock in hand and backing from other stockholders, he took over American News 10 years ago.

"Florida is the widest and most golden horizon we can see," Garfinkle said. "The challenge here is like starting fresh, and the possibilities are tremendous."

FIRST PRIZE

SECOND PRIZE

J. H. Hargrove, 2621 S.W. 26th Lane, Miami accepts news of his second prize trip to Peru via Lanica Airlines from James W. Burdin, Executive Vice-President and Lee M. Worley, Secretary-Treasurer. Contestants were invited to complete the sentence "Thrift is important because" in twenty-five words or less during the Federal's January housewarming celebration.

Selecting two winners from the more than 7,000 entries in Greater Miami Federal's thrift contest was difficult indeed for our judges, but it has been gratifying to us to learn how important thrift is to so many. We sincerely thank each one who took time out to enter our housewarming contest and regret that we cannot acknowledge each and every entry.

We wish to extend our special thanks to the able judges, Agnes Ash, Business Editor of The Miami News, Jim Russell, Financial Editor of The Miami Herald, and Raymond G. Nathan, Judge of Dade County Small Claims Court.

Guest Starting Hops to Europe

By NED AITCHISON
Herald Travel Writer

MEXICO CITY — Miami's direct air service to Europe will be started Friday, March 20, when Guest Aerovias Mexico, S. A., begins flying the mid-Atlantic route from here to Madrid, Spain, and Paris, with intermediate stops in Miami, Bermuda, the Azores and Lisbon,

Guest Mexico flew the same route except for the present extension to Paris, from Jan. 8, 1948, until April 30, 1951. But the carrier was permitted to make only a fueling stop in Miami, and was barred at that time from picking up passengers there for Europe.

Initially, Ralph J. Carr, vice president of Guest, said, two flights weekly, one in each direction, are scheduled.

"But, effective May 1, we plan to increase this to three round trips a week, when DC6b transports will go into service."

Emphasizing the advantages of the new mid-Atlantic service to Miami, Carr said, "Travelers from the Southern United States may now be routed from the Miami gateway to Europe. Also, shippers moving consignments to Europe from Southern points in the U.S., Central America and the Caribbean, will have available the most direct service ever provided."

Guest, since discontinuance of the Mexico-Madrid service, has operated daily between Miami and Mexico City, and between here and Caracas, Venezuela, by way of Panama City, and will maintain these services.

On the new mid-Atlantic route, no passengers may be carried from Mexico or Miami to Bermuda, at present or to the Azores.

300 Due at Conference

More than 300 business leaders are expected to attend the fifth annual all-day Personnel Conference to be held Friday at the University of Miami.

The conference, sponsored by the Personnel Association of Greater Miami and the University, will feature a keynote address by Senator Karl E. Mundt, Republican of South Dakota, and discussions of developments in employer-employee relations by four leading personnel authorities.

Lecture and workshop sessions will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. in Beaumont Lecture Hall on the main campus. Sen. Mundt will speak at the conference banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Dupont Plaza Hotel.

U.S. Okays $1 Billion Latin Bank

The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The State Department disclosed Wednesday that the United States had agreed to an increase in the size of the proposed new Inter-American Development Bank.

The bank will start with a total capital of $1,000,000,000, the announcement revealed. This compares with $850,000,000 in the original U.S. proposal.

Of the total capital, the U.S. share will be about $450,000,000, compared to $400,000,000 in the original offer. Most of the total capital will be devoted to making "hard" or "bankable" loans repayable in dollars, but about 20 per cent will be available for "soft" loans repayable in local currencies.

U.S. officials said today that negotiators of the U.S. and the 20 Latin American republics have reached virtually complete agreement nn the new bank. A special committee has been working on its charter and financing since January.

Inflation Is Key in Housing

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Residential construction shapes up over the next decade as one of the nation's most promising growth industries, a prominent economist said.

But Walter E. Hoadley Jr., treasurer of Armstrong Cork Co., said the actual size of the market will be influenced substantially by the degree of inflation in the land.

He predicted that the inflationary lull which the economy and most businesses are now experiencing "will come to an end within the next nine to 15 months."

In a talk before the 56th annual savings and mortgage conference of the American Bankers Association, Hoadley said inflation will discourage home purchases by driving up land prices, raising building costs, increasing interest charges and discouraging saving by both borrowers and lenders.

He warned that while more people may seek refuge from inflation in housing investments, an increasing supply of homes as well as structure and neighborhood obsolescence will make this "more hazardous than generally realized."

He warned also that unless it becomes possible to trade in houses more easily, the industry will face a serious roadblock. "The opportunity for profitable development of a trade-in house mechanism in all major cities is tremendous."

Commenting on the general economy Hoadley predicted growth in total volume of business this year of three to five per cent, and, he added "the year 1960 shapes up as better than 1959."

FTC Dismisses Insurance Case

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Federal Trade Commission dismissed charges that the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York falsely advertised its health and accident insurance policies.

The FTC said it lacks jurisdiction because the Supreme Court ruled June 30 that state authorities have the primary responsibility for policing insurance companies.

25th ANNIVERSARY
CHASE FEDERAL
IN 1934
CHASE FEDERAL OPENED

. . . AND THAT SAME YEAR
F.D.R. MADE
"FIRESIDE CHATS"

1934 was a hopeful but not a happy year. The nation was still mired in the Great Depression.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt's courageous words, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," had a hollow ring to the millions of unemployed.

Even nature seemed to conspire against economic recovery. The winter was blizzardy. New York City experienced its coldest day on record, February 9, 1934—14 degrees below zero. The Drought of 1934 was the most severe in the country's history, requiring government relief for midwest farmers made destitute. In Chicago a disastrous fire at the Union Stock Yards burned its way over eight square blocks.

1934 was a year to test a man's mettle. It was in April of this year that Chase opened its doors on Miami Beach, with funds of each saver insured-safe by an agency of the United States Government.

It required fortitude and optimism at a time when dollars were scarce, and the entire population of Miami Beach numbered less than 11,000.

Through a quarter of a century of economic changes, Chase Federal has consistently maintained a progressive policy of liberal and uninterrupted dividends, plus a conservative policy of substantial reserves beyond legal requirements.

Chase Federal has grown with Greater Miami—has invested upward of 124 million dollars in first mortgages on homes—and will continue to do its share in shaping Greater Miami's fabulous future.

I WAS GOING BROKE ON $9,000 A YEAR

So I Sent $7 to The Wall Street Journal

High prices and taxes were getting me down. I had to have more money or reduce my standard of living. Like Alice in Wonderland, I had to run faster to stay in the same place.

So I sent $7 for a Trial Subscription to The Wall Street Journal. I heeded its warnings. I cashed in on the ideas it gave me for increasing my income and cutting expenses. I got the money I needed. Now I'm slowly forging ahead. Believe me, reading The Journal every day is a wonderful get-ahead plan.

This experience is typical. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000. It is valuable to the owner of a small business. It can be of priceless benefit to young men who want to win advancement.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you. $500 to $104,000 in 4 years . . .

The story of one common stock Warrant, and how it happened.

The above profit was made by a $500 investment in one common stock Warrant. Such profits were made not only by an investment in one Warrant, (the R.K.O. common stock Warrant, whose story we shall shortly tell), but also in the Warrants of Atlas Corp., Tri-Continental, Richfield Oil, Merritt-Chapman & Scott, United Corp. and a good number of others. In all of the above $500 investments during the past years, each grew from $30,000 to $100,000. In the past year, indeed in the past months, new Warrants have again shown large gains and we should like to ask three questions:

1. Do you know what common stock warrants are?
2. Do you know why common stock warrants are issued?
3. Do you know how to keep abreast of opportunities in common stock warrants—when to buy warrants and when to sell warrants?

If you cannot affirmatively answer these three questions, we believe you will find it greatly to your profit to read:

THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS

1959 Edition by Sidney Fried

Before we go any further, we should like to make several points clear. The historical examples of profits in R.K.O. Warrants and Hoffman Radio Warrants which we shall shortly describe are obviously rare, and did not result from a reading of our publication. Further, the demonstrably large profits attained with many common stock warrants are balanced on the other side by equally demonstrable examples of losses. (Example: a $50,000 investment in Colorado Fuel & Iron Warrants in 1948 was worth about $1,000 just two years later.) What is immediately apparent, precisely in the above statistics, is the truly great leverage inherent in common stock warrants, both up and down, and our entire study, "The Speculative Merits of Common Stock Warrants," is aimed at enlarging the knowledge of investors about this particular type of security so that potential benefits may be enjoyed and potential pitfalls avoided.

THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS was first issued in 1949. Since that time, the book has been brought up-to-date three times, and favorable comment has multiplied. Unsolicited by the publishers, orders for the book have come in from heads of our largest corporations and some of the best financial minds in the country, largely through recommendation by original readers. Among its readers have been banks, insurance companies, and many of the largest investment firms. J. K. Lasser, the best-known tax expert in the country, has called this book "brilliant." The author of this work, Sidney Fried, has had a career including professional trader for investment firms, market analyst and financial writer for a well-known member firm of the N. Y. Stock Exchange, and is now recognized to be one of the most respected specialists in warrants and low-price stocks.

THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS is a sober, well-grounded book which we believe can be invaluable to you, as an investor interested in allocating a portion of your funds for capital growth. Let us give you some idea of what is contained in the pages of this book by partial answers to our original questions:

1. What are common stock warrants?

2. Why are they issued?

To give a brief definition, common stock warrants are certificates issued by the corporation itself, just as bonds, preferred stock and common stock are issued, giving the warrant holder the right to exchange the warrants for common stock issued by the company itself, at a stated price, within a stated period of time, or with no time limit at all, some warrants being perpetual.

The Alleghany Corp. Warrant

A recent example: Alleghany Corp. warrants came into being in October 1952, are now listed on the American Stock Exchange, and give one the perpetual right to buy Alleghany common at $3.75 per share. How did this warrant come to be issued? A partial recapitalization for Alleghany Corp. was proposed in 1952 by which holders of 5½% preferred stock with back dividend accumulations of $116 per share were offered in exchange a new Alleghany Corp. bond plus warrants. Each $100 par share of the old 5½% preferred stock was to receive $100 par value of the new bond plus 20 warrants giving the perpetual right to buy 20 shares of Alleghany Corp. common at $3.75 per share. The warrants were offered as an inducement to the old preferred stockholders to exchange their claim to accumulated back dividends for a perpetual claim to Alleghany common stock—a claim which would become much more valuable should Alleghany common rise in market price. Preferred stockholders holding 100,000 shares of preferred stock accepted this plan and thus, 2,000,000 new Alleghany perpetual warrants were created and are now trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Demonstrating how important it is to watch common stock warrants, these new Alleghany warrants began trading initially around 75c when Alleghany Corp. common was selling at $3 on the N. Y. Stock Exchange. When Alleghany common advanced from $3 to $11, up 266%, the warrants (being the perpetual right to buy common at $3.75) went from 75c to 7⅞ on the American Stock Exchange. The warrants had advanced 950%, 3½ times as fast as the common. That is how one common stock warrant came into existence, and it is a fact that most warrants come about through reorganizations or issuance of new bonds or preferred stock to which common stock warrants are attached and, after issuance, traded separately. Common stock warrants possess, inherently, such a high potential, that they should always be foremost in the mind of an investor interested in capital appreciation. To see why, here is the story of the long-term warrant which produced our heading—$500 to $104,000 in 4 years—the R.K.O. common stock warrant.

The R.K.O. Warrant

In 1940 the Radio-Keith Orpheum Co. (R.K.O.) reorganized after some years of bad fortune. The old common stockholders seemed to fare badly. For each old share they received only 1/6th share new common stock plus one warrant, good to buy one share of new common stock from the company at $15 per share. In 1942 R.K.O. common was selling at a low of 2½ and with general pessimism rife, the chance of R.K.O. common ever selling above $15, at which point the warrants would begin to have some actual value, seemed slim. R.K.O. warrants were, therefore, selling on the N. Y. Curb Exchange at only 1/16 or 6¼c per warrant. How the picture changed in 4 years! As can be seen from the chart, R.K.O. common stock advanced to a high of 28⅛ on the N. Y. Stock Exchange. Now, the right to buy R.K.O. common at $15 per share from the company when it is selling at $28 per share on the open market, must be worth $13, and the warrants did sell exactly at $13 on the N. Y. Curb Exchange. That is the story of the R.K.O. warrant—$500 invested in these warrants in 1942 was worth $104,000 four years later.

Why is the common stock warrant so uniquely a potent vehicle for capital appreciation? The answer is given in a simple mathematical fact.

Between 1942 and 1946 R.K.O. common stock went from $2.50 to $28.

Therefore, a $500 investment appreciated to $5,600.

Therefore, a $500 investment appreciated to $104,000.

The warrant had appreciated 20 times as fast as the common stock!

As is evident now, the common stock warrant is a low-price call on the future of a company, and at times even on the future of an industry. Such an opportunity arose in past years with a great new industry of limitless potential—television. The rapid growth enjoyed by some small companies, as distinguished percentagewise from the giants such as R.C.A., General Electric and Westinghouse, is illustrated by the leaping sales of Hoffman Radio, a West Coast producer of television, radio and special electronic apparatus. Those sales went from only $29,764 in 1941 to $5,112,889 in 1948 and soared to $29,580,510 in 1950.

The Hoffman Radio Warrant

The results were to be anticipated. The common stock which sold at a low of around 1¾ in 1948 was showing earnings of about $7 per share two years later and was selling near the 30 mark. There were common stock warrants outstanding in the Hoffman Radio capitalization giving the right to buy common at $4 per share. In 1948 the best bid indicated by the records for these warrants was 5c per warrant. Within two years the warrants were $25 bid. Based on these prices a $200 investment in Hoffman Radio warrants was worth $100,000 two years later. The same $200 invested in the common stock would have appreciated only to $4,800. Again the warrant had appreciated more than 20 times as fast as the common.

To widen the picture even more, the years 1952-1958 saw a remarkable trend develop towards issuance of long-term warrants with the result that former opportunities in warrants have multiplied to the extent that they can no longer be ignored by any investor interested in capital appreciation. Below is a list of some of the warrants now outstanding, many actively trading today, many more of which will be actively trading in the months to come, and all of which can greatly reward your interest.

Urgent Memo:

PLEASE NOTE as you read the dramatic story attached, that new profit opportunities in warrants are opening up every day. Molybdenum Corp. of America Warrants moved from 3.50 in late 1957 to 41 in current markets, multiplying 12 times. General Tire and Rubber Warrants moved from 4 to 144 in the last two years. And in the recent past new warrants have been issued for such important companies as Mack Trucks, Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Sheraton Corp., Sperry Rand, Symington Wayne and Glenn L. Martin, to name only a few. An important Point: in rising markets $100 invested in warrants can sometimes show as much appreciation as $1,000 invested in common stocks.

As a vehicle for large gains on a small investment, warrants are outstanding as this "$500 to $104,000" story demonstrates and we cannot emphasize too strongly that these large profits can be kept by the speculative investor as capital gains. But you must select with care. To avoid missing current opportunities, send for your copy of THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS, by Sidney Fried, today. This study gives the full story of the common stock warrant, what they are, when to buy warrants, and when to sell warrants. Included is a current list of 110 warrants you should know about in the coming months.

Forbes Magazine, the highly-respected financial periodical, said of THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS, by Sidney Fried, that ". . . it throws a bright searchlight on a side of investment not known, or understood by the average investor," and went on to call the study ". . . the definitive work on this fascinating aspect of finance."

Common stock warrants have such rewards for those who understand them that many Wall Street professionals and average investors alike have praised THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS, by Sidney Fried, as vitally important to anyone interested in capital appreciation. Proving of real value to all who have given it careful reading, this study tells the entire story of the common stock warrant—what they are—why they are issued—when they may be profitably bought and sold—the dangers to watch for—the opportunities to seek. It has opened the door to a field of such potential that an investor ignores it only to his own detriment.

In the list given here, and in the many additional warrants now coming on the scene, there will be many future opportunities. So far we have only suggested what is contained in the pages of THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS. It is our opinion that no investor interested in capital appreciation can ignore the potential of the common stock warrant, and many share our opinion that this book is the best possible first step towards taking advantage of this potential.

The cost of the latest expanded edition is only $2. Use the coupon today, and receive your copy of this book which, in addition to presenting the complete picture of the common stock warrant, contains a full description of all outstanding warrants and describes a method by which you can take advantage of current opportunities in warrants in today's market.

Careful reading of this book today, will help you take advantage of the many warrant opportunities which will almost certainly develop tomorrow. THE SPECULATIVE MERITS OF COMMON STOCK WARRANTS, by Sidney Fried, deserves to be read by every investor.

HOW CAN DARING SPECULATORS PYRAMID PROFITS?

in stocks under $5

Experienced investors know that the fastest method for building a fortune in the stock market calls for intelligence, careful research, and the courage to buy stocks at depressed prices. We specialize in uncovering these unusual situations—stocks of HIGH GRADE companies that are well-managed, have good earnings prospects, yet are overlooked by the average investor. Now you can get revealing reports on such "hidden value" stocks, many selling under $5.

FREE TRIAL OFFER: Just send name and address on a postcard — or mail coupon below — for a free one-month trial subscription. 7 LOW-PRICED STOCKS

THAT COULD WELL BE TOMORROW'S BLUE CHIPS!

Anyone who can pick tomorrow's blue-chip stocks out of the long list of low-priced stocks on the market today is either lucky or a genius. Our staff of financial experts, constantly entrusted with the responsibility of making definite recommendations to thousands of our regular subscribers, claims neither luck nor genius. Yet there are many hidden "road signs" that point the way to prosperity and growth in any business.

Our staff has just compiled a list of Low-Priced Stocks (from more than 500 under study) that we think have "blue-chip" possibilities in the future. Seven of these seem to offer rare promise of profits to come and are especially recommended. One is in the fast-growing drug field; a second is in the dynamic TV-electronics industry; a third in the promising air transport industry; another is an outstanding farm equipment speculation.

SENT TO YOU WHEN YOU MAIL US COUPON BELOW!

By mailing us the coupon below with only $1, you will get this important list of seven LOW-PRICED STOCKS, as well as a 30-day Trial Subscription to our Dow Theory Forecasts Weekly Investment Service (Reg. price $60 a year). Here is a chance to have delivered to your home or office the one service basing its investment counsel largely on the famed Dow theory which has "called the turn" 9 times out of 10 since 1896! Also included with the Service is our Master List of Stocks for Investment, Recommended Stock Portfolios for Large and Small Investors, Special Industry Reports and the Market Advisory Service Consensus (what 14 other leading investment services are recommending). No salesman will call. No other obligation. This offer open to new trial subscribers only.

RAILROAD STOCKS

IN A GENERALLY overpriced stock market, the most timely values, in the opinion of this independent advisory Service (no brokerage or commission interest), are to be found in the cyclical stocks whose earnings have not yet scored a full recovery from the recent business recession. Notable among these are the railroads.

In its latest survey of the railroad group, the Value Line estimates that the cyclical recovery in railroad earnings will probably carry further. Very favorable earnings comparisons are likely, at least through the first half of the year. Dividend payments are expected to be liberalized in the months ahead.

To be sure, railroading is a retrogressive industry. Its gross revenues in 1958 were less than in 1948. And even among rail stocks, which generally are among the highest ranked by the Value Line Survey for Probable Market Performance in the Next 12 Months, there are some that do not appear especially promising. To help steer your capital into the best values in the railroad group, you may find it profitable to consult this latest study prepared by the Value Line Survey. It will be sent to you, at no extra charge, under the special offer described below.

A Special $5 Introductory Offer*

The current 88-page edition of the Value Line Survey, containing analyses of the Railroad, Railroad Equipment, Truck and Shipping & Shipbuilding industries, will be sent to you at no extra charge under this special offer. Among the stocks covered are:

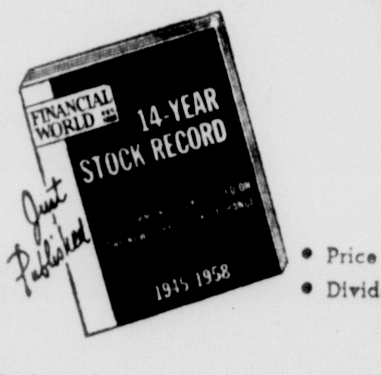
INVESTOR'S 1945-1958 STOCK RECORD for Comparing Stock Values

See how each stock fared in poor years as well as good years before you make an investment decision in this market. The best way to judge the present status and value of stocks you own or consider buying is to compare their performances of past years.

You can't determine a stock's current value unless you have its earnings and dividend record of previous years; and you can't compare current prices with former prices unless you have a record of the hundreds of stock splits over the last fourteen years.



HERE YOU HAVE THE 14-YEAR RECORD of More than 1,000 Active Stocks on the N.Y. Stock Exchange

Firm Sees Security In Growth

Officials of a life insurance company which has 87 million dollars invested in Florida think the state's rapid growth is their best security.

James H. Torrey, vice president in charge of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. securities department, said his company has a proportionately greater share of its reserves invested in Florida than in any other state.

The company, with assets of more than 1.9 billion dollars, has $73,050,488 tied up in Florida mortgage loans, $176,873 invested in real estate, and $14,652,647 invested in municipal bonds and Florida corporations.

Torrey said Connecticut General is currently considering a six-million-dollar mortgage in this area which would further increase the total.

MADE IN Western Germany

Evening Sheath is Cotton Faille
. . . tiers of white organdy form bodice

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

West Germany is out to show the world it knows a good deal about clothes designing.

The imaginative fashions on this page could have been designed in Paris. Actually, they're the product of West Germany's burgeoning new fashion industry. The clothes — ranging from playwear to sumptuous ball gowns — are being exported to this country in increasing numbers (latest figure is about $15,000,000 annually). They're available now in Miami.

* * *

Materials are handsome and the workmanship is Parisian in its attention to detail. Miami Beach's Florence Lustig estimates that there are some 2,000 clothing manufacturers in Western Germany today, employing about 150,000 workers. The industry has sprung up entirely since World War II under the aegis of the U.S. government she points out, and the workers employed are largely those rehabilitated from World War II concentration camps.

Paris had better look to her laurels. The old idea that German women's clothes are uncompromisingly dowdy needs some revision.

Women's Fears Are Often Groundless

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Staff Writer

What's the trouble with most women when they visit the gynecologist?

"Fears," says Dr. Francis Bayard Carter, noted surgeon and professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Duke University Medical School.

According to Dr. Carter, who was in Miami Beach to present a paper for the Southeastern Surgical Congress last week, most gynecology patients have:

"Fears of everything. Fears of the examination, of waiting for the reports and of what the reports will say."

"Sure they're scared of cancer and I don't blame them for that," says the quick-spoken doctor who explains himself in laymen's terms. "But a lot of their fears are groundless."

And many of these fears could be laid to rest with a therapy Dr. Carter calls "ventilating."

Ventilating means telling the doctor about your problems. "This can resolve a lot of pains," the doctor continued. "I'm not a psychosomaticist, but ventilating really is important. Maybe the woman won't talk on her first visit, but she probably will on the second."

One source of fear, says Dr. Carter, is that women are not familiar with physiology (functions of organs, cells, tissues, etc.) High school classes on physiology are helping on this point, though.

"They also think that their problem is unique. They don't realize that hundreds of women have the same problems and that even our (physicians) daughters have the same problems and examinations."

And of course, he concluded, the best way to prevent gynecologic problems is to have "a good physical and a smear test" regularly.

Emancipation Brings Ulcers

Nothing is sacred to men anymore, not even ulcers.

"Gastric ulcers, colitis and other gastro-intestinal problems used to be the diseases of neurotic males, or just males in general," says the doctor.

Now it alarms him that many of his women patients have ulcers. "In the old days we very seldom diagnosed ulcers in women."

Dr. Carter says the reason for the rising ulcer rate "can be interwoven with women's emancipation — the additional worries of competing in business, or of managing money and real estate left to her."

"But I still don't believe that women's place is only in the home. A woman has plenty of time for both a home and career after the children are grown."

He added that if women are going to outlive their husbands by "ten to twelve years," they need these experiences outside the home to prepare themselves for living alone.

Happiest Bachelors? .. Women

LOS ANGELES—(WNS)—The female of the species has it all over the male when it comes to living a bachelor life. What's more, this holds true as much for Hollywood as for New York or London.

Authority for this is blonde Patricia Cutts, a willowy beauty who made her name in the U. S. as a star of the play, The Matchmaker, and has just been cast in her first important movie role, in Battle of the Coral Sea.

Before coming to live in Hollywood, principally for TV work, she had sufficient experience in New York and her native London to know whereof she speaks.

"Bachelor girls are better off than bachelor men on all scores," Patricia said, in her brisk, British voice. "A girl can make a home for herself, and enjoy it.

"She can entertain there, too, while a man must always take a girl out. Besides, a girl can broaden her interests and develop new ones, according to the men she dates, which is a delightful way to educate yourself, painlessly!"

However, too few bachelor girls appreciate their superior position, Patricia claims. Most single women feel naked without a man to call their own, undoubtedly as a result of the pressure for "togetherness" that dominates today's world.

"I am bored with the moaning and groaning of many of the single girls I know," Patricia continued. "They are so filled with self-pity they completely overlook the plus-aspects of being a bachelor-girl. Instead, they inundate you with parlor psychology to explain why they must have a man around. Any man, so long as he wears pants, will do.

"I can't agree with those girls about its being so lonely. Frankly, I believe there is no loneliness more tragic than being married to a man you don't love. It's far better to live alone.

"My life is full. I'm working hard and for my free time, I've developed a system. I cast my friends as you would a movie, choosing them for different occasions. I've got some to go to lectures and concerts, some for dancing, some for philosophical moments, some good, old-shoe friends."

Ghost of War Stalks Berlin Parties

By JUDY BARDEN
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — "Farewell" and "hello" parties have always been a great part of the social life here. They have always been gay.

But these days, things are different. There is a ghost at the feast —Berlin.

We recently went to a dinner party for 30 people given by a Britisher and his wife to say "farewell" to an American couple who were leaving for the States.

Smart chat went up and down the two dinner tables until 9 o'clock when somebody said to his host "I say old boy, could we listen to the news?"

* * *

NOW USUALLY at such gatherings, particularly British, the ladies are separated from the gentlemen after dinner for about half-an-hour. But on this occasion that word "news" sent us all scuttling into the "den" to hear latest developments.

When the news was over a rush of conversation began. These were Norwegians, Germans, British and Americans at this party, mostly from their own diplomatic corps.

The subject was whether the Russians were bluffing or would we have to go to war over Berlin.

One American said tentatively that the Americans were willing to go to war, but, what about the British? A Britisher answered testily that his country had never been known to let the team down yet.

* * *

A WOMAN CORRESPONDENT said to her husband who is also a correspondent, "Are we going to Berlin for D-Day darling?" And he replied, "I am, but not you." She said crossly "don't be ridiculous, we have always been together."

Whereupon a Norwegian said, "You might not be together long; the Russians don't allow husbands and wives to live together in the salt mines."

A band struck up in the room outside but nobody went to dance.

The host eventually succeeded in getting three couples on the floor but their dancing was mechanical. They talked to each other about the "situation" and rushed back to the "den" without waiting for the band to play an encore.

At 12 o'clock we all listened to the "news" again and the three piece band was told it could go home.

That is the way it is all the time here now.

Mrs. Murrow: 'Ed Is a Big Man'

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

It's always interesting to hear women talk about their husbands. It's even more so to hear Mrs. Edward R. Murrow talk about hers.

She gives a real Person-to-Person profile of the man behind the man who digs for stories in depth, the reason why people are as they are, the man behind the screen of cigaret smoke (he smokes about 3 packs a day).

One In a Series

"I don't find it trying that he's so well known and popular," said the short-haired Mrs. Murrow as she relaxed at the Kenilworth Hotel. She wore a tailored red print dress, lowheeled red shoes and spoke slowly, thinking carefully, wanting to say the precise thing.

"I do find it sad that he works so hard and we don't see him as often as we would like.

"I really think Ed is a big man. He's not interested in petty details. His thinking is on a large scale."

"He has a nice sense of humor . . . he doesn't like to gossip, and I love to gossip," she said. "Sometimes it's difficult to live up to all this . . ."

Mrs. Murrow

"AMONG HIS SHORTCOMINGS is the fact that he really doesn't know how to play . . . Yes, he's always intense, even intense about his playing. My goodness, when we were first married he never played less than 36 holes of golf at a time. Now he's down to a quiet 18."

Mrs. Murrow said that she thinks there's the same intenseness about her husband's role as father.

"I think he feels he has to make up for the hours he cannot be with him . . . Two years ago he and Casey (who is 13) drove across the country together to see Ed's mother.

"Last summer he and Casey shot the rapids of the Rogue River in Oregon. They have a wonderful time together . . .

"Ed is wonderful in times of crisis, even though the awfullest things may have happened, he gives the feeling of strength. Of course, there were many instances of this during the war (World War II when Mr. Murrow was a CBS director reporting from overseas, a time when the Murrows lived in London for 9 years) . . . during the time when my mother died, when his father died, all the big moments when great changes occur in one's life, Ed has always been a great comfort."

Wonderful Women

MRS. MURROW was a Mt. Holyoke College senior when she met Mr. Murrow. She was attending a student government conference in New Orleans and Mr. Murrow, a past president, was guest speaker.

"I thought he was a very attractive young man and I also thought that all the ladies made such a fuss over him, he would be spoiled and that I wouldn't like him at all."

But she liked him. And he liked her ("Ed said he liked my ankles").

She taught school briefly in Connecticut before they were married in her parents' home. He continued in his job as a director of an educational institute in New York, then went with CBS.

Now her husband is about to take a year's "leave of absence" from CBS and Mrs. Murrow is looking forward to a year of renewing old friendships, traveling and entertaining.

It will be a special year for Mrs. Murrow, too. "Next year we'll celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary."

In Palm Beach Fashions— It's the Color That Counts

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

PALM BEACH — Palm Beachites may be firmly allied against fashion extremes. But color — that's a different story. In the matter of bright hued resort clothes, style leaders here seem more venturesome than most Miamians.

This applies to men more than to women.

A tour that starts on Worth Avenue's bougainvillea-hung shopping area, winds through an exclusive club like the Everglades, skirts a hotel lobby and yacht basin like the Palm Beach Biltmore's can turn up some eye-openers. Such as the red corduroy cuffless slacks, worn with black knit polo shirt and a black and white glen plaid wool cap. And the gray flannel sports jacket, piped around its collar and pockets in red. Or the white "ice cream" pants, paired with burgundy sports jacket.

We swear we saw one distinguished looking gentleman sporting slacks of a forest green and a bright yellow jacket, topped of course with the inevitable straw hat.

Not that the distaff side of Palm Beach sticks exclusively to khaki-colored bermuda shorts! Vividly printed long-sleeved silk shirts reminiscent of the Italian Riviera are being worn by younger women with walking shorts in shades like orange or rose.

There's one unviolable rule, though: only one "fun" accessory to a costume. If the shirt is vivid, the straw hat is undecorated. If the hat is decorated with golf tee flags, fish or other expressions of the wearer's hobby, then the well-dressed woman sticks to conservative shorts and shirt and unadorned white calf handbag.

By night, you'd think you were in a different city. At semi-formal functions, such as Saturday night at the Palm Beach Playhouse, out come the navy blue silks, the minks in conservative dark brown shades, the sleek black crepes and chiffons in short lengths. Hardly a twinkling bugle bead in sight.

Favorite "hat" by evening is the black whimsy — just a bit of decorated veiling, to keep the hair in place.

A few men wear tuxedos to the Playhouse on Saturday nights, but most prefer business suits. Monday night openings are more formal.

* * *

Katie (Mrs. Ray) Heslop's chic red chiffon evening dress. A long creation with intriguing flat bows at the derriere and a foot above the hemline.

Australia's 'Queen Of The Quakes'

The only qualified woman seismologist in Australia, Rosslyn records most of the big earthquakes in the world on an American-made Benioff seismograph.

Over the past three years she has recorded more than 40 tremors in her own territory as well as the ones overseas.

Most Australians live on the edge of a volcanic belt, but fortunately not on it. So Rosslyn is not likely to record anything so devastating as the quakes which shattered San Francisco and Napier, New Zealand, which are on the Pacific volcano belt.

PERSON-TO-PERSON

Beach Couples Go Calling— On Pygmy Tribe

By HELEN WELLS
Herald Society Editor

"PERFUME IS NOT one of the pygmies' failings . . . they smell to high heaven . . ." write Marion and Dr. George Menninger, of Golden Beach, Ruth and Rad-Crane of La Gorce Island.

This foursome is on safari in Africa and had just visited a pygmy tribe on the slope of Mt. Hogo in the Belgian Congo. These tiny people are nomadic. They raise no food and live off of roots, berries, rats, whatever game they kill.

Ruth Crane
. . . and the Pygmies

They are excellent marksmen and all, including the children carry spears and bows and arrows, some of the latter poisoned.

George says that their life span is about 35 years. The women bear children at 12 or 14 and are old at 25. But they seem a happy people, he says, in spite of their precarious existence.

Our hunters-with-cameras write that the pygmies are only one small leap from cannibalism . . . if that. . . A rare treat for them is an elephant. Seems they gang up on one of the huge beasts, smear themselves with elephant dung and climb up his legs. With their crude knives they stab him in the stomach until he dies which sometimes takes five or six hours.

"Of course," write our friends, "a few pygmies may join their ancestors in the process . . ." but apparently that's a small matter when there is elephant meat to be had.

The hunters describe the pygmies' houses as about four feet high and five feet wide and made of grass and twigs. To get inside they get down on all fours and crawl in like animals.

Marion admits that she nearly lost her breakfast when a group of pygmies crowded around her and Ruth caused a near riot when she persuaded one of the women to let her hold a new born baby. The infant was about a foot long and weighed around two pounds!

George says that he and Rad had trouble taking pictures as the jungles are so dense the sun only filters through.

They are going on more safaris in Zanzibar then on to the Sudan, the Valley of the Kings, up the Nile and on to Cairo. Sounds wonderful, doesn't it?

April Fool's Sextette

DON'T KNOW WHETHER "The Sextette" is the Floradora or not—anyhow here's a rhyming invitation from Helen Schneider, Nelly Stewart, Gertrude Wallendorff, Ruth Mitchell, Irene Rowland and Rene Uridge.

It says "The Sextette wants you to come and join in the fun, For April Fool's Day is the Day to play. We'll mix your favorite brew, Enjoy lunch, have a story or two. April first is the date, twelve the hour, Don't be late." Locale is Rene and Owen Uridge's home in Bay Point.

What Might Have Been

ALERT TO ALL HOSTESSES . . . a real live royal prince, who would have been the Shah of Iran had his family not been deposed in 1925 is in our midst.

He is attractive Prince Roknedine Kadjar ("Call me Rokne!") whose family ruled Persia, now Iran, for a century and a half before a coup d'etat sent them into exile.

Prince Kadjar

Princess Kadjar

Prince Roknedine is 35, the third son of the late Mohammed Hassan who was crown prince and regent of Persia at the time of the overthrow. He has a nice twinkle in his brown eyes and a delightful sense of humor.

He came to the U.S. for the first time ten days ago and unlike many members of deposed royalty, is working for a living. Earle M. Rader, senior partner of the firm which bears his name, met the prince's family during business trips to Europe and the Middle East.

"Rokne" was educated in Switzerland and is an electrical engineer. He wanted to come to this country to learn American engineering technique, so Mr. Rader offered him a job with his firm.

Sad, sad news for unattached girls and title hungry mamas. The prince was married last fall to a charming Swiss-Italian girl who is blonde and tiny and from a well-to-do family. She is staying in Switzerland until after their baby is born in September when she and the heir will join him here.

Rokne was raised by his grandmother in St. Cloud, just outside Paris. He describes her as "The last Queen of Persia" and says she was a devout Moslem. When he came home from school on a holiday she allowed him to speak only Persian and he treated her with all the formal ceremony due a queen.

He speaks English fluently, plus Persian, French and German and wears the tapered trousers so dear to the hearts of Europeans. In fact, when he went into a local men's store and bought a suit he insisted that the trousers be tailored into slim tapers. The store refused so he didn't buy!

His father always dreamed of going back to power in Iran. Not Prince Roknedine. "I do not envy the Shah," he said. He is eager to establish himself here and one day, perhaps, take out American citizenship.

No Wrinkles at 80— Here's His Secret

By ELEANOR HART
Herald Glamor Clinic Editor

"People talk with their faces instead of their mouths, so they get wrinkles, says Jacob Bob of 3344 SW 23rd Ter., 80 years young, whose face and forehead are as smooth as a baby's.

However, there is a solution, other than learning to speak correctly — Mr. Bob's massage method which he picked up from an old friend (also 80) in Honduras.

The former explorer, who has hunted gold and opals in Central America, noted that many old people at Honduras social gatherings had no wrinkles. "How could this be?" he asked. Then his friend told him and showed him how.

"The secret is how you massage," says the blue-eyed octogenarian. "No creams or lotions, just lukewarm water with a few drops of lime juice for moistening."

First, wash your face with soap and water (you don't want to massage the day's dirt and grime into the pores), and moisten with the limewater.

Take a small rough towel and roll it up so it fits in both hands. Now, massage in circles until the skin feels warm. Start with the forehead, then the eyes, nose and cheeks.

"This brings the blood to the face, and that's good for you," Mr. Bob explains. "I massage my face in the morning when I shave and in the evening before going to bed, if I'm not too sleepy.

Jacob Bob

"These foolish women," he sighs. "They clog up their pores with a lot of creams, then wonder why they have blemishes. I never have any."

He also reports that he has used his treatment effectively on his turkey's wattle (excess flesh under the chin).

His 63-year-old wife scorns his method, and she does have a few wrinkles — in her forehead. "God made me like this," she says.

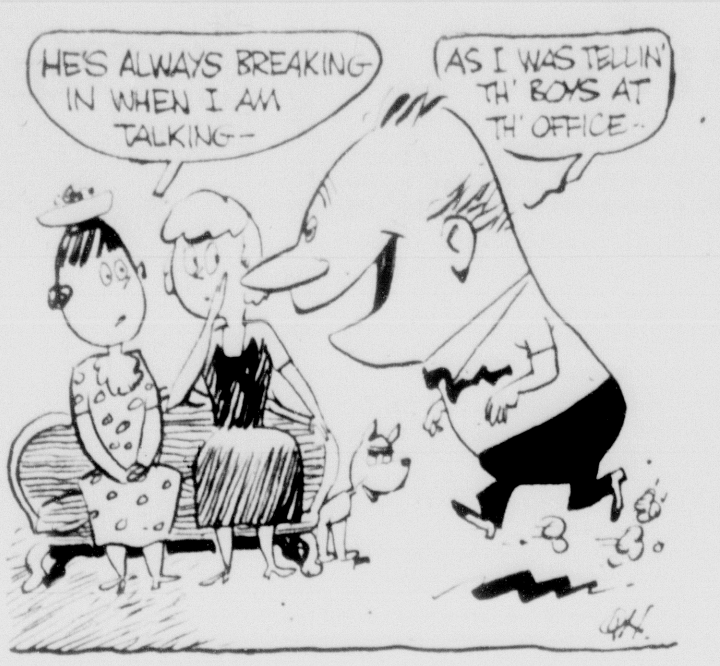
'My Hubby Criticizes Everything I Do'



HE'S ALWAYS BREAKING IN WHEN I AM TALKING--
AS I WAS TELLIN' TH' BOYS AT TH' OFFICE--

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I have a problem of embarrassing proportions . . . my husband's criticism of me when we entertain friends in our home. I always seem to do the wrong thing.

He criticizes the way I play the organ, saying I play too loud or practice too much. He monopolizes the conversation, breaks in when I am talking and, in general, is overbearing and acts as though he is the only one people come to visit.

I make nice friends from my church and love to prepare nice meals for them. My husband does not go to church and makes uncomplimentary remarks about the church, the people and the pastor. I sing in the choir.

Column with a Heart

I am so taken down by his actions that I feel I never want to face people again. I ask him to go to the men's gatherings but he says the meals are inadequate. He has no desire for the social part of gatherings.

I have to go alone to everything—visiting friends, theaters, sightseeing, etc. My husband only likes to go out and eat, fill himself with a heavy meal and then come home to sit down and sleep . . . he isn't even interested in television.

He is in his late sixties, in good health except for diabetes.

DISGUSTED

That being the case, the heavy meal would appear to be the worst kind of social diversion.

He sounds like a man with a king-sized inferiority complex, and the reasons for his behavior can be many.

If your husband has diabetes, I assume he is under the care of a physician. I suggest you talk to this physician, who should be able to advise you if you explain the true situation. But beware of any personal embellishments—tell the doctor the truth.

'My Neighbors Are the Best!'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

In a world of griping and complaints, I would like to tell you about a group of the finest people I have ever had the pleasure to meet.

Five months ago my family and I moved to South Miami Heights and were immediately accepted by these warm hearted neighbors. They are all average people financially, yet never miss an opportunity to do some good for someone.

Three weeks ago, very suddenly, my father who lived with us passed away. The reaction of these fine people was remarkable.

They came bringing food, offers of taking my two children while all the upset was going on, and most of all, gave more moral support than I've ever been offered before.

All were concerned for me, due to the fact that I am expecting my third child shortly and that my dad and I had been exceptionally close.

The other night they honored me with a lovely surprise baby shower. As I said earlier, none are in a position to spend lots of money but all brought lovely gifts. The very sweet girl next door had decorated her house and everything was delightful.

I would like to publicly acclaim them the finest neighbors anywhere. God bless each one and may their lives be as good as they deserve.

I only hope I can be half as helpful and considerate to them in the future as they have been to me.

RITA C.

A testimonial like yours should do more for real estate values in your section than the most deluxe ad! It's a pleasure to print your letter. Let us hope it will serve as an inspiration to other areas where neighbors are, ahem, not quite so considerate.

Column With a Heart welcomes discussion of your problems and your replies to the problems of others. Write to Eleanor Hart, The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

AT LAST!
PRACTICAL WAY for QUICK REDUCING

"I'm Free At Last From Reducing Torture!"

Nothing Like It Ever Available Before For Quick Reducing Without A Prescription!

So if you're tired of half-way measures and you want REALLY EFFECTIVE HELP in reducing, then don't wait another day to start on your slim, trim figure—send for Hungrex today! We honestly believe Hungrex will truly amaze and delight you because Hungrex really works! And remember: no tiresome special diets . . . and no hunger-torture when you reduce the Hungrex way!

How could anything be easier? You simply take a tablet that's much tinier than an aspirin tablet before each meal . . . and that's all you do. You enjoy what you eat—but you simply want to eat less!

Your Money Back If You Don't Lose Weight Fast With Hungrex!

Naturally, individuals vary. So we say try Hungrex for 1 day, 5 days, 10 days—the full 21 days if you like. Check your weight losses as you go along. See the wonderful change in your body that takes place almost daily. Then either we've fulfilled our promise to you—either you're delighted with the way you've lost weight—either you look and feel better—you've found the secret to a safe, pleasant way to get your weight down and help keep it that way — or merely return the unused portion for your money back.

HOW WILL YOU LOOK IN THIS SEASON'S EXCITING NEW FASHIONS ?

The gal with the slimmed-down, trimmed-down figure usually gets the second glances! Why not promise yourself a smart "new look" this year . . . start losing weight right away the no-hunger Hungrex way. Revolutionary new Hungrex with P.P.A. automatically pares down your appetite. Down goes excess calorie intake . . . down goes your weight . . . and up goes your fashion rating.
©1958 Allegheny Pharmacal Corp., N.Y.

Leading doctors and our own consultants tell us: if you want to weigh less, eat less . . . thus forcing your body to burn up excess fat in the form of energy.

Now, eating less used to be very, very difficult for most overweight persons. That is, until the recent introduction of Hungrex with P.P.A. . . . the most powerful reducing aid ever released for public use without prescription!

Why Hungrex With P.P.A. Is So Different From Previous Kinds of Reducing Aids You May Have Tried

Up until now, if you tried to cut down on overeating with the help of the usual reducing candies, gums, wafers, expanding pills, bulk fillers or what have you . . . you had a terrible time of it because these weak, namby-pamby aids were only partly effective in limiting your appetite. They couldn't even begin to overcome the average overweight person's real enemy . . . the enemy that really drives you to overeat . . . HUNGER.

Now, all that is changed. Why? Because for the first time in medical history a drug powerful enough to help overcome the cravings of both appetite and hunger has been released for your use without a doctor's prescription . . . yet it's so safe that any normally healthy person can use it with complete confidence! Yes, the first time in history that any non-prescription weight-reducing product states right on the label: IN THE TREATMENT OF OVERWEIGHT

Just Try It Once . . . And Note This Astonishing Difference! Actually Limits The Ability Of Your Body To Produce Hunger Sensations!

Hungrex with P.P.A. is so effective that it helps satisfy your appetite within minutes after you take it. It is so effective that once it starts to work in your body, you are as virtually protected against gnawing hunger sensations and a "runaway appetite" as it is reasonably possible to be. And because you won't feel hungry, you will no longer be tempted to overeat! Thus for the first time you can really lose excess weight fast without special diets of any kind whatsoever! Without superhuman demands on your will power! And without the calorie-counting "plans" found in other types of reducing products!

Thousands Now Lose Weight Who Never Thought They Could!

Imagine the thrill of overweight men and women who write day after day, some reporting remarkable weight losses up to 5 lbs. the very first week . . . 9½ pounds in 2 weeks . . . up to 18½ lbs. the very first month with P.P.A. . . . and even recording weight losses of 35 to 41 lbs. without doing anything difficult, dangerous or unpleasant!

Control Of Your Hunger And Appetite Is Automatic — So You Don't Even Have To Count Up Your Calories With A Pencil!

Best of all, you'll still enjoy your food, still eat luscious steaks, chops, roasts, stews and other favorites, and still your weight will come down. Because P.P.A. helps you drastically cut down your craving for food and caloric intake without affecting your enjoyment of food!

Romance and a slim, attractive figure so often go hand in hand! Glamorous jobs, too! It's joyous to see how many women acquire more poise and self-confidence as they shed their matronly figures! You can too! You can be dramatically slimmer starting in a mere matter of days the no-hunger Hungrex way!

Socialites Become Waitresses For Nassau's Gay Red Cross Fair

By MARGOT SANBORN
Herald Columnist

NASSAU — More colorful and better attended than previous years was the Red Cross Fair on the beautiful Government House grounds, where socialites waited on and rubbed shoulders with natives, visitors and residents alike!

The fair was replete with thatched roof booths, games of chance, fashion show and dozens of other attractions, plus a thatched roof bar aptly named Happy Talk Bar. There luscious looking society belles and personable caballeros acted as bar maids and bar men. Among the hard working damsels were Bubbles (Mrs. Carl) Holmes, Peggy (Mrs. Denis) Hickman, Lady Greta Oakes, Finnish beauty Uli Lillas, Pat (Mrs. C. D'Arcy) McCarthy, Lady Carden and Bab (Mrs. Robert) Holt, also Margaret Bishop (widow of famed flyer Billy Bishop). Concocting as real pros on the other side of the bar were steel exec. Jim Kenney, Sir Sydney Oakes, Commander Pack-Beresford, Michael Ramsy and goodlooking Peter Newcomb.

A bow to Mrs. Roger Tyler, wife of the U.S. Consul, and her top echelon aides for the highly successful American raffle. Among her assistants were Lady Robinson (former Maysie Gasque of the Woolworth clan), Mrs. Jouette Todd of Nassau and Louisville, Ky. and Mrs. Stephen Briggs.

Dwight and Dy Paul report they were worn out after a hectic week in Palm Beach. Former glamor gal Timmy Lansing Sullivan and her genial spouse R. Livingston Sullivan (Philly banker and Lanolin Plus board chairman) came with their house guests Albert and Elaine Hoffman from Washington, D.C.

Every one who could drag his feet (toward evening they literally did) left with arms piled high with loot they bought or won! Hundreds returned for the Candlelight Supper, an elaborate buffet prepared and donated by the various hotels, with well known maitre d' Guastav at the helm.

MAITLAND SMITH tossed a deluxe beach picnic (beef stroganoff, barbecued chicken and the works) at Paradise Beach on Hog Island. Haute couture took second place to bathing attire and chic shorts.

Enjoying the sun and gastronomical spread were Liz and Howard Teague (Howard more handsome sans beard), Hope (Mrs. Richard) Ryan with Palm Beach's Ed Sheedy, fascinating tennis star Frank Shields, Mrs. Franklin Chase and Harry and Leslie Cruikshank.

Edie Brown and Kay Williams, prominent in Cleveland social circles, are hibernating at "Ayerdale" on Hog Island. Eligible bachelors at the party included Lester Ellerbroke, Bill Myron and young author David Denis, who has succumbed to island living and taken a cottage at Paradise Beach (to do some writing, he said!).

'Leave Your Sweetheart's Grave Alone'

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

My sweetheart passed away two years ago. He was married and had children. His wife got everything.

We went together before he got married but somehow we drifted apart and didn't rediscover each other until it was too late. His wife must have known he had an "outside interest" because he spent a lot of time with me.

Ann Landers

I never asked what went on at home because I figured it was HIS business. I decided four nights out of seven wasn't a bad average when you have no paper or ring to hold a man.

What I want to know is this: I visit his grave often and there is no headstone of any kind. I want to put up a nice stone for him. No one would have to know who did it. It hurts my heart to see his resting place unmarked. Advise me, please

—HIS TRUE LOVE

What do you mean "no one would have to know who did it?" Is the widow blind? Or do you imagine she will think The Blue Fairy put it there? Be realistic.

It's not your place to put up a stone for this man. Do his widow and children the kindness of leaving his grave alone.

FIRST STEP TOWARDS DATING

Get To Know a Lot of People

How can I get a boy to ask for a date? wonders many a Miami teenager. And today's Herald Teen Panel, which alternates among Dade County schools, has some suggestions.

Here's what they have to say:

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Problem: How to get a boy to ask for a date. You're willing: but you're dateless. He looks interesting; he's silent. What can you do?

"Get to know a lot of people," was the first suggestion of a Jackson girl. "Most of your dates come from people you know at school. The more people you get to know the better off you are. Kid around some."

"That's important," agreed a girl from North Miami High. Be seen. I think it's important, too, to start getting to know people early, in junior high. I know that when I was in 8th grade I was so shy. I wanted to crawl under a chair if anyone even said hello.

"But little by little I started going to meetings and getting to know a lot of people so that now I don't feel like that at all.

"If you start that in junior high I think that it helps your popularity a lot by the time you're in high school."

* * *

BE PLEASANT to a whole group of boys," suggested another Jackson girl. "You can be friendly without overdoing it."

"The whole basis of popularity is getting to know a lot of people," said a boy panelist. And up until this time the boys had been pretty silent.

"Be sincerely interested in him and show that you take an interest in what he likes," said a North Miami High boy.

A Jackson girl said, smiling, "The best way to make a big hit with a boy is to tell him what a beautiful car he has. All I have to do to make (Bill) happy is listen to his motor."

The panelists laughed. But a North Miami High boy said, "I think it's a good thing for a girl to show a boy that she's a little interested in him. That sort of flatters a boy and he'll ask her for a date."

But he warned that to show a little interest is not chasing the boy. "Oh, no!" he moaned, "He hates that."

He thinks that under the "chased" label goes a girl's telephoning a boy. "It's okay if it's been prearranged that she'll call him that night, or to invite him to a party or something. But just to call him up all the time . . ." he shook his head.

Another North Miami boy added, "I think girls on the whole have pretty good manners about that."

* * *

ONE GIRL SUGGESTED that a good way to let a particular boy know she's interested in him is to drop a few well-chosen words to a girl friend or two. They seem to find their way back to the boy in question.

And a Jackson girl said that thoughtfulness about a topic a particular boy is interested in helps make that first contact, too.

"If you see a story in a magazine about something you know he's interested in, cut it out and give it to him. A boy appreciates this kind of thoughtfulness," she said.

"Yes," added a North Miami High girl. "I remember one boy I liked played tennis and I never thought I'd like it. But he offered to teach me and we had a lot of fun. I found that I liked it after all."

A girl panelist suggested, "If you know a particular boy is working some project, you might offer to help. If you work at something together like that, he might ask you out."

BOYS ALSO SUGGESTED:

"Make him feel that you're glad you're with him, not tell him he's great or anything like that. But act like you're having a good time."

"Make the boy feel superior, so that he feels like he's the leader."

GIRLS SUGGESTED:

"When you do get a date, tell the boy your curfew time. But don't keep reminding him of it."

"If he asks which movie you should see, suggest a couple, then let him pick one from that."

Don't forget about the fellow's pocketbook." But they feel the boy should throw them a cue,—"How about a hamburger?" not "Would you like something?" It could end up your starving to death over a soft drink while he wolfs down a sandwich and french fries.

And the final suggestion to help your date rating: "Don't hesitate to ask the boy home for a snack after a date." The boys were all for this suggestion.

Date Bait?

Miami teens have had their say about what they think a girl can do to be asked for dates. Now here's what a national teen magazine found out from research.

There are three main qualities a boy looks for in a potential date, says the magazine. If you have these you're potential date bait.

1. GENUINE WARMTH and sweetness — "the feeling that the girl can be trusted not to humiliate them or damage their self-esteem."

2. FEMININITY — this means more than wearing ruffles. It's the ability of the girl to make the boy feel more manly and self-assured.

3. FRIENDLINESS — a girl's open interest in and liking of the boy. But beware not to overdo or the boy will feel "chased."

B'nai B'rith Women's Council of South Florida is inviting the public to hear Harry Simonhoff review his book "Jewish Notables in America 1776-1865."

This program is at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in the Deauville Hotel and there is no admission charge. Mr. Simonhoff is an attorney as well as a writer and lecturer.

Chairman of the program, sponsored by the council's adult Jewish education committee, is Mrs. Louis Alexander, with Mrs. Edith Naurison as co-chairman.

Cold Cream, Ice Make Rosy Cheeks

Bring roses to your cheeks with a cold cleansing cream facial. You'll need a jar of cleansing cream, a bowl of icy water (add ice cubes), a washcloth and a box of facial tissues.

Begin by soaking the washcloth in the water, wring it out, then press it against your face. Now, apply a generous amount of cleansing cream over your cool, damp skin and work it in for about a minute. Remove cream with tissues.

Low-Button Cardigans For 'His and Hers'

By BERT BACHARACH

The Bob Cummings

HELPFUL HINTS: When repairing something with small parts, place the parts on the sticky side of cellophane tape in the order you remove them. This keeps them safe and speeds reassembling . . . Holes in window screens can be mended by fusing small pieces of mosquito netting with several coatings of shellac. When dry the netting will harden . . . If you run out of toothpaste, fill the gap with baking soda. It's a good dentifrice.

CARE OF CLOTHES: It's almost impossible to get certain stubborn stains off shoes. If they still show up after a shine, have the bootblack try a darker polish, or even a stain . . . Never throw damp shirts into a laundry hamper. Allow them to dry out first . . . A heavy keyring, if carried constantly in the same pocket, will eventually wear out the pocket. Shift the ring to other pockets occasionally.

TIGHT SHIRT COLLARS: While shrinkage in shirts isn't the problem it used to be, you'll sometimes find that a shirt collar has become tight and uncomfortable. The collar can usually be restored to the correct length in the following way: Have the damp collarband ironed and stretched out at the same time. Do this atop a tape measure, laid on the ironing board, and you'll usually be able to get the shirt back to its original size (15½, 16, etc.)

Daughters Hold State Meeting

State Council of Daughters of America will hold its 10th annual session March 23 through 25 in the McAllister Hotel.

Mrs. Forman

Members from the 11 Councils in Florida will participate in the convention, which opens at 8 p.m. March 23 with a "massing of the colors" ceremony.

The public is invited to this event, directed by Mrs. Guy McDonald. Special guests at the convention will be Mrs. Beatrice Brown, Macon, Ga., national councilor; Mrs. C. E. Rogers, Miami, state councilor; Mrs. Elphia Nelson, Tampa, national deputy councilor of Florida; Mrs. A. E. Picker, Miami, district deputy.

Mrs. John Forman, Miami, is the incoming state councilor. The traditional fellowship banquet will be held March 24 with Mrs. H. E. Marsh as chairman. The organizations councils are in Miami, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Fort Lauderdale, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach.

AFTER DINNER TREAT

Dance Will Benefit Handicapped

A "Farmer's Formal" will be given Saturday night by Delta Psi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi for the benefit of Sunland Training Center, the state school for mentally handicapped children.

This is a combination square and round dance, at 9 p.m. in the Allapattah Lions Club, 4343 NW 17th Ave., and it is open to the public. Mrs. Eunice Gilchrist, 12108 NE 5th Ave., is president of the chapter.

Snakes Don't Strike Above Knee

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

PALM BEACH — Going on safari and you haven't a thing to wear! Don't worry. Living will be simple in tents in Africa. Some women go on camera safaris and "shoot" wild in the big national parks. Others accompany their husbands on the "have gun, will shoot," variety.

Albert F. Vanderkogel, manager of an exclusive Palm Beach sporting goods shop, knows all about safaris. He recently returned from a bow and arrow safari in Africa and is planning another. His firm has everything that the well dressed and properly equipped man or woman could possibly need. Some of the items are down right fascinating. All are practical.

* * *

AN AFRICAN SAFARI is no place for frills and furbelows. According to what part of Africa you go, you must be prepared to keep a cool head and a warm body.

For your African safari, you will pack two different kinds of slacks, one with extra canvas in front for walking through the bush. Safari, Mr. V. said, is a Swahili word that means walking trip, and you do plenty of walking and jeep riding.

Your bush jacket will be of special Egyptian cotton. Your hat will be trimmed with a net that completely surrounds your head and protects your face, fastening around your neck.

Light aluminum snake leggings are worn on the lower leg. Snakes do not strike above the knee, it seems. The leggings were probably borrowed from knightly armor.

An ordinary two-week safari will cost about $2,000 per person. Your arrangements with the white hunter, or leader, must be clear and typed in duplicate so that you and he will understand just what is expected from each.

Take with you a supply of halazone tablets, (water purifyers) quinine and atabrine. Binoculars with long range lenses are a must. Take your favorite toiletries, playing cards, paper back books, and plenty of needles and thread.

* * *

THE WHITE HUNTER is the boss of your safari. He takes full charge of the native boys who accompany the safari and wait on you hand and foot. They cook, carry your gear, and do your bidding.

The tents are luxurious jungle homes, vermin proof, with sewed in floors. Many have walls that lift up, leaving only the net lining through which the breeze sweeps. The tents are provided by the safari people.

There is also a canvas shower and toilet facilities are likely to be army style.

You may sleep either in the tent or on cots under the low-hanging tropical stars that seem large as waterlilies. You reach up to pick one, but it's just out of reach. You go to bed early since you arise around 3 a.m., when the animals are out for prey.

* * *

YOU GO TO BED, but you don't always go right to sleep. There are all manner of weird sounds. The natives begin on the tom tom drums, sending and receiving messages to other natives around. About the time that stops, you begin to hear the animals.

You've been told that a wild animal will not attack a human; that he loathes human scents. You've also been told that your mosquito bar is of the greatest protection. No lion will break the bar barrier. You hope the lion realizes this.

When you hunt, the white hunter and the boys go with you. They carry your guns and gear until you are actually ready to stalk the animal. Then they hand you your gun so that you can make the kill on your own.

Are you wondering about the thread and needles? They are for gifts to the native boys. Though clothed a-la- Gunga Din they set great store by needles and thread.

What's Labor-Saving About Modern Gadgets?

PUSH BUTTON WINDOWS CAN BE TEMPERMENTAL.

NEW YORK — New labor-saving gadgets make more work for the homemaker, says J. Gordon Lippincott, an industrial designer.

"These devices are getting to be more trouble than they're worth. The more complex our possessions, the more likely they are to need repairs," said Lippincott.

He is board chairman of a firm which designs products for manufacturers of home and industrial items.

Lippincott is especially aware of gripes about new devices. And complaints are mounting, he said.

Electric can openers are made with legs to stand on the kitchen counter — "to get in your way," he said.

"What improvement is this over the old non-electric model that swung out of the way when you didn't need it?"

Extra rubber rings for pressure cookers are difficult to find. Ball point pens, cigaret lighters, and flashlights soon fail to work.

* * *

Window Balks At Toll Booth

Some car air-conditioning systems are wrapped around the motor, making it impossible to repair the motor without removing the air-conditioning.

Then there are car windows that should open and shut at the touch of a button — "except when the driver stops at a highway toll booth." One woman complained that the button control shorted, and the windows constantly went up and down.

Does all this mean that the more automatic a washing machine, the more repairs it will need?

"Fortunately, no," Lippincott said. "We are bound to find simpler ways to make more versatile products—one part to do the work of several parts, or mechanisms that will do in one operation what it now takes many steps to do."

They are taught to wash the dishes only once each day, thus saving 25 per cent on soap powders, water and gas.

By soaking laundry overnight in cold water, they can save 8 per cent on soap and complete the washing job faster and more efficiently.

Nylon stockings should be washed in warm water with only a small amount of soap, thus saving 18 per cent. If they are washed every night, they will last 10 times longer.

Veal Rolls with Chicken Liver and Tongue Filling--Morning's Work for Cooking Class

. . . puree of green peas is piped onto platter with pastry tube, more fills mushroom caps

By Jeanne Voltz

Herald Homemaking Editor

People have raved for years about Mrs. Jose A. Balseiro's cooking. The raves came to the point of friends asking her to give them lessons.

Finally last fall Mrs. Balseiro launched a little cooking school. Now she's on her third course of 12 lessons, eight to 10 students per course.

JEANNE

But the Balseiros lived in Europe for several years. There Mrs. Balseiro had "wonderful cooks" and she began to jot down their recipes.

They went back to Puerto Rico. It was difficult to find well-trained cooks there, but Mrs. Balseiro still acted as kitchen overseer and rarely turned her hand to actual cooking.

Then the cook spoiled the principal dish for a large party. That did it.

"I decided I could do the cooking," said petite Mrs. Balseiro with her soft Spanish accent. "And I found I enjoyed it."

* * *

MRS. BALSEIRO'S enthusiasm for her new hobby went so far as taking courses at the Cordon Bleu in New York and a fancy cooking school which operated here several years ago.

She still collects recipes from all over the world through traveling friends.

Mrs. Balseiro regards her cooking courses as a hobby, too. "After all, my husband always comes first," she said. (He is professor of Spanish at the University of Miami.)

And at $70 per person for 12 lessons she teaches cooking more for fun than for money. She figures there is little profit after buying food and equipment.

The lessons are fun as well as learning for the women who gather at the Balseiro home, 11301 SW 62nd Ave., Monday and Wednesday morning.

Two women snip strings off veal rolls, daring their sister pupils to complain of a missing string. Others stuff, roll and tie the veal. One young woman eyes the blister she rubbed on her hand beating choux paste (like cream puff paste) for a dessert.

* * *

EACH WOMAN GETS a copy of recipes for the day's lesson. Then each is assigned jobs. Mrs. Balseiro watches, suggests and shares a valuable tip from time to time.

ON PUREE OF GREEN PEAS: "When you're in a hurry you can do these in the blender, but we're going to do them the real French way today." And she showed a pupil how to press peas through a sieve with a mortar.

ON SHERRY: "Add it toward the last of the cooking time for flavor. Never cook sherry more than five minutes or it gets a vinegary taste."

ON BAKING TWO SHEETS OF PASTRY AT ONCE: "Put one on each shelf, but push one in a little farther than the other to let the heat circulate."

8 thin slices cooked, smoked tongue
4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons sherry
1/2 teaspoon tomato paste or puree
1/2 teaspoon meat glaze
2 teaspoons potato flour
1 cup meat stock
1 bay leaf

Have veal cut in 8 thin slices. If wished, sprinkle with a few drops of wine vinegar or Madeira wine. Put between 2 pieces of waxed paper and beat with heavy mallet until very thin.

Brown chicken livers in a small amount of butter and remove from pan. Add a little more butter and mushrooms. Saute 5 minutes. If wished, add a few drops of lemon juice while sauteeing mushrooms. Shred chicken livers. Add with salt and pepper to mushrooms.

Place 1 slice tongue on each slice of veal. Place a little mushroom mixture on tongue. Press down carefully. Roll each slice of veal and tie with fine string.

Brown quickly on all sides in pan with 4 tablespoons butter. Pour in 2 tablespoons warmed sherry. Remove veal rolls. Add tomato paste, meat glaze and potato flour to pan and stir until smooth. (Cornstarch may be substituted for potato flour but sauce will not be so transparent.) Add stock and salt and pepper to taste. Stir over heat until mixture comes to a boil.

Add 1 tablespoon sherry, veal rolls and bay leaf. Cover and cook gently 20 to 25 minutes, until meat is tender but not falling apart. Remove strings and arrange on serving dish with Puree of Peas. Pass sauce separately. Makes 8 servings.

Pureeing Peas 'the French Way'

. . . petite Mrs. Jose A. Balseiro is instructor

Puree of Peas

2 cups green peas
Juice of 1/2 lemon
Pinch sugar (suggested)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, pepper
4 tablespoons cream, fresh or sour

Cook peas until tender in boiling water with lemon juice and sugar. Drain and rub through sieve. Melt butter and stir in flour. Cook and stir until amber colored. Add pea puree, salt and pepper to taste and cream. Simmer 10 minutes. Place on serving dish, using pastry bag, if wished. Makes 8 servings.

Use Wine for Different Sauces

Thin honey with a little sauterne wine to make a thin sauce for French toast. Use sauterne for part of liquid when making lemon sauce. It's particularly refreshing spooned over gingerbread or bread pudding.

Do Check Checking Account

The joint checking account, used by both husband and wife, can be a boon or a calamity.

A large majority of young couples start married life with a joint account, it is reported by the American Bankers Association. This plan has a number of advantages, but it should be used with care.

When both husband and wife write checks against the same account without frequent checkups, the result often is an overdrawn account, say the bankers.

They advise that a record of checks be kept in one big checkbook at home, and that checks written during the day be recorded and checked against the balance each evening. If this record is accurately kept, it can be used also in making income tax returns.

To make the record complete, many young couples make it a practice to paste cancelled checks back in the master checkbook when they are returned from the bank each month.

Thus checks can be tallied with stubs, and errors can be quickly spotted. The checkbook then also becomes a detailed record of expenditures during the year.

The husband and wife who carry separate checkbooks and don't bother to consult with each other as to expenditures are headed for trouble, caution the bankers.

Don't Move Furniture, Change The Scenery

SPAIN—(WNS)—"Give me anything that moves, and I'll make a home of it," said Alla Cody. "Women these days get bored stiff with houses."

The petite feminine skipper of the cruiser Sentinel was addressing ladies of 23 nations in annual conference at the Balearic Yacht Club.

"This is the mobile age," she insisted. "Whatever doesn't get up and go is dead and doesn't know it."

Miss Cody, a brunette Britisher from Birmingham, has lived in gypsy wagons, trailers, trucks, sailboats, yachts and airplanes. She has visited every continent on the globe and is eagerly waiting for transportation to other planets.

The great need today is to get away from the neighbor's radio and to meet up with stimulating new characters and adventures.

Miss Cody has discovered freedoms in a mobile life that the stationary woman never even dreams of.

"There's a minimum of housework and plenty of privacy if you want it," she declared. "You don't have to change your furniture because everything else around you is changing so fast."

Students Share the Work Cooking Epicurean Dishes

Final Touch for Pastry Is Sprinkle of Sugar

. . . Mrs. Carlos P. Lamar shakes on sugar

Gateau Favorite

- ½ cup water
- 2 teaspoons butter
- ½ cup sifted flour
- 3 eggs
- Slivered blanched almonds
- Chocolate Pastry Cream
- 2 cups heavy cream, whipped
- Confectioners' sugar

Put water and butter in a small, heavy pan. Bring slowly to a boil. Add flour. Remove from fire and beat until smooth. Add, one at a time, 2 whole eggs. Grease a cooky sheet. With pencil mark circle about the size of a luncheon plate on sheet. Using pastry bag with large tube, cover circle with paste. Brush with remaining egg, beaten, and sprinkle generously with almonds. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes, until puffed and pale golden brown.

Pastry Ready to Bake

. . . almonds go on top

Cool, split crosswise carefully and fill with Chocolate Pastry Cream, then whipped cream. Place top half over filling. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Chocolate Pastry Cream: Beat together 1 egg, 1 egg yolk, 3 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons sugar. Add 2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin, then ¾ cup hot milk, stirring. Stir over moderate heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove at once, place pan over ice and stir until mixture begins to set. Meanwhile melt 3 ounces sweet cooking chocolate with 3 tablespoons water. Stir into gelatin mixture. When cool and thick fold in 1 stiffly beaten egg white and 2 tablespoons of the whipped cream.

Climax of each of Mrs. Jose Balseiro's lesson is luncheon. And you never saw more appreciative lunchers. They enjoy every epicurean morsel.

Most of the recipes are Mrs. Balseiro's own, some she created and some she adapted from recipes from other sources.

"Even if a recipe is good, I try to improve it," she said.

Each lesson is a complete menu. The day we dropped in Mrs. Balseiro was showing how to prepare Paupiettes de Veau—veal rolls with tongue and chicken liver stuffing—(see preceeding page), Pea Puree, Caesar Salad and Gateau Favorite, pastry layers with chocolate filling.

* * *

Caesar Salad

- 2 cups bread cubes
- Olive oil for frying
- 2 cloves garlic, split
- 2 heads romaine or 1 romaine and 1 lettuce
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup Parmesan cheese (freshly grated preferred)
- 6 tablespoons olive oil
- Juice of 2 lemons
- 2 eggs
- 3 to 4 slices bacon, fried crisp
- Dash Worcestershire sauce, if desired

Ingredients for this salad can be assembled ahead of time and tossed together at the last minute.

Prepare croutons by frying bread cubes over low heat in olive oil with 1 clove garlic. Rub wooden salad bowl with remaining clove of garlic. Tear chilled romaine into bite size pieces into bowl. Sprinkle with mustard, pepper and salt (more or less according to taste) and Parmesan cheese. Pour in 6 tablespoons olive oil and lemon juice. Add eggs and toss to coat each leaf. Just before serving add croutons and toss. If wished add crumbled bacon and Worcestershire sauce. Makes 8 servings.

* * *

Paella Valenciana

- 1 2½-pound chicken, quartered
- Wine or wine vinegar
- Salt, pepper
- 6 to 8 tablespoons olive oil
- 1½ pounds boneless pork, cut in cubes
- 2½ cups rice
- 1 10½-ounce can clams (whole)
- ½ lobster, cut in pieces
- ½ pound shrimp, shelled
- 1 pound boned white fish, cut in pieces
- 1 chorizo (Spanish sausage), sliced
- 3 tablespoons capers
- About 12 olives
- 2 onions, finely chopped
- 2 tomatoes, chopped
- 1 small green pepper, finely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed
- ½ pound green beans, cut
- 1 coriander leaf
- ¼ teaspoon oregano
- 1 can pimientos
- ½ cup dry white wine
- ½ teaspoon saffron or 1 teaspoon achiote
- 8 to 12 fresh clams in shells (preferably small)
- 3½ cups (about) chicken stock
- 2 to 3 tablespoons sherry
- 1 package frozen green peas, cooked, or 1 can tiny peas
- 1 package frozen artichoke hearts, cooked

Too Many Cooks Spoil the Broth? Not in This Mob Scene in the Balseiro Kitchen

. . . left to right, Mrs. Olin G. McKenzie, Mrs. M. R. Harrison Jr., Mrs. Balseiro, Mrs. Conway Hamilton Mrs. Lamar (behind Mrs. Hamilton), Mrs. Maurice Ferre

Marinate chicken in wine or wine vinegar with salt and pepper. Drain and brown lightly in olive oil. Remove chicken. Add pork to oil, then rice. Saute until rice is pale golden in color.

Drain canned clams, keeping liquid. Add canned clams, lobster, shrimp, fish, chorizo, capers, olives, onions, tomatoes, green pepper and garlic to rice. Saute a minute or two. Add chicken and saute another minute. Add green beans, 2 tablespoons salt, pepper to taste, coriander, oregano and 1 pimiento, sliced. Add white wine and saffron, achiote or both. To use saffron dissolve in a little stock. To use achiote, fry in 2 tablespoons oil, discard achiote and use oil. Add clams in shells, liquid from canned clams and enough stock to come about ¼ inch above all ingredients.

Bring to a boil without stirring. Turn heat very low and cover. Stir only once or twice and lightly while cooking. If rice is not tender when liquid is absorbed add a little more hot stock. Cook until rice is tender, about 20 minutes. Then turn heat very low or put in 300-degree oven until ready to serve. Add sherry 5 minutes before serving.

Garnish with cooked peas, pimiento slices and artichoke hearts. Put some of the clams in shells on top. Makes 8 servings.

Note: Paella should be cooked in a wide, shallow pan to allow ingredients to cook thoroughly but not dry out. The best utensil is the earthenware paella which gives the dish its name. But any large pan not more than 3 or 4 inches deep will do.

* * *

Cocada

- 6 egg yolks
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 large fresh coconut, grated
- ½ cup slivered blanched almonds
- ¼ cup melted butter
- ½ cup Muscatel wine
- ½ cup coconut water

Beat eggs with sugar. Add vanilla, melted butter, wine and coconut water. Mix with grated coconut and almonds, saving a few almonds for top. Turn into a buttered baking dish. Decorate with remaining almonds. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes, until firm. Serve warm or cold. Makes 6 servings.

FORTNUM'S HAS IT

Bird's Nest Soup Anyone?

LONDON — (AP) — "Bird's nest soup? Certainly madam, second table over."

"I am frightfully sorry, my lord, but we are out of Swedish fish balls. We can send the order now, however, and have them for you by the end of the week . . ." the sales clerk bows to his noble client.

This is Fortnum and Mason's — a supermarket English style, one that has been catering to the gourmets among the English aristocracy since the days of Queen Anne.

Fortnum's which celebrated its 250th anniversary recently, is a bustling six-story one-stop shopping center on Piccadilly, the Fifth Avenue of London.

Patronized today by ordinary housewives and tourists in addition to blue-blooded ladies, it still has the spirit of elegance and exclusiveness it has symbolized to generations of fashionable English families.

"We do try to give all our customers special personal service," said Arthur Lunn, one of the impeccably-dressed floor managers, "even the ones who aren't titled."

* * *

Fortnum's doesn't look like a supermarket, with its crystal chandeliers, brocade chairs, and heavy polished wood counters. Nor are the foods it sells usual supermarket fare.

Heather honey, Chinese water chestnuts, kangeroo tail soup, Japanese rice crackers, bees' milk solution — these are merely regular stock in the grocery store that has become an international tourist attraction.

The cost of Fortnum's merchandise? Expensive.

Kobu nuts from the Orient may seem a bit steep: $1.19 each, but every nut is tied with a bow of the kobu leaf and packed in a special container.

* * *

Palace Footman

THE HISTORY of Fortnum's is the history of modern England. It all started in 1708 when young William Fortnum, a footman in the palace of Queen Anne, went to stay at a boarding house run by Hugh Mason, who operated a little shop on the ground floor.

Every night when Fortnum refilled the palace candlesticks he would sell the old ones to the fashionable ladies of the household and town.

With these connections Fortnum joined Mason's little grocery business and they promptly became the corner grocery for all the stylish town houses around St. James' Palace.

Over the years new generations of Fortnums and Masons grew into the store.

When the British started exploring India later in the century, a member of the Fortnum family went along and sent back exotic eastern spices and delicacies.

* * *

"I beg you to send me out hams, tongues, butter, and cheese, . . ." came the appeal from one of the Duke of Wellington's officers.

Victorian England was the great era of the British Empire, and the sun never set on Fortnum's customers.

And at home fashionable lords and ladies at Ascot or the Henley Regatta would rather be caught without their dignity than without a specially-packed Fortnum's food hamper.

Do We Need Doily On Serving Tray?

By AMY VANDERBILT

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

Is it proper to serve sliced meats (hot or cold) on a silver platter or tray? If so, should a doily be used or can the food come in contact with the silver?

AMY

"Can olives, pickles, etc., be served in a silver dish that does not have a glass liner?

"When serving sandwiches, stacked on platters in the center of the table, should they be conveyed to a plate with a sandwich lifter, or can they be taken in the fingers?

"Is a doily used when putting a cake on a cake plate? Would a 'sticky' cake be treated differently from a plain cake?

"When placing the carved portions of a roast on platters, would the serving spoon and fork be placed on the platter or on the table?

"When serving supper or an informal dinner or late snack, where would the cake forks and teaspoons be placed?

V. L., Passaic, N.J.

Hot or cold meats should be served on a silver platter or tray without a doily beneath it.

Small manageable sandwiches are taken with the fingers. Hot, toasted sandwiches, or loaf sandwiches, or club sandwiches, should be served with a sandwich lifter or a serving spoon and fork (a pie knife will do).

A doily may be used when cake is served from a cake plate. For a sticky cake a paper doily is usually used.

The roast may be served with the serving spoon and fork on the platter before it is passed or the spoon and fork may be on the table for the hostess to place on the platter.

At the buffet the forks are placed on the buffet table in any attractive pattern. The teaspoons are on the saucers to the right, beneath the handle.

* * *

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

I would like to know if it is considered proper to dunk either cookies or doughnuts in milk or coffee, and if it can be done in public or at home.

W. M., Detorit

You may do it at home under informal circumstances — when eating in a breakfast nook. But if this is done, a doughnut should be broken into small pieces first, not dunked whole.

Poetry in Your Soup

BRUSSELS — (WNS) — The Curnonsky cooking course being given to Brussels housewives includes poetry, music and art as auxiliary subjects.

"Proper cooking is a matter of excellent culture," explained chef Rene Torpier. "There must be poetry in the soup, music in the entree, painting in the salad and sculpture in the dessert."

"'One grain of intuition is worth all the measuring cups in the world," he said.

Dorm Fees Go Up On FSU Campus; $200 a Year Now

By BUCKY CANON
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE — A $10 per semester hike in housing fees has been approved for all post-war dormitories by the State Board of Control and will become effective in September.

FSU

Bucky Canon

The raise will affect three women's and two men's dorms now existing as well as two new dorms housing 570 men and 270 women scheduled for completion by November of this year.

Housing fees are currently $90 a semester. They were raised to this figure nearly 10 years ago.

Dr. Jack Rollow, head of Florida State's housing department, said the additional income was necessary because maintenance costs, salaries and supplies have gone up during this time and the housing system could no longer operate on a break-even basis.

Rollow also announced that freshmen men would be required to live in dormitories beginning in the fall of 1960.

Rollow explained that this move was designed to give freshmen better study conditions and insure the university of having filled dormitories.

YOUNG AMERICA

Use Contrasting Materials in This Play Outfit

CHARLES LEMAIRE knows as much about young American tastes and preferences as he does about dressing the sophisticated stars of the movie screens.

FOR FUN, games and town cover-up, he has devised this three-piece play dress. Shorts are notched on the side seams. The four-gore, tie-on skirt and front of jumper-length shirt should be in a print, stripe or polka dot, to contrast with the shorts. Back sleeves and collar of the shirt can be in a third fabric or matched with the shorts.

TRY PLAIN LINEN for shorts and trim, a print of cotton or rayon for the rest of the outfit. Denim with plain or printed sharkskin would be amusing.

SIZE 13 requires 3 yards of 36-inch material for blouse front and skirt, $1\frac{1}{4}$ yards of 36-inch material for blouse (back) and $1\frac{1}{2}$ yards of 36-inch material for shorts.

It's Time to Remodel Summer Clothing

Right now is a fine time to make your new summer clothing or remodel any that you had left over from last summer. There are a few things to keep in mind before starting your sewing.

Be sure to take your body measurements before buying patterns for your summer clothes.

There may be a change in your measurements since you last bought patterns. Just make a record of your measurements and then compare with chart of measurements found in either the front or back of pattern book before you purchase the pattern.

Use a tape measure that won't stretch when taking your measurements. Always measure over a well fitting foundation garment and a simple dress with set-in sleeves.

THREE JOBS IN ONE

Friend, Mother, One of the Boys

Sigma Chi 'Mom' Aleda Goetz and Three of Her Boys

By SHARON NELTON
Written for The Herald

"You have to be a friend, a mother and one of the boys."

She's Helen Klein, who "mothers" the Phi Sigma Deltas at the University of Miami. Mrs. Klein is one of 13 housemothers in the UM fraternity houses, most of which are on or near "Fraternity Row" on San Amaro Dr.

What does the mother of from 30 to 100 male offspring do?

. . . she acts as chaperon when girls are allowed to come to the houses

. . . some, like Eileen Wagner (Alpha Epsilon Pi) and Beatrice Vance (Lambda Chi Alpha) do the marketing

. . . she is on hand when the boys have problems

This last is the most important, they all feel.

"Mom" Westergaard (Elsie Westergaard, Kappa Sigma) keeps the coffee pot warm in her room in case any of the boys want to come in and talk. Some, like Rosalie Earle (Sigma Alpha Epsilon), leave their apartment doors open when they're in to let the boys know they're available for a talk.

"Moms" also know when to disappear when the boys want to talk "boy talk."

How does a housemother get to be a housemother?

Most of them are widows who felt they needed something to do. A few have sons who were in the fraternity they now "mother."

Some of the "moms" have had years of experience. Mrs. Earle has lived on five different campuses, Mrs. Vance on two.

Mrs. Vance is the only one of the local housemothers who has taken the two-week Housemother's Training Course at Purdue University.

Housemothers are hired by the fraternity boys themselves, usually in cooperation with the fraternity's alumni. The university also must give its approval.

* * *

ALL of the permanent fraternity houses on campus must have housemothers, says Parker Enwright of the dean of men's office.

Off-campus fraternity Sigma Phi Epsilon also has a housemother, Stella Cavanaugh, and Beta Sigma Rho has a part-time non-resident housemother, Louise Urbanski, who does chaperon duty on weekends.

Each has her own rooms or apartment in the fraternity house.

Mrs. Inez Holland (Pi Kappa Alpha) holds the record for being housemother at UM the longest, 6½ years.

Other on-campus "moms" are Lula C. Terry (Pi Lambda Phi), Blanch Lambeth (Sigma Nu), Helen B. Mandel (Tau Epsilon Phi) and Bernice Bradshaw (Zeta Beta Tau).

They all have one thing in common:

UM Students To Elect 7 Council Officers

By SHARON NELTON
Herald Correspondent

The University of Miami's infant student government meets its second election test tomorrow and Tuesday when students go to the polls to choose Undergraduate Association officers for next year.

U of M

Sharon Nelton

Main interest is in voting on the seven elected members of the Undergraduate Council, governing body of UA. The students will vote for two representatives from the School of Business Administration and the College of Arts and Sciences, and one from Music, Education and Engineering.

UC candidates from the College of Arts and Sciences are Charles T. Bunting, Lucy Dubois, Ronald B. Flam, Gerald Pinnas, Janet Stormont and Ellen Zuckerman. James Blosser and David Yelen run uncontested from the School of Business.

James B. Harris and Barbara Ann Newman vie against each other to represent the School of Education. Engineering School candidates are Allen R. Roth and Alfred A. Vasconez. Donald T. Munsell is the lone Music School candidate.

The various schools will also elect their own officers for their respective governments.

The UA government first went into effect last fall. After the election, the Council will choose its own chairman, vice chairman and treasurer.

FSC Marks Founders' Week

LAKELAND — The coronation of Miss Southern got the 74th annual Founders' Week off to a happy start. Among ten candidates voted on by the student body, Carol Marshall of Bradenton won the coveted award.

FSC

At Honor's Day program Norma Moore of Pompano was named Honor Walk student, the highest honor a student can receive at FSC.

The Founders' Week parade through Lakeland followed Honor's program. A sorority and a fraternity teamed together to enter a float to be judged on.

The theme of the floats was Hit Tunes. First place went to Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Chi Omega. Their float was Mardi Gras March.

Regatta Day on Lake Hollingsworth, with the FSC crew team playing host to Tampa, wound up the events of Founders' Week on an unhappy note —Tampa edged out Southern by a close margin, just ten seconds.

By BARBARA JONES

NASHVILLE — Thirty-seven seniors and four juniors were elected to membership in the Vanderbilt chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Vandy

Barbara Jones

To become a member of this highly coveted organization, seniors must have completed 107 semester hours of work and have at least a 2.4 quality point average. In addition, no more than 10 per cent of a senior class may be elected to membership. Graduates of August, January, and June are included in this quota.

Among the juniors who were elected was Allen Harrell of Ocala, Florida. To be elected during the junior year, a student must have completed 79 semester hours and have a quality point average of at least 2.8.

Paul Tillich, Professor at Harvard University, will deliver the 1959 Cole Lectures at Vanderbilt Divinity School. The five addresses will be centered around the theme "Religion and Culture." Dr. Tillich is one of the two foremost theologians in the world today.

Do You Know The Art Of Writing A Letter?

P. Newsfeatures

Letter-writing may become a lost art if the pace of modern life becomes any more hectic, say some worried experts.

Few people take the trouble to write a correct, interesting, social letter any more, it is charged. The brief note, the printed card and the hasty type-written letter are signs of the times.

Here are a few tips on the etiquette of letter-writing:

You should write naturally, as you talk — don't go in for stilted, formal phrases.

Legibility is important in the hand-written letter. And modern handwriting leaves much to be desired.

The woman of good taste should have a well-stocked stationery cabinet with small, double-fold paper for informal notes or invitations, larger folded sheets for letters and single sheets for business use.

Many women have all their stationery in one color and finish — gray, buff, pale blue, cream, white or even a pale pink are all in good taste. A mongram is used on paper for personal notes and letters, printed name and address are preferred for business stationery.

Shamrock Shuffle decked Barry's campus with St. Patrick's green last night as the social hall was transformed into Killarney Valley.

A thirty-foot rainbow spanned the hall across elves, shamrocks and rustic touches of Ireland for the frosh-sponsored dance. Judy Meshad and Pat Pennock arranged the decorations.

Kegs of apple cider and green-glazed doughnuts were served by refreshments' chairman Kathy Hartnett over a table supported by two oversized mushrooms.

Music? By McNamara's Band, of course!

Which state of life is best for he? To answer the question often raised by college students, the Sodality annually sponsors Vocation Week.

Speakers from the religious, the married, and the single states, discuss advantages and difficulties of their chosen way.

Vocation Week opened Monday with the celebration of High Mass in Cor Jesu Chapel by Rt. Rev. Msgr. R. T. Ratstatter. On Wednesday's panel, "Vocations in the World . . . Married and Single," were two Barry '57 graduates, Mrs. James S. Desmond, and Mrs. Theodore Maureau III. Others were Mrs. Howard F. George, Miss Rachel Erwin and Miss Adelita Quejado.

UF Fraternity Parties Brighten Social Scene For the Weekend

By FRED FROHOCK
Herald Correspondent

GAINESVILLE — Fraternities, fraternities, and fraternity weekends.

Two of the largest fraternities on campus enlivened the UF social scene this time around with their annual fraternity weekends.

U of F

Fred Frohock

Delta Tau Delta's Rainbow Weekend began Friday evening with a cocktail party, followed by a steak dinner. Later that evening, the Delts and their dates danced in their formals to the music of the Dreamers.

Saturday, the fraternity drove out to one of the lakes around Gainesville and tried out the sun, along with some more music by the Dreamers.

Enjoying the social break from studies were several Miamians. Tom Carlos and his date from Miami, Barbara McKeon were among the collegiate set. Both are graduates of Miami Senior High.

Glen Holliman, another Miami High graduate, and his date, Nancy Barrack, also decided that, for this weekend, anyway, partying was better than studying.

Glen was awarded the traditional trophy at the costume party for the "weirdest" attire. He came dressed as, of all things, a bluebird.

Another cocktail party Saturday started the next round of parties. A costume party with a Medieval Theme rounded things off that evening.

Miamians Russ Maxcy, Miami Edison graduate, Don Napoli, Coral Gables graduate, and Bob Geissinger, North Miami High graduate were among the Kappa Sigs taking in the activities.

Miami Girls Dance In Wellesley Concert

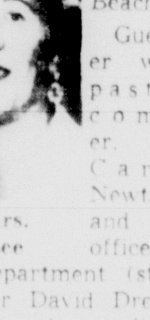
Nancy Jordan was choreographer for an English folk dance number and had a solo part in an English madrigal. A sophomore, she is the daughter of Mrs. Julian B. Jordan, 829 Navarre Ave., Coral Gables.

Auxiliary Elects Mrs. Lee

Officers of Jewish War Veterans, North Shore Post 677 and Ladies Auxiliaries will be held Thursday night in the North Shore Synagogue, 620 75th St., Miami Beach.



Mrs. Lee

Guest speaker will be a past national commander, William Carman of Newton, Mass. and installing officers will be the department (state) commander David Dressner, and department auxiliary president, Mrs. Obie Rosenthal.

Mrs. Arthur Lee, 7720 Abbott Ave., is the new president of the ladies auxiliary and Mrs. Stanley Hurwitch is corresponding secretary. Irvine C. Spear is commander of the post.

Military Ball

Highpoint of the evening was the crowning of the 1959 ROTC queens and their princesses. Reigning over the UM Air Force contingent is Judith Carol Harding, Morgantown, W.Va. Her Army counterpart is Judith Ann Dickinson, Indianapolis.

I-told-you-so stuff . . . when Louis B. Seltzer, editor of the Cleveland Press, cleaned off his desk and headed for a Miami Beach vacation at the Eden Roc he told the boys in the back room, "Soon's I leave you'll have foul weather" . . . this weekend he received a stack of high-gloss pictures, those used for reproduction in newspapers . . . attached was a note from the boys, "You were so right!" . . . the pictures were of Cleveland's big mid-March storm . . . Seltzer just sits and beach basks and smirks . . .

Not long after Gloria DeHaven finishes her Hilton Hotel singing engagement in San Juan, P.R., she and husband Dick Fincher fly to Europe . . . in addition to a pleasure jaunt in and around Paris they'll take a business trip to Germany for him to visit the Mercedes-Benz factory . . . all this won't take place before late April . . . she doesn't go to Puerto Rico until March 28 . . .

* * *

The two playwrights Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, best known recently for the dramatizations of the books Auntie Mame and Inherit The Wind, are readying another for Broadway for the coming winter season . . . from the renowned philosopher Harry Golden, owner of the Charlotte, N.C. newspaper Carolina Israelite, they bought the rights to his book, "Only In America," a series of essays, out of which to make the play . . . but after talking to Golden at length they tossed the book aside and decided to do a play of his own fascinating life . . .

What To Do With Junior? After-School Care Helps

By SHARON NELTON
Herald Writer

A special program for small children of working mothers has been advised by the Greater Miami Jewish Community Center.

The working mother who has youngsters in first or second grades often has a real problem in providing care for her children between the early dismissal of these grades and the hour when she gets home from work.

The youngsters are too old for nursery school, too young to be left alone and it is often too costly to provide individual and competent care for them.

The Jewish Community Center's Special After School Program has a project underway in four schools Biscayne, North Beach, Central and South Beach elementary schools. It is a pilot program which can be enlarged if there is sufficient demand.

Staff members pick the children up at the school at 2 p.m., when they are dismissed, take them to the Jewish Community Center and give them personal door-to-door transportation home at 4:15.

At present, there is a boy's group and a girls' group participating, according to Miriam Scheinberg, Center youth activities supervisor.

"It is a Jewish oriented program, but it is non-sectarian," Miss Scheinberg said.

Parents are required to pay a monthly tuition of fee of $15 for each child cared for by the service.

Emanuel Tropp, assistant director of the Center says that though the service appears to be just a day care program, it is actually "something deeper." He thinks of it as a "vehicle" to not only take care of children, but also to help them "cope with their special problems."

Youngsters are given guidance through such activities as arts and crafts, story telling, singing, games and trips.

Trips have included jaunts to the library and to Bayfront Park. Longer expeditions, such as a recent boat trip to Musa Isles, are taken when there is no school and children are at the center all day.

NO ONE KNOWS MY HAIR IS GRAY! because I use CANUTE WATER

I can hardly believe my eyes as I comb this pure, colorless, crystal clear liquid into my hair. Amazingly, and at once, my gray hair begins to color and look young again—just like my own, original natural shade. It's simply thrilling!

I know my lovely new color does not wash off—and is guaranteed against sun-fading. Takes permanent waving, too. Canute Water is not prepared for beauty shop application. It is designed for easy home use only. A simple retouch about once a month keeps my hair young looking—always.

No skin test required because Canute Water is harmless. Not a single injury in more than 44 years. Only a few cents per application. For men, too. At all drug stores.

WHAT OTHER PRODUCT—AT ANY PRICE—OFFERS ALL THIS?

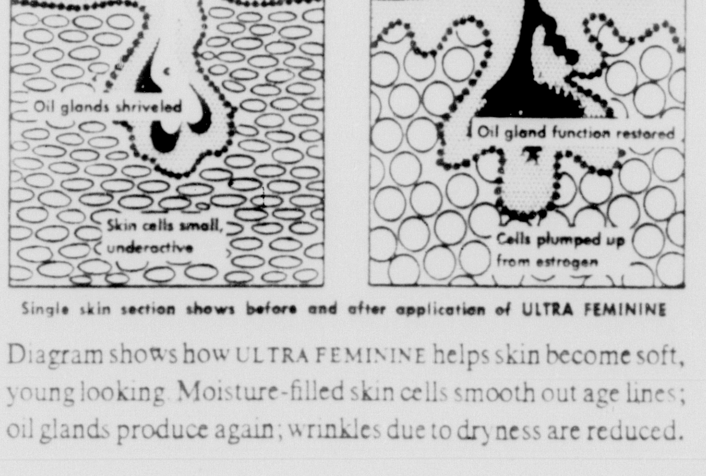
How New Wonder Drug Cosmetic Restores Young Look To Skin

Medical tests prove Helena Rubinstein's ULTRA FEMININE FACE CREAM reduces wrinkles due to dryness, reverses two aging skin processes and restores young skin tone.

Helena Rubinstein, first lady of beauty science, announces her discovery, ULTRA FEMININE FACE CREAM. It is the only formula containing both vital female hormones, natural to you as a woman. They are estrogen and progesterone.

Like a prescription, ULTRA FEMININE acts not merely on the surface but on specific skin cells. They are the same living cell layers that made your skin soft, firm, fresh when you were very young. Clinical tests show that ULTRA FEMININE reactivates these sleeping cells!



UNTREATED AGING SKIN
Dry, flaky, wrinkling skin
Oil glands shriveled
Skin cells small, underactive
TREATED WITH ULTRA FEMININE
Smooth, unlined, well-lubricated skin
Oil gland function restored
Cells plumped up from estrogen

Single skin section shows before and after application of ULTRA FEMININE

Diagram shows how ULTRA FEMININE helps skin become soft, young looking. Moisture-filled skin cells smooth out age lines; oil glands produce again; wrinkles due to dryness are reduced.

DOCTORS REPORT UNPRECEDENTED RESULTS

1. Tissue cells can hold moisture again after use of ULTRA FEMININE. These cells, plumped out once again, support the surface firmly. Lines smooth out. Wrinkles due to dryness are reduced.

WORKS LIKE A PRESCRIPTION

Unlike thin, watery, vanishing creams, ULTRA FEMININE'S special rich formula works through the night to release a continuous supply of hormones, just as your own glands would naturally...for full benefits to the skin cells and oil glands. By morning, ULTRA FEMININE has been completely absorbed deep within the skin. Use ULTRA FEMININE faithfully for thirty days. You will discover that you can look younger.

Clinical Research Division, Helena Rubinstein, Inc.,
East Hills, Long Island, New York.

Guaranteed...you can look younger in 30 days

Helena Rubinstein says, "Medical findings reinforce my own belief that ULTRA FEMININE is the most important help you can give your skin. It must give you a younger, smoother look in one month, if used as directed, or you may obtain a full refund."

Meat Pie Recipe Says Thank You

ANYONE FOR MEAT PIE? Thought so. Here's a delicious recipe which Mrs. J. McG. of Miami shares with you as a thank-you for the know-how she's picked up from you through the column.

The recipe "has been handed down to each daughter and daughter-in-law for years," she writes. "It's a favorite dish with all our family and everyone who tastes it, makes it also."

Simple, too.

McGOWN'S MEAT PIE

1 pound ground beef
7 medium potatoes
2 medium onions
Salt
Pie crust (either packaged or home-made)

Place enough water to cover bottom of 1½-quart baking dish. Peel and slice potatoes in thin slices to make bottom layer. Next crumble a layer of chopped meat over the potatoes. Sprinkle with salt and add slices of onion.

Repeat layers until you fill dish. Top with crust and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour, testing with knife to make sure potatoes are cooked.

Non-Skid Rugs Are Skidding

A SLIP of the lip is all right. But not of the shoe. Or, more specifically, of the rug. When it comes to tumbling over her throw rug, Mrs. A. G. of Hollywood has had it.

"The backs of these rugs were non-skid," she writes, "but after several washings, I'm slipping all over the place."

Wants to know if there is a product — or method — to put the non-skid back into skid rugs.

Children Are Frightened in Hospital —They Want Mother To Be Near

By MARY ENGLISH
Herald Columnist

Hospitalization is intolerable to the average youngster, no matter how well he behaves.

Since most adults find hospital experiences frightening enough, it should be understandable that a preschool child would have great apprehension regarding enemas, injections, and some of the about ten minutes. Now, with a comb.

Your South Florida Child

Most little children consider their mothers omnipotent. When my children were frightened by thunder or lightning, they got in bed with me to assure themselves that no harm would come to them. If they were ill or had an injury, they seemed to believe that as long as I was with them, they would get well.

They even believed that I could protect them from the atomic bomb if one should fall on this country.

This universal attitude of faith that the pre-schooler has in his mother's ability to look after him can be the most important factor in seeing a youngster through a harrowing hospital experience.

* * *

SMALL CHILDREN do not respond well to changes in their personal relationships. They need steady contact with one or a few loved people. That is why they often become hysterical when shifted from one nurse to another while already under the severe physical stress hospitalization provokes.

The average maternal woman will insist upon being in the hospital with her child regardless of the pressure of other responsibilities. She will feel, and rightly too, that no one can look after her child as well as she can.

When hospital policies prevent a child from getting the motherly attention he needs, it is high time that some change in institutional procedures be considered.

Psychiatrist James Robertson in his book, "Young Children in Hospitals," states very strongly that hospitals should work out some plan that enables mothers to accompany all children under four and to remain with them throughout their hospital stay.

Many hospitals now have the "lying-in" plan of keeping mothers and newborns in the same room. Dr. Robertson's plan is an extension of this.

* * *

AT A MENTAL HEALTH seminar in Toronto, Canada I had the privilege of hearing Dr. Benjamin Spock. He remarked that medical schools cannot teach "tender, loving care." He added that he was more concerned about their tendency to train this tender, loving care out of the medical students.

I believe many mothers keep their ill children at home when they really belong in hospitals because they cannot bear to leave them in this unprotected, impersonal environment.

* * *

IF HOSPITAL RED TAPE prohibits you from being with your child during his hospital stay, what can you do to help him? Here are a few suggestions:

. . . Be sure that you explain to him why you are not going with him so that he will not take it as rejection of him and your maternal responsibilities.

. . . Be realistic about what a hospital is like so that he is better prepared for the experience. Don't give him the idea that he is going to a hotel or a country club where he will be entertained or showered with gifts constantly.

. . . Try to get him a room with a telephone by his bed if you can afford it and if he is old enough to converse with you over it.

Mrs. English invites your questions. If you have a problem concerning your child, which can be discussed in this column, write her at The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

How To Answer Child's Questions on Death

But face, it. Sooner or later, your children will ask: what happens when somebody dies? What does dead mean?

And when there's a death in the family or neighborhood, you'll ask yourself: Should I take my young son or daughter to the funeral or to pay "last respects?"

It's a delicate situation, for improper handling may mark the child with phobias that carry over into adulthood.

There are no hard and fast rules to guide you. Experts agree, however, that a child should not be "forced" at any age to view a body or attend a funeral.

Shirley Camper, family life consultant at the Family Service Association of America, says parents should be guided by the age and maturity of the child.

"Below school age," she said, "it is generally wise to keep children away from funerals and funeral homes if there's going to be a great deal of emotion. And there usually is.

"Most young grade school children, if they so desire, may join in the mourning and rituals. This is especially so if the child has been very close to the deceased.

"Participation in such a case gives the child a chance to express real feeling and get it out of his system. There seems to be a tendency in our culture, however, to exclude children from unpleasant situations."

At the other extreme is the "forcing" of a child to pat the hair or hands of the deceased, telling the child to say good-bye since so-and-so is going away for a long sleep.

"It is bad because," said Mrs. Camper, "the child does not understand why the body is cold or why this once friendly person doesn't smile or say hello.

"The part about 'sleeping' may be especially fear-provoking because the child can't understand how a person will be able to sleep in a place where there isn't any air."

* * *

WHEN CHILDREN raise questions about death, don't give them sugar-coated answers or put off answering until they go to a funeral.

By age four or five, most children have a concept about what "dead" is. They have seen dead flies and they "play dead" sometimes when playing Cowboy and Indian.

But don't expect a young child to really understand, and feel what you feel.

In my own experience I heard a five-year-old girl, viewing the body of a beloved grandfather at a funeral parlor, ask her mother: "I wonder if grandpa has any balloons in his pocket?"

That child would learn to miss her grandpa, who always had balloons for her. But his death — though she had been told and accepted he was "dead" — was something only time could teach.

Housewives: Slow Down

MINNEAPOLIS — (UPI) — Housewives should take a few coffee breaks during the day, says Glenn Prickett, a safety specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Prickett said accidents in the kitchen are caused by the same errors which produce a large share of highway accidents — haste and fatigue.

Taking several brief rest periods during the day will pay off in increased energy and greater safety.

Mr. Wedgwood Himself Speaks Up

By MARY GOODFELLOW
Herald Columnist

NASSAU—"Are you Wedgwood of Wedgwood?" we asked Sir John at lunch at the home of the C. D. MacCarthys.

He is — and we promised Wedgwood that we'd drop in to hear his lecture sponsored by the English Speaking Union in Palm Beach the next day.

Neat and tweedy grey-haired Sir John, who closely resembles the Reynolds portrait of his ancestor Josiah, told us that this founder of Wedgwood some 200 years ago,took crude earthenware and made it into a Queen's choice. In the 18th century, the poor had to eat off crude pottery and unsanitary wood, while the rich dined in style from gold, silver and pewter service.

Recognition came when Queen Charlotte commissioned Josiah to make an earthenware service, which he named "Queensware." Not to be outdone, Russia's Empress Catherine ordered a set of some 1200 pieces, each decorated with different English scenes.

Aristocratic looking Sir John chuckles over the fact that his great-great-great grandmother was the daughter of a cheese-monger, and proudly told us that Josiah left school at the age of nine to work at a "pot bank" (pottery works) and never had any more education. This descendant of the famous Wedgwood family, who's a member of Parliament, a world traveller, an ardent mountain climber, and an expert skin diver, will continue to tour and lecture throughout our leading cities, and his fascinating film of today's manufacturing of Wedgwood in Staffordshire should interest everyone who sees it.

Our Canadian friends Mariette and Mike (J.B.) Lynch, Jane and Gordon Shirres, and Virginia Smith, who all have homes in Palm Beach joined us. In the group was Princeton's Donald W. Griffin, and Ivy League scholastic standards versus European education was the topic . . .

At former Ambassador Stanton Griffis' reception for author Philip Wylie after his lecture at the Society of Four Arts, we asked if Mrs. Wylie was around . . . "No" he said, "she is taking her exams in Spanish today at the University of Miami — most helpful for our travels as I only speak French and German."

Bob Faro, the Astaire of this palmy resort, showed us the new steps of the "Beachcomber" in a twirl, at the posh Celebrity Room. We managed between dances to ask our former Ambassador to Cuba, Earl Smith, what was the next post in the offing . . . with a smile this handsome diplomat said "no comment."

Art collector Nat Cummings intertained for Charles Clore the English industrialist. Clore isn't kidding when he asks you to "come up and see my etchings!" for he owns one of the finest collections of French Impressionists . . .

Shelter—Big Budget Problem

By MARY MILLER
Budget Consultant
Mercantile National Bank of Miami Beach

Money Clinic

Shelter, which takes the biggest bite out of average budgets, is a problem in any town, but a bigger one in Miami than in many other cities.

For one thing, the city is bursting at its seams with rapid population growth. Housing expansion within the city has not kept up with population burgeoning. Outside the city limits in both Dade and Broward counties, considerable moderate and low-cost housing has spring up.

But since the area lacks a unified rapid-transit system, often the location means that you must add the cost of a car or even two cars, in order to get the breadwinners back and forth to work.

The old rule of thumb as to what percentage of the average income should go toward shelter was 25%. Under the present Income-tax setup, however, authorities are beginning to revise this estimate. Many now feel that shelter costs should be held to one-fifth of the family income, except in families with three or more children, in which it should drop to one-sixth. This percentage includes not only rent but utilities.

This is no problem for high income groups. However, questionnaires which come in to this column indicate that keeping shelter costs to such a percentage is just about impossible for the lower income groups. Recent letters have been received from families which are spending 35, 40 and even 50% for shelter.

Incidentally, about 20 per cent of Miami families have annual incomes of less than $2,500. Approximately another 20 per cent have incomes between $2,500 and $4,000.

The Miami Housing Authority, which compiled these figures, is able to furnish low-cost public housing for only a tiny fraction of these families. Actually, only two per cent of the housing in Miami is of this type. (In Nashville, Tenn., in comparison, low-cost public housing amounts to ten per cent of the total.)

Right now there are no vacancies in any of the Miami Housing Authorities units, and the waiting list is the longest that the Authority has ever had.

Haley Sofge, executive director, estimates that the available public housing in Miami can accommodate only about 8 per cent of the families who are in obvious need.

There is hope that in the future private enterprise in this area, aided by liberal FHA mortgage provisions for urban renewal, may help to take up the slack in low and moderate-priced housing accommodations.

In the meantime, almost half of Miami's families, after shopping around for the lowest priced rental units that are clean and safe, still find that rent and utilities knock their budgets out of proportion.

Install Sweetness and Light—It's an Order

BUDAPEST — (WNS) — Factories employing Hungarian women have been instructed to install beauty parlors, dental offices, bathing facilities and an employment office where working wives may engage part-time maids.

The announcement proclaimed that the purpose is "to sweeten and soften the lives of patriotic women who must take care of their homes while they work for the good of the state.

ESP Is Topic for Bookfellows Dinner

ESP — extra-sensory perception — will be the subject at the Thursday dinner meeting of the Miami Bookfellows in the Seville Hotel, Miami Beach.

Arthur Ford

Speaker will be Arthur Ford, lecturer on ESP (or parapsychology) and practitioner of ESP (the ability to transmit thought from mind to mind and to identify unseen objects).

Mr. Ford explains in his autobiography, "Nothing So Strange," how he discovered his ability for ESP in 1924 and claims that he works through "an invisible personality named Fletcher."

Mr. Ford lectures extensively and holds private sessions. He says his first encounter with ESP was as a soldier in World War I when he could correctly list war casualty lists before they were published.

He studied for the ministry and was ordained, but later took up the full time study of psychic powers and worked on psychic research with the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Interest in psychic phenomena has grown to the point that 47 American universities have established departments of parapsychology.

After Mr. Ford's talk, there will be a question and answer session. The speaker will be introduced by Dr. James Thomas, Miami Beach winter resident and former president of Chrysler Institute of Engineering.

Mana-Zucca, concert pianist and composer, will make her annual appearance for the Bookfellows at this dinner, and John Keston, London born tenor, will sing.

The Rev. Fred Cole of Coral Gables Congregational Church will give the invocation and Mrs. F. Kyle Ebersole is in charge of arrangements. Reservations, made with Mrs. Cecil Bergen, close Tuesday.

Mrs. Thomas T. Stevens, president, and Commander and Mrs. Charles Mills will greet the guests at the 6:30 p.m. reception.

Authority To Give Pointers

Mrs. Emma H. Cyphers, national director and founder of the Floralia Arrangers Club, will speak at a meeting of the Miami chapter Friday in Miami Beach Woman's Club.

Mrs. Cyphers

In the morning session, Mrs. Cyphers will show slides illustrating how the eye "reads" an arrangement and other aspects of good design. In the afternoon program, "Color Inspiration from the Masters," she will comment on arrangements brought for criticism.

Mrs. Cyphers, well known in American Garden Club work, is the former reading and accrediting chairman of flower show schools of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. She has written such books as "Pleasures and Problems in Flower Arranging," "Flower Arrangement at the Crossroads" and "Giving and Getting Awards for Flower Arrangements."

Mrs. R. C. Lohmeyer, founder of the Miami chapter, arranged for Mrs. Cyphers' appearance. President of the chapter is Mrs. Charles McWethy and program chairman is Mrs. W. E. Futch. Mrs. Frank Hewlett and Mrs. Edward Allen are in charge of luncheon reservations.

'Stepping High' Frolics To Aid Student Nurses

Miami Springs Junior Woman's Club has such an expanding welfare program that it has formed a foundation to encompass all its branches.

One branch — nursing scholarships — is represented by Shirley Berounsky, pictured above. Shirley is studying nursing at Jackson Memorial Hospital on the juniors' first nursing scholarship.

And she has done so well that when she graduates in June, she has another scholarship for specialized study from the state.

The junior club hopes to increase its scholarship program from sending one girl every three years to sending a girl each year. (Theirs is a gift scholarship, not a loan.)

To finance this project and the others which come under the foundation, the club is giving its annual Spring Frolics at 9 p.m. Friday in Bayfront Park Auditorium.

The show and dance following are open to the public. Mrs. Don Freeman Jr., 1171 Oriole Dr., Miami Springs is ticket chairman. Members will be in the cast of the show, called "Stepping High," which will recall dance favorites of the past. And soloists will include Wilton Clary, former Broadway singer now living in Miami.

All the work is being done by members — the sets, the costumes and props. Mrs. Ruth Cater Fate is director and Bob Zander is in charge of music.

Mrs. O. L. Brown is general chairman and Mrs. Lee Wixon is co-chairman.

Projects supported by the club's foundation include: Dental hygiene — providing dental examinations for all children in Miami Springs schools, sending needy children to the dentist and distributing educational material on dental health.

Miami Springs library — the club has given books, tables and chairs.

American Cancer Society—donations of money and service of members on the speakers bureau, driving patients and delivering bandates.

State PTA Officers Will Be Speakers

Annual meeting of district 12, Florida Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be held Wednesday in Miami Shores Baptist Church, 370 Grand Concourse, Miami Shores.

Theme is "Education Today — Study, Fact Finding, Possible Legislative Action." Registration starts at 9:15 and the meeting begins at 9:45 a.m. with Mrs. Frank Barrett, district president from Fort Lauderdale, presiding.

Conducting the program's preliminaries will be Mrs. Grover Angell, state character and spiritual education chairman, Mrs. M. E. Rosam, district vice president, Mrs. Henry C. Fox, president of Dade County Council of PTA, and E. R. Hilgendorf, assistant superintendent of Dade county schools.

Two main talks will be given by Mrs. Myron Blee, Tallahassee, first vice president of the Florida Congress, and A. L. Vergason, Tampa, school education chairman. Mrs. Blee's topic is "Education for What?" and Mr. Vergason will discuss the National Defense Education Act.

These two speakers will be joined by Mrs. Clarence Hunfleet, state safety chairman, and Mrs. W. L. Mussett, immediate past state president and now legislative chairman, for a panel discussion on "Education Through Facts." Dr. Henry Fox, civil defense chairman, will be moderator.

Session will close with a talk by Mrs. Mussett on "What now?"

Dade County Council of PTA is hostess to the district meeting.

DANISH TREAT

The trick in preparing the spinach is to add a suspicion of sugar.

Gables BPWs To Hear Smathers

Sen. George Smathers will speak at the Coral Gables Business and Professional Women's Club's legislative dinner at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Coral Gables Country Club.

His topic will be "Woman Power, a New Force in Our Economy."

Former Senator Harry P. Cain, now an officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Miami, will be a special guest.

Mrs. Lila Mae Durgan, legislation chairman of the Florida Federation of BPW Clubs, will be mistress of ceremonies, and Mrs. Roxcy O. Hart, legislation chairman of the Coral Gables BPW Club, is chairman.

HAIR COLORING, TOO

New Coiffures for Police Matrons

Dorothy

Mary

This is the seventh in a series of articles on Police Matrons Dorothy, age 42, and Mary, 40, who lost weight and inches, improved their posture and changed the color of their hair, with the help of The Miami Herald Glamor Clinic.

SEAGULL PEARL, a light, true silver, is Police Matron Dorothy's crowning glory now. Coiffure is elegantly, yet casually tailored for the busy career woman. Blue eyes are fringed by custom-made eyelashes.

AND NOW SHE'S A BLONDE! Formerly a jet black brunette, Mary now has tresses of deep golden blonde—pink palomino, according to the hair colorist. Her natural looking lashes are simple to apply.

By ELEANOR HART

Herald Glamor Clinic Editor

If you've been a brunette for 40 years and wondered how you'd look as a blonde, consider the Case of Police Matron Mary . . . she took the fatal step and lived to be photographed!

"I never dreamed of being blonde," says the diminutive 5-foot Mary who had always touched up her graying locks with a bit of black hair coloring. (You don't dye—you color, girls).

Glamor Clinic

So when the Glamor Clinic hair colorist began talking in terms of pink palomino (deep gold blonde), it was difficult for Mary to believe that the technician had her in mind.

On the other hand, Dorothy, her 42-year-old working partner at the City Jail, was eager and willing to disperse with her iron gray tresses.

The hair colorist chose shades that are flattering to their individual skin tones. Fair skinned, blue-eyed Dorothy was a natural for Seagull Pearl, a true light silver. Mary, with her golden brown eyes and red-haired complexion seemed made to order for a deep gold blonde.

And so it came to pass—after four hours of hard work by the color technician, and it was hard work, because both women had abused hair.

The colorist used a new hair coloring product that boasts a proteinized cream lotion base. "It's a conditioner as well as a hair coloring," she explained. "Even the tint has a moisturized cream base, which is cool to the scalp—doesn't nip."

And that's important for the woman whose scalp is not accustomed to the rigors of bleaching.

* * *

Coiffures Go With Working Uniforms

THE HAIR STYLIST, who designed their coiffures, chose styles that would be smart and chic for the woman-who-works rather than the glamorous hair-do designed for more formal wear.

Both coiffures are basically simple, to complement their tailored blue police matron's uniforms, with flattering lifted line at the sides, covered ears and fullness in back — always flattering to the forty-ish-set.

Dorothy's hair is swept back in regal waves from the forehead while Mary's is teased into Zsa-Zsa Gabor bangs, to cut the length of a too-high forehead and focus more attention on brown eyes that appeared dark and somber until the hair was changed to a golden hue.

As an extra fillip, custom-made eyelashes of real hair were applied — french brown for Dorothy and sable brown for Mary. These natural looking lashes are individually designed in any shade of real hair, and can be dyed to match any particular color scheme. (You'll love the deep purple).

* * *

'Now, Jail Would Be a Joy'

HOW DID the two police matrons feel about their new toppers? Mary shook her golden head apprehensively. "I don't know what my husband will say."

"I know what mine would say," said silver blonde Dorothy emphatically. "If he could see me now, he'd start swimming from Antigua" (where he's presently employed at a U. S. air lines base).

But the young man who had been assisting the coiffure artist throughout the transformation had the best line of all: "With a couple of glamorous women like you as matrons, it would be a joy to be in jail."

NEXT: A Lesson in Make-Up.

To learn the names of the police matrons' hair stylist and hair colorist, also where custom-made eyelashes are available, call The Herald Shopping Service.

Where To Buy?

Call FR 9-3826 after 9:30 a.m. today. After 24 hours, write to The Miami Herald Shopping Service, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BEFORE the hair colorist went to work, Dorothy had iron gray hair—very gray.

—Herald Staff Photos by Ray Fisher

COLOR and cut make the difference. Back fullness is flattering, easy to care for.

THAT HAIR was black! Mary often wondered how she would look as a blonde. Now she knows.

Fido's Right In Fashion

PARIS — (UPI) — Paris boutiques aim to make Fido as fashionable as his mistress.

They show collars studded with colored stones and rhinestones, and embroidered handkerchiefs to tuck in the pocket of a plaid coat.

Cream On Your Eyeliner

Dip the tip of your eyebrow pencil or eyeliner into a dab of cleansing cream before outlining your eyes. This helps make the delicate task of drawing around your orbs much safer—and lends a softer effect.

Jewelry Has Oriental Air

Colors range from vivid Pagoda pink, Pacific turquoise, shrine purple and Buddha green to azalea, larkspur, woodrose, forsythia and lilac.

New hairdo for Spring Will-o-the-Wisp

A flattering and subtle treatment of hair, done with the light, informed fingers of an Elizabeth Arden staff stylist. Following the last cable from Paris, "Will-o-the-wisp" is close at the sides, higher on top, with wispy bangs brushed in a side sweep . . . an enchanting way to look this Spring. And what about a new glint of color for your hair as a real Spring tonic?

Anglers' Club Corker

Key Largo Anglers' Club membership includes wealthy industrialists, yachtsmen and businessmen from all over the country. Each year they gather for a hilarious costume party to wind up the season.

The week preceding the ball is devoted to officers' meetings, tournaments, awarding of trophies.

It amounts to a scandal when members of a major social club get up a petition to have an important guest ejected from the club.

Consternation, annoyance then anger mounting to apoplectic heights arose in members when the guest, a scientist from middle-Europe, buttonholed them and attempted a vitriolic form of brainwashing them to his political views.

Vince Barnett

Strangely, the club's new commodore, Mundy Peale, president of Republic Aviation, seemed impervious to the members' demands for the "bounder's" eviction.

He had a reason. The scientist's act was the greatest hoax ever perpetrated on members in the history of the wealthy yachtsmens' club. He is Hollywood actor Vince Barnett, master of wit and make-up. Commodore Peale had him flown from California for two days of harassing the club members.

Topped by an obvious wig that only a "scientist" disdainful of vanity would wear, humorist Barnett, true to his reputation, successfully hoodwinked all who came within earshot.

For the ball, the elastic theme was World Fairs, any old fair, and costumes were of anyone who might have attended or been in a fair.

Commodore Peale and his wife had atomic age costumes made of gold materials with cross-straps of beeping lights (designed by the engineers in his Republic Aviation offices) and outer-space hats which also blinked lighted messages.

Decorations around the club were spectacular, from a multi-colored waterfall, set up solely for the party, to a light-twingling mammoth atom reminiscent of the Brussels Fair.

During this ninth annual costume ball there were more than 200 members and guests in attendance, some of whom had arrived by car, others, quite naturally arrived aboard their yachts, 40 of which, all decorated, rode at anchor in the basin or were moored to the docks, adding to the elegant decor.

Many of this year's revellers decided to come in groups. There were groups of "moon people" in the party of outgoing commodore Richard Grant.

Mrs. James Knight was in a group of "angels" or the spirits of late Fair-goers. Mrs. John Bell, who was costumed as the fan dancer Sally Rand, had in her group Chicago Fair characters.

ELECTRONIC GUARD NEVER
Reach in box for jewels.
Guard pulls them away.

Miami Jackson's 1959 Winner, Albert Marquez, Works on His Electronic Guard

. . . minute electrical currents in a person's body activate apparatus

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

A hand, which might have belonged to a burglar, reached for the jewels.

Click! They were gone, and the hand grabbed only empty air.

"It works," chuckled Albert Marquez, a junior at Miami Jackson High and builder of what he calls an "electronic jewel guard." His physics teacher prefers to call it a "proximity detector."

The gadget, which won top honors at Jackson High's school science fair, will be displayed along with hundreds of other inventions and exhibits at the Herald-sponsored South Florida Science Fair opening at Dinner Key Auditorium Thursday.

A Rube Goldberg-type device, it is activitated by the minute electric current in the body of anyone who approaches it. This current trips a capacity relay, which in turn closes another relay, which activates a solenoid switch, which pulls a lever, which yanks the jewels away from the pilfering hand.

Record 976 Exhibits

SOME EQUALLY ingenious projects will be among the record 976 exhibits — representing an 87 per cent increase over last year's fair.

For example, take Mark Elson's ping pong ball. It doesn't do tricks, but he can predict the behavior of that ball when it's in motion with an accuracy that amazes his teachers at Miami Beach High School.

"Frankly, I'm a little worried," admitted Mrs. Louis Allsworth, his physics teacher. "His math is so involved that I can't check his figures to be sure they're right. I think he knows what he's doing, though."

Mark wrote a paper called, "Differential Equations of Motion" to tell what happens to the ball when it is dropped from a height. Ordinary high school students can tell you what will happen in a vacuum, but Mark took air resistance into consideration. To do this, he first had to teach himself calculus.

His figures told him that if he dropped the ball off the bridge at Bakers Haulover, it would take 2 seconds to travel the 37 feet to the ground on a still day.

Having figured it out, he went to Baker's Haulover and tried it. Sure enough, two seconds.

Alcohol's Effect Studied

THEN THERE are Carol Stephens' rats. Her project, carried out under the supervision of Thomas Barringer in Hialeah High's special science research class for able students, is a study of the effect of alcohol on rat livers.

Carol fed four rats varying amounts of whisky and medicinal alcohol and then operated on their livers, removing four grams of liver from each one.

Two days later, she operated again and found that the more whisky the rat had taken, the less liver had grown back.

"It proves my theory," she said happily.

Aren't girls too squeamish for this sort of thing?

"Rat's don't bother me at all," said Carol. "I like their looks—except for the tails."

Beach High Defending Champ

THE RECORD NUMBER of entries this year, due in part to the increased emphasis on science in Dade schools, will mean some stiff competition when the projects are judged Wednesday night.

Unofficial defending champion will be Miami Beach High, which last year got four of the seven first prizes in the senior high division.

Hialeah High, which last year sent only two projects to the South Florida Fair but got two prize winners, hopes to improve its record by sending a half-dozen carefully chosen exhibits.

The prizes will include two trips to the national science fair in Hartford, Conn., in May, a University of Miami Scholarship, a Navy cruise, a Dade Medical Association Scholarship to a summer science camp, and two encyclopedia sets.

No, You Can't Deduct 'Gift' to Race Track

By LAWRENCE THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer

The woman was assertative and almost belligerent. The man was quiet, and almost apologetic.

They were at the information counter of the Internal Revenue Service, on the third floor of the Plaza Building, 245 SE First St.

"We want to know whether to put my name or my husband's name first on our joint return form," she said.

"There are no rules covering that," said the agent.

"Well, we've had an argument about it," she said, "and we decided to let the government decide. We'll do it whichever you say. Won't we?"

She glared at her husband and he nodded.

* * *

Depends on Who Wears Pants

"I CAN'T tell you the way it should be done," said the agent, "but usually the name used first would be the one who makes the most money and wears the pants."

"See?" exlaimed the woman in triumphant and baleful tones as she turned on the man. "I told you so!"

He nodded and they left.

YOU'RE MY PET CHARITY-
$10 WIN
$10

W. L. Richardson Jr., group supervisor for the Internal Revenue Service in Miami, says this is but one of the scores of incidents that lighten the day of his staff as they wrestle with their annual job of helping the taxpayers prepare forms.

There was, for instance, the woman who needed help in filling out a joint return. The joint income listed included dividends, rental property and other items. At the conclusion of a long session, the agent told her to have her husband sign the form with her.

"I'm not married," she said. "It's my brother who is the joint."

Operation Smoother This Year

DESPITE the occasional light incident, there is remarkably little trouble in getting the forms in and refunds out.

Laurie W. Tomlinson, district director who was visiting in Miami from his Jacksonville office recently, told The Herald that the job this year actually is smoother than last year.

The reason is twofold:

1. PEOPLE have learned from past experience how to fill out the returns.

2. THERE have been no major changes in the tax law that affect the average wage earner.

Regardless of the reason, the fact is that fewer people are coming to Uncle Sam's office for help, even though phone inquiries are answered every week day and each Monday is set aside to give personal assistance.

In Miami, through the end of February, assistance had been given to 18,727 taxpayers on the phone, compared to 19,776 at the same time last year. Personal assistance had been given to 7,822 persons, compared to 9,648 for the same period last year.

* * *

THAT NOT so many people are asking for aid on their forms doesn't mean that fewer people are filling out returns in Florida.

For the last fiscal year, 2,333,000 income tax returns were submitted. Total collections for the calendar year of 1958 were $1,116,000,000.

Tomlinson says there is no way at this time to [illegible] ceipts at the district office so far are up 14 per cent over last year.

Already, 125,000 refunds have been made. By May 15, when the last refund check should be ready for mailing, the total will be 850,000.

Normally, it takes 30 days to get a refund check mailed after the return has been sent in.

Despite the tremendous volume of business which he supervises, Tomlinson gets many calls and letters from people who think he personally opens all the mail in his office.

At any given time, from 50,000 to 60,000 returns are being processed by the district office (and on April 15, the deadline, some 350,000 will be sent that way) but several times a week he will get a personal call by long distance.

"Mr. Tomlinson," the caller will say, "This is Joe Jones of Clewiston. A couple of days ago I mailed my return and I realize now that I made a mistake on the second page. I was wondering if you'd correct it for me."

Or he will run into an old friend in his home town, Lake Wales. "Oh, Laurie," says the friend, "when you get back to Jacksonville, will you look up my form and check something on it for me?"

Regretfully, he must politely decline to give such special services.

* * *

Who Writes the 'And'?

BUT IF the head man of the district has such headaches, so do the field men, the agents who deal with the taxpayers needing personal assistance.

Some of the problems which come their way are amusing, although all are important to the people who present them.

"When we write that it is a return for John and Mary Smith," asked the caller, "who writes the 'and' between the names?"

One agent swore to Richardson that this happened:

There was a long line at the information counter. A man made an end run and tried to get the agent's attention.

"You'll have to wait your turn," the agent said.

"I only have one important question," the man said.

"What is your one important question?" asked the agent.

"Where is the men's room?"

* * *

He Runs No Bode-ing House

THEN THERE was a gentleman who wondered if he could claim his sister as a dependent.

In explaining the regulations, the agent asked: "Is her principal place of abode in your house?"

"No, sir," said the gentleman. "She lives there, but she doesn't bode there." (This, it should be added, was a gentleman with a Southern accent.)

While the income tax agents and experts expect hard work at this time of year and still are able to smile at many of the things that happen during their working hours, they all join in one piece of advice that would mean less work for them and more smiles for the taxpayers:

"Before sending in your return," says, "be sure your name and address are printed plainly, and be sure to attach all withholding statements from each employer."

PLACE OF ABODE? NO, SHE DOESN'T BODE THEAH! SHE JUST LIVES THEAH!

Bolivia Shows The Folly Of Wasteful Foreign Aid

Views On The News:

ALL WHO BELIEVE in hemispheric unity must be deeply distressed over the recent anti-American riots in Bolivia.

When mobs burn the U.S. flag, wreck Cochabamba's U.S.I.S. library, stone the Point Four office in La Paz and march upon our embassy, it is fairly obvious that our efforts to promote friendship have failed.

KNIGHT

The excuse for the demonstrations was a pettish paragraph in Time magazine which the proud Bolivians regarded as an insult to their country.

But the underlying reasons for Bolivia's sensitivity can be found in the failures of its own economic program.

* * *

Tin Barons, Poor Folk

BOLIVIA was once a feudal land dominated by the tin barons. Its people were either very rich, or very poor.

In 1952, a revolution ousted the old order and Bolivia's new leaders launched a series of reforms including nationalization of the tin mines.

Bolivia's welfare state was supposed to give the people higher pay, more job security, grants of land and in general, a better standard of living.

Unfortunately, things didn't turn out that way. Tin production dropped, agricultural workers quit when their simple needs were satisfied, inflation got out of hand and welfare costs mounted out of all proportion to the country's resources.

In such a climate of failure, leftist Bolivian leaders visited their resentment upon the United States.

In a land that is 68 per cent illiterate, it was fairly easy to incite the people against the "Yankee octopus" and the "imperialists."

* * *

You Can't Buy Friends

In the last six years, Bolivia has accepted $129 million in U.S. aid. This amounts to $43 a Bolivian, the highest per capita figure of any nation receiving our assistance.

Currently, the U.S. plans to make up a 30 per cent deficit in Bolivia's budget, so that it may be brought into balance.

How long must we cling to the fanciful notion that our subsidies bring friendship?

How long must our citizens be taxed to pay for economic mismanagement throughout much of the world?

How long do we bear the insults to our flag, the pillaging of our buildings, the reviling of our public officials?

It seems to me that even the most consecrated advocates of foreign aid would begin to question the wisdom of a program which has brought us not friendship, but enmity in many parts of the world.

We are told that foreign aid is essential to combat Communism in the underdeveloped countries.

But when we give it, we are accused of having imperialistic designs.

* * *

Let's Find The Reasons

IT IS to be hoped that one day the United States will stop subsidizing nations now so dependent upon us that they do little or nothing to solve their own economic difficulties.

The examples of waste in our foreign aid program, as revealed by a congressional committee, are shocking and disgraceful.

Yet we slice away important components of our defense establishment in a time of great national peril.

President Eisenhower makes a big ado about balancing the budget. But since 1953, non-defense spending has jumped $9.2 billion while military expenditures have dropped some $4.3 billion.

The money we waste in subsidizing "social reform" abroad might better be used to help maintain the land, sea and air forces originally recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

We are not "stopping" Communism.

We are not "winning" friends.

We could, for a change, reexamine the reasons for our failures.

And possibly decide that a company of marines is more important to our survival than providing meat, rice and other provisions to Bolivian workers at less than cost.

Why Pick On Canada?

criticism in Canada for restricting imports of oil.

Canadians particularly resent being used by the U.S. as the "storehouse of materials" in time of need, only to be discriminated against when metals and oil are plentiful.

Canada seeks a continental approach to oil marketing . . . warns that mandatory quotas on oil imports "might touch off a wave of Canadian nationalism."

We agree with The Wall Street Journal which says the United States "has chosen a strange time indeed to start nailing up protectionist barricades."

Our exporters are having troubles enough without inviting retaliatory measures from our loyal and friendly neighbor to the North.

They Asked For It

BIG BUSINESS, like big labor, has always favored abundant foreign aid.

Development of other nations, both have said, would provide tremendous markets for our manufactured products.

This was an enlightened, convenient theory . . . for a time, that is.

But now, as U.S. exports continue to drop, the cry is for protection.

Electronic manufacturers plead, on the ground of national security, that foreign competitors should not be permitted to underbid them on U.S. contracts.

Reuther thinks European wages should be brought more nearly in line with UAW rates here. So far no one has figured out how this can be accomplished in the foreseeable future.

At the rate we are losing business to Europe and Japan, the export market for heavy products may become virtually nonexistent.

* * *

By using tariffs, taxes, and quotas, European, Latin American and Far East countries force the buyer of an American car to pay a handsome premium over the prices asked for European automobiles.

Why should other countries import our products when they can buy the same goods and products more cheaply at home?

This means fewer U.S. jobs, constantly dropping exports and a drain upon our gold reserves.

So we have quite a problem, especially for the U.S. manufacturers whose tax dollars helped to get their foreign competitors reestablished in business.

To aggravate the problem, the American market for foreign cars and other products is constantly growing.

Footnotes

MARQUIS CHILDS speaks of Defense Secretary Neil McElroy's "rather sad performance on Meet the Press." . . . Which makes us wonder what a government official in McElroy's sensitive position could hope to gain from such an appearance.

To those who grow weary of visits to Moscow, United Nations debates and talk of meetings at the summit, we give you Winston Churchill who once said:

"Jaw, jaw is better than war, war."

Memories Of Acheson Lasting

Editor The Herald: I see our old pal, Dean Acheson, has come out of his burrow and started on an intellectual lecture about what's wrong with the administration. Granted there is plenty wrong, but a great deal of it was a gift handed to President Eisenhower by Mr. Acheson and his little clique.

Acheson

He has evidently forgotten that he was one of the high men on the totem pole when many policies were formed and put into operation that gave Mr. Khrushchev a running start. If he knows how to do the job, why didn't he stop some of the fiascos at Potsdam and Yalta?

Does he think our President should rehire Alger Hiss and his intellectual ability? Evidently he does since he defended Hiss so firmly at the time he sold us out to the Reds.

I don't think Mr. Acheson is going to carry much weight. Too many of us have very long memories and I think a lot of Democrats would do well to talk softly and criticize less. The record still stands for all to read, and some of it isn't very pretty.

Editor The Herald: Dean Acheson, who held the chisel with which Harry Truman hewed out our foreign policy, now gives President Eisenhower the benefit of his advice.

Now that he is no longer responsible for the "calculated risk" in our foreign policy and military posture, he seems to be scared.

This is the same Acheson who brought the United States disarmed and unready to Korea. He spoke of the great cost to us for President Eisenhower's "education." Let us hope the American people will not have to pay for any more education of Mr. Acheson.

Now Is The Time To Aid Oldsters

Editor The Herald: Your series of articles on how aging people can make the best of their latter years is a wonderful public service. So often, the pamphlets published by government agencies remain unknown to thousands of people who could be helped by them.

All of us who are still quite a long ways from this particular problem should nevertheless be vitally concerned by it, for indigent old people are going to be more and more of a burden on society as time passes.

They certainly don't want to be a burden and will do their share to avoid it. It's up to the younger citizens to help keep this from becoming a major problem. Now is the time to begin.

March 10, 1959

Dear Mr. Knight:

I read your letter of the 6th with great interest and appreciate the fact that my remarks at Columbia, Missouri, may have made an impression in usually sacrosanct quarters.

Although my schedule is too heavy to permit my doing so, I would like to come to Miami at this particular time of year. I would like to try my hand with those black pencils, but I am sure that I would have no more success at it than some newspaper editors and publishers had in their efforts to run the Presidency while I was in the White House.

Perhaps sometime you can instruct me well enough to prevent my making too many mistakes, and then I'll be very happy and pleased to accept your cordial invitation.

Sincerely yours,

Merry-Go-Round

Balancing Budget Foremost With Ike

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor Jim Mitchell fought a lone battle behind White House doors the other day to extend temporary benefits for the jobless. He also pleaded for a complete overhaul of unemployment compensation standards.

He warned GOP congressional leaders, meeting with President Eisenhower and his advisers, that the Republicans will lose the 1960 election if they don't do something to help the four million workers still out of jobs.

Mitchell

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield poohpoohed the unemployment problem, contending that the 300,000 workers whose pay benefits would be affected weren't enough to bother about. He also let fly some sizzling words about "union dictation" and "the wage push."

President Eisenhower went along with the majority, but promised not to veto a three-month stretch-out if it wouldn't upset next year's balanced budget. His advisers estimated that three months more of emergency unemployment benefits would cost about $49 million.

Ike repeated his unrelenting determination to balance the federal budget even if jobless workers won't be able to balance their own family budgets. Result: The extra benefits definitely will be cut off after June 30.

* * *

FOR REPUBLICANS to suppress a greeting from President Eisenhower to a political dinner is akin to sacrilege. Yet that is exactly what happened to telegrams not only from the President but from Vice President Nixon to the Lincoln Day dinner in New York.

Attorney General Bill Rogers, Nixon's intimate friend, was the guest speaker. Mrs. Preston Davie, blue-blood friend of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, received the Lincoln Day award. In the middle was Bernard Newman, whom Mrs. Davie energetically tried to elect as chairman of the New York County Republican committee.

Newman presided. Before taking his position at the head table, he stuffed in his pocket the telegrams to Mrs. Davie from Ike and Nixon. Not in his pocket was another telegram from Rockefeller who, belabored by his Albany tax fight, had been late getting his wire off. It arrived in time, but somehow was mislaid.

Presiding for the first time at a big banquet, Newman searched for the Rockefeller message. He couldn't find it. He looked at Nixon's friend, Rogers, than at Rockefeller's friend, Mrs. Davie. Newman knew that the rivalry between Nixon and Rockefeller over the 1960 presidential nomination was white-hot in New York. He fumbled further.

Blinking and perspiring, Newman finally blurted out to the audience: "We have some telegrams, but we haven't time to read them."

* * *

EMPLOYES at the Atomic Energy Commission are so secretive that they almost forced Sen. Ernest Gruening, Alaska Democrat, to clear the spelling of "plowshare" through security the other day.

"Operation Plowshare" is the name given to the program that is supposed to demonstrate the peaceful use of nuclear explosions. Gruening wasn't sure, however, whether the word was spelled "plowshare" or "ploughshare." He asked a secretary to call the Atomic Energy Commission to find out.

She reached an information operator who was unwilling to supply the information and transferred the call to another extension. The second lady who answered was also timid about giving the correct spelling and suggested the call should be switched to the Plowshare section.

Gruening's secretary pleaded that all she wanted to know was whether or not "plowshare" was spelled with a "w."

The lady in the Plowshare section also refused to spell the word unless she was told who was calling and why the information was wanted. Informed that Senator Gruening wished to use the word in a letter, she was about to refer the call to Col. John Hood Jr., a security expert. However, she finally relented and admitted that "plowshare" is spelled with a "w."

Praying In Quiet Can Work Wonders

By Norman Vincent Peale

RECENTLY I had a speaking engagement in Savannah. It gave me some time to spend with one of the most remarkable human beings I have ever met, Harry Moore.

Peale

He is pastor of a Methodist Church there. He comes from a family that knows about building up churches — his father is another great pastor, the Methodist Bishop of Atlanta, Arthur J. Moore.

"Norman," he asked me, "have you seen any good shows up in New York lately?"

"No," I said, "I'm too busy."

* * *

HE SHOOK his head in mild reproof. "I don't know what's the matter with you. Why, I'm coming up to New York just to see some shows!"

I've known Harry Moore for a long time. I knew him when in his late 30s, he came to New York and heard the tragic news that he would never see again.

After the specialist told him, he went back to his hotel. The overwhelming thoughts came to him about all the things he would never see again — the faces of his wife and children, sunsets and sunrises, mountains and valleys. At that time he still had enough sight left to see from his hotel window down to the street far below. In 60 seconds he could be through with all of it. He opened the window and grasped the ledge. Then he sank to his knees and asked the Lord to help him.

Just then his father entered the room, came over and put his arm around him. That dangerous moment passed . . . And, as Harry voiced it later, "In my Dad's supporting love I learned the true meaning of fatherhood."

* * *

THE NEXT Sunday he came to my church. He came early, before anyone else was there. He sank into the seat, put his head forward on one of the pews, and yielded himself to the spiritual quietness of that empty house of God. "I never knew before what it was to pray in such depth," he told me later.

"But all of a sudden in the holy silence I felt myself get victory." It didn't come all at once, but Harry Moore touched the hand of God and received power. Today he is a great and happy soul and a tremendously effective church leader.

Every troubled soul would do well to heed that Biblical invitation, "Come away by yourselves to a lonely (quiet) place, and rest a while." Many churches and synagogues are open day and night for meditation and prayer. Try the practice of quietness with a spiritual content and see what it can do for you."

Is Nothing Sacred Anymore?

Togetherness Gets Its Comeuppance At Long Last

From Chicago Daily Tribune

SOME LITTLE time ago a snide remark appeared on a printed page to the following effect: "At 10:30 one morning last week, the staff of McCall's — the Magazine of Togetherness—began to come apart."

No fewer than 16 editors and executives handed in their resignations, until about the only surviving boy on the burning deck was Arthur B. Langlie, president, who had been governor of Washington and an original Eisenhower man. It seems his former friends had decided that they had been together with him long enough.

The breakup of this cozy experiment in group living had been preceded by some surly muttering outside McCall's about the doctrine itself. Tomore things together, and it seemed that McCall's was not going to rest content until it had everybody doing everything together, not even excepting Nikita Khrushchev.

* * *

"TOGETHERNESS" appears to have been a free word lying around and begging to be used. It is in all the standard dictionaries. But, like the ugly duckling, everyone passed it by in a sniffy way until McCall's came along and, with a glad cry, pounced.

Thereafter McCall's adopted a proprietary attitude, so much so that when Macy's, the New York department store, tried to muscle in and develop some Togetherness for its own benefit, McCall's blew an angry whistle. Macy's then meekly printed an admission that "Togetherness is a word practical-

Harlan Hale and reported in the magazine Horizon last November. Mr. Hale quickly detected the essential flaw in Togetherness. He pointed out that the corollary to more and more people doing the same thing was that fewer and fewer were doing things separately and individually. This he considered bad, and we think that the case he makes is irrefutable.

* * *

THE DOCTRINE of Togetherness, repelling enough in its original form, was carried to stages of lunatic excess. In the form developed in the advertising profession, which became known as "brainstorming," a lot of advertising men with no ideas individually were supposed to accomplish collective strokes of genius by tossing out what passed among them for thought by opening their sive" school, addicted to theories of group dynamics, sought to encourage a lack of inhibition in the youth by abandoning their responsibilities as teacher and confining themselves to the role of "resource person" who "sparks sharing," as one of the trade journals put it in terms as loathsome as Togetherness itself.

"Clicking With the Crowd," "How to be Liked," and "How to Get Closer to Dad" bobbed up in the curriculum. Dad probably just shrank a little farther away.

"And in religion," reported Mr. Hale, "the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale preaches to millions that so long as we all think positive thoughts about each other and suspend criticism, all will be well. A few unreconstructed individual worshippers have, however, taken the simple, or simple minded, belief that the way to happiness lay in mother and daughter wearing matching nightshirts. But, like a cancer, the notion spread until it was all but out of control.

Fortunately, breaking up of light housekeeping in the McCall's love nest has dealt a serious check to the movement, and there is now some hope that Togetherness will ultimately find expression only in the communes of Red China or in the forced labor camps of Siberia. Which, we hasten to add, is all right with us.

Well, another beautiful idea of the creative public relations mind has gone blooey. Nothing seems to be sacred anymore. But as President Griswold of Yale has consolingly remarked: Shakespeare did some of his best work without the aid of a

Many People in Jail Denied Hearing?

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Political Writer

Robert L. Koeppel, Dade County's public defender, thinks so and is hoping the Florida Legislature will do something about it.

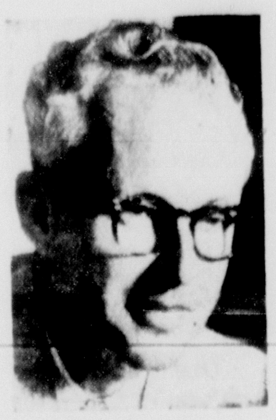
Koeppel advocates a Florida law, patterned after one in New York, which would require that any person arrested be given at least a preliminary hearing before a magistrate within 24 hours of his incarceration.

He reports that countless persons are being held for several days — and sometimes weeks — in municipal jails before going before a judge. He also contends that any arrested person, regardless of his financial status —whether he is rich or poor—is entitled to legal counsel as soon as he is booked at the police station.

The public defender says that too many persons brought into court seem to come in already having confessed to the crime charged. He estimates the ratio at about 90 per cent in Dade.

This does not necessarily mean they have been subjected to undue pressures while in jail — but it does indicate, according to many attorneys, the imprisoned man may have figured it was easier to "confess" to a minor crime and get out of the crowded municipal jail than to stay there indefinitely without a hearing.

Koeppel recalled one case of a man missing for almost a month. His family reported his disappearance. Police put out circulars and conducted a search for him. He was finally discovered — in a nearby municipal jail where he had been all the time.



McDERMOTT

A report making the rounds is that Miami Circuit Judge George E. Holt will resign in July to enter private law practice. "Not so," says the judge, who survived legislative impeachment proceedings two years ago.

He told this corner his future plans are either to run for governor or seek reelection — "I'll do one of the other."

Political observers figure he has about as much chance of winning one race as the other.

Absentee Vote Curbs Asked

Florida Politics

BILLS to abolish capital punishment in Florida and to tighten the absentee voting laws are being prepared for legislative consideration by Rep. Ralph E. Cunningham Jr. of Marathon.

Gov. Collins is on record favoring abolition of capital punishment.

Cunningham is basically opposed to any form of absentee balloting. He feels it opens the way to "controlled voting." The freshman legislator recalls a recent Monroe County election in which some 300 Negro laborers obtained absentee ballots several days in advance on the grounds they would be "out of the county" on election day.

Cunningham said his bill, despite his personal feelings, will make possible absentee balloting by persons who have a legitimate reason for being away because of business. "But we need to tighten the abuses," he declared. A voter taking vacation should not be entitled to an absentee ballot, Cunningham believes.

The outlook? Perhaps some minor changes in the existing law but nothing so radical as preventing vacationing residents from voting.

Democratic leaders take a dim view of an alleged party newspaper . . . "The Florida Democrat" . . . which has been soliciting advertising from Homestead to West Palm Beach.

State Committeeman Robert Morgan of Miami, Dade Democratic Chairman Johnson Davis, State Chairman James Milligan of Orlando and others point out the "newspaper" has neither the party blessing nor sanction. It was disowned during the South Florida Democratic meeting at West Hollywood last weekend.

Harness Races Pushed

A HOT SIDE ISSUE in the upcoming legislative session will revolve around the bid by Pompano Beach interests for pari-mutuel harness racing. Jack Musselman, former member of the House who is representing the track, reports the proposed legislation will carry a referendum clause. Horse and dog track lobbies are opposing the bill and Gov. Collins has taken a strong stand against any extension of gambling in Florida.

Sponsors figure they can get sufficient backing to pass it — but overriding the governor's veto looks like too big an obstacle. They hope Collins will take no action, leaving it to a vote of the Broward residents.

Seagulls Vie With Ducks

THE SEAGULL, say some experts, is the most graceful flying bird. I always thought a buzzard circling high yonder, seemingly with no effort, was a fair to middlin' operator. And when I was a kid out West I used to see an eagle occasionally — a never to be-forgotten experience.

BELL

After a winter of close study I'm about ready to go along with the seagull folks. Perhaps you've noticed them all winter: thousands of birds flying east over the city. At least they come over our area, which is 50 blocks north. Evidently they go into the Everglades during the day, then come back to shoreline spots for the night.

We've been feeding ducks on the canal for years, in winter. But not until this winter have the gulls joined the fun. The ducks are small, brown or brown and white. Occasionally a big long-neck fellow will join the fray.

A slice or two of bread whirled onto the water will bring three ducks that seem to live at our house. Then the others, seeing them eating, will come flying furiously, open their web feet and skid to a halt on their tails, and swim rapidly seeking bits of bread.

The gulls, always flying over just before sundown, see the ducks feeding, wheel and come gliding down to look things over. A gull will come flying swiftly about treetop high casing the joint. Then he'll bank 90 degrees and come back about 15 feet over the ducks.

When he sees a chance to grab a bite he dives with astonishing speed. Sometimes, with ducks all around the food, he'll miss!

If he's really hungry he'll settle on the water, his wings straight up, and go into open competition. I've seen gulls scoop an entire slice of bread and take off, followed by his hungry fellows. He always drops most of it, with the others swooping down for the crumbs. I've seen a gull, flying at full speed, spot food directly below, put on the breaks and seemingly stand still — until he dives for the food.

* * *

Feed on Move

GULLS basically are feeders-on-the-move. I've seen gulls by the hundred on the lawns of Roy Hawkins and Bob Anderson, who feed them too. They'll sit, or walk around with folded wings. But a gull on the water keeps his wings up ready to move, if anything alive is anywhere near.

Taffy, our cocker, goes nearly crazy when "we" feed the birds. She never has dived in, but makes a terrific show of authority on the canal wall. She insists on a slice of bread in her mouth, I suppose to prove to the birds that she rates, too.

The ducks and gulls never fight. During the feeding they're hampered by the fish (probably mullet), which are not bashful. Occasionally a tall white heron stands on the opposite bank. He never goes for the bread. He waits for an amberjack or other big fish to dart into a school of baby mullet. The commotion is terrific then, with fish leaping every whichaway to escape extinction. That's the heron's chance for dinner, and he's lightning fast. We had a half-grown blue heron a few days ago. Nothing alive is more graceful.

The ducks will be moving north soon, and I suppose the gulls will get away from the summer heat. But a few of the redbirds are back, and we've a few bluejays. And the mocking birds start about 4:30 a.m.

Within three weeks we'll have hundreds of birds, perhaps even a mother quail with her tiny babies hiding in the grass while she attracts our

ALTHOUGH he's too young to be on the school's swimming team, 13-year-old Steve Florence works out regularly with the Miami Beach High School team. Reason? Steve has been swimming since he was 7 and holds three national records in the 12 and under age group: 100-yard freestyle, 50-yard freestyle and 50-meter backstroke. Constitutional Revision?

Plan to 'Streamline' Government Wouldn't

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—The new package of constitutional changes for presentation to the Legislature convening next month has not been unwrapped. Reportedly it will include all of the so-called non-controversial features of the proposed charter thrown off the ballot last year by the State Supreme Court.

BOYLES

One of the revived proposals would provide that the entire state Cabinet sit as members on all major administrative boards.

This would mean, for example, that Superintendent of Schools Thomas D. Bailey and State Treasurer J. Edwin Larson would have to serve on the Pardon Board now limited to five members.

Bailey, for one, has expressed his opposition. He doesn't feel that the head of the Education Department should have to act as a member of the Pardon Board.

* * *

JOHNSON

IF CONSTITUTIONAL revision is intended to streamline governmental procedures it would appear that adding more constitutional responsibilities to be shouldered by each Cabinet officer is not going to do the job.

Without arguing the old issue as to whether the executive power of the cabinet should be narrowed and more authority bestowed solely on the governor, a justifiable argument can be made for limiting the number of members on various boards.

Smaller major boards operating within the executive branch would put direct responsibility for important decisions on fewer men. At the same time it would enable all Cabinet officials to find more time for directing the operations of their individual departments.

'Best Informed'

SENATE President-Designate Dewey M. Johnson believes the 1959 Legislature can do its work within the 60-day regular session and sees as "the best informed Legislature in the state's history."

Johnson said he believes that whatever is proposed to without a lot of oratory on the floor.

The senator may be right. But a lot of those "orators" from the 1957 session are back and there are some freshmen eager to fire a few verbal salvos for benefit of their constituents.

But how many of those speeches would be made if the speakers realized their words would not be recorded for posterity?

World Population 'Exploding'

By RALPH SEGMAN
Science Service Staff Writer

• Population to Double by 2000 A.D.
• Earth Can't Support Unlimited Mass
• Medical Progress Cuts Death Rate

The danger lies in the so-called "population bomb." If the present explosive rate of population growth continues, the world will be overrun by multitudes of people kept healthy and alive by medical science. But it would be impossible for the most fertile earth to support such a human mass. Eventually, billions would die of starvation, succumb to disease because of lowered resistance, and kill one another off in wars.

Part of the blame for this enormous threat can be put on man's medical progress which, in the past century, has been no less than phenomenal. He has discovered cures and immunizations for most death-dealing diseases. He has developed ingenous surgical methods for bringing new life to the hopeless and the debilitated.

He has brought the science of nutrition, with its mineral and vitamin supplements, to a level where good health is more of a normal occurrence than a goal to strive for.

All this has led to longer, healthier life and a far better material world than ever before. And for the next few decades life promises to improve even more.

* * *

According to the United Nations Demographic (statistical study of populations) Yearbook for 1957, the world's annual average birth rate during the five previous years was 34 per 1,000 population. The death rate was 18. These are the seemingly innocuous figures that spell out the monstrous dilemma in which the human race finds itself.

Until 1650, world population grew slowly and erratically, held in check by epidemics, famines, droughts, wars and other disasters, until it reached about 500,000,000. In the ensuing three centuries it has more than quintupled to more than 2,800,000,000, and shows no definite signs of slowing down.

The U.N. report indicates that by the year 2000 — only 41 years from now — the face of the earth will be crowded with 6,250,000,000 human beings. The same report says there were 2,790,000,000 of us in mid-1957.

Indeed, we may be on a suicidal course like lemmings which, some scientists theorize, reproduce so avidly that periodically they exhaust their food supply and leap to their deaths at sea in quest of new "pastures."

Sir Charles Darwin, grandson of the famed biologist and a scientist in his own right, says there seems little possibility of slowing down the "frightening" rate at which world population is increasing. Future generations, says Darwin, will most likely return to the "hard life" because sheer weight of numbers will make it difficult to "retain something of the present good life."

As for the possibility of decimation by war, Darwin says, "even if it killed half of mankind . . . an atomic war would only set things back for 50 years."

* * *

HOW is the coming human mass to be fed, let alone clothed? The Population Reference Bureau, a private research organization in Washington, D.C., estimates that in the next ten years about 50,000,000 additional acres of farmland will be needed — an area as large as Alaska, Colorado and Arizona.

The problem is approached from two directions.

One is to provide the material demands through scientific advance. For example, in the U.S. one-third fewer farm people produced 55 per cent more farm products in 1958 than in 1938. A hybrid corn, developed by former Vice President Henry A. Wallace iin the late 1930's, added 20 per cent of 500,000,000 bushels to America's corn harvest without additional land or labor.

Future achievements of science and technology will constitute a partial solution to the problem, but there is a limit (at the moment unknown) to the amount of bread they can squeeze out of the earth.

Responsibility for the specter of overpopulation is primarily that of man's growing control over nature and the declining death rate, coupled with his lack of control over his own nature and the steady birth rate.

* * *

One of the most crowded countries in Asia, Japan has recorded what is believed to be the most spectacular birth rate deline in modern history: from 34.3 in 1947 to 18.5 in 1956. It has achieved this by widespread use of contraceptives and legalization of abortion and sterilization, coupled with a natural decrease in birth rate.

The position of the Roman Catholic Church in the matter is summarized in a book "Overpopulation" published by The Catholic University of America Press. The summary admits that if human expansion continues indefinitely, the race eventually will become too large for its earthly habitat.

But the summary continues, it cannot be predicted accurately how population will develop in the future, so it is irrational to take population restriction measures in order to avoid a catastrophe in the unforeseeable future which is only a matter of conjecture.

Since it appears agreed that the earth is limited in the number of people it can support, there is now some recognition of the problem.

The question is, what will mankind do about it — and when?

These Sharks Have To Ring for Supper

BY MARY EDWARDS BRADEN
Special To The Herald

PLACIDA, Fla.—The Cape Haze Marine Laboratory here has two unusual pets: A pair of adult lemon sharks which ring a bell for their food.

They are in no way to be confused with the porpoises, who have been trained at Marineland, Miami's Seaquarium and other tourist attractions to jump through a hoop for their food.

There never had been any experimental study of learning behavior until Dr. Eugenie Clark, director of the Cape Haze Marine Laboratory, commenced experimenting with them four years ago.

DR. CLARK

He frequently presented a dog with the ticking of a metronome before giving him meat. Eventually the dog's saliva began to flow after the sound of the metronome alone, thereby establishing a conditioned reflex.

* * *

THE CAPE HAZE Marine Laboratory is one of the few in the world with the facilities for care and experiments on live sharks. It is on the Gulf of Mexico near the entrance to Charlotte Harbor, west of Punta Gorda.

These sharks, each about nine feet long, were caught last May near Placida, and carefully brought ashore in an open-stern boat, specially constructed by Capt. Oley Farver, who catches and handles the sharks at the lab.

The laboratory's large stockaded fish pen has been their home ever since. Their healthy condition and good adjustment to captivity has made them fine experimental animals.

During a six-week training period the sharks were fed daily off an underwater target (lowered into the pen only at feeding time). The target was so rigged that when a shark took the food it had to press its nose against the target closing a circuit which rang an underwater bell.

After this training period, an empty target was presented to the sharks. Each time a shark pressed its nose against the target, ringing the bell, a piece of "reward" fish on a weak string was dropped into the water.

* * *

IN A FEW DAYS the sharks caught on to the new setup and started regularly pressing the target and ringing the bell for their food, as often as 41 times during the 20-minute test period.

The food is left in the water only ten seconds. The place where the food is dropped is gradually being moved farther and farther from the target, until the food is now being dropped eight feet to one side of the target on the shark's left, as it rings the bell.

When food was dropped closer the shark could circle either to its right or left and still reach the food before it was pulled out. But now a circle to the shark's right often takes a full ten seconds and the shark just misses the food, or frequently the other shark reaches the food first.

The first real evidence of the sharks associating food with the bell, rather than just the target, comes from attempts to "steal" the food for which the other shark has rung. Stealing sometimes leads to a head-on collision when one shark rings the bell and the other shark swerves from its course, both making a dash for the food and reaching it at the same time.

* * *

ALTHOUGH Dr. Clark designed the bell-ringing tests primarily to study the learning behavior of the shark, other information on shark behavior and individual differences is also being gathered. Data show, for example, personality differences in the sharks, a strong tendency for the male to feed first and the sharks to "play" with the target, ringing the bell without taking food, when they are not hungry.

Dr. Clark is the author of a popular book, "Lady With a Spear."

The Cape Haze Marine Laboratory was established in January, 1955, by William H. and Alfred G. Vanderbilt and was incorporated as a non-profit organization in June, 1955. Its purpose is to encourage and develop the study of marine biological sciences and related

By CULLEN MOORE

Dear Mrs. Moore:

The man I love is a wonderful, intelligent person. He is 24 years old, born in the sign of Moon Children. He wants to finish a master's degree. He has a scholarship and his parents can't do anything for him financially.

My family likes him very much, but Mother doesn't want us to get married yet because I would have to be the breadwinner. This would only be until he gets started. I have a good job, and we can live near the university. We wouldn't have luxuries but we would have each other.

My boy friend says he will abide by my decision. There would be about four years before he could hope to make money in his profession. I'm 22 and want to get married right away.

Why shouldn't a girl help her husband?

MODERN CAPRICORN

DEAR MODERN CAPRICORN:

There is no sensible reason why a woman should not subsidize her man's education. But emotions and primitive instincts are not always sensible. Modern living is gradually paving the way for genuine partnership in marriage. But ancient human attitudes still create hurdles.

Psychological tendencies of the average male can be confusing. He does not always want that he seems to want. Very few men remain romantic about a woman who appears too capable. When she begins to have that "look what I've done for you" expression, his love-light swiftly dies.

A husband who thinks of his wife as a sturdy leaning post is always easier bait for another woman. This is the danger in modern marriage where a wife helps her mate through the early years.

If you decide to take the risk of helping your man through his university years, don't forget for a moment your handicaps. Work and independence are marvelous tonics and may make you more interesting, stimulating.

But you must never give way to belittling remarks, reproach, or martydom. Bear in mind that once a man feels obligated the quality of his affection changes. Love rarely survives when it is bound by debt or duty.

Mating Tip Of the Week

LEO mates should win out in domestic tiffs. The balance of power is on their side. LIBRA widows and divorcees likely to have unusual meeting with old friends. AQUARIUS wives will be saved from making impulsive mistake. SAGITTARIUS young people are slated for adventures that lead to true love. Encounters now are fated to last.

* * *

Virgo Wife:

A man who has had eleven girl friends after marriage is obviously a grown up baby. You are right in not giving him a divorce. He doesn't love anyone but himself. However, his affection for you is very real. You are taking the place of "mama" in his life. Content yourself with the fact that this is the strongest type of feeling he will ever have for anyone. Even if it is not what you consider love, it is an enduring bond. Within a few years he will settle down and stop chasing skirts. Meanwhile see that he fulfills his obligations to his home and family.

* * *

Lonesome Moon Child:

Your husband loves you dearly. Your own fears have seperated you. If you could only leave the past alone and not question him constantly about matters over which he has no control, you would be close again. Jealousy is a poison that causes your mouth to utter words unlike your real feelings. It is a dangerous and destructive emotion. Try to erase such thoughts from your mind.

* * *

Capricorn Divorcee:

Yes, the stars reveal that if you conquer your tendency to drink, love and happiness can return. All humans want to "escape" when miserable and lonely feelings assail the mind. But drinking is not an escape. It's a false door through which a person walks into a darker prison. Try switching to some other form of anesthetic such as hard work or absorbing activity. When the mind is concentrated and busy, it can't suffer so acutely. From this well known fact occupational therapy was developed for mental patients.

Flagami Bicyclists Pass in Review in Teams of Two
. . . all 11 or 12 years old, boys drill at 7:30 each morning

Their Cry: To Your Bikes, Men!

By JOY WINANS
Herald Writer

Twenty-six boys with white helmets and bandoliers saluted the flag as the strains of the Star-Spangled Banner rang out. Beside them stood two figures, one in the uniform of the school patrolman, the other in white sport clothes.

Passersby stopped to watch, and unknown to the boys, so did the office staff of Flagami Elementary School at 1100 SW 76th Ave.

Next came a figure eight around the young physical education teacher, Ward O'Connell, followed by more complicated maneuvers until the order came to "fall out and dismiss." The boys, all 11 or 12 years old, then went quietly into school.

It wasn't a special occasion. "We watch it every morning," said Mrs. Walter Motes of 921 SW 76th Ave.

"Wouldn't miss it for worlds," declared another spectator, Mrs. Joseph Shzech. "Even the cars stop."

The two sponsors of the unusual bicycle patrol, Abrams and O'Connell, said the idea "just grew."

"Bill and I got together, the PTA gave us the helmets," said 26-year-old O'Connell. The AAA gave us instruction booklets and belts, and here we are."

The boys are all A and B students, and it's considered a great honor to be in the patrol, we learned. They arrive at 7:30 every morning for drill, then take over patrol duties.

"The flag ceremony was their own idea," revealed Mrs. Dorothy Brown, school secretary. "We hide behind the curtains and watch them every day."

"Its all volunteer, you know," boasted Abrams, a grandfather himself. "These boys are the best bunch I've ever had."

The Patrol elects officers twice a year. At present it is commanded by Billy McCoy, as Captain, assisted by Lieutenants Tommy Grossjung, Larry Leiby, and Sergeant Larry Zacke. Good citizenship is taught, along with proper police methods.

Who'll Be Our Next President?

Dark-Horse Seaton's Really Been Around

This is the first of a series of get-acquainted stories about Presidential possibilities. The stories will appear from time to time, alternating Republican and Democratic. Today, James Haswell of our Washington Bureau introduces you to a dark-horse Republican from Nebraska, Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton.

By JAMES M. HASWELL
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — If Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton of Nebraska becomes a Presidential dark horse in 1960, he'll be a star-spangled dark horse.

Seaton led last year's drive to pin Alaska's star on the American flag. And this year he's trying to make Hawaii the 50th State of the Union.

"I think we have every chance," he says.

Seaton started out as Gov. Alf M. Landon's presidential campaign secretary back in 1936. Four years later as Young Republican Chairman of Nebraska, he and Young Republican Chairman Harold M. Stassen of Minnesota stumped for Wendell Wilkie.

In 1948 Seaton ran Stassen's presidential primary campaigns, and in 1952 he "started out with Ike when he got back here from Europe and went with him to Abilene, Kan., for his first appearance, and stayed with him all the way." In 1956, again, Seaton helped run the Eisenhower campaign, and travelled 50,000 miles making speeches.

* * *

Quotes Lincoln

LANDON, Wilkie, Stassen, Eisenhower — they tell a story. Seaton is a Midwestern plains type of Republican, a small town newspaper publisher who likes to quote the Abraham Lincoln saying that "the Republican party is for the man and the dollar, and in the case of conflict it puts the man first every time." His father was a Bull Moose Republican and follower of Teddy Roosevelt.

Politicians recognize that Seaton has been Ike's No. 1 trouble-shooter. He's a quiet, friendly man, endowed with the great patience, the physical endurance, and the tremendous grasp of detail it takes to manage big government.

Pros in both parties credit Seaton with "handling" three of Ike's worst crises — the Nixon expense fund crisis in the '52 campaign, the Pentagon-McCarthy crisis in '55, and the Interior department mess resulting from former Secretary Douglas McKay's "giveaway" policies.

Seaton was born in Washington in 1909 when his father was secretary to the late Sen. Joseph L. Bristow, R., Kan. He grew up in Manhattan, Kan. With his younger brother, Richard, he publishes seven daily and two weekly newspapers, a farm magazine, and operates four radio stations. The properties are in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Wyoming, and Colorado.

Met Ike in '52

THERE ARE four children, all adopted, and thereby hangs a story. While Seaton was Senator in 1952, he and Mrs. Seaton went to Europe to adopt Monica, now 11, a French war orphan, and Alfred, now 10, a German boy. They stopped in Paris, where Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, now Red Cross head, gave a party to which Ike and Mamie came.

The Eisenhowers and the Seatons "hit it off pretty well." Ike had a bad cold, and took to his bed the next day. But he insisted the Seatons come over and "we spent all the afternoon and two-thirds of the night talking."

The Seatons got back to Washington in August with the two children, neither one of whom spoke English. Seaton could understand them, but Mrs. Seaton couldn't. "I got word from the General he'd like to have me go to Abilene with him, and it would only take three days," Seaton recalls, ruefully.

"So I left Mrs. Seaton with the two children, and when she conversed with them, she'd have to watch their lips and try to guess what they wanted, and look very quickly in a translating dictionary.

"This is a subject we do not ordinarily discuss at home any more. I was only to be gone three days. I never got back to Washington until the 1952 campaign ended in November."

WHY the fast friendship with Ike? "I don't know, but maybe it is because he knows that if I don't agree with some course of action that I'll speak up, and he'll get the bad news along with the good," Seaton says.

When Seaton's Senate term (1951-52) to which he had been appointed, came to an end, he served in the Pentagon (1953-55) as an Assistant Secretary of Defense. Then he moved to the White House (1955-56) as Presidential aide, and to the Interior Department as Secretary in 1956. He's the only man in Washington with such varied experience.

Which job did he like best? The answer reveals his thinking.

"The jobs are all different, and they all have a certain amount of challenge in them, and frustrations, and eternal hopes that tomorrow will be a better day," he says. "I think normally I would prefer to be in the White House and have a day-to-day contact with the President than have any other job in Government."

Realistic View

SEATON takes a humorous and realistic view of 1960 politics. Nixon is out in front, and he accepts that. Seaton and Attorney General William P. Rogers, with the Vice-President and GOP Chairman Meade Alcorn, compose an informal group which meets frequently to discuss Administration problems and policies.

But things can change, and rapidly, too. "Tell me who'll be alive in 1960?" he asks. In this day when airplanes get dumped into rivers and run off the ends of airports, life is a hazard. "Just three lives could make a great difference," he says.

If the President should die, and Nixon succeed him for several months, Seaton thinks the Republicans surely would win in 1960."

"The natural public reaction would be, 'Well, look, the boy's done a pretty good job. Why don't we give him another chance?' " he says.

If something should happen to Nixon, "Well, there goes that." Presidential hopefuls would spring up all over, he thinks.

"If the Democratic party should lose one or two, they've got themselves a first class shemozzle," he says. "They have anyhow, but this would complicate it."

* * *

'I'm No Candidate'

SEATON knows that Alf Landon has been boosting him, by letter and personal contact, among GOP leaders for more than a year. And it's hard to deny presidential hopes. "I say I'm not a candidate, and haven't the slightest interest in becoming a candidate," he says. "The difficulty is that if I were conniving around to be a candidate, I'd be saying exactly the same thing.

"I'm pleased to have my old boss think that the country wouldn't go to Hell in a handbasket —with or without pearl handles—if I should run.

"I said the other day that if anybody had less interest in being a candidate than I have — that he had descended from zero to something toward infinity.

"But, well, let three more people mention it and I may go. You know the old story."

Over Macmillan's Visit

Protocol Pundits In a Dither

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — All is not as smooth and easy as it seems when the U.S. plays host to a distinguished visitor, as it will this week when British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan comes to Washington.

The State Department still shudders at the memory of a press conference held in the 1920s for visiting Queen Marie of Romania, at which one reporter walked up, slapped the Queen on the back and bellowed:

"Hi ya, Queen! What's new in your country?"

The protocol pundits are always especially worried when royalty comes here and rubs shoulders with the informality of a democracy. They never know what will happen.

There was the visit of Britain's Prince of Wales (later to become Edward VIII and now the Duke of Windsor) in 1924. On the agenda for his Washington trip was a stop ing a prince. He was to be called "Your Royal Highness." Nothing else. The instructions were repeated over and over.

Finally, the great night arrived. His Royal Highness walked into the club and sat down. The beaming head waiter bounced over, white teeth gleaming in an enormous grin.

licized royal visits came in 1939 when Britain's King George and Queen Elizabeth were invited to Washington by President Roosevelt. Protocol advised the White House exactly what preparations were necessary.

Their majesties, FDR was informed, would need a hot water bottle in every bed.

ties were arriving in June, when the capital can be an oven. Evidently fearing that the royal couple were arriving equipped for a polar expedition, Roosevelt tactfully wrote them to bring lightweight clothing.

Should Press Excite or Enlighten?

THE SUGAR PILL, BY T. S. Matthews, (Simon and Schuster, $3.75).

For many years book editor and then editor of Time Magazine, T. S. Matthews is well qualified to give his views on journalism. Unfortunately for American readers he is now living in England so the examples from which he draws are two widely divergent newspapers — the quality press Manchester Guardian and the popular press London Daily Mirror.

T. S. Matthews
. . . a responsibility

Most newspapers fall between the two extremes, Matthews points out. The quality press aims to enlighten the public, is written for an already educated group of readers so it need not attempt to raise the educational level, but to meet it.

The popular press aims for an enormous audience of readers who have been brought up by free education. Since most of its readers read nothing else they depend upon it for most of their education.

Charles Prestwich Scott, former editor of the renowned Manchester Guardian — which probably has a prestige that no other paper in the English-speaking world possesses — once said:

"A newspaper is a business like any other. It has to pay its way to live. But it is more than a business; it reflects the life of a whole community, plays to the minds and consciences of men. It may educate, stimulate and assist, or it may do the opposite. It has therefore a moral as well as a material existence."

The Daily Mirror is read by one fourth of the inhabitants of Britain. It treats of the same news as the Guardian but it eliminates, distorts or exaggerates the day's happenings. It is supposed to be read in six minutes time and it tends to deal in personalities rather than events. It is designed to excite rather than enlighten and it is enormously successful.

After all, what is news asks Matthews. Some say it is what happened yesterday but an enormous number of things happen every day. In the bare analysis news is life and death, the opening door, the arriving telegram, the new baby, the murder that snuffs out a life, the wars that extinguish thousands, the wedding, the airplane crash.

The quality press has a wider range because its readers are better informed. They can be as interested in a famine in China as in a homicide on the next block.

But most people are personal. Even to the intellectuals the man next door is more intereting than the Shah of Persia. It is when the shah divorces his wife because she can't have a son that he is brought into the orbit of the popular press because that is something we all understand.

U.S., Soviet Dads Toast: To Kiddies

MY RUSSIAN JOURNEY, by Santha Rama Rau (Harper, $4.50)

Even the Russians were stumped at the sight of an Indian woman, a small boy in cowboy suit, a handsome Negro maid, and an American man all traveling together.

Santha Rama Rau

Miss Rau, author of many well-known books on India, is married to Faubion Bowan, authority on the theater, who spoke Russian so that their five-month visit to Russia had more intimacy than that of most travelers.

Writers and scientists have all the breaks in the Soviet Union, she says. A talented writer is a privileged person. If his own home is too crowded he may stay in one of the Houses of Creation, with all meals supplied and a room and bath beside.

It is not the businessman who is the desirable date for the Russian girl, but an artist or scientist who can live untouched by politics. Make no mistake about it — wealth and position still count in the Communist state. There is as much difference between the workers on the collective farms and the sophisticated city type as there is in America between the farmer and the successful tycoon.

Miss Rau brings out a few new points: Russians can't stay in their own hotels. They are reserved for foreigners. Babies are swaddled from birth and, though pampered and idolized, Russian children are well-behaved and courteous. Moreover, they are extremely neat.

No street litter is permitted in Russian cities and a three-year-old will toddle over to a waste container with the paper from his candy. Children are well wrapped in furs though often the parents go without. Wealthier families and their children go to private schools in Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia where education is supposed to be better.

At a restaurant the Bowens' own small boy made friends with a Russian child at a neighboring table. The American father raised his glass in a toast: "May they be friends when they grow up." The man from the Caucasus replied gravely: "May they grow up."

Write Novel, Win $2,500

The Anglican Fiction Award contest, through publishers Farrar Straus and Cudahy, is offering $2,500 for a new novel about a bishop, priest, nun or layman of the American church.

Manuscripts must be submitted before March 1960 either to the publishers at 101 Fifth Avenue or to the Episcopal Book Club, of Nevada, Mo.

The book must contain

Four Yarns Pack Action And Humor

OASIS NINE, Four Short Novels, by Victor Canning, (Sloane, $3.50)

Bath

These sophisticated tales of modern derring-do offer equal ingredients of modern travel ranging from North Africa to the Riviera, heroes varying from broken-down pilots to present-day Robin Hoods, adventurous plots flavored with humor and graceful writing.

All of these novellas, including "Young Man On a Bicycle," "The Goldini Bath," and "Adriatic Crossing," besides "Oasis Nine," have been previously published in magazines.

Edith Head, Clothes Queen
. . . any woman can look her best

Elizabeth Taylor

BEATRICE WASHBURN
Herald Book Page Editor

Stylist Edith Head Bloomed on Desert

SINCE WOMEN constitute about 70 pct. of the reading public it might seem smart to give us girls a break occasionally and lead off with a book that every female, outside of a nudist colony, will probably enjoy.

The Dress Doctor (Little Brown, $3.95) is by Edith Head, the Paramount motion picture fashion chief, whose daily occupation is to clothe such lovelies as Marlene Dietrich, Ingrid Bergman, Rita Hayworth, Elizabeth Taylor and almost any others you may mention.

"Clothes are the way you present yourself to the world," declares Miss Head. "If you aren't appropriately dressed you don't feel comfortable or assured. Clothes make all the difference between poise and inferiority." Any woman can look her best, she declares. It only takes time, thought and a little—really very little—money.

Study your own personality and make the best of it. If you are small and slight don't imitate Katharine Hepburn, if you are the athletic type Audrey Hepburn is not your dish. Edith's stint on the Art Linkletter program where she talked to just regular housewives instead of glamorous stars, gave her a working basis for a few work-a-day rules that apply to all of us.

* * *

Dressed Toads in Chiffon

DON'T WEAR your clothes too tight, she advises. Don't wear a date dress to the office; don't flout conventions and be TOO different; don't have your clothes so smart that they overshadow you and don't, on any account, wear colors you don't like. It does something to you.

Miss Head, whose slightest word is law in the world of fashion, was born and brought up in Nevada mining towns. "I hated the loneliness of the desert," she says. "I longed for cities, bright lights, attractive people. As an only child I had few playmates. I used to dress up toads and scorpions in bits of chiffon or pieces of ribbon. I made them little houses out of cigar boxes."

When she was 12 the family moved to Los Angeles and Edith's driving ambition, photographic memory and keen brain drove her through the University of California and a master's degree in French at Stanford. Her first job was as a sketch artist with Paramount. From that she quickly rose to one of the top fashion designers of all time. She is married to Wiard Ihnen, an architect, lives in Beverly Hills, never brings her work home—"our week ends are vacations," has had the same housekeeper for 21 years, loves to cook, loves cats.

With the assistance of Jane Kessner Ardmore, who co-authored Eddie Cantor's Take My Life, she has turned out a readable book not only for the average woman but for the thousands who want to know some of the behind-the-scenes glimpses of Hollywood. Of course, it isn't easy, not even for an Edith Head.

"Fashion is a language," she sums up, "some know it, some learn it, some never will."

Newspaperwoman

STILL on the distaff side is A Long Way From Missouri, the autobiography of a veteran newspaper woman, Mary Margaret McBride, (Putnam, $3.75) which might have been lifted bodily from My Sister Eileen. Miss McBride, who came to the great city as an apple-cheeked girl wearing a middy blouse and pleated skirt to her first job, has the rare ability to laugh at herself.

She was an unsophisticated little Middle Western girl, daughter of a good Baptist family, who landed a job on The New York Evening Mail and thought, in her heart, that New York was the wickedest city in the world. Up to that time this able reporter had never danced or played cards, was shocked at women smoking and lived through the gay '20's as innocently as though she had been home in Missouri.

Mary Margaret

Although she drew important assignments interviewing Conan Doyle, Madame Curie, Lillian Russell, Helen Wills, covering fires, ship news and helping to found the Newspaper Woman's Club, she never thought of herself as being a good reporter.

"I was very proud of being one at all," she says. When she and her friend Stella Karn earned enough for a trip to Europe it was the food that interested her rather than the cathedrals. In Paris she settled for sole baked in almonds and cream, strawberries with Normandy clotted cream.

Her artless, unaffected style and warm-hearted interest in people made her a rare reporter in a profession well-supplied with brilliant and ambitious egoists. It has also made this an entertaining book.

Why Adventure?

WHY DO MEN seek adventure, asks Wilfred Noyce, one of those who climbed Mt. Everest, writing in The Springs of Adventure, (World, $4). Why do they seek terrible hardships, icy cliffs, temperatures of 77 below zero, starvation, suffocation beneath the sea? Why do scientists who could well remain in comfortable homes or luxurious clubs start out to measure ice caps, to collect penguins' eggs on icy plains?

Wilfred Noyce

It is the hair shirt complex, he declares, the urge to prove yourself, to know, once and for all, that you are superior to your environment, stronger than anything that can happen to you. War once provided this challenge, but without its compensations. The discipline of the medieval ascetic, who cut himself off from the world, starved himself sexually, physically and socially, is still a deep-seated need in many men.

Added to this says Noyce, is the "gold of companionship. A group of men faced with death, starvation, danger have plumbed the deepest springs of character."

This book is, in a way, a reproach to us stay-at-homes. "Those who have endured physical exhaustion and hardship look at the world with new eyes," says this explorer.

Blonde Used to Pacify Townsfolk

Air Base in Spanish Stew

FANDANGO ROCK, by John Masters, (Harper, $4.50.).

Reviewed by Mike Morgan

John Masters, who wrote The Deceivers and Bhowani Junction now turns to Spain for his newest novel. It deals with the natives of a Spanish city and a nearby American SAC B52 Bomber base.

Fandango Rock expresses the symbolic clash of the Spanish Fandango and American rock and roll. Yet, as in music, which can blend opposing forms and themes, so can there be understanding between people of different nations.

It was of utmost importance to Col. John Lindquist, base commander that such an understanding be reached. To help him he enlisted the services of beautiful, blonde Kit Freemantle, whose father was the inadequate Public Information Officer on the base.

Opposing the colonel, and working secretly to create antagonism against the Americans, is Cesar Aguirre, haughty, handsome scion of a wealthy Spanish family and a bullfighter of renown.

Aguirre's preoccupation of preserving what is old, suffers when he falls in love with Kit Freemantle, and he is torn by the conflict of past and present. Trouble brews until there is an explosion.

She Loves Her Native Pupils

SPINSTER, by Sylvia Ashton-Warner (Simon and Schuster, $3.95)

Every now and then a new talent breaks through or a new point of view which lifts a book above the common run, just as an original person triumphs over the commonplace.

Miss Ashton-Warner is a New Zealander. She writes of an unmarried school teacher with 70 little pupils, most of them Maoris.

The teacher is herself an artist, sensitive to life in every form. She appreciates the peculiar racial beauty of her small students, their naive efforts to adjust to European standards, their love of songs and dancing.

With these little warriors Anna Vorontosov, a sophisticated, highly intelligent woman, is completely at home. It is with herself and the white world that she has emotional difficulties. She is haunted by an old love and she has strange companionships with her fellow teachers.

Her heart is in her work. She must teach these little savages to read, so that love of reading will endure a lifetime. The imported books from Europe have no meaning for them. So she makes a vocabulary based on their own experience — butcher knife, gaol, police, sing, cry, kiss, fight, ghost.

She plays the piano and sings to them, and they, in turn sing to her their ancient ancestral songs. They both enjoy common interests, flowers, kittens, the white rooster, the pre-fab school room with its familiar furniture and primitive drawings. She teaches them to eat properly, to write, read, play ball. They open a new world to her, the world of the primitive.

This is the real bridge between the races — a white teacher who understands brown people. The book is on two levels — the lonely, heart hungry, frustrated spinster and the living world of color, children, flowers, hot sunlight. A rare book.

West Must Rally World To Justice

FIVE IDEAS THAT CHANGE THE WORLD, by Barbara Ward, (Norton, $3.75).

Conquest is man's oldest activity, writes Lady Jackson, probably England's best known and most prominent economist, noted for translating complex ideas into a language that everyone can understand. Men always fight. It is the oldest and most savage of our institutions, enduring from tribal days to the present.

But at last, faced with total extinction, all differences of race, color, class ideology must vanish as we accept the basic equality of man facing the risk of annihilation.

The wealthy western peoples must repeat at an international level the justice and industry that have made them powerful at home. Modern industrial civilization, with its tremendous technical revolution, is the most aggressive force man has ever known.

In the last 10 years European colonization of Asia has been concluded, she points out. The western powers desperately need new vision. Europe is bewildered by her new position. She has "sloughed off" colonialism too recently to appreciate the world which the Western powers helped create.

The United States is too prosperous and too well protected to feel the necessity for a world strategy of peace, she claims. The result of this vacuum is that western policy has become only a reaction to Communist tactics—"rushing to-and-fro and plugging up the holes in our diplomatic front."

Barbara Ward
. . . indifference is out

"We must make every effort of diplomacy, of rallying world opinion, of publicity and education to underline our willingness to accept the basic principles of law, order and justice. The wealth created by the collective efforts of man must be shared by all the small nations as well as the great."

The five ideas that have changed the world are nationalism, industrialism, colonialism, communism and internationalism. While the book is a brilliant analysis of these concepts it is still far more vague about the future than the past.

Suicidal Crash Ends Peasantly

CLAIRE SERRAT, by I.A.R. Wylie, (Putnam, $3.50)

Miss Wylie has been writing novels for many years and has mastered the art of depicting passion, a technique that many younger writers lack. This story has an unusual background, a deserted French town, and treats of two very unusual people.

Claire Serrat, sophisticated, wan, tubercular daughter of the British aristocracy, discouraged with her tawdry life and lover in the French capital, decides to run away from it all by wrecking her car on a lonely road.

She has reckoned without Martin Thibaut, a stolid, strong, more or less primitive French peasant who rescues her shattered body from the broken wreck. Taking her home to his empty house in a forsaken area he gradually nurses her back to health.

She lies completely helpless for months, depending on him for every physical comfort. Gradually her sore lungs heal, as do her sore memories of the past.

Martin, from a different stratum of society and a different world, becomes her slave and nurse, prepares simple peasant food, bathes and tends her, gently leads her back from the brink of suicide.

An unusual story of two very different people, tactfully told.

Ornes Under Attack

Dominicans Reply To Trujillo Critic

By NED AITCHISON
Herald Staff Writer

Big guns in the Dominican Republic have unloosed a withering barrage on Dr. German E. Ornes, whose book, Trujillo, Little Caesar of the Caribbean, was reviewed in The Miami Herald on Jan. 18.

Dr. Opinio Alvarez Mainardi, president of Sociedad Dominicana de Prensa at Ciudad Trujillo, has forwarded 14 government-published pamphlets relating to Dr. Ornes, with this comment:

"Ornes for a long time formed part of that same regime which he now vituperates, and overwhelmed Generalissimo Trujillo with his praises in . . . the newspaper El Caribe of this city, even to the extent of calling him in one of his articles the leading statesman in Latin-America and one of the most energetic figures of the present-day world!

"You are possibly not aware that Sr. Ornes not only lacks moral authority as a writer on account of the venality of his pen and his lack of political conviction, but also on account of the lack of decorum with which he has conducted his private affairs."

An enclosed pamphlet, "Husband, Father, Traitor," by Maria Mota, former wife of Dr. Ornes, is a bitterly critical review of their married life which began March 26, 1945, and ended in divorce.

Her charges range all the way from "clandestine and subversive activities against the public order," to personal misconduct with the wife of an airline executive and to mismanagement of El Caribe while he was its managing editor and later its publisher. And she adds that Generalissimo Trujillo "generously extricated" Ornes from many of the predicaments into which he got himself.

In the end, Sra. Mota writes, "I am supporting and educating my children without the help of the traitorous father."

Another pamphlet "Galindez Uncovered," was written by Dr. Ornes, himself, while he was El Caribe's editor-in-chief, a defense of Trujillo in the controversial disappearance from New York of the refugee professor, whom it brands as a "moral saboteur of Latin American culture."

In Little Caesar Dr. Ornes has admitted that he had been high in the Dominican regime before he found the courage to oppose the dictatorship.

Her Goal: Quiet African Port to Die

MRS. PANOPOULIS, by Jon Godden, (Knopf, $3.50)

The Godden sisters, Jon and Rumer, have always been something special in the literary line. Their books have a fey, out of this world quality that is the expression of an imagination delicately attuned and perceptive to values outside the ordinary world.

Jon Godden

Arriving at a Portuguese East African port the passengers go ashore and Mrs. Panopoulis is immediately impressed with a coral-guarded island, bone dry, containing a native hotel, a few genial characters and an ancient cemetery where the soft trade winds blow day and night.

There is a gently twined love story, a murder, a suicide, and a magic background that only a Godden could reproduce.

'New' Trick Has an Old Tinge

AS WE WRITE this, in advance for the Sunday section, we have not yet seen Jerry Lewis in his starring stand at the Deauville Hotel Casanova Room. There is a report, however, that something "new" has been added to the funny man's act since last he played a Miami club.

More correctly, it is something old that has been added. The addition, we understand, is a bit of record mimicry—the business wherein a phonograph record by a well-known star is given visual interpretation, usually in a burlesqued tempo.

Well, that's where we came in. First time we ever saw or reviewed Jerry Lewis was when record mimicry was his only stock in trade. It was at Jack Goldman's Clover Club in 1946 and Jerry was in support on a bill headlining the late Kay Vernon.

Unfortunately, some several hundred GI's with time on their hands had used PX or USO center record-players all over the world to perfect this type of record mimicry and were imposing their acts on an already sated public. There had been four or five of them here just prior to Lewis' arrival.

Our comment on the act was an "also on the bill" brushoff but it was cut from the shirttail of the review because of space difficulties. A few days later we tried to make up for the omission by stating that "Jerry Lewis is a good fundamental comedian and could go places—if he will throw his records away."

When we're wrong, we'll admit we're wrong in a big way. In recent shows out of town—and we presume at the Deauville where he is getting something like $30,000 a week, give or take five or six grand—Jerry Lewis, the good fundamental comedian, is pantomiming a recording of Mario Lanza. There is an extenuating circumstance, however. Some of the newer generation of reviewers are referring to it as "something new in the Jerry Lewis bag of tricks." He dropped it for the climb to stardom.

Hit Song Was Kay Vernon's

THERE'S ANOTHER reason for looking back to the bill on which we first saw Jerry Lewis. As we said, Kay Vernon, a singer, was the star. And for our ears the high-point of her repertory was a novelty ballad which only she and two or three other singers of the time—Hildegarde may have been one of them—could attempt. It was a number which hadn't gained too much acclaim, however. But its lyric was beautiful and the melody thrilling and we suggested time and again that Miss Vernon record it. She had a few fair successes on the HIT label. But she never did this one.

The years passed—and so did Miss Vernon, who died about a year ago—just about the time a fellow named Paul Anka was in the recording studios etching a song which has won him fame and fortune.

As everybody who has twirled a radio dial or who has heard a juke box in recent months can tell you, the tune is "My Heart Sings." That's the song Miss Vernon was doing so well with in 1946 and stealing shows from young Jerry Lewis—with the tune which the record moguls didn't think could be a hit.

What Star Has Gained Most In Looks? — Mitzi Gaynor

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Louella

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — If I were asked what actress has made the greatest change in her appearance and poise in the last eight years, I would say without a moment's hesitation — Mitzi Gaynor.

I first interviewed Mitzi when she came to town as a little girl from Chicago in 19[illegible] She was in "My Blue Heaven" with Bing Crosby. Later she and a group of young actors made "Take Care of My Little Girl" at 20th Century-Fox.

She was a plump little girl—sort of a hoyden type who laughed a lot and who was terribly self-conscious.

Today Mitzi is a chic young woman and she looked like a fashion plate in her black dinner gown when she walked in my home with her husband, Jack Bean.

"What had made this change?" I asked her.

Without any hesitation she said, "You can thank Jack. I was overweight and I felt I had lost my place in motion pictures. He made me take off 38 pounds, and gave me a renewed confidence.

"My happiness with Jack and the way we work together is a great factor in my life. His advice is uniformly good and we get along so well."

I had heard that Jack bossed her at times, but you can't be with them an hour and not know that this so-called bossing, if you can call it that, is for her own good.

Jack's whole life is helping Mitzi's career. He is a member of the public relations firm of Bean and Rose who handle commercial accounts. But Mitzi refuses to be separated from him so whenever she goes on tour, he goes with her.

They are just back from two months in Europe where they visited all the top cities to exploit "South Pacific" in which Mitzi stars with Rossano Brazzi.

They were particularly happy in Rome where they visited the Vatican, escorted by an emissary of His Holiness.

Mitzi saw Paris for the first time, also Germany and London. In London she got better press than the average star because she's a very honest person and came right out and said she loved London, and was thrilled with meeting the people.

* * *

IN ALL these cities "South Pacific" is doing big business and making money. Mitzi says this picture is the greatest thing that ever happened to her. I asked her if she went right after "South Pacific" to get her role.

She said "No, I went to see Joshua Logan about 'Sayonara' because I didn't know they intended to use an oriental girl. I thought, of course, that Doris Day or Jean Simmons, or some other actress who had been rumored for the role in 'South Pacific' had it all tied up, and I didn't think I had a chance.

"Josh asked me if I would like to take a test for Nellie Forbush, and what actress wouldn't like that role! Then I didn't say a word to anyone that I had sung 'I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out Of My Hair' in a test, or that I had had conferences with Josh because I was afraid I mgiht not get the part.

"When I had my final audition with Oscar Hammerstein, I was a nervous wreck, so you can imagine my happiness when I was given the role, I kicked off my shoes and really went to work then."

Mitzi said: "'South Pacific' has taken a good deal of my life because we were in Hawaii nine weeks, and then we had two months in Europe and two months on the road for 20th Century in the United States."

Mitzi, who was born Mitzi Gerber, took her name Gaynor from Janet Gaynor, whom she admires greatly. She married Jack Bean in San Francisco in 1954, but she told me something that I hadn't known.

Neither she nor Jack had ever been married before, and Jack who is a devout Catholic, hated to go to Europe without the blessing of the Church. So Mitzi took instructions and they were quietly married by Monsignor O'Toole one morning before they left on their trip.

When I first knew Mitzi, she had dark hair, and I asked her how she happened to go blonde.

"I always preferred being blonde," she said, "and always wanted to be one. Then I found it was much better for photographic purposes and I find that I can wear many colors that I never wore before."

* * *

THE JACK BEANS live in an apartment overlooking Hollywood just above LaRue Restaurant. "That's why we so often dine at LaRue," she said, "because it's so convenient to our home."

Then said Mitzi, "We will take an apartment in New York while I'm busy making 'Anniversary Waltz'. Before I go I have to make an album. I've just signed with Verve Records and I do hope by recordings will be good."

Naturalist Hall Here Monday

New Audubon Color Film Is Focused on Puerto Rico

Hidden treasures of the Caribbean — wildlife treasures — will be shown Miamians here Monday by Fran William Hall, naturalist and photographer of the National Audubon Society.

Hall will show the first natural history color film ever made in Puero Rico in the fourth of five screen tours being presented here this season by Tropical Audubon Society. He will present his film, "Puerto Rico, U.S.A." at 8 p.m. in Riverside School Auditorium, 221 SW 12th Ave.

Hall, a resident of Northfield, Minn., has pioneered in making wildlife documentary films of the Hawaiian Islands and Puerto Rico. Formerly head of the department of photography at Carleton College, Hall has spent recent years exploring and photographing wildlife in the two island possessions and the West when not pursuing the lecture circuit.

In the latter capacity he has visited every state in the Union and most of the Canadian provinces. In 1947 he and his wife were commissioned to make an official film of the Mesa Verde ruins in Colorado.

"Puerto Rico, U.S.A." brings to the screen a colorful cast which includes the rare Puerto Rican parrot, giant iguana lizards, tree-scaling hermit crabs, tropical sea birds and the wonders of El Yunque, the tropical rain forest. In the verdant Puerto Rican mountains, Hall caught on film the beauty of giant tree ferns, orchids and air plants as well as the wildlife.

He calls his film an entertaining way for Americans to get acquainted with the tropical gem that is the commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Nine Named For Youth Concert

Nine young Miamians will be presented in the annual Miami Woman's Club Young Artists concert this year. The recital is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday, April 5, in Miami Women's Club auditorium.

The listing includes three young singers, Louise Raboin, Marlene Hurwitz and Harold David Gavrity. Pianists to be presented include Bonnie Bromberg, Michele Greenberg, Martha Flynn and Janice Feld. Also participating will be flutist Rochelle Drazier and violinist Elliot Chapo.

A second recital sponsored by Miami Music Club will present winners in the student recital auditions, also held this spring. Nine young pianists will participate in this recital, scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, March 28, at Musicians Club, Coral Gables.

Exhibit at FSU

An exhibition titled "New Directions in Painting," sponsored jointly by Norton Gallery, West Palm Beach, and the Ringling Museum, Sarasota, is now in progress at Florida State University's art gallery through March 28.

A TRIFLE GUN-SHY is Bob Hope in this still from "Alias Jesse James" in which he is saddled with the chore of keeping the outlaw alive until he can cancel an insurance policy on his life. Wendell Corey is James in the film which also stars Rhonda Fleming. It opens Wednesday at the Carib, Miami and Miracle Theaters.

Gem-onstration

Mrs. Mildred Williams, of the Rock and Shell Shop, will exhibit and demonstrate the use of rough gems in modern jewelry for members of Coral Gables Art Club at their 8:30 p.m. meeting Monday (March 16) at Coral Gables Country Club. Election of officers will be held.

Art Inn Oils

Mrs. Helen Merkle is showing oil paintings at the Candle Light Inn, Coconut Grove, through Monday (March 23). Most of the works are Florida landscapes and still lifes.

"I would be an ungrateful author if I did not express enthusiasm and more for Universal's production of 'IMITATION OF LIFE'. I'm delighted with this moving interpretation of my book. The picture captures the warmth, intensity, dramatic power, the purpose, and the meaning I tried to put into my novel. I shamelessly recommend it!"

Jack Kofoed Says

Durante to Have Festive Farewell

THERE'LL BE a big farewell party Tuesday night when Jimmy Durante and the Latin Quarter show close. With Schnozzola's departure, we'll lose for awhile one of the finest talents and warmest hearts in show business . . . Jerry Lewis, at the Deauville, rates with Frank Sinatra, who murdered 'em at the Fontainebleau, as the biggest money maker in show business. Fellows like Napoleon Reed ("Holiday in Haiti") at the Montmartre and Arthur Lee Simpkins in Lou Walters' French Dressing" at the Carillon, don't make as much but they're worth seeing, too.

The Schnozz . . . heart

Ruth Wallis . . . hot

While there are only three musicians in Johnny Silvers' trio at the Beau Rivage (are there ever any more?) they play 28 instruments . . . Ruth Wallis, who blue-ditties in the Tambourine Room of the Carillon, loves the lumaki at the Luau . . . Don't know what the Golden Gate would do without George Hines, but I sure miss him on the golf course . . . Tony Sweet's menus are so beautiful a good many people take them for souvenirs, which doesn't make Tony happy. They cost a buck apiece . . . County Manager O. W. "Hump" Campbell, with a party, chomping on Don Julio's wonderful Mexican food.

* * *

Sail and Aid Hospital

RADIO WINER, of the Bonfire, has a brandnew sailboat, and you can have a ride on it by donating a dollar to Variety Children's Hospital . . . The Donnin Arms museum, which presents one of the world's greatest collections of weapons, has added a shotgun, equipped with bridal bouquet! . . . No fewer than 200 fillies will compete for the title of "Miss Miami Beach" at the Di Lido during April's first week.

When Gray's Inn closes for the season, maitre d' John Itta will rest in preparation for a busy season at Wingy Grober's Cal-Neva Lodge on Lake Tahoe . . . The Dante Trio into the Musketeer Room of the Deauville . . . I guess, next to Joe's Stone Crabs, the Old Forge on 41st St. must be the oldest restaurant on the Beach. Anyway, it was one of the first I visited upon moving here.

Mike Gordon, who sells 14 tons of red snapper every year at his place on the 79th St. Causeway, has two boats — Mike I, a 20-foot racer, and Mike II, used exclusively for catching stone crabs. Somebody else gets the snapper for him . . . Selma Marlowe Harris, who had a pretty finger in the production of "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" at the Americana, and "Mardi Gras Revue" at the Lucerne, readying a new revue . . . They say Jack DeLeon, comedy star of "Rag," is a cross between Sid Caesar and Danny Kaye. How's that again? . . . Jan Murray liked Jack Goldman's cheesecake at Hickory House so much he has a box of it air-expressed to New York every week.

Age Bows to Youth

BEN TAGER, who was one of the owners of the extinct Park Avenue, dining at Nick and Arthur's, where everybody from Nick and Arthur to the busboys used to work at the Park Avenue . . . Papa Bouche, the oldest man in show business, once operated Villa Venice, near the Hollywood dog track. Now it's run by two of the youngest, Jan and Bob Case . . . Arthur Teichner, executive food director at the Singapore, speaks English, French, German, Spanish, Czech and Greek. What, no Swahili? . . . Louis Banfi, maitre d' at the Ivanhoe, gave up automobile racing after being nearly killed in the Italian Grand Prix.

Art (Place for Steak) Login thinks Irish coffee is the best double play imaginable. Makes you drunk, and sobers you up . . . Jerry Brandow's group into the Tuscany Lounge in Hollywood . . . Jack Stavin, of the Charcoal Steak House, started his career as a Yugoslav busboy . . .

Can't help wondering why attendance and play at Dania and Miami frontons on Mondays are second only to Saturdays . . . When Bud Dickey took over Henry Neyle's place in North Miami Beach, he re-named it the "Club House," because he'd been lucky under that name in Chicago . . . The Simba Room, of the Everglades, developing into one of Miami's most popular meeting places . . . Bob Loewi, of Out of This World Inn, thinks an "I Have Great Plans for Wasting Today Association" would attract millions of members . . . Harry Rapaport, who used to promote fights in Newark, has the Only Club on the Trail.

* * *

Emcee Has Law Degree

ANGELO LIBERTO hopes Anna Maria Albergetti and Buddy Bregman will honeymoon here, because they dine at his Victor Bidone's whenever they're on the Beach . . . Harvey Merrill's trio have been playing in the Neptune Lounge of the Robert Richter for eight years.

Bobby Collins, Aristocrat Motel emcee, holds a law degree . . . The Sorrento's Pizza Pantry features 27 varieties of the pie . . . Hal Kane's orchestra currently at the Biltmore-Terrace.

Donald O'Connor will again have the talented Sid Miller on hand when his revue opens Tuesday at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room. Miller has "Walk It Off" as a song credit.

So many people want to buy the roquefort cheese dressing at King Arthur's Court that Art Bruns has to discourage them by putting a price tag of $10 a quart.

Next: TV and Broadway?

'Princess' Ballet Being Revived

Palm Beach's own original ballet, "The Princess," which was premiered last Christmastime, will have its first revival the week of March 23-28 at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach. Performances are scheduled for every night Monday through Saturday (Mar. 23-28).

This is said to be the first full-length classical ballet ever created in the United States.

The American Ballet Theater prima ballerina, Violette Verdy, who created the role, will return for the revival. Ten-year-old West Palm Beach dancer Claudia Cravey will again dance the role of the Princess as a child.

The musical score was composed by Italian-American pianist-composer Mario Braggiotti. It was choreographed by Jo Anna, ballerina-teacher, who also wrote the libretto.

Plans are now unfolding, according to Royal Poinciana Playhouse officials, for a New York production of "The Princess", and for its presentation on television as a spectacular.

Greek Tenor To Sing

The popular Greek tenor, Nicos Gounaris, who is known to Greek communities throughout Europe and this country will sing his first Miami concert on Sunday March 22 at 8:30 p.m. in Dade county auditorium.

Gounaris, who has issued three LP recordings and several hundred single discs, specializes in Greek Folk material. He writes all his own songs, and his programs are composed entirely of his own music. In some songs he accompanies himself on the guitar.

Chevalier, O'Connor Join Us This Week

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Maurice Chevalier, the Frenchman who is still highly effervescent long past his vintage years, and Donald O'Connor, who was a four-year-old darling of the RKO circuit when Chevalier was making his American film debut in "Innocents of Paris" in 1929, are rivals for the Number One cafe spotlight on the greater Miami nightlife scene this week.

O'Connor, son of a native of County Cork, Ireland, rightfully enough, will open on Tuesday, St. Patrick's Day, as headliner of the Fontainebleau La Ronde Room show bill, while Chevalier, whose last appearance in a Miami Club was in 1947 at the old Copacabana, will open on Wednesday at the Eden Roc Cafe Pompeii.

Toni Arden, at the Diplomat on Friday, and Ronnie Eastman, joining Lou Walters' Carillon Revue on Wednesday, will be other new cafe arrivals.

There will be considerable ferment in the legitimate stage and concert stage too in the week ahead. Tonight, Marjorie Lawrence, the great dramatic soprano, and the two-piano team of Nelson and Neal will give a joint concert at Barry College Auditorium, in Miami Shores.

Miss Lawrence is the former prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera, who triumphed over a polio attack and whose story was told in the motion picture, "Interrupted Melody."

Palm Beach gets two new attractions. The Royal Poinciana Playhouse management has obtained the company which just closed in "Third Best Sport" on Broadway for a Monday night opening, with Celeste Holm in the lead role. Michael Howard is directing Eleanor and Leo Bayer's play about a business convention in a Palm Beach hotel.

Cast also includes Andrew Duggan, Judson Laire, Ernest Graves, Jane Hoffman, Parker McCormick, Howard Wierum, James Karen, Irene Cowan and Harry Mehaffey.

"Pajama Game," the gay Broadway musical based on Richard Bissell's "7½ Cents," will open on Tuesday at the Palm Beach Musicarnival, and run for one week only, with performances Tuesday through Friday at 8:30, on Saturday at 6 and 9:30, and on Sunday at 7.

Leading roles are played by Tim Herbert, Joan Kibrig, Lawrence Brooks, Chele Graham, Lucille Benson, George Blackwell, Jim Howard, Tom Batten and William Skelton. Miss Kibrig and Brooks are in "Guys and Dolls," which closes tonight, and will also appear in "Brigadoon," opening on Tuesday, March 24.

The Dramatic Academys' Lemonade Theater gets back into action on Wednesday with "The Lute Song," directed by Olga Overton, and a cast including Mal Arnold, Fran Stacy, Art Eden, Tony Fabozzi, Hattie Goldman and Ceil Postol.

There will be two more performances of Lillian Burak's "The East Side Matchmaker on next Saturday and Sunday at the Flagler Granada Jewish Community Center.

Also continuing for its final week will be "Triple Play," starring Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy in a program of one-act plays by Sean O'Casey and John Mortimer. The program has been tightened by elimination of a monologue on "The Harmfulness of Tobacco," by Anton Chekhov.

Students of Barry College will present Theopane Lee's "Bamboo Cross" at the college auditorium on Saturday at 2:30 and next Sunday at 8:15, with Rosemary Schiraldi playing the role of a nun which Jane Wyman essayed in the television version of "Bamboo Cross."

Others in the cast, directed by Sister Marie Carol, will be Sandra Hovey, Blake Liddle, Roland Keaton, Joseph Leigh, Margaret Wong and Marcia McCaughan.

Esther Williams' Plunge In Pools Is Movies' Loss

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI)—Esther Williams, Glamor girl or executive?

Last year the former swim star was mostly corporation president, appearing only four times on television, and not at all in movies.

In 1959 it will be 50-50 for Esther who will launch a new video series in addition to her duties as chief of her own swimming pool company.

She's beautiful, talented, bright and rich — and she knows it.

"I don't think I should try to hide what I am," Esther said candidly. "The fact that I'm pretty smart at business shouldn't offend anyone. Actually, it separates the men from the boys. Smart men don't resent smart women.

"A successful business woman can escape being hard, cold and calculating. I think I have. If you try to cover up the fact that you're intelligent with the old feminine tricks you lose the respect of people whose friendship you value," Esther said.

The actress-executive added that she walked out on her movie career because "it would have destroyed me.

New Teen Jargon Strictly NOT Kookie

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

TRANSLATION: "The girl in a fur coat went on an airplane ride and caught a cold."

This is a rough example of a new kind of talk that is buzzing the teenage set. Some parents aren't immune to it, either. Much of it stems from a lad who calls himself Edd Byrnes — "Edward is too formal, Ed too short and I don't like Eddie."

The adjective "Kookie" is the most noted of this new lingo; I find it used almost universally by show folk today. Possibly stemming from cuckoo, it describes something wild, weird and-or wonderful. Synonyms: Way out, cool.

Among Edd's etymology:

DON'T BLOW YOUR JETS —Don't get angry.

ANTSVILLE —A place full of people.

A WASHINGTON — Dollar bill.

PILE UP THE Z'S — Sleep.

YOU'RE GETTING THE BEAT — You're beginning to understand.

GI Passes Worth $800,000

The Interservice Ticket Committee, which coordinates the program, said the boxoffice value of the ducats totaled $800,000. Tickets were for stage performances, TV shows, film screenings, sports events and special shows.

'Our Sons Need Thy Blessings'

By JIM BISHOP

Go With God

"Embark on no enterprise which you cannot submit to the test of prayer," Hosea Ballou, the founder of "Universalism" advised. Franklin Delano Roosevelt (1882-1945), the 32nd President of the U.S. and its principal leader in World War II, delivered the following prayer on D-Day, June 6, 1944, as the invasion of Hitler-captive Europe began in Normandy.

Almighty God: Our sons, pride of our Nation, this day have set upon a mighty endeavor, a struggle to preserve our Republic, our religion and our civilization, and to set free a suffering humanity.

Lead them straight and true; give strength to their hearts, steadfastness in their faith.

They will need Thy blessings. Their road will be long and hard. For the enemy is strong. He may hurl back our forces. Success may not come with rushing speed, but we shall return again and again; and we know that by Thy grace, and by the righteousness of our cause, our sons will triumph.

They will be sore tried, by night and by day, without rest — until the victory is won. The darkness will be rent by noise and flame. Men's souls will be shaken with the violences of the war.

For these men are lately drawn from the ways of peace. They fight not for the lust of conquest. They fight to end conquest. They fight to let justice arise, and tolerance and good will among all Thy people. They yearn but for the end of battle, for their return to the haven of home.

Some will never return. Embrace these, Father, and receive them, Thy heroic servants into Thy kingdom.

And for us at home—fathers, mothers, children, wives, sisters and brothers of brave men overseas—whose thoughts and prayers are ever with them — help us, Almighty God, to rededicate ourselves in renewed faith in Thee in this hour of great sacrifice . . .

Because the road is long and the desire is great, I ask that our people devote themselves in a continuance of prayer. As we rise to each new day, and again when each day is spent, let words of prayer be on our lips, invoking Thy help in our efforts.

Give us strength, too — strength in our daily tasks to redouble the contributions we make in the physical and the material support of our armed forces.

And let our hearts be stout, to wait out the long travail, to bear sorrows that may come, to impart our courage unto our sons wheresoever they may be.

And, O Lord, give us Faith. Give us Faith in Thee; Faith in our sons; Faith in each other; Faith in our united crusade. Let not the keenness of our spirit ever be dulled. Let not the impacts of temporary events, of temporal matters, of but fleeting moment — let not these deter us in our unconquerable purpose.

With Thy blessing, we shall prevail over the unholy forces of our enemy. Help us to conquer the apostles of greed and racial arrogance. Lead us to the saving of our country, and with our sister Nations into a world unity that will spell a sure peace — a peace that will let all men live in freedom, reaping the just rewards of honest toil.

Thy will be done, Almighty God. Amen.

Time to Enjoy Outdoor Living

By Kay Murphy

Herald Decorating Editor

MISS MURPHY

IT'S TIME to move again. Spring always signals a change in our living pattern—a switch from indoor to outdoor living. It's less of a problem, of course, when dual-purpose furniture is part of your home "equipment." Less expensive, too. All you do is shove the furniture you've wintered with out onto the terrace, patio or poolside.

How will it weather is the question to be answered before you invest in indoor-outdoor furniture. Most metal-framed pieces are rust-resistant today. And the woods used will withstand many a sub-tropical rain before warp sets in.

Don't take it for granted that all indoor-outdoor furniture is guaranteed against the onslaught of the elements, however. You'll pay more for pieces that are guaranteed, but they are worth it. Even guaranteed items survive longer if you take them in when a shower threatens or when the dew settles down for the night.

* * *

A COLLECTION of indoor-outdoor furniture that you'll want to care for is a new one from California. It's made of redwood, a wood that weathers well.

There's nothing casual about the collection. Pieces are comparatively massive and certainly not cheap. You'll pay around $285 for a chair, around $235 for a table.

Elegance is what you're paying for. The collection's graceful lines are adapted from an age-old inspiration source—the Orient. Frames simulate bamboo with their turnings.

Antique copper tops most of the tables although you have two other tops to choose from. One's made of chip-mosaic glass that's strong enough to sit on. The other combines random slats of redwood. Some tables are box end models with concealed storage compartments.

Chairs, sun chaise and K'ang sofa are cushioned either in sailcloth over synthetic rubber polyfoam, plastic kapok or ordinary duck. The latter is not weather-resistant, however. You can order seating pieces without cushions if you prefer.

There are three redwood finishes: An antique silver gray, copper brown to blend with table tops and a pitch black that resembles ebony.

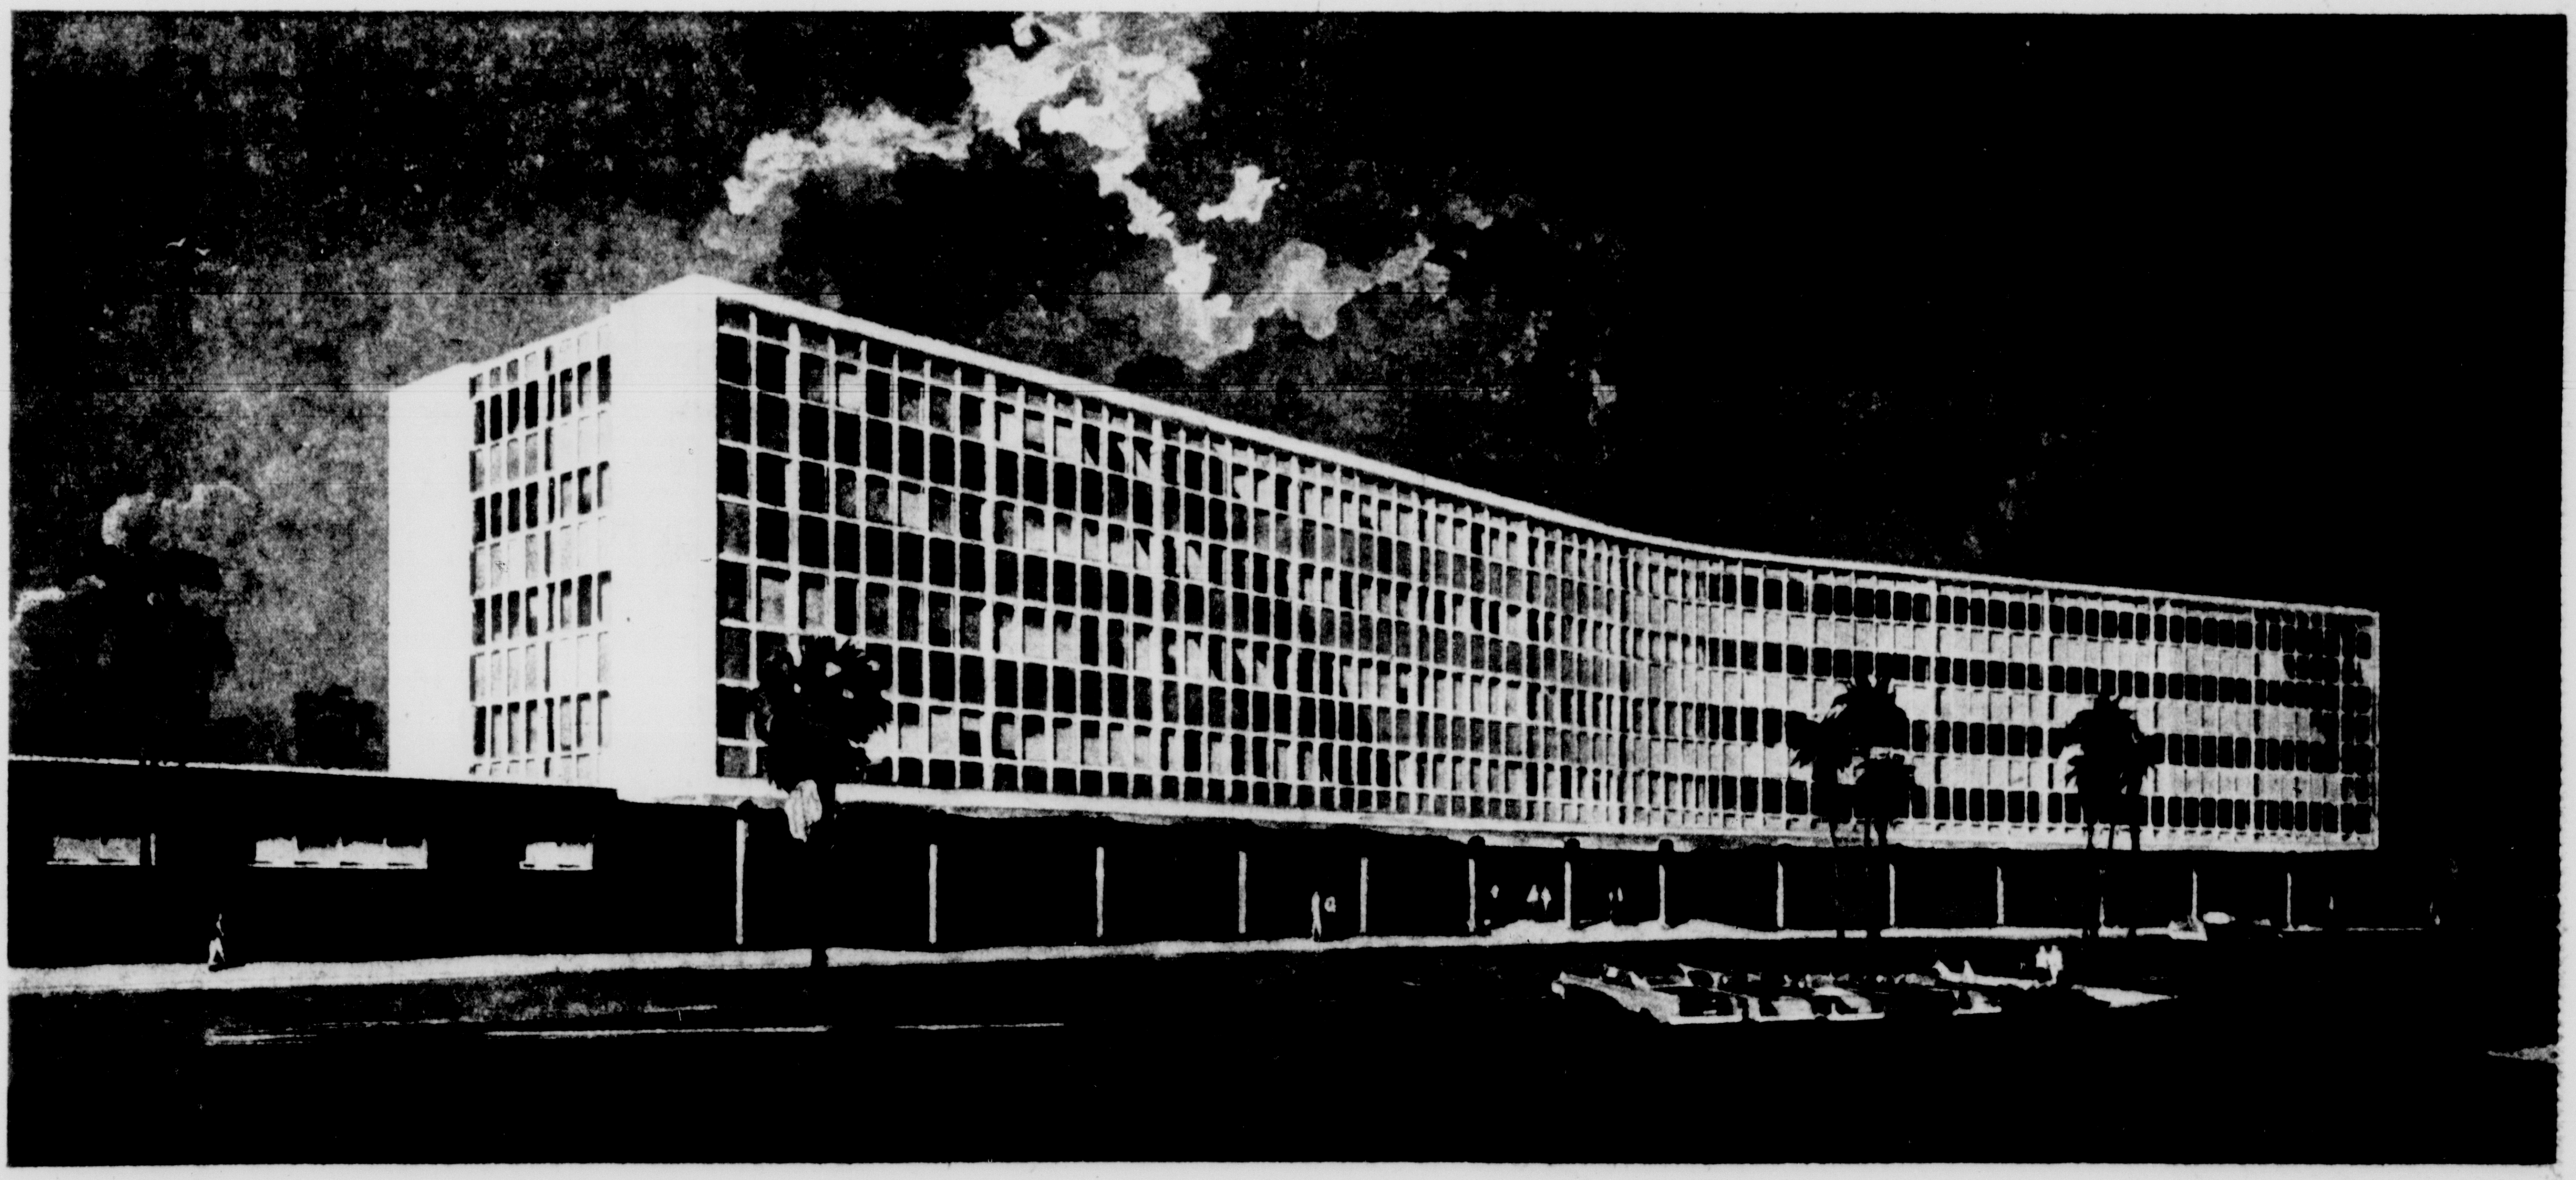
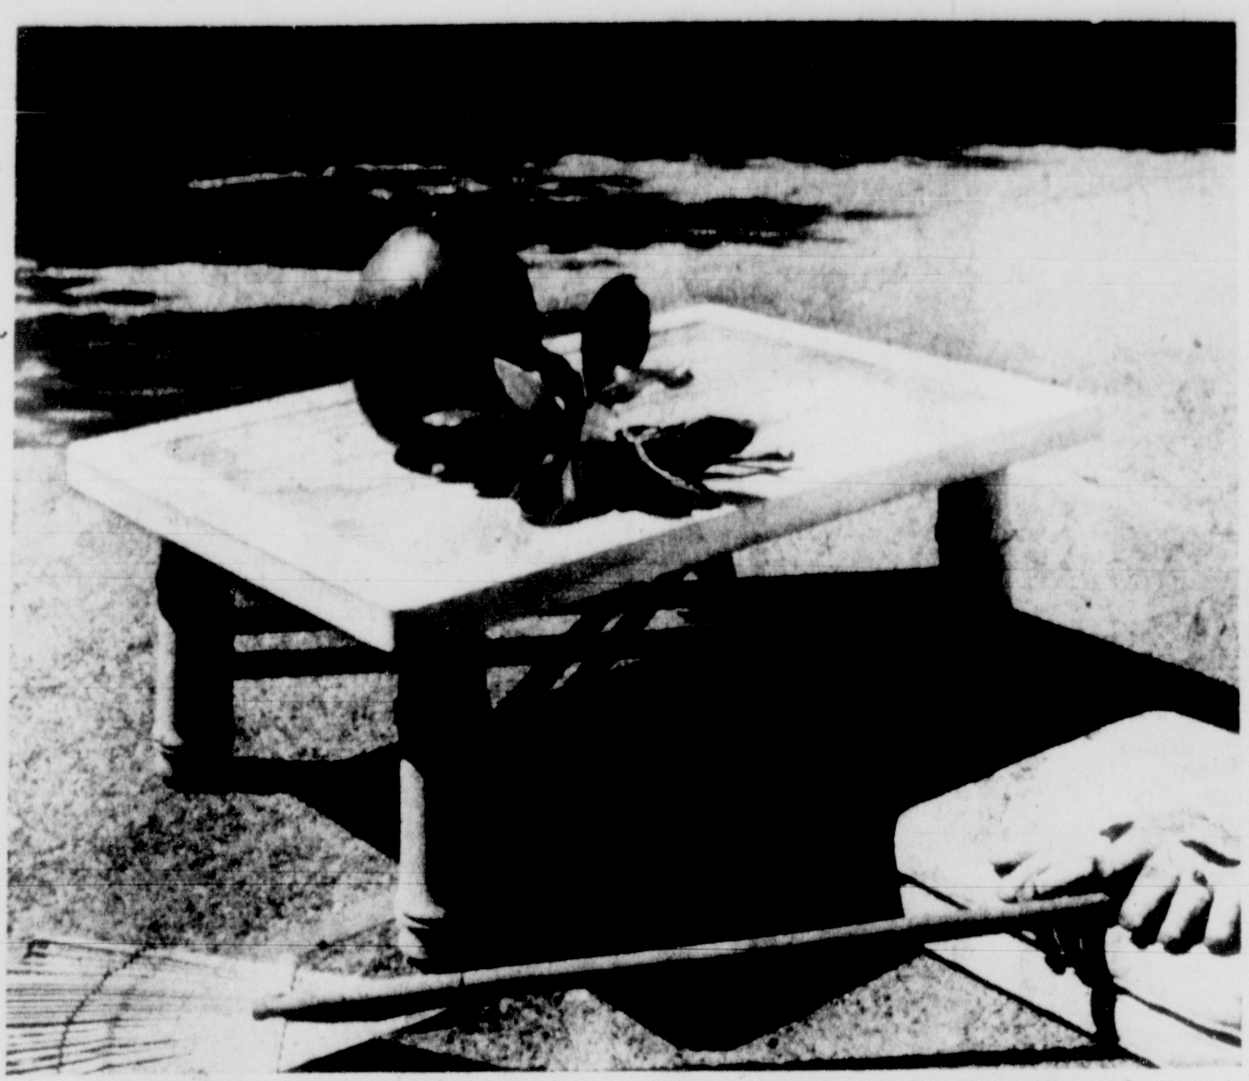
CALIFORNIA CONTRIBUTION to Florida living is a collection of redwood furniture that's on the elegant side of the design scale. A decided switch for redwood! While it's destined for indoor-outdoor use, the collection cannot be classified as casual in any sense of the word. It has grander proportions, more weight to its sculptured lines, than most indoor-outdoor furniture. Antique copper on the table tops enhances its design elegance. So do the graceful turnings that simulate bamboo on table legs, on the arms, legs and backs of seating pieces. Cabinet piece pictured has honeycomb panels of real bamboo rounds.



The State Capitol For South Florida

FOUNDATIONS ARE IN and the walls are going up for the $2 million State Agency Building on the old Miami Country Club grounds at 1350 NW 12th Ave. The five-story structure was designed and engineered by the Walter Butler Co. of Coral Gables. Vernon D. Lamp, AIA, is the architect. It's a concrete frame building, 144,500 square feet, with an aluminum curtain wall. Windows will be heat-resistant gray glass. Twenty-three state agencies plus the Third District Court of Appeals, will be moving into the air conditioned building next January. The general contractor is Williams A. Berbusse Jr., Inc., of Palm Beach.

Redwood Designs From California



THE SHEAR LINE to good design is evident in the scissor-support beneath this copper-topped table. Part of an in door-outdoor collection of furniture, it's made of California redwood. Grooving in the legs gives them the look of bamboo.

GARDEN GROUP with an elegance all its own is this one of California redwood. Oriental-inspired, the pieces display a certain simplicity but their scale is more impressive than that of ordinary indoor-outdoor furniture. Pieces come with back and seat cushions. These you can tote inside when a sudden shower moves in on the scene.

The Story's In Numbers

By FREDERIC SHERMAN

Herald Real Estate Editor

TWO CONTRACTS for real estate indicate there is no letdown in sight for the business of turning Dade County acreage into subdivisions for new homes. One is far north and the other is south near Perrine. Bennett Lifter, now developing Honey Hill Homes in the Norwood area, has contracted to buy 250 acres north of Snake Creek between NW 27th Avenue and the Florida Turnpike. The owners are E. J. and Minnie Melton and Walter and Dorothy Melton. Lifter says he will pay $4,000 an acre for the dairy land. This is a significant deal because as far as is known, Lifter is the first builder to prepare for homes north of Snake Creek in that area.

SHERMAN

No bridges across the creek now, but there are plans for a continuation of NW 27th Avenue to connect with an extension of Davie Road in South Broward. With most of our industry concentrated in Hialeah and the northwest section of Miami, this road project will open new areas for the low-cost home builders. Lifter says it will be at least a year before he is ready to move into the Melton tract. It will require lakes and a series of canals to bring it up above flood level.

Down at Perrine in South Dade, Babcock Co. is ready to close with 11 different owners for a 130-acre tract at SW 99th Ave. and 163rd St. This is pine land, with the price averaging close to $6,000 an acre, according to Charles Babcock Jr. This land is directly west of the Palmetto Country Club Estates development of Porter-Wagor-Russell, like Babcock, an old-line firm in Miami.

Babcock will be closing out a 400-home project at Miller Heights in July and expects to have models open at Perrine in September.

South Dade Picks Up

Behind the mass of figures, tables and maps, there is a big story. There were 62,040 acres involved in 1,256 acreage sales. The dollar volume was a whopping $41,272,028. Average sale countywide was for eight acres at about $1,875 an acre.

The kingpin in 1958 was the $13 million sale of the south end of Key Biscayne by the Aleman family to Desser and Garfield, developers of Carol City. That was also the highest price per acre, $26,765.

It is interesting that the second largest sale also involved Desser and Garfield. The firm sold Willard Woodrow Construction Co. 1,600 homesites in Carol City for $2,736,700.

The only other deal over $2 million was the one for 960 acres out on SW 8th St. east of Krome Ave. Louis Merwitzer sold the tract for $2,112,000 to an investment group represented by Milton Weiss, Miami Beach attorney.

Battle of Biscayne Swings to Connelly

IT'S DAMN THE TORPEDOES and full steam ahead for Vaughan Connelly who is making a new hotel out of the boomday Everglades. Part of that downtown Miami project involves a two-story facade designed by architect Maurice Kley. The plan called for carrying the concrete screen right across the front of Keyes Co. which is the tenant in a three-story annex on the south side. But Kenneth Keyes rushed to court and asked for a temporary injunction to halt the job.

An hour after Judge George Holt rejected the Keyes plea, Connelly had his workmen busy. Down came the big Keyes Co. neon signs and up went the scaffolding. And the march of the facade continues down Biscayne Boulevard.

Ken Keyes isn't giving up. Off on a convention trip to Australia, he has sent word back home that he wants to go back to court, this time to ask for a permanent injunction.

Connelly is confident of winning again. But if he loses, he will have to take down the facade and put back all the signs.

Meehan Leads 'Double Life'

It's a dual role for Maurice M. Meehan now that he's been elected chairman of the Real Estate Industries Council of Dade County. Meehan, who's executive vice president of J. I. Kislak Mortgage Corp., is already serving as president of the Greater Miami Mortgage Bankers.

M. M. Meehan
...heads council

Others named to office by the council include Steve Leifert of Leifert Construction, vice president, and architect Irving E. Horsey, secretary-treasurer.

First council action since election of new officers was a request that Gov. Leroy Collins appoint an advisory or investigating committee to determine the "practicality of creating a regulatory body for the supervision and licensing of mortgage brokers in Florida."

Another Store For Grand Union

Bids are due March 26 on another Grand Union supermarket to be built at NW 54th St. and 11th Ave. Emory L. Jackson designed the 400 by 250-foot building. Engineering work was done by D. E. Britt Associates and Henry J. Nelson.

Only 5 Left Out Of 1,000!

1st House Sale In The History Of F & R Builders

IN THE PAST FEW YEARS, 3500 homes have been built by my company, F & R Builders, a name well-known in South Florida.

Today, there are but 5 new homes for sale at the Village.

These 5 remaining homes all have 3 bedrooms, 1 bath, a built-in Frigidaire or Caloric Range and Oven, a G.E. Garbage Disposall, Venetian blinds, select Oak hardwood floors and a host of other deluxe features all included in the price of these contemporary split-level homes.

THESE HOMES DURING THE PAST 2 YEARS HAVE SOLD FOR AS MUCH AS $18,000.

WE ARE SELLING THEM TODAY FOR JUST $15,975! CLOSING COSTS ARE ALSO SLASHED TO JUST $59!

Friends, I have checked with the proper authorities. I have absolute permission to run this sale. We are going to finish selling at Coral Way Village quickly for this is the first time we have ever marked down the price of a new home.

Coral Way Village homes have sold—I must repeat—for as much as $16,500, $17,500 and $18,000. We couldn't build and sell them today at those prices. Furthermore, ask some Coral Way Village home owner what he wants for his home and you'll see that it is many thousands more than $15,975 — the price at which we are going to sell our last 5, 3 bedroom homes.

THESE HOMES ARE AVAILABLE FOR immediate occupancy. You can move in while qualifying. Act quickly, and I guarantee that you will save $850 cash this very day.

Cordially,

Britain Holds Edge on Cars

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Two out of every three cars imported into U.S. last year came from either Britain or West Germany.

Imports amounted to 350,000 cars, of which 36 per cent came from Britain, 34 per cent from Germany and 18 per cent from France. Of the balance, Italy supplied 6 per cent and Sweden 4 per cent.

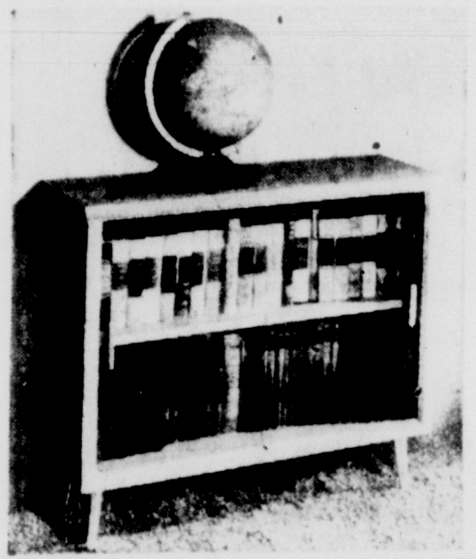
BUILD IT YOURSELF WITH

CRAFT PATTERNS BY A. NEELY HALL

191 A COMFORTABLE TELEPHONE BENCH

★ Designed for comfort and beauty, this telephone bench has delicate lines that do not reveal its solid strength. All dowels extend through the back frame and into the base of the bench which is made of ¾" plywood. It is 17" deep, 36" long, and stands 27" high. It has satin brass legs. The seat is a 1" foam rubber pad covered to complement other furnishings. Craft Pattern 191 shows the full-size patterns and locations for holes. You will be surprized to see how little material is required.



Projects for Modern Living

1330 A MODERN BOOKCASE IS EASY TO BUILD

★ You can build a pair of bookcases like the one illustrated from a 4' by 8' panel of plywood. It is 36" long and 30" high with legs. The front may be open, or enclosed with glass. The legs may be of wood or metal, of the commercial type with rigid attachment plates. Craft Pattern 1330 details all parts, and shows the step-by-step assembly, including a pair of by-passing glass doors. The bookcase is constructed so all edge grain of the plywood is concealed, and the back is finished to match the ends so all sides may be exposed if the piece is to be used as a room divider.

★ Send 35 cents each for Craft Pattern 191 and 1330. $1.50 each for Home Cabinet Packet (22 patterns), Bird House Packet (17 patterns), Junior Jig-saw Packet (19 patterns), Senior Jig-saw Packet (21 patterns), Windmill Packet (12 patterns), 25 cents for an illustrated catalog of more than 850 different Craft Patterns. SOLID BRIDGING BETWEEN JOISTS IS EASY WAY TO STIFFEN BOUNCY FLOORS

OPEN EAVE BEFORE BOXING

SAME EAVE AFTER BOXING

These Bridges Calm Quivers

By HERMAN BAUM

(Readers with questions on the maintenance and repair of the home may receive answers by addressing The House Doctor care of The Herald. Please limit letters to one question and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.)

DEAR MR. BAUM:

Our home was built in 1928. For many years, everything was very satisfactory. In recent years it seems that the floors vibrate whenever we walk on them. My husband examined the floor joists in the crawl space and found one was split so he nailed a board across it. I am concerned about this condition but both my husband and son tell me to stop worrying; the house will not fall in. What is your opinion? Mrs. N.D.

ANSWER — Houses seem to defy the laws of gravity and never fall in although we, too, often wonder what holds some of them up, so stop worrying. Measured by today's standards, your home was built a long time ago but, unless the termites have moved in, it is probably just as sound as when it was first constructed. These intervening years will do much more to the inhabitants of a home than to the home itself.

Where the lightweights of 1928 wouldn't cause a quiver, the increase in avoirdupois gained over 30 years might cause a perceptible bounce when the floors are walked upon.

In spite of all our complaining about today's construction, it is generally better than when your home was built. Joists are heavier and are placed on 16-inch centers instead of the 24-inch centers formerly used. You can compensate for light construction and add firmness to your floors by the easy method of bridging illustrated. Obtain two-inch boards having the same width as your floor joists. Individually cut these lengths to fit between adjacent floor joists and locate them midway of the span. Fasten in place with 12 or 14-penny common nails. After the first section has been nailed in place, subsequent sections should be offset slightly to the right and left so that nails can be driven through the joists into the ends of the bridging.

Except for long spans, one set of bridging usually is sufficient, but there is no reason why two or more sets cannot be installed.

* * *

Boxed Eaves Look Better

DEAR MR. BAUM:

I want to box in the eaves of my carport to improve the appearance of the structure. What are the most practical methods and materials for the job? C.L.B.

ANSWER — Construction details may vary slightly but the usual form of open eaves is illustrated. The easiest way to box these in is to cut filler pieces to be nailed to each of the overhanging rafters. The facia board is then attached to the ends of the rafters along the entire side of the roof. The facia and the fillers can be cut from one-inch thick boards. With these in place, the plancier, made from 3-8-inch exterior plywood, is cut to fit between the facia and the siding. Finish the job by adding the cove molding.

Open Season On Pumps

DEAR MR. BAUM:

I live in the country where I obtain my water supply from a well. For some weeks now, we have been having trouble getting enough water. The pressure in the tank falls off very rapidly and the pump runs for a very long time to refill the tank. I doubt that the well is dry because we have had sufficient rain. Can you suggest a remedy? C.S.

ANSWER — A well is the only thing I can think of that you must shoot in order to restore it to life. The strainer on the end of the pipe that extends to the bottom of the well is clogged with sand.

To open the strainer, remove the large plug at the top of the pipe. Load a .22 caliber rifle with a "short" cartridge. Place the muzzle of the rifle just inside the top of the pipe and fire it straight down.

The concussion will blow the sand out of the strainer and give you a shower bath for your trouble. Place pipe joint compound or white lead on the plug when you replace it. You probably will have to prime the pump to get it back in operation. The well point is made of very heavy metal so the slug will not damage it but do not use a higher powered rifle as this will blow out the strainer.

Good Taste Makes Accessories Make Sense

NEW YORK —(AP)— "Lack of coordination in table accessories is a luxury only people of the best possible taste can afford," says Georges Briard, well-known designer of decorative accessories.

He points out that a mishmash of unglamorous items used willy-nilly in a home, without respect to color, shape or texture can be an unsightly mess, one reason why he loves to correlate his designs.

"Women buy what looks beautiful in the store without giving a thought of how it will look in their own home, in a different setting," he says.

A pioneer in designing decorative accessories for the home, he correlates china, glassware and linens — for the table, in living room, kitchen and bathroom. He learned that the average person doesn't have much imagination when it comes to organizings designs, one reason why he decided on coordinated accessories as a design idea.

Strangely enough, he couldn't even pass his drawing lessons as a child, and didn't realize until he attended the Art Institute of Chicago that he might have a future in design.

"I had studied law for two years abroad," he says. "My father was a European industrialist and wanted a lawyer in the family. We had escaped from Russia to Poland when I was 5, and so it seemed natural I would follow in his footsteps. I studied art in Paris but it wasn't until I came to America and attended the University of Chicago that I began to set my sights in that direction."

An authentic Briard motif may incorporate themes from his background — rich Byzantine motifs, ornate French and Victorian elaborations, lush Eastern design — warm American provincial, all adapted by Briard into accessories to meet the American taste.

Briard offers a number of useful tips for the homemaker who wishes to furnish with decorative accessories.

Furnish your home so that things are "discovered" by your guests. You may have a very dull house if one can see everything with the sweep of the eyes when one enters the room.

Buffet service is fine, but one loses the art of gracious dining unless one sits at the table for meals on occasion. Why not? It shouldn't take any more time to put out the good silver, fine china and crystal than it does to locate the old beat-up table ware.

If you do not have much money to spend, keep everything in neutral tones. Color is fine for those who can change it, but if you can't you may become bored.

You would be wise to see everything in a room as a whole, including draperies and upholstery. If there is some connection linking the entire room scheme it will have continuity that is not disturbing, then you can discover the little important touches that set the room apart.

It's a good idea not to buy anything with the "we'll exchange it if we don't like it" idea in mind. If you aren't sure of your purchase, don't buy it. Uncertainty is a good indication that you haven't made up your mind, and you may be sorry later that you made the purchase in the first place.

Investment Opportunity In Dade County

$75 PER ACRE

Every investor should own some of this property with a bright future soundly based on the growth of Greater Miami. Located north of the Tamiami Trail (U.S. 41). Excellent average elevation 8 ft. Less than 20% of Dade County enjoys such high elevation. Miami Beach has an elevation of 5 ft.

Bankers, Hotel Owners, Attorneys and Businessmen are among those who have purchased some of this property through us. These men recognize a wise investment. Land of this elevation in Dade County at such a low price presents an outstanding opportunity for enhancement.

$750. All cash for 10 acres. 29% down for larger parcels. We can't sell this land for a few dollars down and a dollar a week — if we did, we'd have to raise the price greatly. We'll pass the savings on to you.

No roads or utilities as yet. The wise investor purchases undeveloped land at a low price, and profits manyfold later. Only a limited quantity is available at this price, and this offering is subject to prior sale.

Title insurance and oil and mineral rights, of course.

Are You Batts About Building Terminology?

When a contractor refers to squares, furring or batts, he isn't talking about jazz, mink coats or baseball. He's using terms well known in the building trade.

A square is an area 10 feet by 10 feet (100 square feet). That unit is used by roofers to determine the amount of labor and materials needed to cover a roof. The roof of an average home will measure between 15 and 25 squares and the roofer figures his cost as so much per square.

Furring refers to wooden or metal strips that are applied to walls, ceilings and roofs to provide an even surface for the application of wall board, acoustical tiles or shingles.

Batts are rectangular sections of rock wool, jacketed with heavy kraft paper of aluminum foil, used to insulate a house. The batts enable rock wool insulation to be inserted between wall studs easily and in uniform thicknesses.

Other common building terms which the homeowner should know include:

Framing — wooden supports such as studs, joists, sills and lintels that make up the framework of a house or any of its parts, such as a window or door. A stud is the universally used "two-by-four" wall support—a vertical piece of wood two inches by four inches in thickness. Joists are parallel beams used to support ceilings or floors.

Sills — large beams resting horizontally on the foundation and to which the studs of the framework are fastened. A lintel is a horizontal beam placed over a doorway or window.

Sheathing — Fiber board, usually impregnated with asphalt, which covers the exterior side of the house framing.

Dry wall construction—The covering of the interior part of the framing with wall board, usually gypsum board, to insure an even finish. Wet wall construciton refers to plaster walls built up by "wet" plaster on lath.

Damp-proofing — The application of a water-resistant pitch—or asphalt—base coating to the outer wall of a foundation to prevent the penetration of dampness or moisture.

Do You Have Any Pushbutton Ideas?

Pushbutton Pattern for Living—that's the theme of the homemaker contest sponsored by the Miami Board of Realtors as a home show feature. Show opens March 29, continues through April 5, in Dinner Key Auditorium.

Contestants may submit an original idea for home improvement, a labor saving device or a suggestion for increasing the value of an existing worksaving device. Prizes will be awarded April 5.

A MESSAGE FROM ARTHUR A. DESSER

President of Desser and Garfield, and Lefcourt Realty Corporation, the Developers of Carol City

When we first opened our new Carol City to the public in September, 1957, we pledged that it would become America's outstanding and most exciting new community development—a city on the move. We promised beautiful landscaping and safe waterways, and houses built by the nation's top craftsmen. We said we would create a community of families and friendships. We assured the public of outstanding design and distinctive appointments at a price scale to fit the pocketbook of almost any family interested in improving their way of life and with the best possible terms obtainable in America. We promised convenient shopping, schools, churches, and playgrounds.

The thousands of happy families who now call Carol City home are living proof that these promises are being, and will continue to be, fulfilled.

We were justly proud of the dramatic home presentations made by Heftler homes, Jim Kay homes, and Junez homes—and last weekend by Willard Woodrow. Our staff has worked many long hours with these builders on the details of the planning, landscaping, engineering, decorating and financing needed to create these dramatic new homes which now offer you a new dimension in Florida living.

Yes, Carol City is still exciting—it's still a city on the move—and it's still a community of families and friendships. However, the tens of thousands who came last weekend pinned a shiny new adjective on Carol City's vest—it's now the FASHIONABLE place to live in Miami. We invite you to visit Carol City and see for yourself.

NUCLEAR AGE SCHOOL, designed by Albert Sigal Jr., is the product of a study conducted by the California North chapter of the American Institute of Architects. It is a combination elementary school and mass shelter from radioactive fallout. The model on display at Palo Alto shows in the bird's eye view the ramps leading to the underground school and the earth-covered shelter. Bottom photos shows the folded plate roof of prestressed concrete.

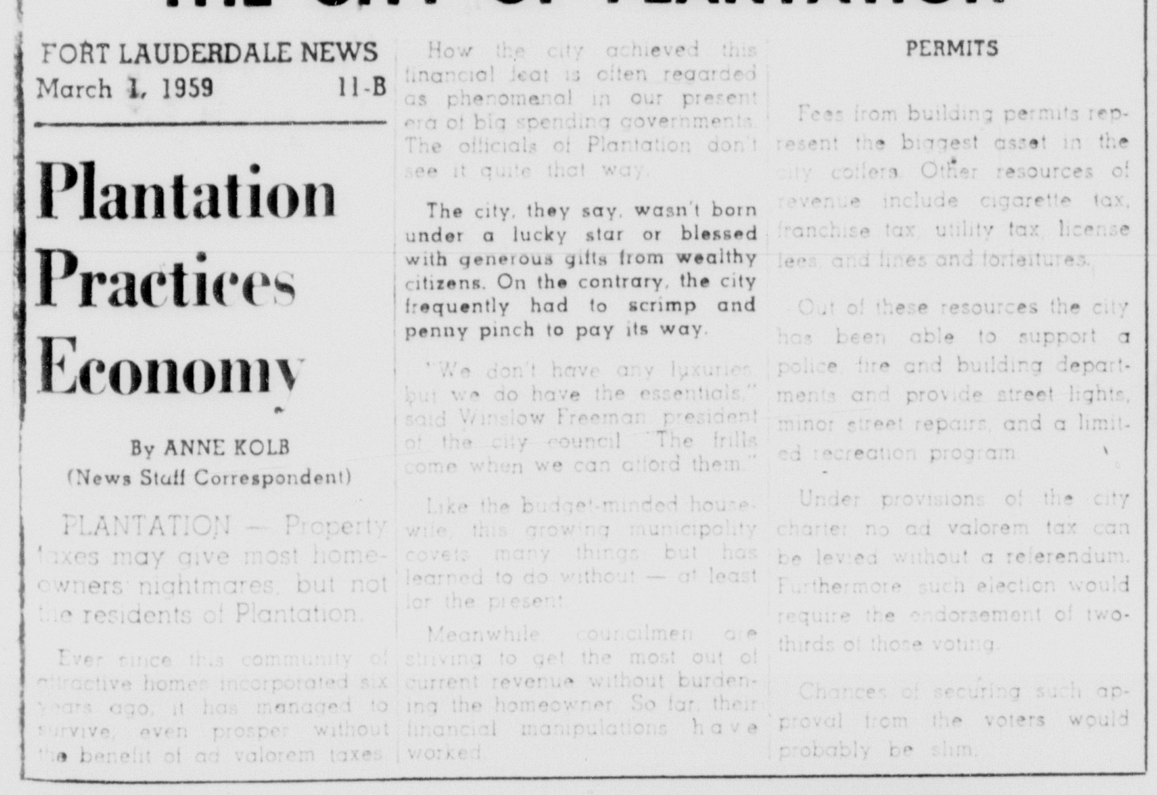
NO CITY TAXES IN THE CITY OF PLANTATION



FORT LAUDERDALE NEWS
March 1, 1959 11-B

Plantation Practices Economy

By ANNE KOLB
(News Staff Correspondent)

PLANTATION — Property taxes may give most homeowners nightmares, but not the residents of Plantation.

Ever since this community of attractive homes incorporated six years ago, it has managed to survive, even prosper without the benefit of ad valorem taxes.

How the city achieved this financial feat is often regarded as phenomenal in our present era of big spending governments. The officials of Plantation don't see it quite that way.

The city, they say, wasn't born under a lucky star or blessed with generous gifts from wealthy citizens. On the contrary, the city frequently had to scrimp and penny pinch to pay its way.

"We don't have any luxuries but we do have the essentials," said Winslow Freeman, president of the city council. "The frills come when we can afford them."

Like the budget-minded housewife, this growing municipality covets many things but has learned to do without — at least for the present.

Meanwhile, councilmen are striving to get the most out of current revenue without burdening the homeowner. So far, their financial manipulations have worked.

PERMITS

Fees from building permits represent the biggest asset in the city coffers. Other resources of revenue include cigarette tax, franchise tax, utility tax, license fees, and fines and forfeitures.

Out of these resources the city has been able to support a police, fire and building departments and provide street lights, minor street repairs, and a limited recreation program.

Under provisions of the city charter no ad valorem tax can be levied without a referendum. Furthermore, such election would require the endorsement of two-thirds of those voting.

DIRECTIONS FROM MIAMI: Drive north on State Rd. 7 (U.S. 441). Turn left at Peters Rd. (Second stoplight north of Routes 84 and 7 intersection) drive west ACROSS Turnpike bridge to Plantation Isles. Alternate route: Drive north on Sunshine State Parkway; Exit at State Rd. 84 interchange; drive north on Route 7, turn left at Peters Rd. (S.W. 12th St.) Phone LU 1-2811.

Two Zeckendorfs Change The Face of the Nation

Young Bill Is Used to Huge Jobs

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The William Zeckendorfs . . . Father and Son
. . . with artist's conception of hotel they plan in Manhattan

The two William Zeckendorfs — senior and junior — have some $200 million in real estate development projects underway at the moment in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Their staff of 400 here also has on the drawing boards other projects totaling hundreds of millions of more dollars — office buildings, shopping centers, apartment buildings, home developments and hotels.

It is the first major hotel to be built here since 1931 and will cost nearly 70 million dollars, making it history's most expensive inn by far. That is a lot of responsibility to put on the shoulders of a 29-year-old man. But young Bill, who already runs six other Zeckendorf hotels here, shows no worry.

He has been used to big figures, ever since starting as an office boy with his father at the age of 14.

"It's easier to build a big project than a small one," he said, adding: "You deal with bigger people."

Pointing out that Manhattan has lost thousands of hotels rooms as the result of old hostelries such as the Ritz being torn down to make way for office buildings, young Zeckendorf said: "We expect there'll be a big boom in hotel building here now."

Bill, like many other real estate leaders, also expects a massive surge in home building early in the 1960s.

"The country is building a million housing units a year now," he said. "There's a very good chance we'll get up to two million units a year soon.

"But we've almost reached the end of the commuting line. We look forward to a return to the city — and a resurgence within the city."

Optimism seems to be hereditary in the Zeckendorf clan. Both father and son feel the biggest danger to business expansion is business cowardice.

"You can't lose your courage in a big deal," remarked Bill. "If you depend too much on cold logic, sometimes you won't do anything. You simply have to let intuition rule you sometimes.

"Hard work counts in any operation. It is the most important single ingredient. But tenacity and courage are almost as important."

Bill and his father are both big, dark-haired dynamic men given to expressing themselves crisply and forcefully. Don't they ever rub each other the wrong way?

Young Bill smiled. "We get along as well as any father and son can," he said. "Certain areas he runs, others I run.

"There's only one thing we decided against doing — that was living in the same building."

The United Nations has played a large role in both their lives. The assembling of the building plot for the UN helped springboard the senior Zeckendorf to public fame as a real estate wizard.

Later on a blind date, young Bill met Guri Lie, daughter of Trygve Lie, then UN Secretary General. Now they are married and have a young son.

For the member of a firm that presently is building some 8,000 housing units, Bill has an unusual problem.

"I'm trying to find a nice big apartment for my family in a big old-fashioned building," he said. "Let me know if you hear of one."

Hoefle to Build Church Addition

Hoefle Construction Co. will build an addition to the First Christian Church of North Dade, at 12800 NW 1st Ct. Watson and Deutschman, architectural engineering firm, designed the $143,399 addition.

Designers Guild Sets Derby Date

CAMERON

SAIGER

Already at work on the third annual Design Derby are members of the Designers and Decorators Guild. Herbert C. Saiger again will serve as chairman of the event.

Derby's scheduled for Febuary in Dupont Plaza Center. Steering committee for the Derby, now nationally recognized as a noteworthy competition in the field of home furnishings design, includes James D. Johnston, James Merrick Smith, Edwin T. Reeder, J. Robert Justus and Otto Holbein.

Staging will be handled by Jack Cameron and William Von Seggren. Jini Costello is program chairman. Haygood Lasseter will "call" the jury to pronounce the verdict on competitive items entered in the Derby.

Orange City is a long established town just 4 miles South of Deland, situated on high land among extensive orange groves. Immediately surrounding Orange City there is extensive development and home building. Some nationally known projects in the area include Plantation Estates, a 2,000-acre community; Riverside Estates on the St. Johns River; and the outstandingly successful Daytona Park Estates, a retirement community between Deland and Daytona Beach developed by an affiliate of Florida Realty Bureau, Inc.

The most important single factor in the development of the area is its enormously accelerated industrial growth. Between Daytona Beach, Deland, and Orange City there have been a number of new industries established ranging from citrus packing to light manufacturing and electronic research. These have been brought into being in large part by the growth of Orlando, just 32 miles south of Orange City on U.S. 17-92. Orlando is the site of the new Glenn Martin Corp. aircraft plant, which is expected to employ 20,000 people.

Acreage in the Orange City-DeLand area is today conservatively valued at $600 to $1500 per acre in tracts of 100 acres or larger. Smaller tracts usually command prices from $1500 upwards an acre and are available with usually ½ down and balance within 2 to 3 years. There are no small parcels available anywhere in this rapidly growing area, at any price or terms, comparable to this unique offering by Florida Realty Bureau, Inc.

Previews Doesn't Handle Project Homes, BUT

Miss Wiss Can Sell You a Castle in Spain

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

NEW YORK — A friend of mine was telling me about his inability to find a one-room apartment in New York when, without ringing even once, the postman entered with the latest on the world housing situation — as seen through the eyes of Previews.

CONSIDINE

Previews is an international real estate agency. It's Miss Wiss, a charming woman, was introduced to me at the Overseas Press Club some years ago and, what with the din, got me confused with the real estate editor of the New York Journal American. Ever since, she has favored me annually with her company's heady wares, and I've grown to look forward to the new listings with the same compelling stirrings which must motivate the lemming as it contemplates an excursion to the nearest seaside resort.

* * *

WELL, we've got some dillies for you house-hunters this time, just waiting to be snatched from the jaws of termite and inching jungle.

Miss Wiss (one of my favorite names since Cedric Frederic, the resident president of the revision division of the Brazilian pavillion) writes sentences that would make Bill Zeckendorf faint. To wit.

"Twenty of the 535 properties in the Guide are attached for you herewith. Total approximate value for the entire book comes to $1,006,740,000."

We might have snapped up the lot, then and there, if she hadn't put that word "approximate" in there.

Imagine how humiliating it would be to drop $1,006,740,000 in small change into Miss Wiss' lap and say, like a true Texan, "Cleans me out, but I'll take the lot, Mum," only to have her reply, "Sorry, Tex, you're $13 short."

Been looking for a place that feels like country but is within easy commuting distance to the old job, at the pickle packing plant? Sort of a Castle in Spain, but near the bus? Well, Buster, you've come to the right place, as we say here at Previews.

* * *

A 150-YEAR-OLD castle "commanding a panorama of the city of Barcelona . . . But the property is only 10 minutes from Plaza de Cataluna, the town center, and tramway and bus routes are near." A steal at $200,000.

What about commuting to and from the old job, that's a detail, true, but no problem at all if you can get a cotton-picking pickle packing job in Barcelona.

Then there's a $90,000 place in Monaco. On a clear day you can see Grace Grimaldi. A sacrifice is involved here, Miss Wiss confides. Seems a bloke built it as a surprise present for his wife. The babe took one look, spit, and left both it and him. Probably didn't like the drapes.

Six months residence in Rainier's realm will make the buyer immune to income, inheritance, personal and corporate taxes. "It's only 10 minutes to the border in any direction," Miss Wiss leers.

DON'T WANT to give up taxes? Well, we're offering Villa Medici, the Florentine Palace from which Lorenzo the Magnificent ruled much of Europe. Certain conveniences, little things like plumbing, have been added — but still dirt cheap at $300,000. Or, for only $23,800, a spired castle in old country Tyrone named Knock-Na-Moe. Good spot (and name) for a drama critic who has been transferred to obits.

Morton Downey has put up his Greenwich estate for $250,000. "Roughly the equivalent on the two cent return of 25,000,000 empty Coke bottles," Miss Wiss writes, making it seem invitingly within the reach of us all.

Ever wanted to be mayor of a city. Then buy Key Colony Beach, Fla. Only 4 million and change. Bing Crosby is offering his Idaho ranch for $95,000. Not enough room, since the new baby came.

If you demand even more elbow room, there's the Gamble Ranch, 600,000 acres that start in Nevada and spill over into Utah, 3 million.

Or Twin Islands in Loughborough Lake, Ontario. Miss Wiss promises the buyer that he can "walk across the frozen water that divides his property." But we would warn against trying it in summer time unless he's unusually clever.

Beach Sales Drop Below 1958 Total

Donald S. Beck, president of the Miami Beach Board of Realtors, says February sales amounted to $4,308,130, compared to $4,526,200 for February of 1958.

Thirty-seven homes were sold, their prices totaling $1,933,280 and thirteen apartments contributed $1,107,000 to the February balance sheet.

Keyes Volume Climbs

Business volume during February at the Keyes Co. was $2 million ahead of the figure for January. A total of $5,816,320 was rung up last month, compared to $3,616,468 in January. This represents a 61 per cent increase.

The 127 sales transacted amounted to $4,585,528. The mortgage department accepted $454,750 in new loans during the month. The property management department collected $776,042 in rents and leases.

They're Selling a Cooperative Way of Life

By CHARLES GRUTZNER
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Leaders of housing cooperatives are trying to find out why Americans in general are staying away from what one expert describes as "the best buy in housing for middle income families."

And when they arrive at answers they will conduct a nationwide campaign to sell the cooperative way of life, including consumer buying and community affairs as well as housing.

Ira S. Robbins, New York City Housing Authority member, outlined the problem at the three-day conference sponsored by the National Housing Conference, the Cooperative League of the U.S.A. and the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials. He said there are only 78,000 "true cooperative" housing units in the nation and 30,000 of them are in New York City.

Robbins said the true cooperatives constitute a little more than a thousandth of the country's 50 million homes.

"You can't call cooperative housing a movement here," he said. "It is still a gleam in the eyes of a handful of individuals working through a few public-interest organizations which lack the financial support to produce a real movement."

Robbins said he was not counting "the $50,000 to $100,000 luxury apartments on Fifth and Park Avenues whose owners converted them from rental to cooperative, often against the wishes of tenants."

A slightly more cheerful bit of arithmetic was offered by Winslow Carlton, president of the Foundation for Cooperative Housing, who said: "We must recognize that upon the American scene as a whole, cooperative housing is still a small factor, accounting for only some 2 per cent of all dwellings built each year."

Carlton's figures did not conflict with those of Robbins; they merely pointed up the fact that cooperative construction, small as it is now, was almost non-existent across most of the nation 10, 20 and 30 years ago.

Nearly all of the conferees agreed cooperative housing in the U.S. is still in its infancy and requires educational missionary work and wider financial support if it is to grow to maturity. They proposed local tax abatement, of the kind that encouraged non-profit cooperatives in New York City, and low-interest mortgage loans.

"Cooperative housing has achieved a lot more than maturity," declared the federal housing chief. "Look at the pride of home ownership that the people have who live in cooperatives — the kind of civic pride that has made America great.

"You have a bigger job to do on lenders than on individual home owners. The home owners know the dividends that cooperative projects pay. Lenders generally do not. The Administration is trying to be helpful on this score by recommending an increase in the statutory limitation on interest rates on management type projects to 5½ per cent so as to attract more capital."

Robbins said about 10,000 of the non-profit cooperative apartments in New York received "very liberal tax concessions, which makes them the best buy in town." He and other speakers declared that municipalities must face the fact that no private rental housing was being built for families in the lower middle income range and tax concessions are needed.

Warning of a tightening of local tax concessions was given by Harold Ostroff, vice president of Community Services, Inc., which develops cooperative projects sponsored by the United Housing Foundation in New York City. Ostroff reported that two projects — the 5,200-unit Warbasse Houses and the 2,800 Penn Station South — were stalled in the Board of Estimate because of disagreement over the amount of tax abatement. Declaring that the average wage earner with annual income of $6,000 or less could not afford to pay more than $100 rent for four or five rooms, Ostroff said non-profit cooperatives receiving tax abatement were the only type of private housing built within that range in recent years. Monthly carrying charges on most of the non-profit cooperatives range from $18 to $23 a room, after down payments of from $150 to $650 a room. Maintenance and repair costs were said to be lower in cooperatives than in rental housing because there is less turnover of occupancy and because the cooperators take better care of properties. The initial investment was said to be one reason — cooperatives were making little headway outside a few highly urbanized cities. "Some people think of cooperative as being communal," Robbins said, "and from there they think of communistic. That's something we must overcome by education."

Ostroff said that, aside from reducing housing costs, "cooperative housing leads to other self-help enterprises, such as the cooperative sale and distribution of food, credit unions, activities for children and adults, and other cultural social and economic gains."

Jerry Voorhis, executive director of the Cooperative League, told the 160 conferees that residents of non-profit cooperatives paid one-third to one-fourth less for housing than tenants in comparable straight rental housing. Voorhis is a former congressman from California.

New Fund Proposed In Housing

The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—A bill to set up a two-billion-dollar revolving fund for low-interest loans to builders of private housing for middle-income families was offered in the Senate this week by Sens. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), and Joseph D. Clark (R., Pa.).

Javits said the proposed Federal Limited Profit Mortgage Corp. would lead to construction of at least 150,000 housing units at monthly rents of $20 to $25 a room.

He said this was a realistic rental range for 3 million middle-income families now living in substandard housing.

The measure creating the federal corporation would authorize it to issue, in the first year, 500-million dollars in government-guaranteed tax-exempt bonds. The amount could be increased by the President to a total of two billion dollars. Loans would be made to builders and cooperators at about one-half of one per cent more than the interest rate at which the federal corporation could borrow money. The 50-year mortgages would cover 90 per cent of development costs.

As proposed by Sen. Javits and Clark, the federal corporation would sell bonds, similar to housing authority issues. While taking advantage of the federal government's credit position, it would not use public money for the loans.

To qualify for loans, developers would have to limit profits to 6 per cent on their investment. Rents or carrying charges would have to be approved by the federal corporation. Preference would be given to projects in slum clearance areas and to those receiving local support in the form of tax abatement or municipal aid in assembling the land.

Stereo Screen Is Arty

By MARGUERITE DAVIS
By United Press International

CHICAGO — A Chicago designer has introduced a new sound system made to order for hi-fi and stereophonic fans who can't find room for bulky speakers. He hangs them on the wall.

The "decrosonic" sound system combines a high fidelity speaker in a panel screened by a hand painting on silk or grasscloth. The result is pleasing to eye and ear.

The panels can be attached to a record player or television set, or bought in pairs with the necessary stero parts.

The system has rated responses of 40 to 15,000 cycles per second, and a rated output of 12 watts with 8 Ohm resistance.

Designer Robert Stone Jordan said the sound is almost equal, regardless of the picture's size. There are four sizes from which to choose, ranging from 24 by 36 inches to 36 by 48 inches.

The purchaser also has his choice of nine subjects. The average price is about $150.

The purchaser may specify any of four color combinations. For about $30 more, he may send in a photograph to be copied.

Any technique may be ordered. The manufacturer, Audio Artists Ltd. of Chicago, displayed pictures in delicate, Japanese-like lines at the midwinter home furnishings show. The oil paint also is applied by pallet knife or in heavy strokes showing brush marks.

The material is washable, and is porous for good listening.

This Project's A Huge One

Starrett Building Co. is the owner-builder of an apartment house project planned in the 2200 block on NW 9th St. in Fort Lauderdale. There will be 35 six-unit structures, with construction costs figured at $700,000.

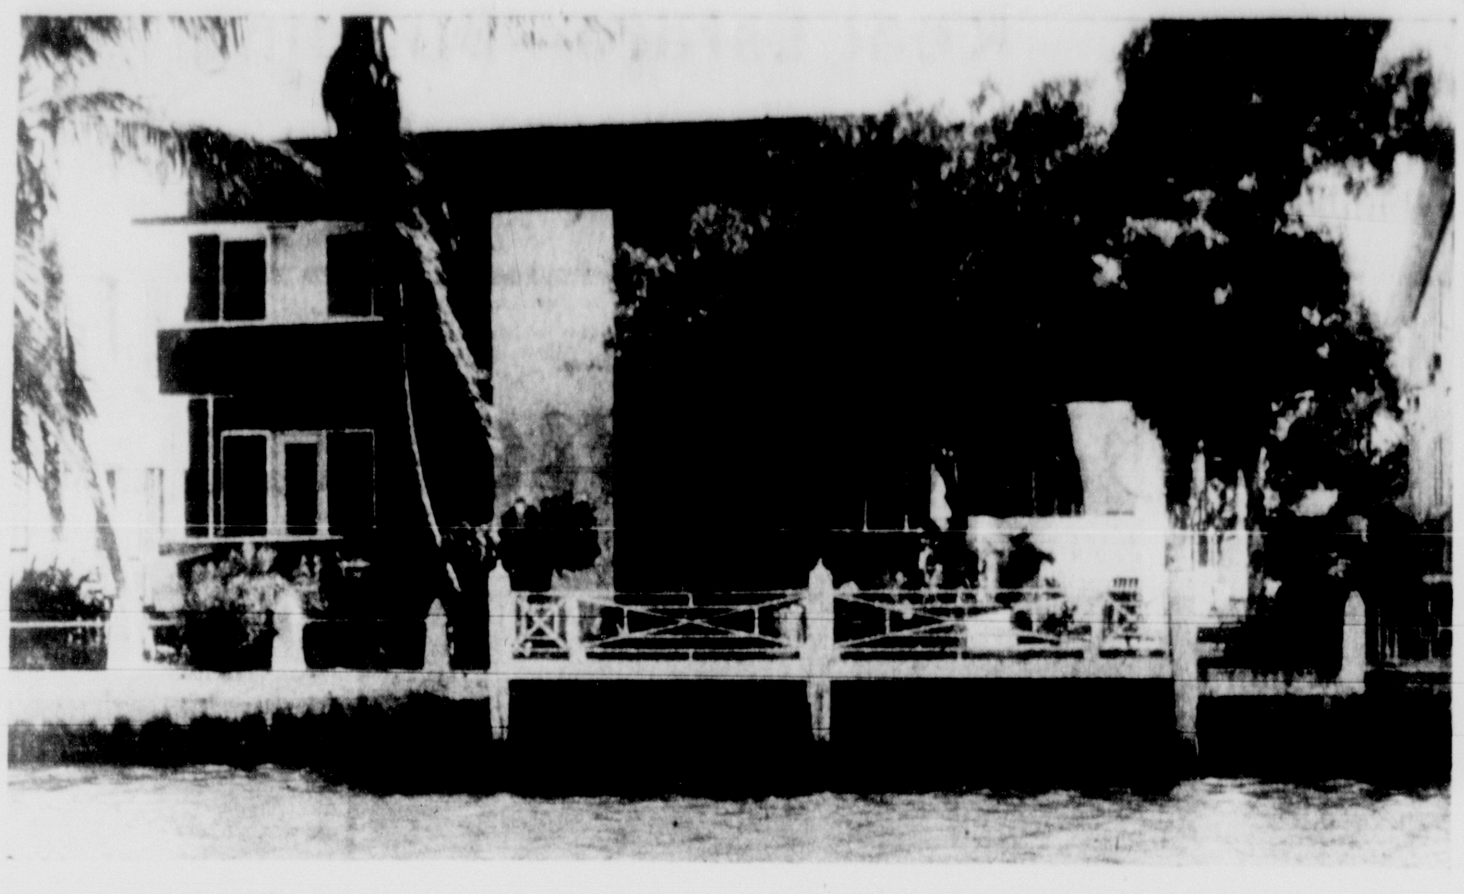
Meats the Need

A permit has been issued to Dirrs Gold Seal Meats for a meat packing plant addition at 1177 NW 81st St. William F. Dobbs will construct the $133,000 two-story addition. Engineer is W. C. Gorman.



EXCHANGE DEAL involved the Lake Surprise Apartments, 975 W. 48th St., Miami Beach. The 975 Corp., headed by Martin Tieger, traded the 14-unit building for two lots on Fisher Island and 100 acres in the Western section of Dade County. Land Corp. of America owned the undeveloped property. Nat Ratner is president of this corporation. He also was the Realtor on the deal. Apartment house is valued at $135,000.

You Can't Take a Loss

The Tax Angle on Home Sale

By ANDREW C. LANG

NEW YORK — (AP) — Did you sell your home in 1958?

Uncle Sam wants to know about it — by April 15 at the latest. That is, unless you sold the house at a loss, in which case you can forget about it. Such a loss is not recognized by the tax law and therefore can not be deducted.

But if you sold the house at a gain, a much more likely circumstance these days, you may have some income tax figuring to do.

If you bought another house at a higher price than the selling price of the old one (or equal to it), you need pay no capital gains tax on the transactions.

To be in this no-tax category, you must purchase the new residence and occupy it within one year before or after the sale of the old one.

You get 18 months to occupy the new house if construction of it was started within the one-year-period.

If you bought another home at a lower price than the selling price of the old one, you must pay a tax. This tax is computed by deducting the cost of the new house from the adjusted sales price of the old one. The balance is the taxable amount.

The adjusted sales price, by the way, is the contract price minus the selling expenses, minus whatever you spent on permanent improvements and minus any repairs made to facilitate the deal.

Such repairs (painting is included) must have been made within 90 days prior to the date of the sale and paid for within 30 days after the sale.

Since it is the type of buy-and-sell transaction discussed in the foregoing paragraph which causes the most trouble at income tax time, let's look at an example of how it works. John Smith sells a house for $16,000 for which he paid $12,000. The selling expenses come to $800.

He spent $600 on permanent improvements and $400 to put the house in shape to attract a buyer. Deduct $1,800 from $16,000 and you have the adjusted sales price of $14,200.

If he did not buy another house within one year, John Smith would have to pay a tax on his gain of $2,200. But he did buy another house — for $13,500.

Therefore, he pays a tax on only $700 — the difference between the adjusted sales price and the cost of the new house.

There is one important exception to the above. If the difference between the adjusted sales price and the cost of the new house is more than the profit made on the old house, then the tax is paid on the profit alone.

From Atomic Subs

New Air Filter Uses Activated Charcoal

NEW YORK — Activated charcoal, the wonder substance used to purify the air in our atomic submarines, is now ready for home use.

A room unit containing a purifying filter removes dust, pollen, smog, odors, vapors and other impurities and irritants from the air. The unit circulates the air in the room through filters which allow the air to pass through but retain the particles containing irritants and odors. It works like a sponge on vapors.

The activated charcoal filter contains millions of microscopic chambers through which the air is forced. The particles are trapped as they move through these chambers and the air that comes out at the other end is clean and pure.

The unit removes vapors and odors from the air rather than masking them with other odors or chemically dulling the sense of smell.

The purifying property of activated charcoal has long been known for its effectiveness. It is familiar to a wide number of people as the substance used in gas masks to filter out the harmful vapors.

The substance has also been employed widely in large units in hospitals, schools, laboratories and industrial plants.

The unit, designed to purify the air in a 15' by 15' room, has chrome plated steel grills and sides with a baked enamel top. It is completely portable and has a retracting carrying handle. The unit is equipped with a specially designed quiet motor.

List Needs, Then Select Your Home

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
United Press International

NEW YORK — Houses, like people, come in all sizes and shapes. It is up to the individual couple to list their special needs and habits, and then look for a house that meets those needs.

As for size, the house should have at least 1,000 square feet, according to the experts. Does it have a sufficient number of bedrooms, bathrooms and closets, a recreation room and adequate eating space in the kitchen for your family?

The exterior and interior design of the house should be pleasant and functional. Bedrooms should be situated away from living areas for privacy and freedom from noise.

The type of house — ranch, two-story or split level — is entirely up to you. All three have their pros and cons, so your own preferences and dislikes will be the main factors in this choice.

The lot should be big enough to afford privacy — allowing at least 10 to 12 feet between houses. Landscaping also is important, both for appearance and for shade.

The average home buyer will find it a little difficult to appraise the construction of a house. In this case it usually is best to bring along someone with knowledge of the subject.

You should be alert for cracks in the foundation, seepage, squeaky floors, inadequate insulation, roof leakage, inefficient heating plant, and insufficient electrical outlets.

Because of the complexities and size of a home purchase, it is recommended that you have an attorney inspect and offer advice before signing any instrument of sale.

Upon finding your "dream house," the United States Savings and Loan League recommends that you make certain of three basic things before signing an agreement to purchase:

That the house offers full value for the money, and is not overpriced. A professional appraisal is the one sure way of avoiding an exaggerated price.

That the agreement-to-purchase contract provides for the return of your "earnest money" in the event certain conditions cannot be met.

That the agreement covers such important points as sales price, amount of cash payment and manner of financing; an agreed date of delivery of the property; copy of plans and specifications or the right to inspect them; as well as provision for the delivery of a clear title, and oftentimes a survey. The agreement also should specify what goes with the house, such as carpeting, appliances, drapes, storm windows, etc.

Slick Trick

DIPPING PLIERS in thinned clear lacquer is a good rust preventative. Only one drawback: when the lacquer begins to chip, it must be removed with thinner before tools are given a new coat.

Wheat Export

Since the start of the U.S. government's surplus disposal program in 1954, India has acquired 266,000,000 bushels of wheat, or the equivalent in flour, more than any other country.

The Seat Of School Problem

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Improper school furniture may be the seat of Johnny's reading problems.

"Eye and body strains affect the ability to absorb material. Furniture definitely contributes to better learning, better posture, better vision. Lack of proper design actually hinders learning," said Louis W. Brant, of Grand Rapids, Mich., merchandising director for the largest manufacturers of public seating.

Working on the theory that improved furniture also improves a teacher's work, the company developed an L-shaped electronic desk that contains a 21-inch television screen, tape recorder, dial telephone, and fingertip controls that open and close draperies and turn on lights.

The desk serves as a work and conference center, classroom control unit, and storage space for the teacher's books, papers and records.

"Nothing is more important in school than seating. A child spends 15,000 hours sitting at a desk in the most formative period of his life. Yet when towns build schools, they don't want to spend the money for good furniture. But the only reason they build the school is to give youngsters a place to sit down and learn," said Brant in an interview

"Look at adults today who have one shoulder lower than the other from bending over to get books," he continued. "I say that half jokingly, but orthopedic studies and X-rays have proved there's a lot of truth in it."

To avoid physical strains, new desk tops can be raised to different angles for reading, writing, or drawing. Tops are of beige plastic resembling white birch, scientifically developed to eliminate glare.

Seats swivel so that children can turn without scraping chairs or moving desks, and the seats are comfortable—designed to reduce restless wiggling, distraction from studies and disturbances to the rest of the class.

Chair backs are of molded plastic which fits the body and flexes with movement. All chairs and desks are adjustable to "grow" with the student.

The furniture is tested by simulating 30 years of "child wear" in a classroom. Weights are placed on seats, and the chairs are tipped back and forth thousands of times.

Too many parents say "What is all that necessary? I never had that," declared Brant, the father of a college girl.

"But they don't realize that in the days of the old wooden benches and hard chairs, only people who wanted to learn really learned. And too few wanted to learn in such uncomfortable surroundings."

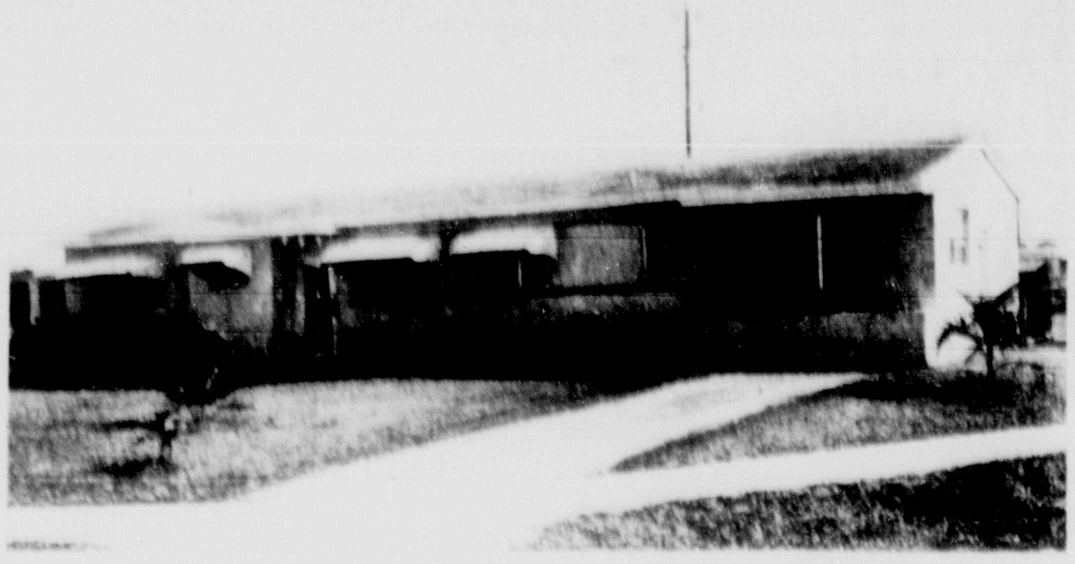
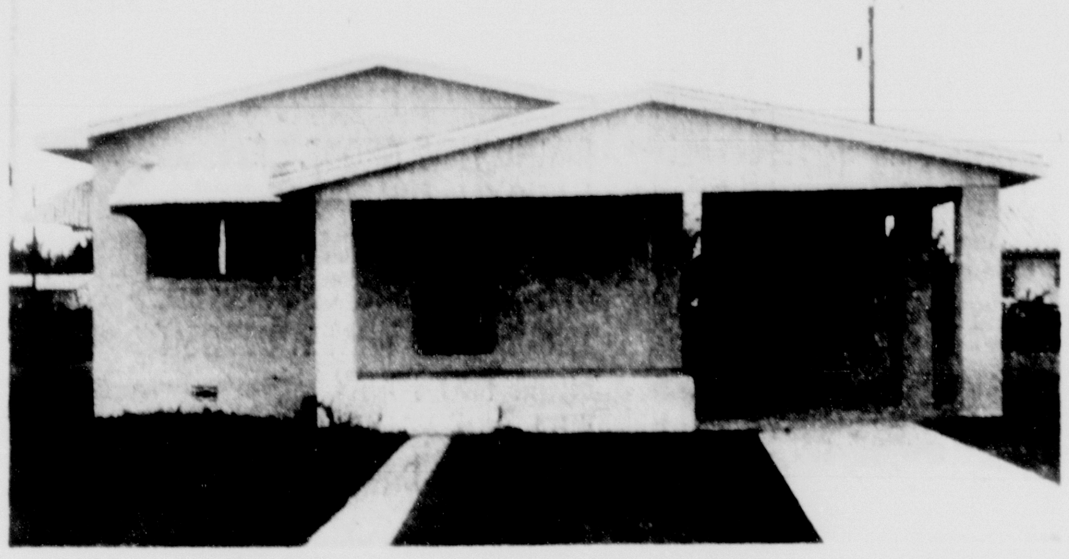
What's Your Home Worth on Today's Market?

HIALEAH HOME at 4229 W. 8th Ave. has been sold by Arthur and Maxine Elliott to Mrs. Virginia Creekmore for $13,500. Former owners of the three-bedroom home are moving to Hawaii. Christine Brunner of Faulkner Realty handled the sale.



THREE BEDROOM home with two baths at 1870 NW 185th St. has been purchased by Mrs. Mabel Tremblay for $16,500. Former owners are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence A. Barwick. H. Jean Carlson of Seventh Avenue Realty sold it.



SOLD FOR $12,950, this home at 4320 NW 179th St. now belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dalziel. It has three bedrooms, one and a half baths. Former owner is Margaret I. Thomson. William Thomson listed home with Miami Board of Realtors. Florida Realty Bureau sold it.

SOUTHWEST SECTION is the location of this three-bedroom, two-bath home which Hope Lawson of Scarsdale, N.Y., recently purchased for $15,500. Address is 8241 SW 35th Ter. Property formerly belonged to the Cooper Welchs, who are now living in Italy. David Portner Realty negotiated the transaction.

LOCATED IN the Northwest section, this duplex recently was sold by Pascual de Rojas of Havana for $15,200. Josephine Capponelli purchased it. One side has a one-bedroom unit, the other, two. W. J. Frese's office handled the transfer of property. Address is 724 NW 28th Ave.

CENTRAL AIR conditioning and heating system helped sell this three-bedroom, two-bath home at 121 SW 20th Rd. Oscar Alsina paid Francis Lavigne $27,500 for the property. Lot is 100 by 135 feet and there's a swimming pool on the premises. Carlos Villa negotiated the transaction.

Ounce of Prevention Worth Pound of Cure

WILMINGTON, Del. — Inexpensive warning horns, powered by their own self-contained supply of a nonflammable liquefied gas and triggered by a simple heat-sensitive device, can help prevent tragedies such as the recent Chicago school fire by warning of fire conditions before a blaze gains headway.

The devices emit an ear-piercing blast of sound (rated at 100 decibels or more) for five minutes or longer after being activated by heat.

Fusible metal plugs, which melt at a predetermined temperature releasing the liquefied gas to blow the horn, make these safety devices self-contained units, requiring no wiring or external controls.

The warning horns depend upon a liquefied gas, such as "freon" propellent, as their source of power. "Freon" is ideal in such applications because it changes readily from a liquid to a gas when released by melting of the fusible plug. A little of it goes a long way in blowing the horn, for in changing to a gas, the nonflammable "freon" expands 240 times its liquid volume.

Prices of recommended warning horns bearing Underwriters' Laboratories approval range from $25 to $35, depending upon size and construction.

Dentist Buys Rental Units

Rosenthal bought the 7-unit structure which was built about a year ago from Ben Pumo Jr., for $82,000. Sale was negotiated by C. Guthrie Babcock of the Keyes Co.

Building Sold In South Miami

Ten South Miami commercial units, including stores and offices, have been sold for $120,000. The property is located at 5827-59 SW 73rd St.

Constructed in 1956, the building contains 8,280 square feet. Emerson B. Read of the Keyes Co. negotiated the sale between the owners, Fasan Realty, and A. Pierce.

Senate's New Office Building Offers the Latest in Comfort

'Living Symbol'

The new Senate office building, which will house 42 senators and their staffs soon after the Easter recess, has a "softer" touch for the lawmakers. Recessed lights, sound-absorbent tile and purified air are some of the features; but the new building isn't as fancy as the 1908 "old" building was for its day. Engraved above its formal entrance will be: "The Senate is the Living Symbol of our Union of States."

By JAMES M. HASWELL
Of Our Washington Bureau

HASWELL

WASHINGTON — Workmen are putting the last electronic elevator buttons into place and polishing for the first time the rubber tile floors of the new Senate office building.

Forty-two Senators and 75 Senatorial employees will move into new 25 million dollar marble quarters before the end of the Easter recess of Congress. At the same time the 56 other Senators will take over vacated rooms in the 50-year-old "old" Senate office building as fast as they become available.

When all the moving is over, there'll be few vacancies even though the new building increases the total number of Senate office rooms from 363 to 678. Most senators will get five room suites for themselves and their employes and the rest will go to the Senate's two dozen committee staffs.

The Senate's old office building cost $8,400,000 back in 1908 and was the best that good taste could design at that time. The new building offers some contrasts. Hallway floors are rubber instead of marble, and hearing room floors are cork.

Recessed wall and ceiling lights, instead of elaborate glass candelabra, shed 40 foot-candles of shadowless light. News photographers can put away their spotlights and flashguns.

Wells in the new building are of acoustical plaster, and ceilings of sound-absorbent tile. But the new electric-driven typewriters, especially robot machines, are growing bigger, faster and noisier all the time. It's a question whether the noise level will be reduced much when the building is fully occupied.

Work areas have movable partitions to divide up space, instead of walls. Air taken into the new building is dried and cleaned before senators are allowed to breathe it. And of course the temperature will be controlled summer and winter.

The artificial atmosphere makes high ceilings unnecessary, and the new building ceilings are only 10.5 feet high instead of 15 and 18 feet. It gives the long hallways a low look.

The new building isn't as fancy by today's standard as the old Senate building was for its day. A deliberate effort has been made to keep the level of luxury the same in each. Wall-to-wall carpets are used only in the personal offices of Senators.

The senators have either pastel green, ruby or beige leather upholstery, and their new offices feature big wooden desks and big metal safes. Their deeply-padded, high-backed executive chairs cost $143 each. In the general offices the upholstery is filbert, a warm, reddish color like terra cotta, and the desks are smaller and plainer.

The marble exterior of the new building follows the same traditional classic design which characterizes the Capitol, and the two House office buildings, as well as the old Senate office building. It fits in well with the Supreme Court building. Only the Library of Congress "seems different" as one gazes ,around the Capitol plaza. The Library's green dome and writhing statuary give it an 1890 European look.

"The Senate is the Living Symbol of our Union of States."

This is not a quotation but an original statement worked out by the committee which built the building. Sen. Dennis Chavez (D.,N.M.) headed this committee and Sens. Theodore Francis Green (D., R.I.) and H. Styles Bridges (R., N.H.) are members. They "kicked the idea around" until Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex), the majority leader, came up with the final wording.

One casualty of the new move will be those quaint monorail electric cars which since 1912 have carried senators and visitors through the 760-foot tunnel from the Capitol to the old office building. The cars still are running but their days are numbered. They're going to the Smithsonian Institution where other national curios are kept.

Workmen are finishing two new tunnels in which four electric cars, two in each tunnel, will shuttle back and forth. These will look something like roller-coaster cars, will run on two tracks each, and be operated as automatically as elevators.

Although one of the new tunnels leads to the old building and one to the new, they join to make an underground "Y" in front of the Capitol. Eventually the joined tunnels will come to a terminal under the Capitol dome, but for the present the cars will load and unload at a temporary platform near the point where the tunnels join.

The new tunnels will be ready in June. Until then the Senate will operate a station wagon shuttle from the new office building garage to the archway under the Senate steps.

The purpose of the tunnel system is to give senators quick access to the Senate floor from their offices, without having to push through crowds of Capitol visitors or stop and shake hands. When the bells in the offices and committee rooms ring announcing a Senate vote some members have to travel a distance equal to three city blocks before the clerk finishes calling the Senate roll.

Although in the new building this distance is even longer, with four instead of two trolley cars in service the senators hope their travel time will be the same. But until June the Senate clerk plans to call the Senate roll very slowly indeed.

Make Light Work of Chores

DIVIDED IT STANDS—the new kitchen. Streamlined appliances now make it possible to incorporate them in a minimum of space. Some—like the oven unit pictured—can be used without enclosing in a cabinet structure. Appliances today also add color to what used to be the drabbest area in the house. This divider-kitchen arrangement not only is a space-saver but it also makes the job of meal preparation and service easier. Pegboard paneling used in the divider makes a convenient "rack" for hanging cooking utensils.

No Need To Take Dim View

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. — Do u take a dim view of the itchen chores? If you are ie of those many persons iat do, your attitude may be- ome even worse when meals iust be prepared under artificial light.

Myrtle Fahsbender, residen- al lighting director for West- ighouse, points out that in- ifficient light in the kitchen iakes it the most hazardous oom in the home. But work- g around in the shadows of single ceiling fixture also iakes work irritating, tiring nd frustrating for the home- iaker.

As the lighting level in the itchen is increased, more nergy is free for useful work nd nervous tension is sharp- reduced. What is needed individual lighting fixtures cated to illuminate each ork area in the kitchen.

Miss Fahsbender says that most cases ranges need ad- tional lighting even though iey come equipped with a iilt-in light. On many ranges ie built-in lighting is only for ie purpose of illuminating the ontrols and is not located so ie cook can see "what's cook- ig."

When the homemaker cooks ver an inadequately lighted ange and cleans vegetables t a poorly lighted sink, she annot see what she is doing. nd, when she fumbles in iadowy cutlery drawers, or arves with sharp knives on mly lighted counter tops, ie is courting danger, Miss ahsbender declares.

A variety of inexpensive itchen lighting fixtures is vailable to the housewife. In any cases, fluorescent and candescent counter and inge lighting fixtures can be stalled as a "do-it-yourself" roject. Such units usually ave a cord and plug to con- ect into a nearby convenient itlet. In other instances new itlets and fixtures can be in- alled by a local electrical ontractor.

When installing new kitch- lighting, if fluorescent fix- ures are chosen, the color of ie fluorescent tube you se- ect is particularly important. t is also a personal matter s choice of color always is.

Since the kitchen is the omemaker's workshop, some refer white or warm white s they are the most efficient olors (give the most light for he watts consumed). Some vill prefer the cool white de- uxe fluorescent tubes, others he new warm white deluxe luorescent tube.

While the deluxe tubes pro- uce a light that is particu- arly flattering to the com- lexion and brings out the lecorating scheme as well as he attractiveness of foods, hey give 25 per cent less ight than other colors.

In designing lighting for ither new or remodelled kitchens in which deluxe fluro- escent tubes are to be used, about 25 per cent more tubes should be specified to give the ame amount of light as oth- r colors. Specifying the tubes ilso calls for specifying the ixture — or fixtures — in vhich to install them, because luorescent tubes of different vattages differ in length and ixtures are constructed ac- ordingly.

One caution in installing iew kitchen lighting: all bulbs ind fluorescent tubes should ie shielded, Miss Fahsbender mphasizes, so that none shines directly into the eyes.

This can be accomplished by ising fixtures which have glass, plastic or metal shields over the lights, or faceboards (valances) placed in front of the lights over the sink. Many imes the cabinets themselves will conceal lighting located under them.

Proper kitchen lighting, ac- ording to Miss Fahsbender, can prevent accidents and make meal preparation easier — and perhaps even more im- portant — the kitchen be- comes a more cheerful and pleasant room in which to work.

But Secretary Denies Demos' Charge

Critics Say Benson's Church Post Softens Attacks on Him

Complaints are rising that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is protected from criticism of his policies because of his standing as a church leader, but Benson says the record of his attacks show differently.

A Democrat in the House of Representatives has said that the secretary's personal standing as a man of strong faith should not be a basis on which to determine his agricultural policies.

Ezra Taft Benson

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some Democrats are showing signs of mounting irritation over what they believe is a reluctance to criticize publicly Ezra Taft Benson's record as secretary of agriculture because of his standing as a leader of the Mormon church.

Benson himself smiles at the idea. "It hasn't made a bit of difference," he told a reporter recently. And the record of his six years in office indeed shows there have been few periods when his policies weren't under attack from some quarter, Republican and Democratic alike.

The complaint that Benson's church position has protected him from criticism has been discussed often in private by his detractors, and recently Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D., Miss.), in a House speech charged:

"The secretary's church affiliation has been played up to the point that most people, including most newspapers and magazines, have been unwilling to look at his record as secretary of agriculture."

Benson, the first clergyman to serve as a cabinet officer in 150 years, is a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles which runs the worldwide activities of the (Mormon) Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

His religious background has been heavily publicized since the early days of the Eisenhower administration when he led cabinet meetings in prayer. His public speeches often reflect his deep religious convictions with appeals for divine guidance in keeping the nation strong and free.

Out of this atmosphere, some Democrats complain, has come a "public image" of a devout man of simple, sturdy principle who is politically right because he is religiously good.

"I do not complain at the secretary's personal standing with the public and the press as a man of strong religious beliefs and faith in his church," Whitten said. "However, that is no basis on which to determine his stewardship of the Department of Agriculture."

"I am an officer in my church. Most members of Congress are active in the church of their choice. The point I make is that the secretary doesn't have a corner on that field."

A source close to the secretary said Benson has never used his religion or church position as a "cloak" against criticism.

"He is bound to get a better press and public reception" because of his religious background, this source said. "It's part of his overall character, and even his enemies respect him for it. But the real reason people accept him is that they have looked at his record and they know he's right."

The Easy Way

How to Win A Contest

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Want to know how to win those guessing contests — how many beans in a jar, etc.?

How?

"I took my age, 11, and put my grade in school in the middle," she said. "Then I subtracted the six from the 11 to get the ounces."

Her estimate: 161 pounds, 5 ounces.

CLOROBEN, the only product that ends clogging and overflow of Septic Tanks and Cesspools by eliminating the cause!

CLOROBEN WORKS FASTER, SURER. HERE'S WHY:

PRODUCT	Easy to use and non-corrosive to metals and concrete	Harmless to Useful Bacteria	Eliminates Obnoxious Odors	Dissolves Accumulated Grease and Slime	Will Maintain Necessary Digestive Conditions
CLOROBEN	YES	YES	YES	YES	YES
ENZYME	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
BACTERIA CULTURE	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
YEAST	YES	YES	NO	NO	NO
CAUSTIC	NO	NO	NO	YES	NO

Note that Cloroben is not an enzyme, bacteria culture, yeast or caustic. Cloroben is an exclusive chemical formula, the most effective chemical product of its kind.

The sanitation chemical, used for 21 years by nation's leading professional sanitation engineers, now available for you!

In such Florida cities as Miami, Coral Gables, Key West, West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, and St. Petersburg, Cloroben is the choice of local sanitary engineers, as well as other leading sanitary engineers of cities and towns throughout the United States.

If the septic tank or cesspool which services your home overflows or gives off offensive odors, almost always the cause is the thick crust of grease and slime which has coated the wall of your tank and the scum mat on the surface.

The only way to cure this condition is to dissolve this mat and grease and slime coating. Adding bacteria cultures, yeast, or enzymes can't work. They don't get at the cause of the condition. Only Cloroben ends the clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by eliminating the cause! Cloroben creates the right conditions for the rapid growth and functioning of digestive bacteria, ever present in the system, and thus keeps the tanks or cesspools in good working order.

as easy as this Cloroben
PINE SCENTED

WORKS FAST AND GOOD
KILLS ODORS
DISSOLVES GREASE
CONTROLS BACTERIA
OPENS DRAINS

- Kills obnoxious odors • Ends clogging and overflow of septic tanks and cesspools by dissolving grease and slime • Opens grease clogged drains and traps • Attacks and stops odor-causing bacteria, but does not affect useful organisms needed in your tank for the conversion of sewage into harmless "digested" form • Instantly kills roaches which infest drains and tanks • Pleasantly pine scented.

HARRISON
AUTOMOTIVE AIR CONDITIONING

AVAILABLE AT YOUR GENERAL MOTORS DEALER

COMPRESSOR BY FRIGIDAIRE

Here's your wish come true! It's Harrison Air Conditioning, the modern, pleasure-plus feature that adds miles of cool comfort to warm-weather driving. Just a flick of the switch sends refreshing, dehumidified air to every corner of your car. And windows-up driving means road noise, wind and dirt are locked out. Harrison Custom Air Conditioners are available for all '59 GM cars. The thrifty Cool-Pack is available for the new Chevrolets, Pontiacs and most Chevrolet trucks. What's more, both systems feature a Frigidaire compressor—for quiet, effortless operation and the built-in capacity extra that assures fast, effective cooling comfort for all passengers. So, whether you're ready to buy . . . or already driving your '59 GM car, ask your dealer about Harrison Air Conditioning—a quality General Motors product.

Ike's Doctor Out to Put World on Its Feet Again

CAPETOWN, South Africa—(AP)—Soon after his arrival here, Dr. Paul Dudley White was bicycling around the University of Capetown campus and advising on the merits of footwork.

The 72-year-old American doctor, a heart specialist who has ministered to President Eisenhower, is here for a lecture series.

He told a reporter he wants to put the world back on its feet.

"And by this I mean I want to get man's legs working again," he said.

"I want to see everybody walking of cycling, or working in their backyards — in fact, getting enough exercise,"

"I'm absolutely sure that physical exercise can be of great benefit to the body, no matter what age you are, as long as this is done sensibly."

call "OTTO" the ORKIN MAN

Get the performance and the bonded protection only Orkin can provide

When you see termites swarming, you're in trouble. But help is as near as your telephone. Call Otto, the Orkin Man, and get the full protection that only the world's largest pest control organization can offer you.

The swarming termites you see may mean damage you can't see. Orkin experts can find and repair damage and prevent future destruction. Just look at the list of ten big reasons why Orkin should be your choice for termite control. Then, at the first sign of swarmers, call Otto, the Orkin Man.

Better still, don't wait to see swarming termites, Call Otto, the Orkin Man, now for FREE termite inspection. He will be glad to check your property without cost or obligation.

10 big reasons why Orkin should be your choice for Termite Control

1. ORKIL — most powerful termite chemical ever formulated. Contains chlorohepton (Patent Pending). Exclusive with Orkin, but costs no more.
2. The world's strongest surety bonded termite guarantee, certified by a trustee and naming YOU, not the Orkin Company, as beneficiary.
3. Inspection of your property at least once a year, with written report rendered each time.
4. Bonded protection backed by one of the nation's largest bonding and insurance companies with more than $355,000,000 in assets.
5. Million-dollar liability insurance coverage for your protection.
6. Scientific facilities for continuous research in methods and chemicals.
7. More than half a century of experience and successful growth.
8. Unquestioned leadership in its field. Orkin Exterminating Company is the world's largest.
9. More than $9,000,000 in assets and the highest credit rating: AAA-1.
10. Hundreds of thousands of satisfied customers from coast to coast. (Ask for names of Orkin patrons who live near you.)

Termites are under-cover destroyers. Spot treating won't do. Orkin treatment is guaranteed to be complete treatment. Before you sign any agreement for termite control be sure and read the details of Orkin's full protection. If anyone else claims comparable surety bonded coverage, have your insurance agent review the bond and tell you what your rights are as a beneficiary.

Marjorie Lawrence
. . . at Barry tonight

Lawrence To Sing Wagner

Marjorie Lawrence has programmed the final scene from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" as her major offering, when she shares the platform at Barry College at 8:15 tonight with the young duo-pianists Nelson and Neal in a Culture Series concert.

Her other areas will be "O Don Fatale" from Verdi's "Don Carlos" and "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" from Sant-Saens "Samson et Dalila." She will also sing a group of smaller songs.

The duo-pianists have scheduled Bach's "Sicilienne" from his Sonata No. 4, the Fugue in G Minor of Bach (originally for organ), Bizet's "Jeux d'Enfants," and Rachmanioff's Fantasy, Op. 5.

Norton Books Joan Holley

Miami pianist Joan Holley will perform for members of the Palm Beach Art League at Norton Gallery, West Palm Beach, on Monday evening, March 29.

League members now have up in the Norton Gallery their 41st annual membership exhibition, which will be on view through April 12.

AT MIAMI BEACH

Offering New Ballet Russe Dance Tonight

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo will dance a ballet, "Variations Classiques," tonight which has not been seen previously in this area. The performance, second of two public performances here, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Miami Beach auditorium.

The rest of the program consists of familiar works which the company has danced here previously. These are "Les Sylphides," "Le Beau Danube," and the Grand Pas de Deux from "Don Quixote."

The music is Brahms' Variations on a Theme by Handel. The work was premiered last season, and afterwards taken on tour throughout the country with fine success.

Principal roles will be danced by Irina Borowska, Alan Howard, Paula Tennyson and Kenneth Gillespie.

Miss Novak's only appearance will be in the "Don Quixote" Pas de Deux, in which she will be partnered by George Zoritch.

Soloists in "Le Beau Danube" will be Gertrude Tyven, Eleanor D'Antuono, Eugene Slavin and Tatiana Grantzeva.

The Ballet Russe has many warm Miami friends, since it has performed here numerous times during the past decade. It tours more than 100 cities each year.

Among the dancers appearing as soloists for the first time this season will be Roy Harsh and Paula Tennyson. Eugene Collins is in his first season with the company. The rest of the dancers are, in general, long-time members of the troupe.

The Ballet Russe will dance a third performance at 8:30 Monday evening in Dade County auditorium for subscription members of Miami Civic Music Association.

The program will consist of "Sombreros," the two-act "Nutcracker," and "Gaiete Parisienne."

Met Star In Recital Saturday

George London, Metropolitan Opera bass-baritone, will sing a recital for members of Community Concert Association at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Miami Beach auditorium. This will be the fifth and final concert of the series this season.

It will be London's first recital in the area. The singer has appeared here once previously in an operatic production — Miami Opera Guild's last "Aida," in which he had the role of Amonasro.

The program includes three arias: "Madamina" and the Champagne Aria, "Finch' han dal Vino" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and the Monologue from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounov."

He will present also a group of Schubert lieder, including "Heliopolis," "Standchen," "Fischer Weise," "An Sylvia" and "Die Allmacht." The rest of the program will consist of Ravel's three songs grouped under the title of "Don Quichotte" a Dulcinee," and a group of favorites from Broadway musicals. Leo Taubman will be at the piano.

London has been top box-office at the Metropolitan Opera House since the 1951-52 season. Canadian-born, he was brought up in California. All his training has been American.

Chamber Concerts Expanding in '59—60

Friends of Chamber Music, in announcing their concerts for next winter, are making two innovations in procedure for this fifth birthday series.

Officials have arranged an extra concert, providing a total of six for 1959-60 and they are offering the Friends' first sonata program.

The sonata program is to be played by Miami's own virtuoso cellist, Leonard Rose, in conjunction with pianist Jack Maxton. Rose was born and brought up here.

As has been the annual custom, the Friends will again present next season a chamber string ensemble, this time the Lucerne (Switzerland) Festival Strings which will be making a first American tour.

This group, organized in 1955 by the eminent European violinist Wolfgang Schneiderhan, will have Schneiderhan along as soloist. It will be conducted by Rudolf Baumgartner, the concertmaster, who directs the ensemble from his desk.

Schneiderhan has been in Miami previously, but has never performed here. He is the husband of the Viennese soprano Irmgard Seefriend, and was with her here when she sang with the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra last season.

Schneiderhan built up a reputation in this country when he appeared as soloist with the Berlin Philharmonic a couple of seasons ago. He played a number of solo engagements in the United States at that time.

The Lucerne Strings will open the Friends' season on October 28. All concerts will again be held in White Temple auditorium.

The Friends will begin next season to bring back ensembles that have been unusually successful and well-liked in this area. Two such groups which will return next season are the Beaux Arts Trio New York and the Amadeus String Quartet made up of Germans with headquarters in England.

Rose

The Beaux Arts Trio, whose concert wound up the Friends' first season in 1956, is composed of the three founding members — Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello, and Menahem Pressler, piano. Each is a virtuoso artist in his own right.

Their debut was made at the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood in 1955. Last spring, after concerts in the Caribbean, they were invited to play for Pablo Casals at his home in Puerto Rico, and afterwards they embarked on a highly successful first European tour. Guilet is former concertmaster of the NBC Symphony under Toscanini.

The Amadeus Quartet first performed for the Friends in February of 1958. Its members are Norbert Brainin and Siegmund Nissel, violins, Peter Schidlof, viola, and Martin Lovett, cello.

The other two programs next season will be played by string quartets new to the area — the Quartetto Carmirelli, of Italy and the Claremont Quartet of New York.

The Carmirelli, launched in 1954, has three members who have also performed for many years in the Quintetto Boccherini, which was here in November of 1956. All three — Pina Carmirelli, Luigi Sagrati and Arturo Bonucci — were with the Boccherini group for that performances. Miss Carmirelli founded both groups.

The other member is Montserrat Cervera, second violinist.

This is, of course, one of the superb Italian groups that have earned practically unlimited praise both in Europe and this country during the past five or six years.

The other quartet, the Claremont, is a young string quartet which made its debut in 1954. It plays all music, from the earliest masters to the most advanced moderns.

Dates for series follows: Oct. 28, Lucerne Festival Strings with Schneiderhan; Nov. 12, Carmirelli String Quartet; Jan. 6, Claremont String Quartet; Jan. 28, Beaux Arts Trio; Feb. 10, Amadeus String Quartet; and March 31, Leonard Rose and Jack Maxton.

Admission will be by membership subscription only. Treasurer is Lawrence Friedman, 68 W. Flagler, Tel. FR 9-1083.

ALONZO AND YOUSKEVITCH

Dance Duo Next With Symphony

The first dancer-duo ever to appear with University of Miami Symphony Orchestra—Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch—will solo with John Bitter and the ensemble at the next pair of concerts on Sunday and Monday, March 22 and 23.

Together they will perform the Pas de Deux from "Don Quixote" and Tchaikowsky's "Black Swan." Each is also scheduled for one solo dance — Miss Alonso for "The Dying Swan" to Saint-Saens' music, and Youskevitch for the "Ribbon Dance" to Gliere music.

The orchestral works programmed are Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," "The Mysterious Mountain" by Alan Hovhaness, and Khatchaturian's "Masquerade Suite."

The dancers will perform in front of the orchestra, as other soloists do.

Cuban-born Miss Alonso, who was a member for more than 15 years of the New York Ballet Company, has long been considered one of the world's great classical dancers.

Last season she made a tour of the Soviet Union, dancing at the famous Bolshoi Theater in Moscow and in Leningrad.

Beach, Grove Book New Art Shows

The Center will have two exhibitions opening simultaneously this afternoon. They will consist of a selection of oils and one of watercolors loaned by the Midtown Galleries of New York City, and an Eightieth Birthday Exhibition by New York artist Saul Raskin.

Mirell Gallery will open with a preview Monday evening a two-man by local painters Gigi Aramesco and Ronald Mallory.

The exhibition of oils which the Midtown Galleries will loan Miami Beach Center for the showing through April 1 was set up especially for the Center by Mrs. Marie Schenck, the director's, request.

It will contain the work of a number of important nationally known artists, among them Emlen Etting, Ernest Fiene, Henry Koerner, Fred Nagler, Betty Parsons, Doris Rosenthal, Zoltan Sepeshy, Miron Sokole and Margit Varga. Miss Rosenthal is a former local resident.

The group of watercolors will include work by some of the same painters, with the addition of Dong Kingman, Waldo Peirce, and several others.

Raskin, who will show some 30 watercolors and drawings in his one-man, is represented in many important permanent collections in this country. He has long been noted as "a graphic chronicler of Jewish life through the ages."

Rumanian-born Gigi Aramesco has shown widely in this area for several years, and had a one-man at Mirell Gallery last season.

Ronald Mallory, who has not shown here previously, studied at University of Florida and University of Colorado, as well as at the School of Fine Arts in Rio de Janeiro and the Academy Julien in Paris. His teacher in Rio was the world-renowned painter Portinari.

Jacques Wolfe's photographic exhibition, "The Sapphire Country," will go on view Monday at the Meridian Branch of Washington Federal Savings and Loan Association, where it will remain up through April 25.

18,000 Saw Show

Over 18,000 persons viewed the recent Winter Art Festival exhibition at the Fontainebleau Hotel, where gross sales of nearly $125,000 worth of painting and sculpture were made. Proceeds will go to the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Nina Deutsch In Recital Today

Nina Deutsch, 16-year-old Miami pianist, will be presented in recital at 4 this afternoon at the Musicians Club, Coral Gables. The public is welcome. Her major offering will be Beethoven's Waldstein Sonata, No. 21, Op. 53.

She will also include a Theme and Variations by local composer-pianist Robert Strassburg, with whom she is studying.

Orchestra Giving School Concert

Barnett Breeskin and the Miami Beach Civic Orchestra will play an in-school concert Thursday Mar. 12, at Treasure Island Elementary school.

Further concerts to be played this season will be at South Beach Elementary school, Nautilus Junior High school, and North Beach Elementary school. Two concerts have already been played in the series.

Orlando Chorus With Symphony

The Symphony Women's Chorus of Orlando will join Frank Miller and the Florida Symphony in performing Debussy's "Blessed Damozel" and Three Nocturnes at the Thursday evening (March 12) concert in the Orlando Municipal auditorium.

Bolet Soloist

Jorge Bolet, Cuban-born pianist, will be soloist with Frank Miller and the Florida Symphony in the Municipal Auditorium, Orlando, Thursday evening (March 19).

Lincoln Rd. Art Exhibit Is Scheduled

The first of a series of outdoor art exhibitions and music festivals will begin today and extend through March 22 at 530 Lincoln Road Art Arcade. It will be sponsored by the Lincoln Road Merchants Guild and Connie Gordon Art Galleries.

Special activities will include a music festival at 8:30 p.m. Friday, March 20.

The program will feature songs by Lucille Blackton, piano compositions by Olga Stern, and interpretive dancing by Estelle Hoberman. Miami Beach Mayor Kenneth Oka will speak. Events are free to the public.

Royal Portraitist Paints Miamian

A recent visitor to the area has been portrait-painter Guido Fulignot, who came here to paint Fae Milne, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Milne of North Miami. While here the artist also painted Mrs. Milne.

Fulignot has a permanent studio in Houston, Texas. He came to this country from Europe, where he was the official painter for the Hohenzollerns in Germany and the royal family of Savoy in Italy.

Show Now In Last Week

This will be the final week for viewing sculptures by Palm Beach artist Nicolaus Koni and Coconut Grove sculptor Albert S. Vrana at the Fort Lauderdale Art Center.

Also winding up at the Center Saturday (March 21) will be an exhibition of paintings by Philip Hicken of Boston and a show of drawings, water colors and prints by Peter Takal.

In N.Y. Exhibit

Lowe Show Its Best of Year

Art Reviews

The Art and Religion show at Lowe Gallery is undoubtedly the best exhibition the gallery has had up this season, from the point of view of worth and genuine pleasure to the viewer.

It may not be the best coordinated show in the world—this would be difficult to achieve with an exhibition touching upon so many styles, time periods, and media—but there is so much in it worth many viewings and concentrated study, and it is presented in such an atmosphere of sincerity and true concern for the beauty and meaning of the objects included, that it is bound to affect and impress nearly all who view it, in one way or another.

A great deal of planning has gone into the gathering of the paintings, prints, sculptures, silver and brass work, and other items that form the backbone of the show, and the pieces have been loaned by many important museums and galleries and by individual collectors of note.

Among these is the collection of etchings by Albrecht Durer and Rembrandt which run along the left-hand wall of the main gallery; the wooden statues and reliefs dating back to the 15th century from the Metropolitan Museum and Cloisters collections; the illuminated books of the 13th and 14th centuries from the Morgan Library; several of the contemporary paintings and sculptures, including some by local artists; the lovely Louis LeNain "Nativity" which is one of the gems of the Lowe's permanent collection; the enchanting santos from Alfred Barton's collection; the fine ikons which are recent acquisitions of the gallery; the Coptic textiles acquired last year; and other pieces too many to mention individually.

* * *

THE FLORIDA Artists Group annual at the Playhouse Gallery is a disappointment because too many paintings have been hung for the space, making it impossible to view anything properly or to enjoy anything, and a great many of the best painters in the state are unrepresented.

The show could have been greatly improved if somewhat more than half the paintings could have been eliminated and the others hung for best effect.

A few paintings we managed to be impressed by, in spite of the jam-up, were Jean Willhite's "The Plaza," Larry Stults' "Composition," Joel Reichard's "Magnolia Street," John Garm's "Old South," William Hartman's "Sand Fences," Hilton Leech's "Sea Mist," and Ralph Bagley's "Garconnaire."

Artemis Jegart's painting show in two of the small galleries has a number of charming items in it.

* * *

THE FOUR-MAN show at The Gallery restaurant, on Coral Way, has a number of pieces repeated from earlier shows this season, or else dredged up from the painters' past styles and manners.

Still, there are a number of pieces to be admired particularly: Ethel Fisher's "Orange and Yellow," "Monastery," and "The Ruins"; Tony Scornavacca's "Horse" and Still Life of a few small fruits; and Dorothy Gillespie's "Autumn," "The River," and especially "Mountains."

The only painter in the group who hasn't shown previously at The Gallery is Michael Schlazer, whose busy stylized paintings of groups of figures have considerable interest.

* * *

BOTH Arthur Voelkel and Joe Bierman, who have works not previously seen in the area on view at the Tucker Galleries, Miami Beach, have shown in this gallery previously.

Voelkel's best qualities are his lyricism of movement and his decorative composition. Bierman has small pieces in many moods and styles.

THE CORAL GABLES Art Club annual at the Village Corner Gallery presents the work of members, some of whom have some stature among local painters and others not.

The five equal prize-winners were Greta Carmen, Earl Bankes, S. D. Legge, Stephen Avila, and Marion Craig. Honorable mentions went to Simon Strunin and Gladys Legge.

Music Calendar

TODAY—Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, 8:30 p.m., Miami Beach auditorium.

—Marjorie Lawrence, soprano, and Nelson and Neal, duo-pianists, 8:15 p.m., Barry College auditorium.

A Variation

in viewpoints is evident in one-man and group shows of local painters throughout the area this month. The "Birth of Venus" by J. Robson Kennedy, right, appeares in that artist's annual one-man at Huber Gallery, Miami Beach. It is in the painter's "wispy" style, which hac given place in several works in the show to a more communicative style. "People of the Sierras," left, is one of artist Carl Folke Sahlin's Peruvian studies in his one-man exhibition at El Centro, McAllister hotel. Sahlin recently returned from a world tour during which he made watercolors of peoples not only of South America but of Japan, Hongkong, Burma, South Arfica, and other spots visited.

AN ADEQUATE SUPPLY of water is the first requirement for a beautiful lawn. Notice the excellent coverage given by this sprinkler system, engineered and installed by C. H. Stern & Jaffer, Inc., 2500 N. Miami Ave.

Proper Sprinkler System Vital If Beautiful Lawn Is Your Goal

An attractive lawn enhances the beauty and increases the value of any South Florida home. And, in order to have a healthy lawn, ample water must be used.

"The perfect answer to this need of plenty of water for your lawn is a complete sprinkler system," according to C. H. Stern of C. H. Stern & Jaffer, Inc., 2500 N. Miami Ave.

"A well, pump and sprinkler system," he continued "makes it possible to use as much water as is needed — without having high water bills to pay.

"It is not necessary to spend a lot of money to have an adequate lawn sprinkler system. Modern manufacturing methods and experienced crews make it possible to have a complete installation at moderate cost.

"Every Stern & Jaffer lawn sprinkler system is individually planned and designed to assure complete coverage. A careful measurement is made of each lawn, after which a blueprint is prepared. All systems, whether stationary; pop-up, or rotary sprinklers are used, are custom-made to fit, with only standard designs being used.

"The hydraulic design of every system is made in accordance with established principles. Flow losses are carefully calculated so that adequate pressure is maintained at all sprinkler nozzles.

"Stern & Jaffer uses only new, first quality, corrosion resistant materials, such as galvanized standard steel pipe, brass check valves, brass sprinkler heads and bronze gate valves. If a pump is installed on the job, it must be bronze fitted throughout. All material carries a guarantee of both the manufacturer and C. H. Stern & Jaffer, Inc.

"Our crews are carefully trained to install each sprinkler system quickly and efficiently. We have received many compliments on our technique for digging trenches in lawns that leaves practically no traces of the work.

"A competent, experienced foreman directs each job and stays until it is completed. Established lawns and shrubs are protected from damage during the installation by drop cloths.

"All mechanized equipment is used so that each job may be finished as soon as possible.

"Stern & Jaffer sprinkler systems may be used with either well or city water. No charge is made for service on new installations during the first year, and all parts are unconditionally guaranteed for a full year.

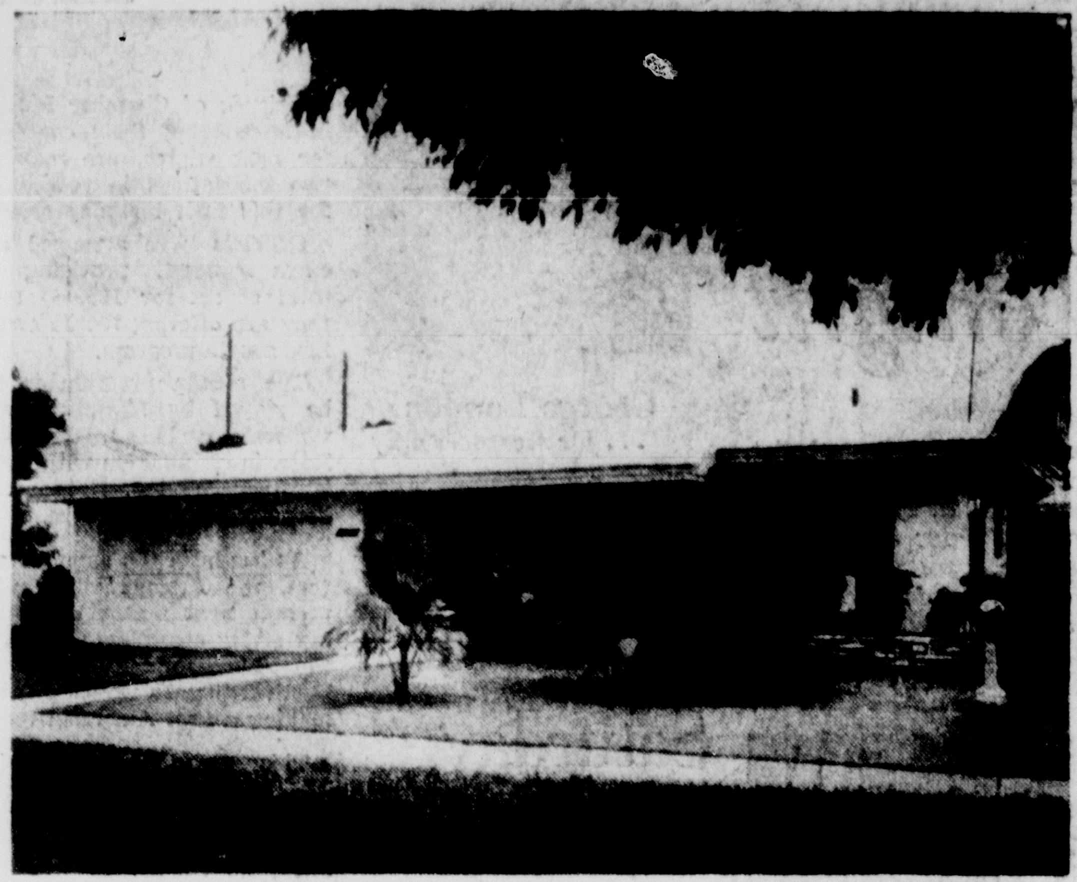
"If desired, systems may be installed with full automatic control, featuring skip-day timing and using hydraulic or solenoid valves with a synchronous electric clock. The automatic system may be used with either well or city water.

"FHA financing is available now for sprinkler systems. Conventional financing also can be easily arranged with Stern & Jaffer's representative so that no trips to the bank are required.

"Having installed thousands of lawn sprinkler systems, Stern & Jaffer's reliability is attested to by our many satisfied customers."

A telephone call to FRanklin 1-1496 will bring complete information. Free estimates are cheerfully given on all jobs, without obligation.

Lasting Quality is Claim of White-Tite Roof Coating



MORE THAN TWO YEARS have passed since this roof was cleaned, sealed and coated by White-Tite on the home of Mrs. K. Hyde, 4949 Riviera Dr., Coral Gables. No mold or mildew has formed on the flat tile roof since the White-Tite process was applied. "We are proud of our quality and lasting work," says Jesse Scalzo, owner of the firm. "First, the roof was thoroughly cleaned, and then the edges of the tile were sealed by our special process. The sealing process offered by White-Tite rebinds all loose tile and provides better drainage from the roof, as well as giving extra protection against hurricane winds. After the sealing process, two coats of paint, using the White-Tite process, were put on the entire roof on consecutive days. We also can clean and coat your tile roof without using the sealing process, if you wish. All cleaning and coating work is guaranteed for one year against mold and fungus. Financing can be arranged with a small down payments. We handle all of our own financing. White-Tite is a member of the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce." Scalzo has had more than 12 years of experience in the roofing business. Free estimates, without obligation, may be obtained by calling NEwton 5-3603 or NEwton 3-8511 in Miami.

For Cars with Power Accessories . . .
The Answer to Your Battery Problems
An inadequate generating system is the basic cause of battery troubles. The increasing load of accessories takes more current out of the battery than a conventional d.c. generator can put back in. On vehicles, slow driving, long idling periods and short trips aggravate battery trouble. The result is a dead battery — frequent recharging and resulting in short battery life. A costly, heavy-duty battery is no solution.
The Answer Is Replacement Of The Conventional D.C. Generator With The Revolutionary L-N ALTERNATOR SYSTEM.
Your vehicle will always start easily because the battery will be used for starting only. And the battery will last much longer. L-N Alternator Systems generate ample current for the electrical load. POWER 2-WAY Radio and electrical accessories without battery troubles.

Credit Charge Is Cut

By ED KANDLIK
Herald Travel Writer

CHICAGO — Would you like one credit card that is good to cash checks, charge hotel bills, and pay for meals, gasoline, gifts and tickets?

Carte Blanche will introduce some new practices to the credit card business. Not the least of these is a lower scale of charges to associate firms—the restaurants, hotels and oil companies that participate.

For example, the maximum charge to a participating restaurant will be a 4½ per cent discount on the bill. This would compare with charges as high as 7 per cent on some of the earlier plans.

For hotels and gasoline companies a lower schedule of charges is provided.

To obtain universal usage, Hilton is trying to hold the charge down to near what it would cost a company to carry its own accounts. In this way it hopes to attract such diverse businesses as department stores and airlines.

A participating restaurant owner, for instance, takes a copy of the tabs signed the night before, puts them in an envelope that has a sight draft imprinted on its face, fills out the names and amounts, and deposits it with his bank.

To the banker, the sight draft is the same as a check. So the depositor receives immediate credit to his account.

This quick payment scheme will require Carte Blanche to have established paying arrangements in all principal cities with funds on hand to meet the drafts.

Nucleus of the plan will be about 1 million Hilton credit card holders. But inducements are offered to the associate members (restaurants and hotels) to get more members. A $2 commission is paid for each application submitted that is accepted.

Carte Blanche assumes all credit responsibility for bills turned in within three days after the day of the charge.

Any disputes between the ultimate customer and the associate must be settled by the associate without any liability to Hilton.

The ultimate customer is billed once every 30 days.

Nassau Visitor at the End of the Line
. . . probably a boat on the other end

Get Away From It All in Nassau

Special To The Herald

NASSAU, Bahamas — There's a time machine at work in the Bahamas that requires only an airplane ticket or boat passage and enough hours to enjoy it.

The device operates only in reverse, transporting visitors back to an era when freebooters trod the sun-dappled beaches and pirate galleons lurked in sheltered harbors, waiting their chance to swoop down on the treasure ships plying the Spanish Main.

Instead of offering a haven for such colorful cutthroats as Blackbeard and Captain Kidd, the Resort Islands of the Bahamas now entertain visitors with a "get-away-from-it-all" feeling and others who simply savor the nerve-soothing prescription of sun, surf, sand and snoozing.

Scattered in casual design out and away from this gracious capital city of Nassau, the Resort Islands dot the 90,000 square miles of crystalline Bahamas waters, each with a flavor and following of its own.

Sprawling Andros Island, so vast and jungly it has never been fully explored, offers the Luxurious Lighthouse Club and Andros Yacht Club on the banks of Fresh Creek only about 50 miles west of Nassau.

Here solemn-faced natives, perhaps a twinkle belying their grave mien, will explain the legend of the chickcharnies which, it's said, are legendary creatures that bring ill fortune to any who defy them.

Fishing is so good in the Bahamas that no lying about catches is condoned and only a modest amount of exaggeration permitted. After all, these waters have produced more than 55 world record catches, and even bigger brutes are lurking around.

Bimini and Cat Cay, westernmost of the Bahamas just a hop across the Gulf Stream from Miami, hit the fishing headlines consistently. The Gateway Hotel, Anchors Aweigh, Brown's Hotel and the Compleat Angler bulge with Bimini visitors during the numerous international fishing tournaments.

West End, Grand Bahama, handy to Palm Beach, has the vast Grand Bahama Club, its 130 rooms, spacious grounds and fine facilities abuzz with anglers, skindivers, light plane enthusiasts and just those who want to relax. The Buccaneer Yacht Club caters to the yachty types and Hope Bight Lodge also accommodates visitors.

Eleuthera, 100 miles long and pencil thin, produces pineapple so good it makes a Hawaiian blush. Craig Kelly's French Leave overlooks a sparkling scimitar of beach at the centuries-old settlement of Governor's Harbour, once capital of the Bahamas.

Yachtsmen visit Hachet Bay with its deep, landlocked harbor. It's shipping point for a vast dairy and poultry farm and supplies of all types may be obtained.

Off Eleuthera's northern tip is Harbour Island, largest settlement in the Bahamas outside Nassau. Its pink sand beaches have to be seen to be believed and visitors may choose from several lodges and guest homes.

Nearby is Spanish Wells, a community of fisherman-farmers who enjoy playing host to those who arrive by air or boat.

PAA Planning Big Hotel

Pan Am Vice President Robert E. Smith said the company plans to build four large hotels in western European cities, including a 500-room structure in the center of Vienna.

More plans for 26 hotels all over the world are being worked out, he said.

Smith refused to disclose the location of the other three European hotel projects, "because our plans there are not as advanced as in Vienna."

PANAMA

'Big Ditch' Attracts 'Em

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Travel Writer

PANAMA'S top tourist attraction is the "Big Ditch." The Canal is an engineering triumph that never fails to stimulate a deep feeling of amazement and respect when visitors get their first look.

Nicaragua
Costa Rica
PANAMA
SOUTH AMERICA

They come to watch the never-ending parade of liners and freighters making a global shortcut. They watch the big ships climb 85 feet up from the Atlantic, on steps of water at the Gatun Locks—then down to the Pacific at Pedro Miguel and Miraflores Locks.

Many tourists cruise through the Gaillard Cut where the sheer sides of the Continental Divide towers hundreds of feet above. They see Gatun and Madden Dams—the source of the millions of gallons of water needed each day to operate the locks.

There are good hotels, nightclubs and restaurants and little shops that offer bargains on textiles, watches, cameras, crystal, silver, jewelry, china, perfumes, porcelain, liquor and many hand-carved items.

* * *

FOR THE TRUE tourist, however, Panama's fascination lies in the remains and monuments of her history. You will see reminders of her days of discovery and conquest and her days of colonial grandeur and power.

The modernized municipality of Panama City was once the most important city in America. Here was the oldest and the richest colony of the New World. One of the best reminiscences of this fact is the Altar of Gold in the church of San Jose at the corner of Avenue A and Eighth St.

This famous altar was made from the gold allotted to the clergy from Panama's mines and also from the looted treasure of Peru.

In 1671 the altar was in Old Panama's biggest church when the Welsh buccaneer, Sir Henry Morgan, looted and burned the city.

* * *

LEGEND SAYS Morgan demanded the treasures of the church, but the Padres had painted the altar white and told the pirate that everything the church possessed was in plain sight. Morgan decided the altar was worthless.

The altar looks like a glittering table of gold. It is constructed of beautiful hand-carved mahogany and cedar and adorned with magnificent gold plates.

Wooden parts of the altar are covered with gold leaf and there is a vast amount of gilt work in the church. You will wonder how this treasure escaped the pirates and wars.

* * *

DRIVING across the Isthmus, tourists parallel the Cruces Trail along which mule trains packed Inca treasure. At Porto Bello, named by Columbus, visitors explore the relics of days when high-pooped galleons loaded the King's Treasure and Sir Francis Drake lay in wait somewhere beyond the horizon.

Discovering Panama today is a fresh experience at a global crossroads over which a grand pageant of five centuries have flowed.

It's Panama

POPULATION: Estimated at 959,754.

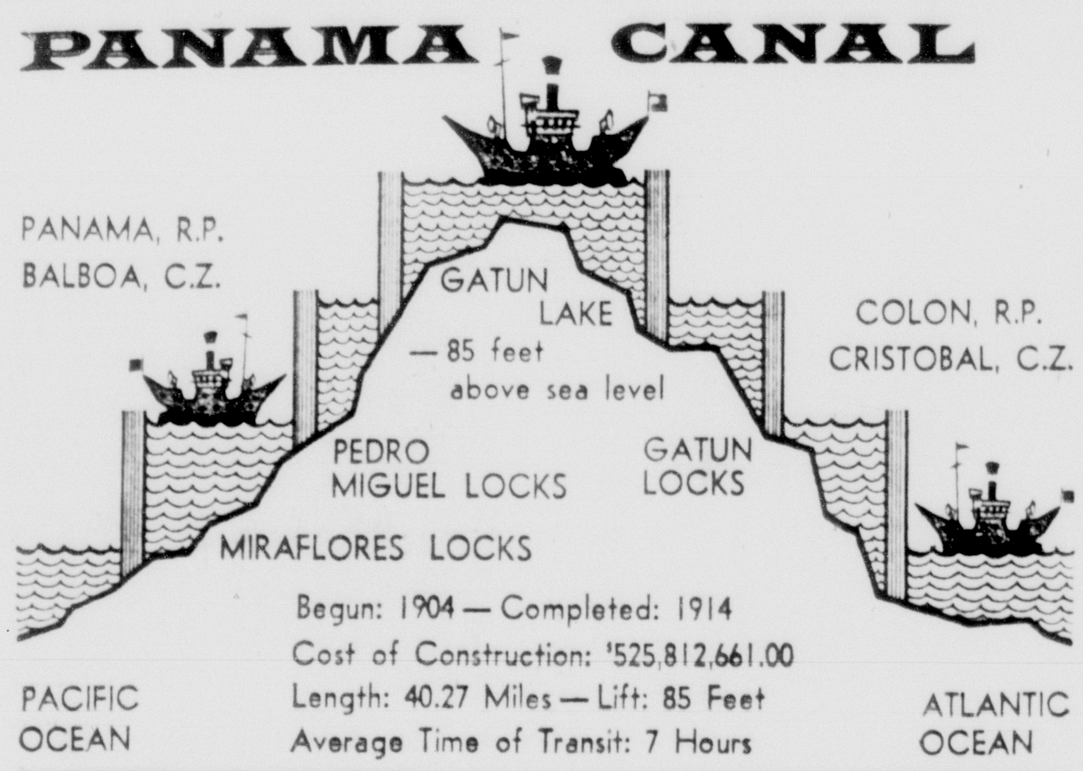
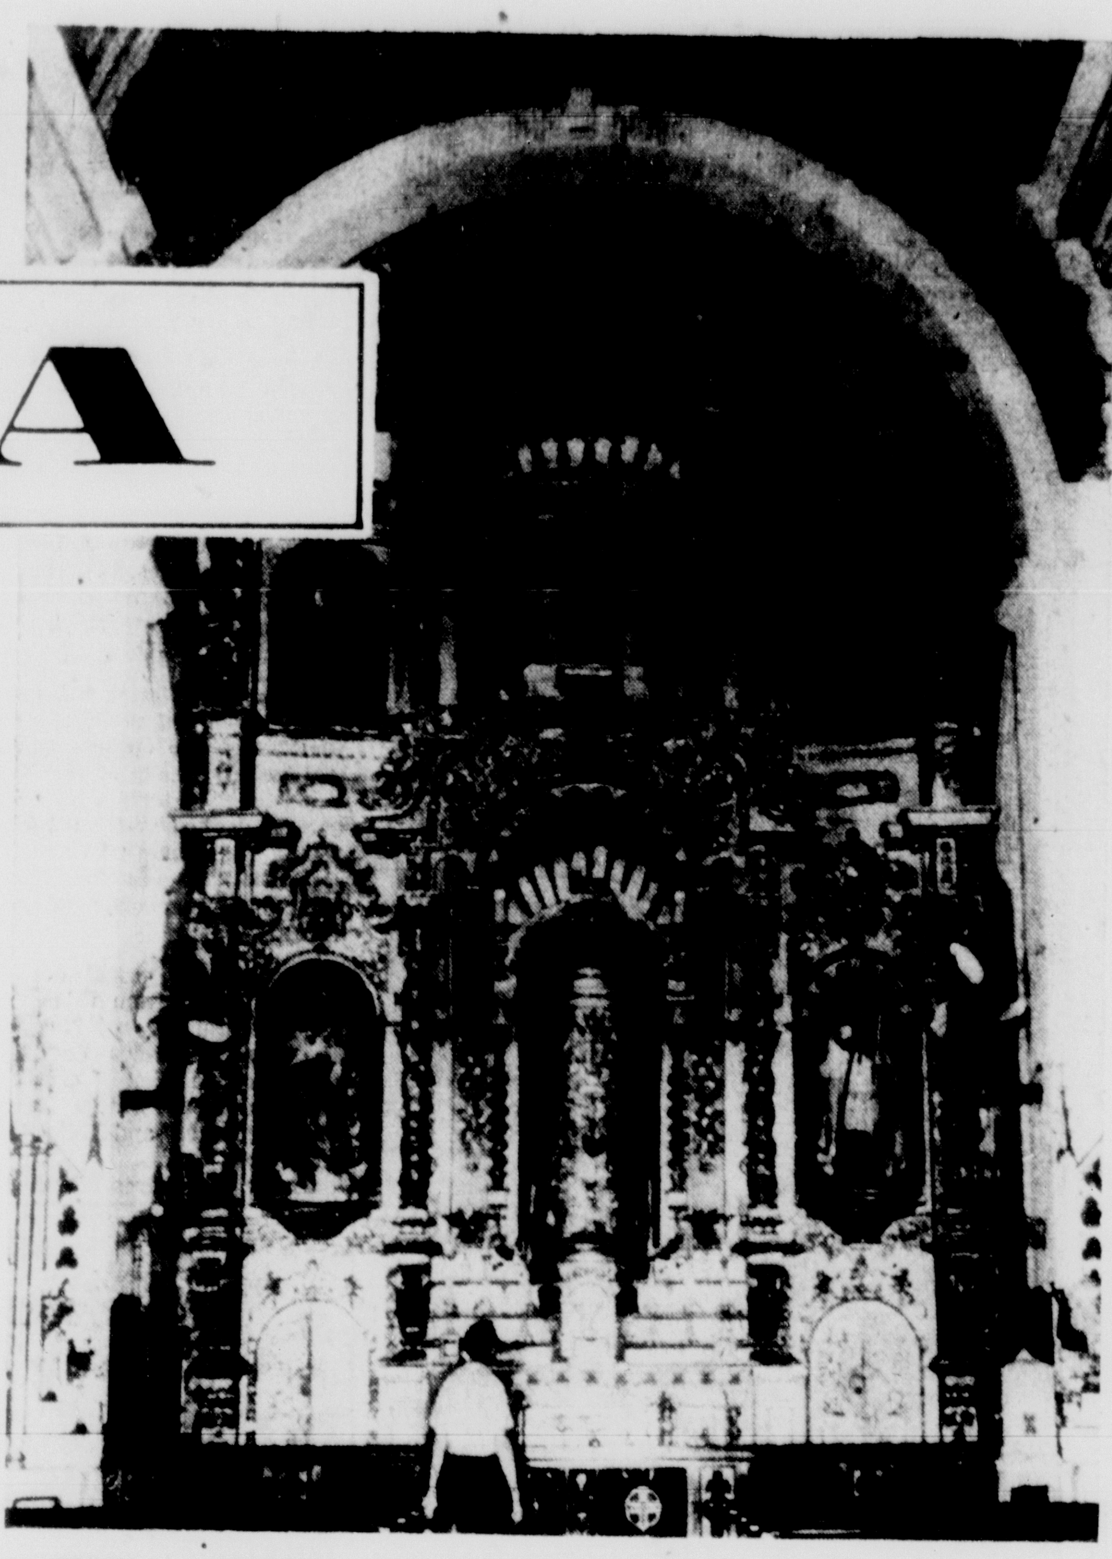
GOVERNMENT: An independent republic except for the 10-mile strip of land surrounding the Panama Canal that is leased to the United States.

HOW TO GET THERE: Four hours by plane from Miami and about five days by ship.

ACCOMMODATIONS: Hotel El Panama is spectacular and expensive. There are other good hotels that are less expensive.

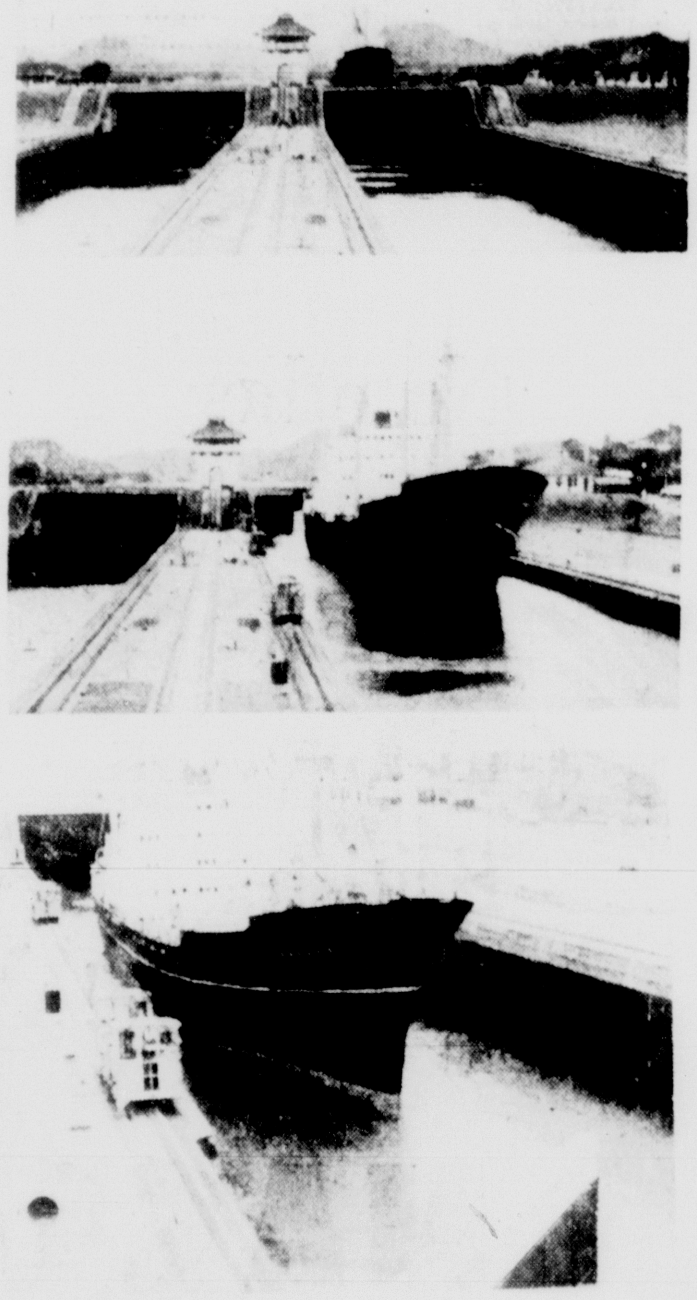


Begun: 1904 — Completed: 1914
Cost of Construction: $525,812,661.00
Length: 40.27 Miles — Lift: 85 Feet
Average Time of Transit: 7 Hours



FAMOUS GOLDEN ALTAR IN THE CHURCH OF SAN JOSE

Statue of Balboa
. . . in Panama City



FOR A THRILLING SIGHT, tourists have only to ride 10 minutes on a Panama City bus to view giant ocean liners being raised and lowered as they pass through the Panama Canal. Big steamer above "steps down" 54 feet at Miraflores Locks before entering the Pacific Ocean. Ships must be raised and lowered 85 feet in order to transit the Isthmus. Besides the wonders of the Canal, tourists find Panama's hotels are modern and free ports provide a shopper's paradise. Josh Ellis, local resident, took these pictures on a recent trip.

VACATIONLANDS

There's Activity Along Travel Lanes

The SS Evangeline will sail from Miami to West Indies and South American ports this spring and summer in a series of 7 10, and 14-day cruises.

All cruises will visit Port Antonio and Kingston, Jamaica. In addition the 7-day cruise calls at Port-au-Prince, Haiti and Nassau. It leaves Miami, March 10, 28; April 14; May 29; July 10; and August 11.

The 10-day cruises call at Ciudad Trujillo, San Juan, Puerto Rico and St. Thomas Virgin Islands. Sailings from Miami are March 17; April 4; May 19, June 5, 15; July 17; and August 18, 28.

The 14-day ports of call are Cristobal, Panama; Curacao, Ciudad Trujillo and Port-au-Prince, Haiti. Sailing dates are June 26 and July 27.

* * *

The increasing popularity of island hopping through the Caribbean has prompted Pan American Airways to arrange a combination island-border hopper.

The new 30-day excursion is between Miami and San Jose, Costa Rica. It includes stopover privileges at Havana, San Salvador, El Salvador, Tegucigalpa, Honduras, and Managua, Nicaragua.

Venezuela tourist cards can be obtained through the Miami office of LAV—the Venezuelan Airline. Visas for longer stays are still issued only through Venezuelan consular offices.

* * *

More tourists flying in and more hotels springing up are keeping everyone happy in San Juan. Construction of three new hotels will boost the number of first class rooms in the Puerto Rican capital to more than 3,500. The island is less than four hours by air from Miami.

University Plans Foreign Study Trips

A six-week tour of Russia, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, highlights a series of summer travel and study programs being offered by the University of Miami.

The tour, conducted by Dr. Gerald G. Govorchin, professor of history, will give students the chance to accrue college credits abroad. Govorchin will teach two three-credit Russian history courses while en route. The trip, not limited to students costs $1,899.

The U. of M. Oaxaca, Mexico workshop offers degree courses in anthropology, archaeology, art history, drawing, composition and water color.

The workshop, now in its tenth year, is limited to 25 undergraduates. Headquarters is the Rancho San Felipe, two miles from Oaxaco.

Dr. Joseph W. Ballantine, a veteran of 26 years with the State Department in the Far East and a visiting professor of government, will lead a group around the world.

His 34-day tour, will include Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong, Macao, Thailand, India, Kashmir and Egypt. A 13-day extension tour to Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Israel, Turkey and Greece is also planned.

Thaddeus Malinowski of the human relations department will guide a group through 11 European countries. In addition, three credits in human relations for those students wishing to participate in a seminar at the Free University in Amsterdam is being offered by the Netherlands Universities Foundation for International Cooperation.

Banaras Lulls Visitors

By HORACE SUTTON
Herald Travel Writer

SUTTON

MADRAS, India — On the last day of our stay in India we wish to say that no cowboy from Manhattan ever had a better time with the Indians.

We are rounding the world the short way, having been jet-propelled across the Atlantic, across Europe to Moscow and then south to Soviet Central Asia, skimming the Himalayas, heading south by east until we have run almost to land's end here in Madras.

We have covered 11,137 miles since that frosty day we left New York and it's getting warmer by the minute.

Leaving India for Southeast Asia, we find ourselves stuffed with indelible recollections and a number of goodies from the bazars of the East.

Madame wishes me to pass along the intelligence that ruby and sapphire rings and cuff links, the kind made from a score of chips set in gold, are the buy of the century at $30 the glittering hoop.

The Kashmir Arts Emporium, with two stores in Delhi, give away hand-embroidered rugs at $12, and sell fur coats as well — leopard, tiger, and glacial otter at about one-third U.S. prices.

The suitcases bulge with a sample of almost everything and as we approach the Equator the great coat of otter seems less and less the buy of buys.

Banaras is not exactly like the left bank of Paris with which I am more familiar, for the French merely fish in the Seine and sing of it, and occasionally sail around it in pleasant little sightseeing boats. But the Indians regard the River Ganges as a holy place and bathing in it, which they do each morning in droves, has deep religious meanings.

If you are an Indian and you are in Banaras in the morning you may stop on your way to the river to pay a visit at the barber shop. The barber occupies a slice of sidewalk and you squat in front of him so that your dhoti, a baggy swoop of pants, barely brushes the pavement.

He squats in front of you with only his feet touching the ground, and in that manner gives you a haircut or a shave before you proceed down the steps of the ghats that lead to the river.

All over the steps are dozens of platforms shaded with straw parasols. Each is a stall run by a ghatia who rents combs, sells flowers, affixes cosmetic marks to the forehead and minds the clothing of the bathers.

While bathing, the devout frequently pray and sometimes they chant. Many of them perform violent setting-up exercises, swinging huge dumbells over their heads.

The washing of clothes and the brushing of teeth is part of the regimen, and high-born Brahmins can be seen washing the white string which is the badge of their caste.

Goats, dogs, and cows, are dissuaded from bathing in the water of the Ganges, but they climb all over the steps. Pigeons, on the other hand, are quite fond of resting on floating sticks of bamboo which are placed in the river just for their accomodation.

The aged flock here too, for Banaras is considered a most auspicious place in which to die. Adjoining the bathing ghats are the burning ghats where Hindus cremate their dead on piles of branches that flame at the river's edge.

Puerto Rico Is Offering Bach Group

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—The Bach Aria Group will appear in San Juan for the first time during Puerto Rico's Casals Festival, May 1 to 22.

The group, which is under the direction of William H. Scheide, includes Julius Baker, flute; Robert Bloom, oboe; Eileen Farrell, soprano; Norman, Farrow, bass-baritone; Bernard Greenhouse, cello; Jan Peerce, tenor; Carol Smith, alto; and Paul Ulanowsky, piano. They will perform with world-renowned cellist Pablo Casals during this third annual festival.

Soloists for the concert series are Eileen Farrell, soprano; Mieczyslaw Horszowski, piano; Mitchell Lurie, clarinet; Eugene Istomin, Jesus Maria Sanroma and Rudolf Serkin, piano; and Isaac Stern, violin. Other principal performers will be Julius Baker, flute; Eli Carmen, bassoon; Walter Trampler, viola.

Alexander Schneider will act as musical director of the Festival under Casals. Schneider also will appear as violinist with the Budapest String Quartet, which includes his brother Mischa Schneider, cello; Joseph Roisman, violin, and Boris Kroit, viola.

Casals will play in eight of the 12 concerts and will conduct Beethoven's Fantasy in C Minor for Piano, Chorus and Orchestra in the closing program of the season.

This will be his first appearance as conductor with the 62-member festival orchestra, though he recently conducted the opening program of Puerto Rico's newly-formed Symphony Orchestra.

Treasure Island Busy

Barbara Sheen
. . . island princess

Less than three miles in length, the tiny resort island has 31 miles of uncrowded wide, white beaches and waterfront, with the Gulf on one side and Boca Ciega Bay with its fingers and inlets on the other. More than 100 motels, many of them of the luxury type, are situated on this tiny strip of land.

Island motel operators have adopted schedules in which all age groups may participate in the diversified recreation program.

Water shows, fashion parades, free movies, beach ball, shuffleboard contests and dance parties will be held during the winter season. Surf bathing, deep sea fishing and sightseeing boat cruises have long been regular events at Treasure Island.

Area activity for Treasure Island visitors include Greyhound Dog Racing at St. Petersburg through April 18, Jai Alai at Tampa through April 10 and Horse Racing at Sunshine Park, Oldsmar through March 24.

Grapefruit League exhibition baseball is held during March at St. Petersburg and Clearwater. Other March events include Clearwater's Annual Fun 'n Sun Festival, March 14-20.

Also scheduled for March are the National Outboard Regatta at Clearwater, March 15 and the Sunshine Festival at St. Petersburg, March 29-April 4.

London Taxicab Sensible

By LUCIA LEWIS
Herald Travel Writer

LUCIA

LONDON — One thing we ought to exhibit in a U.S. automobile show is a London taxicab. It might get some laughs, towering above our finned pavement-huggers like a disapproving English dowager.

But he who laughs best is the London passenger.

The city's present fleet of cabs is not old-fashioned, just sensible. Most of the cars have been built in the last few years, entirely replacing the vintage type, yet retaining a strong family resemblance.

The British like them that way, and you will too.

No matter how tall you are, there's none of this crouching-ape approach or cracking of heads. You sail in and out of these tall, boxlike structures with royal dignity.

And what a pleasure it is to see running boards again! Laden with parcels, you still can step easily down to the sidewalk.

Remember the contortions at home? First you push open a heavy door while the cab driver stares blankly ahead without lifting a pinkie to help you (unthinkable in London).

Then you swing a leg, upsa-daisy from the low floor, over the high door frame, and heave-ho overboard. Step lively, too, or the door will swing shut on your shin.

Most efficient feature of all is the stubby chassis and maneuverability. Who needs a long streamline job on a short cab ride?

One of our standard cabs takes up twice as much space as a London cab on the street or in a parking lane.

The short London cabs can whirl around like a top on their own axis and don't need half a block to make a U turn, or five minutes to creep around a corner.

Eat Your Way Across Atlantic

Cruising above the clouds at 575 miles per hour, the Jet Clipper covers the 3,250 miles from New York to London in less than seven hours. A first-class meal, served aloft with all the trimmings, occupies 1,800 miles or three hours.

Havana Second

Havana, of all the cities outside the U.S., is in second place among the cities of the world in air passenger traffic. Berlin is in first place.

Sun Valley, Idaho, Is Better Than the Movie
. . . offers fun for summer and winter sports fans

Sun Valley Offers Reality

By BILL FURLONG
Herald Travel Writer

SUNVALLEY, Idaho — In the years just before World War II, there was a movie called "Sun Valley Serenade." It starred Sonja Henie and the music of Glenn Miller — and a song called "Sun Valley Serenade."

The combination makes a romantic memory that — it seems — reality could hardly match.

Yet Sun Valley does.

It is about two decades since that movie went the rounds. Since then, Sun Valley has changed. The gambling rooms are gone.

The Union Pacific—which operates the resort—has finally ceased losing money on the venture. (It made money the last two years—the only time since the resort opened in December, 1936, that it has made money.) The facilities have been expanded and diversified.

Now for the winter sport fan, there is ice-skating, skiing (55 runs, 70 instructors), or sleigh rides through the clean crisp air.

For the summer sport fan, there is golf, hunting, horseback riding, swimming, skeet-shooting — all the activities of an outdoor life.

For the all-around fan, there is the scenery.

A winter's day in Sun Valley is filled with activity that leaves you tingling, if not exhausted.

You get up in the morning before 9, breakfast, and are ready to get to the ski slopes by 9:30 or 10. In the afternoon, you can go back to skiing—or you can go ice-skating on the Olympic-size rink.

Invariably, you'll take a few minutes to swim in the outdoor pool—no matter what the temperature. (The pool has specially-heated water and is surrounded by a glass wall which retains the rays of the sun.)

In the evening, you stop for a drink—or two, or three—at the Ram. You can, if you choose, have dinner at the Ram. Among those who did while I was there were Ernest Hemingway and Gary Cooper.

After dinner, there is more partying and dancing—at the Dollar Mountain Lodge, at Trail Creek Cabin, the Holliday Hut, at the Duchin Room in the lodge.

By midnight, or shortly thereafter, you're ready for bed.

Milk Pipelined

Tourists vacationing in the Italian Alps near Trento, will see what is probably the first major pipeline for milk in the world. The line, four miles long, carries milk from cows grazing near Vallina, 6,500 feet up in the Alpine pastures, to a cheese factory at Roncone, 2,200 feet below.

Miami Will Funnel Agents Traveling to Chile Event

By NED AITCHISON
Herald Travel Writer

South-bound travel out of Miami and other gateways to Latin-America will be heavy to Santiago, Chile, late this month.

The occasion will be the second annual convention in the Chilean capital of Confederacion de Organizaciones Turisticas de America Latina (COTAL), the first formal cooperative group of South and Central American and Caribbean countries ever created to "Unite the Americas Through Tourism."

From North America, leading travel agents, transportation, hotel and governmental representatives will make the long trek to Santiago where the convention will open March 31, continuing through April 5.

Two days of the sessions will take place in Vina del Mar, 120 miles from the capital and adjacent to the port of Valparaiso. Two special trains will be provided to move the expected 1,000 delegates and their wives from Santiago on Saturday, April 4, to the beach resort, where concluding meetings will take place that day and Sunday, before the return to Santiago.

Linera Nacional Airlines will have a special flight leaving Miami at 8 p.m. March 29 for Chile. Santiago Faz C, U. S. representative with headquarters here in the McAllister arcade, said Saturday.

Pan American World Airways, Panagra and other international carriers, also will carry large delegations from the United States, from the Caribbean and Central and South America.

* * *

CUBA plans to send a large representation to the sessions in Santiago and Vina del Mar, following a special visit by James Dubin, president of the international organization and head of Mexican Travel Advisors S. A., in Mexico City, to Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana.

Its purpose will be to extend an invitation from Castro to all the participating countries to attend the 1960 convention, scheduled to be held in Havana shortly after Easter of next year.

Gordon K. McCoun, South American sales manager for Pan American-Grace Airways, with headquarters in Lima, came to Miami last week to extend special invitations to the local Skal Club and other travel and transportation interersts, to participate in the Santiago deliberations.

Previously, he had been in Mexico City to confer with Dubin, and then in Cuba where he discussed plans for both this year's and the 1960 conventions. He indicated he was assured that Dubin would receive the wholehearted support of Castro in arranging next year's gathering in Havana, which will block off 1,500 beds for the COTAL visitors.

"The Santiago and Havana conventions both will be vitally important to Greater Miami," he said, "as most of the U. S. A. and Central American delegations will come through here en route to the sessions."

IT IS understood the government of Chile has posted 50,000,000 pesos (about $50,000) to help defray expenses of the convention, whose program will be concentrated on an exchange of ideas between the participating countries on how to promote travel to all of Latin America, which, in a general sense, includes all resort areas south, east and west of Florida.

For travel agents of North America, special air fares will be provided. Active members of COTAL will pay only a $20 registration fee for themselves and for their wives, and allied members $35. This will entitle the visitors to six days of hotels, sightseeing, transportation, entertainment, banquets, etc. Advance registrations must be made with Jose Moure, c-0 Exprinter, Agustinas 1074, Santiago, Chile.

And Chile is also making available to its guests, at a nominal charge of $5 a day, pre-and post-convention tours throughout the country.

These Will Give You Daydreams
.. maybe they'll aid in curing mental diseases

'Mad' Mushrooms Secret Probed

Mad mushrooms, those mysterious Mexican fungi that cause wild hallucinations in humans, are getting a thorough scientific going over.

Dr. Kent H. McKnight, of Brigham Young University, among others, is trying to find out why humans react as they do to the mushrooms. He also wants to isolate elements which might be of value in treating certain forms of mental diseases.

By DWIGHT JONES
AP Newsfeatures Writer

PROVO, Utah — New ways of growing the strange Mexican mushrooms that cause wild daydreams are being explored by a scientist at Brigham Young University.

Dr. Kent H. McKnight is the expert engaged in basic research into how to propagate and raise the mushrooms that some medical men think may prove valuable in the study of mental illness.

Several potent chemicals have already been found that, like the mushrooms, create hallucinations in men who are wide awake.

By finding out how these compounds produce hallucinations and personality changes in sane men, some scientists hope they may discover the cause of some forms of insanity.

Schizophrenics, those mental patients notable for hallucinations, have been called the greatest medical burden in the U.S. There may be 500,000 in U.S. hospitals and perhaps several times that many at home.

The mushrooms when eaten have been known to cause some of the symptoms of schizophrenia. Subjects have reported that they had wild dreams with part of their mind, and yet were able to keep a slim grasp on reality with another part.

This same sort of reaction has been found with other hallucination-causing drugs.

McKnight, in searching for new ways to grow the dream stuff, has discovered that the mushroom itself isn't necessary. The moldlike filaments of the mushroom root system have produced the same dream effects.

The vision-inducing properties of Mexican mushrooms have been known for some time.

But probably the most vivid popular report of their effect came a couple of years ago from R. Gordon Wasson, a retired New York banker. He told of eating the mushrooms at an Indian ceremony in Mexico, where they have been used in pagan rites for centuries.

Wasson said his hallucinations began with art motifs such as are seen in textiles or wall paper. He wrote:

"There I was, poised in space, a disembodied eye . . . seeing but not seen . . . the effect . . . is to bring about a fission of the spirit, a split in the person a kind of schizophrenia, with the rational side continuing to reason and to observe the sensations that the other side is enjoying . . ."

McKnight began his work as part of a research project started by Dr. James A. Moore, a chemist at the University of Delaware. Dr. Moore is studying chemistry of the fungi and Dr. McKnight is studying their spore germination and fruiting (production of the autual mushroom). McKnight is continuing his study under a three-year $18,000 grant from the National Institute of Health.

European researchers reported last summer they had isolated the chemical which causes the hallucinations. There are reports that at least one American drug firm also has found it, but apparently it is keeping it quiet as a trade secret.

Albert Hofmann, research director of the Swiss drug company, Sandoz A.G., not only isolated the chemical — he ate some of it and reported reactions similar to those of Wasson. Hofmann named the chemical Psilocybin, after one of the hallucinatory mushrooms, Psilocybe Mexicana.

Hofmann already is famed as the man who in 1943 discovered a chemical now universally known as LSD-25. This has become a valuable aid to psychiatrists seeking to produce symptoms like those of schizophrenia, (split personality). It is hoped Psilocybin may be a third substance for use in inducing controllable symptoms of mental illness. The other, besides LSD-25, is Mescayine.

One of the obvious research problems on such a thing as mad mushrooms is finding a way to carry out experiments safely. Animals may be studied for reactions, but they can't describe their dreams.

McKnight says he hasn't eaten any of the mushrooms and doesn't intend to. He's had plenty of people offer to sample them for him. But he's not going to let them.

For another, certain varieties of deadly mushrooms (toadstools to you) also give their eaters hallucinations—just before they die.

Suicide Rate High at Oxford

LONDON — (AP) — Parental pressure on students to make good has been blamed for an increased suicide rate in British universities.

Sir Alan Rock, health officer of Cambridge, wrote in the British Medical Journal the rate at Oxford between 1948 and 1958 was five times the national average. At Cambridge and London University College it was three times as great, he said.

'With God's Help, Jimmy Will Return to School'

He has no memory of the disaster that maimed him and shocked the world last Dec. 1 — the Chicago parochial school fire in which 90 children and three nuns died.

Jimmy is one of eight children of Our Lady of the Angels School who still lie in hospital beds. Most of the survivors have left the hospitals and gone back to school, but Jimmy's ordeal is far from over.

Jimmy was found unconscious a few feet from the blazing school. A nun wrapped him in one of her robes and shouted for help.

A police squadron rushed him to St. Anne's Hospital, where he lay unconscious for 30 days suffering from shock, second degree burns, and a strange paralysis.

It was not until 56 days after the holocaust that Jimmy spoke.

Four weeks ago Jimmy was taken to Mercy Hospital for a series of hydro and physio therapy treatments. His nurse said the boy has been making steady progress and shows desire to overcome the paralysis — which was described as a contraction of the muscles on the youth's left side.

The boy's father, James Sr., a truck driver, said, "Jimmy is a fine boy. He enjoyed school and used to play basketball in the alley and go bowling."

"My wife and I have noticed a great improvement during the past few weeks," Howard said. "The doctors' reports are encouraging and with the help of God, Jim will be back in school again."

One of Jimmy's teachers said, "he is well liked and a very bright boy. I am sure that if the treatments are successful and Jimmy is fully restored, he will be able to enter high school in the fall."

The medical expenses for Jimmy and the other fire victims are being paid out of a fund originated for that purpose.

is your complexion older than you are?

When nature slackens on the job, it's time to take over with a little aiding and abetting on the side. Cosmetologists say that as skin matures, there's danger of dryness or excessive oiliness. Eleanor Hart recently wrote about a line of made-in-Florida lotions and creams for problem skins. These beauty aids utilize in modern guise the curative powers of an ancient tropical plant known to the belles of the court of Alexander the Great.

No sooner read, than 577 women picked up their phones and dialed The Herald Shopping Service. All wanted to know the brand name of the products and where they could be purchased.

It happens all the time. In the past 12 months, The Herald has received more than a quarter of a million requests for its various helpful services. Which just goes to show what Herald ADVERTISERS already know. . . .

IT WAS by pure chance that Larry Thompson chose today to write about his family's recent trip to Everglades National Park, tying in nicely with the cover stroy by Lew Deitz on page 3.

The Thompson excursion (page 10) was considerably less serene than that of Mr. Dietz, who presumably was not accompanied by small children. It is hard to appreciate fully the beauties of nature when your tots are flirting with disaster by leaning perilously over railings to get a better view of assorted alligators, snakes etc.

It even distrubed the custodians of wildlife in the park who do not like strangers coming around feeding hard-to-digest children to their nice healthy gators.

KEY WEST is famous for its pastel houses, but even the natives rubbed their eyes in disbelief one day when they looked toward the sea and beheld a U. S. Navy submarine painted pink. It harmonized well with the houses, there was no denying that, but the Navy has never been famous for its efforts to decorate equipment to match ports of call. But then most Navy pig boats don't carry a cargo of girls, either. This one did. George Bourke's story about the bright little sub is on page 8.

* * *

THE LOWLY LAND CRAB has University of Miami scientists in a tissy these days, Steve Trumbull reports in his story on page 4. There is some evidence that leads them to believe that possibly this evil little critter with the waving claws and untidy habits is a missing link in the evolution story. And they jolly well intend to find out if this is so by scrutinizing the manners, morals, and origins of the blighter over a three year period.

Everglades National Park

America's Backyard Wilderness

By Lew Dietz

Painting by Bernard Lippman

Printed Through Courtesy of Ford Times

Tucked away in a corner of this broad land of ours, there is a vast mysterious region where trees walk and oysters grow on bushes. It's a strange and brooding wilderness, incredibly rich in plant and animal life, much of which exists no other place on the continent. It is the home of the vanishing crocodile, the manatee, the magnificent wood ibis, the water turkey and the roseate spoonbill.

The Seminoles named it Pa-Ha-O-Kee, which means "River of Grass." We know it today as the Everglades National Park for since 1947 it has been under governmental jurisdiction.

The entrance to the park at Homestead is a scant hour's drive from Miami. There is no wilderness frontier in America so accessible to motorists and few, no matter how sequestered, so rewarding.

* * *

THE EVERGLADES National Park celebrated its tenth anniversary last December by making this natural park even more accessible. Now completed is a six - and - one - half - million-dollar project which includes a hardtop highway through to Flamingo, a visitors' center building, a sixty-unit motel, a modern marina, a camping and picnicking area. But the new and modern facilities, and the clean, knifing highway have not violated this virgin wilderness. What you view down from Homestead through the open glades and on down into the tangled mangrove is only as far as the eye can see and that is just a sample of what lies beyond.

There are 2,300 square miles of land, or half-land, and water. Flamingo, the road's terminus, is in truth a mere jumping-off place.

There are scheduled boat trips leaving the marina every day. If it's birds and swampland you want to see, take the Buttonwood Creek trip. There's a boat ramp if you wish to bring your own boat and outboard, or you can rent one at the marina at a reasonable cost. But take care not to get lost.

* * *

A TRIP to the Everglades will most surely strengthen your respect for the National Park Service personnel. The ranger force at Everglades, working under Superintendent Warren Hamilton, is doing a superlative job of orienting and educating visitors to the fabulous region. On hand is a staff of naturalists headed by Ernst Christensen. He'll tell you, among many other things, why the Park Service protects all wildlife. There is a place for bobcats and mountain lions in nature's scheme — there is even a place for mosquitoes, says Chris.

* * *

FISHERMEN will be glad to learn that the park authorities made an exception of the fish in their protective control of Everglades wildlife. Fishing is permitted, in conformity with the State of Florida regulations (no salt-water fishing license is required). A sign at Royal Palm suggests, with a touch of humor, that there is one small qualification to the open fishing rule. The sign reads: "Fishing within one-mile radious of the Royal Palm Station is for the birds."

To realize fully how new to man this vast wilderness is, it should be recalled that it wasn't until the third decade of the present century that the Everglades was accessible at all. It was in 1928 with the beginning of work on the Tamiami Trail, which skirts the northerly boundary of the park, that this wilderness was first breached. Completion of the park road from State 27 at the entrance to Flamingo and the new tourist installations there represent only part of the ten-year Mission 66 program of National Park Service expansion.

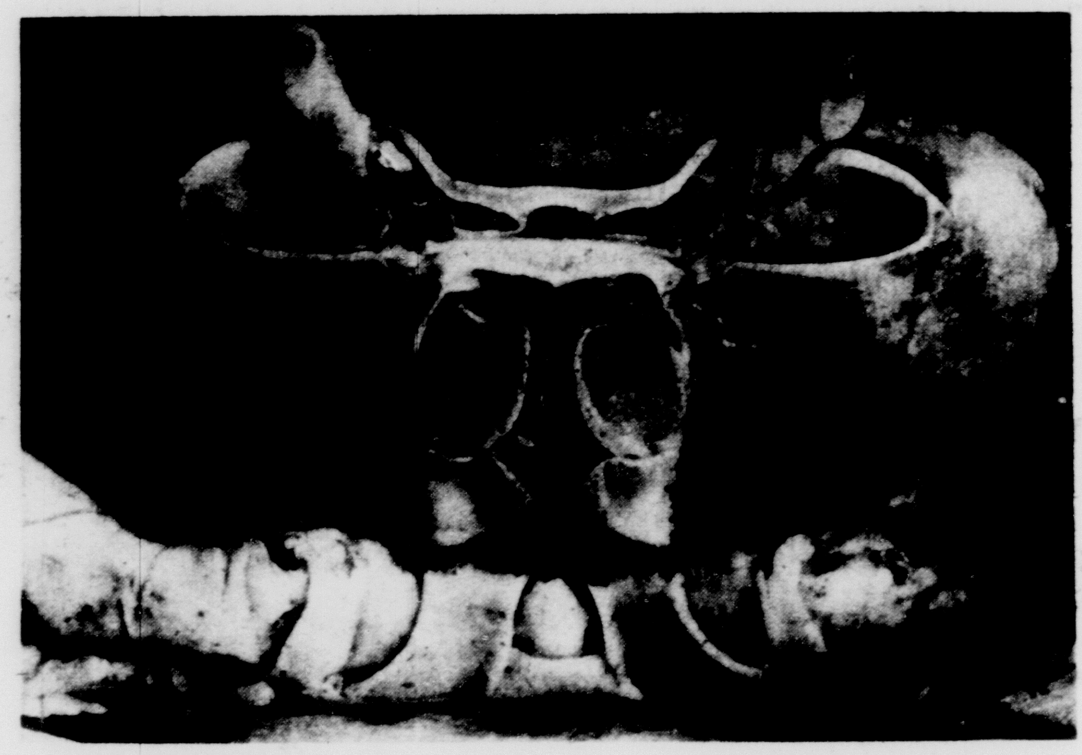
Be Kind to Land Crabs

They May Be Our Ancestors



THIS UNLOVELY CREATURE GETS SCIENTIFIC SCRUTINY
. . . University has $37,000 grant to study manners, morals, origins

By Steve Trumbull

LAND CRABS — those awesome critters who frighten the b'jabbers out of newcomers when they invade bayfront yards waving their huge claws — are under their first all-out scientific study at the University of Miami.

The things may be a pain in the garden for coast-dwelling South Florida residents, but the National Science Foundation has decided they rate a painstaking, three-year study. And the Marine Laboratory of our local university was tapped for the assignment.

Reason for the study?

Scientists now think this lowly landcrab may be an important link in the evolution story. That theory holds that there was life in the seas millions of years before facets of that life moved ashore and learned to live there.

* * *

THIS LAND CRAB, they believe, may prove to be a significant living example of that transition, a gill-breather that can remain away from water as long as eight hours and which can take oxygen from very salty or almost-fresh water.

Will the study come up with any easier extermination methods that might be used by the timid householder who fears it?

"Not all all," said Dr. Charles Lane, the young biologist who heads the project, and a fellow with a tremendous capacity for scientific enthusiasm.

"In fact," he continued, "we think he should be preserved. He is a very efficient scavenger, and without the scavengers the world would be a most messy and untidy place."

* * *

SCIENTIFIC NAME of the crab is Cardisoma guanhumi, the last word of which is a most descriptive but slightly inelegant bit of Latin.

He would win no popularity contests among the help around the place. He must be handled with long tongs because of those lethal claws. While under study he is lashed to a frame covered with a rope net.

Recently the technicians ran to a room where some of the crabs were kept, in response to anguished shouts coming from the place. A wild-eyed porter was backed off in a corner, waving a broom and shouting insults at all land crabs, living and dead.

The crabs had broken out of their cage, and he was cornered.

* * *

FEEDING THE CRABS under study is no problem at all. They will eat anything left over from the table, and almost anything picked up in the yard.

Some people in the Bahamas, and some Bahamians transplanted here, eat the big claws and consider them to be delicacies.

Puzzles and Pastimes

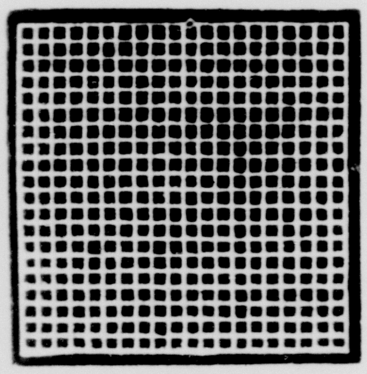
Ah Spring! 'Tis Here, But in Blank Array

"AND the Spring comes slowly up this way," a line by Coleridge, lends itself appropriately to the following test. Spring is already here, it seems, but owes its appearance to certain incomplete words for which definitions are given. How many can you complete?

(A)	S P - - - -	Scarce
	- - R I - -	Try hard
	- - - - N G	Be the property of
(B)	S P - - - -	To scatter
	- - R I - -	Deserves
	- - - - N G	Powerful
(C)	S P - - - -	A talk
	- - R I - -	A long step
	- - - - N G	A thread or cord
(D)	S P - - - -	A form of the piano
	- - R I - -	Showy
	- - - - N G	Subduing
(E)	S P - - - -	Thin strip of wood
	- - R I - -	Import duty
	- - - - N G	Balloting
(F)	S P - - - -	Courage, energy
	- - R I - -	Handwriting
	- - - - N G	A crowd

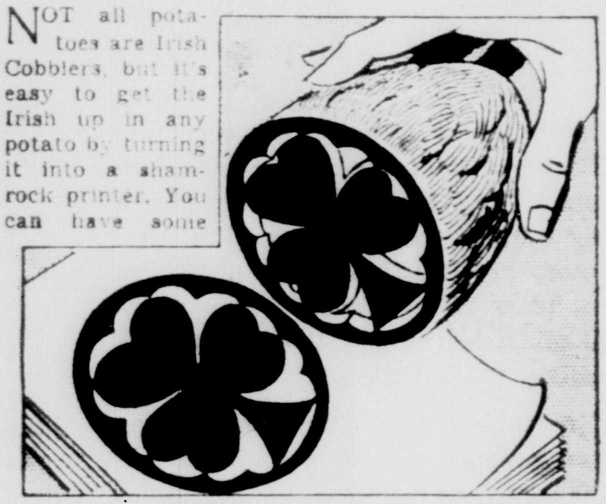
Answers: A—sparse, strive, belong. B—spread, merits, strong. C—speech, stride, string. D—spinet, garish, taming. E—splint, tariff, voting. F—spirit, script, throng.

In Black and White



WHEN something is down in black and white, we usually regard it as so, but not here. Hold this drawing about two inches from your eyes and stare at it intently. Things will begin to happen. Blacks, whites—which are which?

Shamrock Hits the Spot



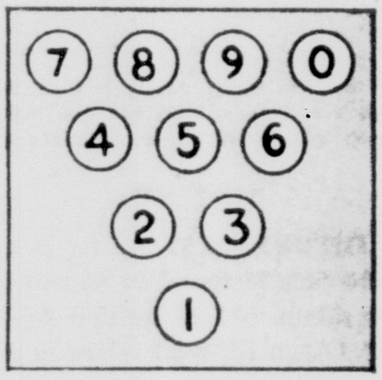
NOT all potatoes are Irish Cobblers, but it's easy to get the Irish up in any potato by turning it into a shamrock printer. You can have some fun reproducing this design for St. Patrick's Day. A potato, knife and green poster paint are needed.

To begin, cut a good-size potato in half. Carve a shamrock design on either half following the pattern above (cut away white area about one-quarter of an inch deep).

When finished, apply poster paint to design. Press design down on paper and lift straight up.

STRIKE OUT FOR FUN!

By H. C. Kaufman

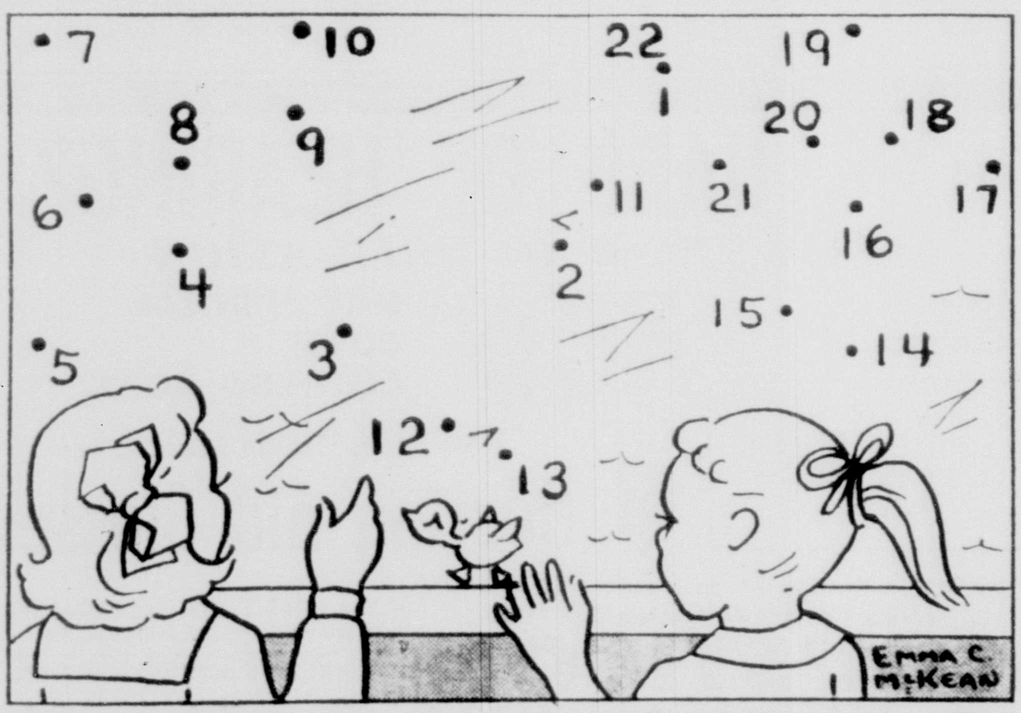


TO SCORE a strike in the diagram at right, that is, to succeed in crossing out all of the numbers, you must find the correct answers to the definitions below. If the answer to No. 1, for instance, is 0, cross out 0 in the diagram; if the answer to No. 2 is 4315, cross out 4, 3, 1 and 5, etc. Answers may have as many as five digits. Can you bowl a perfect game?

1. A handful of fingers: ——.
2. A sextet, a septet and an octet: ——, ——, ——.
3. Theatrical noteworthies: Franchot T—— and Ernest Borg——.
4. Canada embraces the —— standard time zones of the U. S. plus —— others.
5. Pluto, planet number nine, was discovered by Professor Lowell, of Harvard, in 19——.

Answers: 1 Five. 2 Six, seven, eight. 3 One nine (Tone, Borgnine). 4 Four and two. 5 Three zero (1930).

WINDOW ON ANOTHER WORLD?



ON a class field trip, these youngsters saw some strange and wonderful creatures. You can find out where they went and what they saw by drawing a line from dot 1 to dot 2 to dot 3, etc., until you have used up all of the numbers. Where two numbers are close to one dot, use the dot for both.

Answer: The youngsters are at the aquarium.

EVEN FOR SCIENCE, LAND CRAB REFUSES TO COOPERATE

...has to be lashed down securely to prevent escape or attack

The more fussy claw eaters pen the crabs up for a week or more and feed them corn meal. This is supposed to "clean them out," and guard against the chance that they might have been poisoned.

This last danger, Dr. Lane warns, could be very real. Many land owners put out poison pellets to get rid of them.

The scientists already have learned that the crab can get his moisture and oxygen from water two times as salty as the ocean, or he can get it from water only half as salty.

* * *

IN THE CAGES, he puts on a ludicrous show as he enters the bath for these moisture and oxygen in-takes. He tests the surface of the water daintily with his huge claw, then slowly climbs in and settles down with all the motions of a hen settling down on a nest.

Bubbles and froth ooze forth. When he has had enough he climbs out and lumbers away, making room for the next moisture seeking crab.

Land crabs once figured in popular South Florida hurricane lore. It was believed that a mass migration of them away from the bay and to the highlands was a sure sign of a coming blow.

But when more and more people saw that happening at times when no hurricanes came the legend lost many of its believers.

Dr. Lane ventures very few scientific theories as to the crab, for the very good reason that it has had nothing but the most superficial of past study. Two other Phd's are to be assigned to the study, with some student help.

They believe that in the three year study period they will have answers to many of the questions now puzzling their profession.

Shh, Please, Let's Say Saucy, Not Risky!

'My Mommy Sings Risky Songs!'

By Mike Morgan

Photos by Doug Kennedy

AND THEN there was the time the eight - year - old daughter of singer Ruth Wallis innocently, but proudly, described her mother as:

"The real best singer of risky songs."

Little Ronnie isn't quite certain what a "risky" song is — but she is accurate in boasting that mommy can belt one out like no one in the business—show business, that is.

Ruth can also punch out a ballad, or a straight tune in a manner that isn't any risk to your ears—but the shapely, blonde night club performer is best known around the nation for her hilarious double entendre dittys.

This versatile gal is also the top, and most prolific, writer of "risky" songs. And owns her own record company!

* * *

WHATEVER the sauce, the Miami Beach mother and singer has taken the double entendre and parlayed it into a very comfortable bankroll. With the help of her husband, Hy, that is.

Ruth currently is filling an engagement at the Carillon Hotel—in between which she is trying to write a few new songs at her home at 4450 North Jefferson Ave. Which is no small in-between if you've ever tried to knock out a couple of songs while the kids keep crashing and banging around.

And when you have a daughter who wants to write music too and insists that mom help. This daughter is a real ham, says Mother Ruth —but says it with enormous pride.

"When the girl gets mad at me she puts her hands on her hips and shouts 'I suppose you think you can sing, dearie.' "

* * *

YEARS of success in the top clubs of the nation is ample evidence that mom can sing. She got into the business trying to sell her songs —they weren't the "risky" kind then.

Ruth would make the heartbreaking rounds of song publishers in New York and sing her ballads. Publishers would listen and advise: "Why try to sell songs when you can sing? Why don't you get a job singing instead?"

She did—with a radio station, and she sang with a band. For free. There was another fellow singing with her for free at the time in an effort to get established.

Someone by the name of Frank Lane.

Both finally got a paying job. (Wonder what ever became of Frankie?)

* * *

RUTH'S first job brought her to Miami Beach at the old Park Avenue Club. It was here that she wrote her initial "saucy" song—it was a hit.

A couple of years later she had acquired husband Hy, and a batch of fresh-writ home made songs. Then, while in California, a record company put her under contract.

The records were a success except for one thing.

"We couldn't get our money from the company—had to fight for our royalties" — a gesture not exactly calculated to inspire confidence on the part of the singer. Whereupon husband Hy said: "If the records sell for them they should sell for us. Let's form our own company."

Ruth cut some samples and sent them to distributors around the nation. It appeared as if the company would fold before it got underway.

The cavalry came to the rescue in the form of a telegram from a Chicago distributor ordering 5,000 copies of one record.

"But we were out of cash,"

HOW CAN mama turn a neat—and naughty—phrase and set it to music with these two expert hecklers crashing about? 'Tisn't easy, Singer-Composer-Record Company Executive Ruth Wallis admits, but then they're such wonderfully lovable little occupational hazards that she can't bear to shoo them away. The hazards are named Alan and Ronnie and they're 6 and 8 respectively. In spite of their unsolicited "assistance" Ruth has taken the double entendre and parlayed it into a highly profitable career.

THE ALL AMERICAN BOY'S BACK

Words Aren't Clear -- But Who Cares? It's Elvis

By Jean Wardlow

TWO NEW VOCAL records are out. Stand back. The first one is Elvis'. And if you don't know who Elvis is, welcome from Mars and how was your trip?

This album is called . . . wait a minute now while we look wa-ay up in the corner here for the title in type as small as a cancellation clause. Oh, yes, it's For EP Fans Only and it's RCA Victor LPM 1990.

Reason it's so hard to find is that the front cover is just one big picture of Elvis, All American Boy, and the back, Elvis Pfc.—All American Boy Overseas. In fact his name isn't even there. You must know.

Since he hasn't been around a recording studio lately, we take for granted that these are re-releases, and some of the Presley fans' favorites are included.

Elvis sings that his baby done left him; but he ain't lonesome; 'cause he's got a dolly; and when he gets wound up he shakes, rattles and rolls. In a couple of songs the words weren't clear because the bass beat and the "background" music got in the way.

Elvis' fans will like "Mystery Train," "That's All Right" and the slow one, "Playing for Keeps." This is for the set which 20 years from now will be saying, "Listen, dear. They're playing our song."

In Marian McPartland's New Album

Imaginative Approach to Jazz

By Fred Sherman

IT'S A HAPPY Ides of March and there's no reason to beware. You can rush right out and scout a new Contemporary album called The Poll Winners Ride Again (C-3556). It's great.

The three smiling faces on the cover belong to Barney Kessel the swingingest guitarist around, Ray Brown the bass player and Shelly Manne the drummer. The title tells the story because these three men have taken first place in just about every popularity poll taken in the last five years. This album solidifies that position.

Kessel never sounded better. And he has seldom been programmed so well. There are two of his own compositions on the nine-track session. Listen for his classical opening on Foreign Intrigue before the jazz beat is picked up.

And if you are weary of unimaginative drum and bass breaks, hear Brown and Manne on a happy-skip version of Red Red Robin. Other highlights of the album are the soft solo work on Angel Eyes and the bass and drum echoes of the signature lines on Volare.

THE IMPORTANCE of an imaginative approach to jazz is found in Marian McPartland's new album which is titled At the London House (Argo LP-640). Here is a demonstration of the talent which makes this English lady one of the finest jazz pianists working today. I won't say woman pianists because Marian resents the idea that the battle of the sexes extends to the piano bench. Nevertheless, she is one of the few women who have made it big in the jazz world.

She has been in South Florida the last month and I hope you caught her up at the Taboo in Palm Beach or during the last two weeks in Art Bruns' Carriage House at the Miami Springs Villas. Last I heard, she winds up the Springs date tonight.

MARIAN McPARTLAND

Carriage House is a key club so you'll have to find a member to unlock the door for you. Too bad one of the downtown Miami hotels doesn't get hep to the great draw a name jazz trio could be in a cozy cocktail lounge.

But back to the London House album which was recorded at the Chicago steak house last September. Bill Britto is the bass player and Joe Cusatis is on drums. There isn't a weak moment in the set, but best of the 10 tracks are Tune for Tex which is a Billy Taylor composition and a moody piece by Marian called So Many Things.

Easy Blues, Play Fiddle Play, Like Someone in Love, Tune for Tex, Signature Blues, Blues Intro, Steeplechase, Give Me the Simple Life, Sweet and Lovely, So Many Things.

* * *

Ella Swings Lightly is a frothy set by Miss Fitzgerald with backing from an unnamed group of musicians batoned by Marty Paich. (Verve MGV-4021).

Producer Norman Granz has done a big job for Ella, but I don't think he's safe in assuming that everybody buying records today will identify her by photo and first name A fast-moving session of 16 tunes. If there is a weak link, it is the arrangement of Knock Me a Kiss. Much too lightly.

RUTH AND HUSBAND-BUSINESS MANAGER

. . . they have a completely closed corporation

reminisced Hy. "Didn't have any money left for pressings." Happily, a presser staked them to credit—and the company was launched.

* * *

SINCE THEN they've made one and two long play records a year—and sell between 25,000 to 35,000 copies annually.

It's about as closed a corporation as you can close when you consider that Ruth writes the words and music and sings the songs — and they own the company. She spins out about 20 new songs a year.

Almost thought she had that made once, too.

"We met this fellow a couple of years ago on the Beach who told us he was a writer. He seemed real prosperous. Took us to his home and it was a big, palatial place," she said.

"He kept calling up every day and coming over with chapters of a manuscript. They were lousy. But he insisted. So I started writing the songs for the show. Straight songs, and they were good show numbers. Thought we could get the book rewritten.

"My husband kept saying to him, 'Where will you get the money to finance the show?'—He kept answering he would 'raise it when it was needed.'

"Then he left for a few days. One morning we see in the paper he had been arrested in New Jersey as a big-time jewel thief. Boy!"

She sighed. "I still would like to produce a show—but I want a backer who isn't a jewel thief."

And don't forget he was a lousy writer, too.

* * *

THE VENTURE wasn't a failure though. An album of the songs intended originally for the show proved to be a substantial money maker.

Ruth spends about half her time here so she can be with the kids, and the rest singing around the country.

Bids from top spots in London and other out-of-country jobs are turned down—she refuses to get far from the youngsters.

Her curtain closer is not one of the "risky" songs—it's the reverse . . . a sentimental number titled, My Children are My Treasures.

And about those kids.

Then there was the time a couple of years ago one of them brought a note from a teacher at North Beach Elementary School:

"Your daughter tells us you are a singer. Won't you come sing for the children."

Came a return note:

"We understand. Would you come and sing for the teachers?"

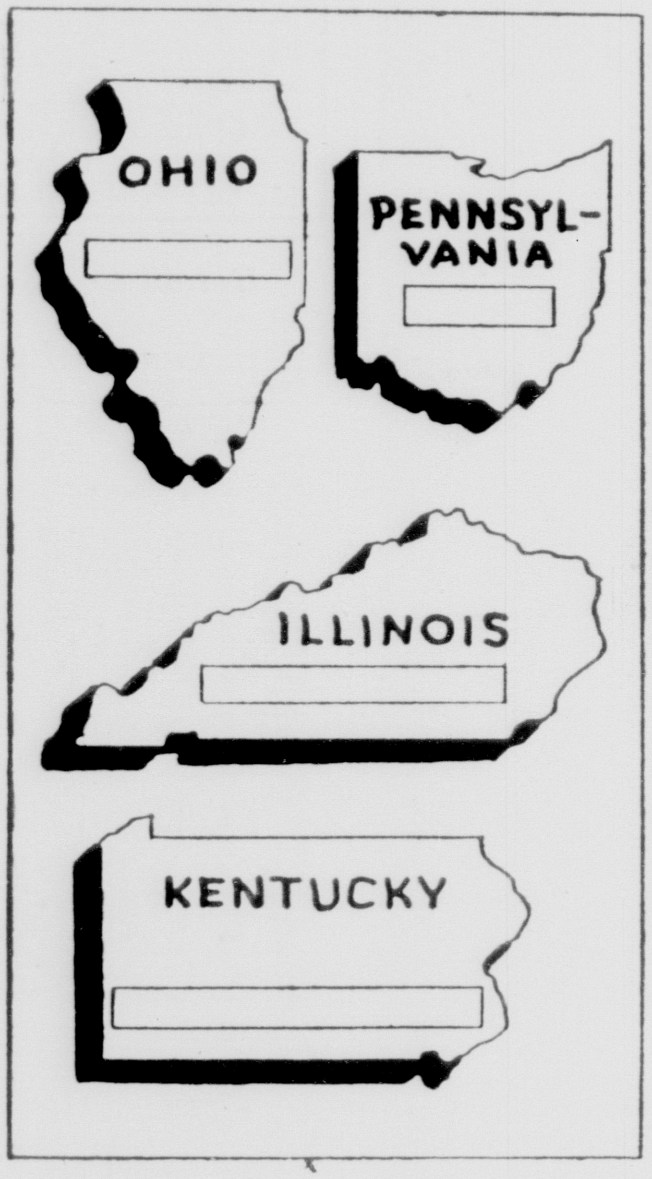
These States in Jam! Try to Unravel Them



FOUR STATES ARE MISLABELED

. . . supply the right name

By Cappy Dick

WANT TO OWN a flying saucer? Here's your chance to win one!

Ten boys and girls who send in the most neatly prepared correct solutions to the jumbled-states puzzle in the above picture will win flying saucers.

The flying saucer is an outfit consisting of a plastic rotating propeller, a launching spindle and a pull-cord which automatically rewinds itself. When the saucer is launched from its spindle, it spins with great speed and soars high into the air.

First, study the picture in which the outlines of four states appear. On each state is printed a state's name. However, every outline bears the wrong name.

Also on each state is a blank. Your problem is to decide the name of each state and print it in the blank.

When you have filled the blanks and are sure you have identified each state correctly, clip the picture out and paste it on a sheet of paper. Beneath it print your name, age and address. If you wish to do so, you may color your contest entry or decorate it in any other way you believe will make it neat and attractive.

The contest judges will examine all entries to find the 10 correct ones most neatly prepared.

Names, ages and addresses of the 10 winners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to their homes by mail.

Pink Pig Boats

PINK SUBMARINE'S SKIPPER, CARY GRANT
... also sharing producer responsibilities with Robert Archer

IT WAS ALL PLAY AND NO WORK FOR JANET LEIGH
... took a holiday while husband, Tony Curtis, worked

By George Bourke

THE JAUNTY little "tin can" might have run up an appropriate signal if a United States Navy destroyer's color standard locker stocked anything suitable to break out in salute of a pink-hued submarine.

The signalman on duty did the next best thing in the emergency, however. In blinker code he flashed out the message:

"Balao, darling, you never looked lovelier!"

The crew of the 285-foot submarine, cruising the waters off Key West, took it as part of the price it must expect to pay for fame.

The Balao, you see, has gone Hollywood—and much of the Key West submarine base with it — since Universal-International's bright new comedy director, Blake Edwards, and movie stars Cary Grant, Tony Curtis (who was in Edwards' "Perfect Furlough), Gene Evans and Arthur O'Connell took over the Southernmost City to make a movie called "Operation Petticoat."

GEORGE BOURKE

* * *

MOVIE STARS and movie making are nothing new to Key West. Gloria Swanson spent some of her girlhood there when her Army captain father was stationed nearby, and such easily remembered films as "Rose Tattoo," "Reap the Wild Wind" and "Under the Reef" were made at Key West entirely or in great part.

But pink submarines are something only intoxicated elephants are supposed to see.

And to paraphrase a Gelett Burgess rhyme about purple cows, it is likely that Chief Officer Lester Moon, of the Balao, is today muttering that he'd jolly well rather be a pink submarine himself than ever to see one again.

He's taken a lot of kidding about the current pastel hue of his craft, which proved its virility in nine major Pacific operations during World War II.

In fact, the current tint of the sub (named for a flying fish which actually features a touch of pink on the caudal fin) has been dubbed "Moon Pink" in his honor.

Lt. Cmdr. Maurice O. Muncie commands the Balao in real life, a rank which Grant plays in the film, with Curtis as one of his lieutenants.

This represents a promotion for Curtis, who served aboard a submarine in the Pacific during World War II as a signalman, third class.

* * *

WORLD WAR II is the time and the same Pacific is the locale of "Operation Petticoat." It's plot concerns the evacuation of five army nurses from a threatened island via a submarine which was forced to take to sea with only half of its paint "make-up" on, a condition resulting from a quartermaster snafu.

Incidentally, the Balao was chosen for the role it plays because it was due for a regular paint job. The glorious technicolor tint (which was applied at no Navy expense by sailors on weekend leave and on temporary Universal payroll) is in the regulation lead over which a finishing gray-black coat

How to Keep Out Unwelcome 'Guests'

By Don Mucklow

ONE OF THE most important items of maintenance is keeping the underwater portion of a boat in a safe and efficient condition.

There are two major nuisances which plague most boatmen who navigate on Florida's salt waters. These are shipworms (teredos) and barnacles.

The teredo, one of the many shipworms, is a pest to those of us who own wooden or plywood boats. This little creature doesn't care who pays the tab for his food, and will certainly move in as a permanent lodger unless precautions are made to prevent his "becoming attached" to your vessel.

I know of no better preventive means than that of keeping the danger area part of your boat protected by a coat of good bottom paint.

* * *

SOME BOATS (those with substantial keels) are equipped with what is commonly known as a worm shoe. This addition to the keel is nothing more than a section of wood, sometimes creosoted, which is affixed to the underside of the keel.

This is done so that any accidental grounding, which would remove a protective coating of paint, would offer only a comparatively easily replaced section of wood for the shipworms' room and board.

The worm shoe is usually separated from the actual keel by a layer of tarred felt paper and shaped to fit the bottom contour of the keel, so as to reduce the possibility of the bore making progress into the actual structural members of the vessel.

The worm shoe itself must be painted with a protective coating of anti-fouling paint to prevent these little monsters from devouring that section between haul out times.

The accidental collision with floating objects such as coconuts, pieces of wood, and so forth, will sometimes scrape off the painted surface and expose the bare wood of the planked area of the vessel to the onslaughts of shipworms.

* * *

CAREFUL observance of floating objects and the avoidance of them will help tremendously in preventing such attacks. Night navigation, with its poor visibility, should be at such speeds as to reduce the possibility of the impact with floating objects from baring the susceptible underwater areas from this danger.

KEEP BOTTOM OF BOAT WELL PROTECTED
. . . nothing works like good coat of paint

The barnacle, distant cousin of the clam, drifts aimlessly about in the tidal waters and will affix himself to any surface which offers a bond for his base. At this stage, the barnacle is practically invisible to the naked eye. But man, how they grow.

I have seen boat bottoms which became so fouled over a period of as little as three weeks by barnacles as to render the propeller practically usless as a means of pushing the boat.

* * *

PAINTING the propeller blades will not eliminate this condition, for the spinning action of the shaft and prop will throw off the toxic qualities of the paint and present a good surface for the barnacles to fix to.

The bottom of the boat should be properly prepared before painting. It must be cleaned thoroughly, then scrubbed down with sand and flushed with clean water.

The next step is to permit the surface to dry completely before painting.

ABUNDANCE OF HIGH-PRICED BEEF CAKE IN KEY WEST
...Cary Grant and Tony Curtis during Key West shooting

Several score legitimate sailors on the base play themselves in bit and extra roles, and nearly 100 Floridians of civilian status have also been given work in the film.

CLIFF POLAN is a cameraman, Del Russo is handling make-up, and Sid Cassel, director-actor well known in Miami little theater, plays a key role of an Army colonel.

The Universal company was housed at the Key Wester and Blue Marlin motels for the four weeks of Florida "shooting." There will be at least four more weeks of interior shooting in Hollywood.

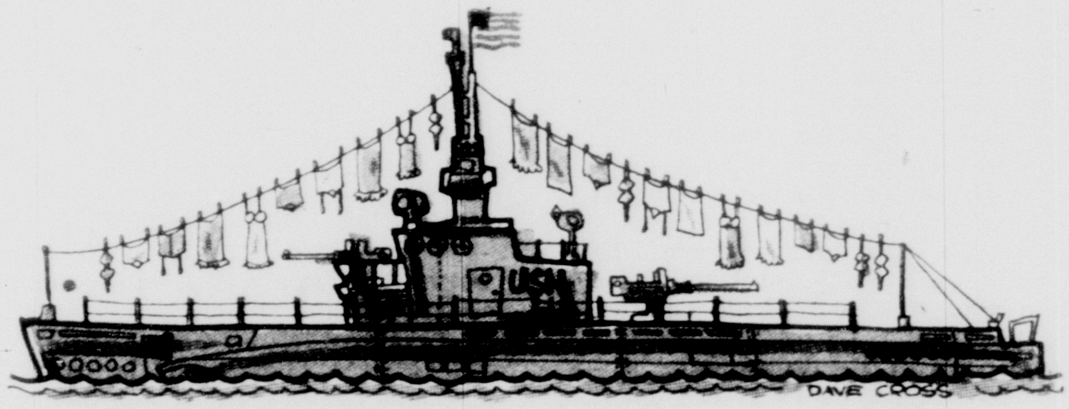
The "Balao" was just sweet 16 the day it donned its first movie make-up, having been commissioned on Feb. 4, 1943. It sank an estimated 57,000 tons of merchant shipping during the war before it was decommissioned in 1946.

Since being recommissioned and assigned to Submarine Squadron Twelve in Key West in 1952, however, her career has been one that unintentionally, it is presumed, was preparing her for a glamorous movie debut.

In recent years the Balao, without pink battle dress, has steamed triumphantly away from skirmishes at the Gasparilla Festival at Tampa; the Splash Day festival at Galveston; the Sunshine Festival at St. Petersburg, and the Fort Lauderdale Independence Day celebration last July!

And now Hollywood!

It might violate the rules of the game to divulge too much of the Balao's role in "Operation Petticoat," but it is likely that this much is unclassified: it is obliged by the compulsions of war to take aboard five Army nurses. That combined with its non-government issue coloration brings it the double woe of being suspected of being of Jap registration by United States ships and of Yankee cut by the Japs.



Grant and Curtis finally solve the predicament of identification to their own ships which are bearing down for the kill by filling a torpedo tube with excess underclothing donated by the excess and unwanted feminine complement aboard and directing it "hot, straight and normal" in the language of the silent service toward the attacking vessels.

Even the British Navy would stop to investigate the situation of feminine undergarments floating about at sea so we'll admit that the script has the Yank skipper stopping to ask questions before dropping his depth charges on the suspected sub.

* * *

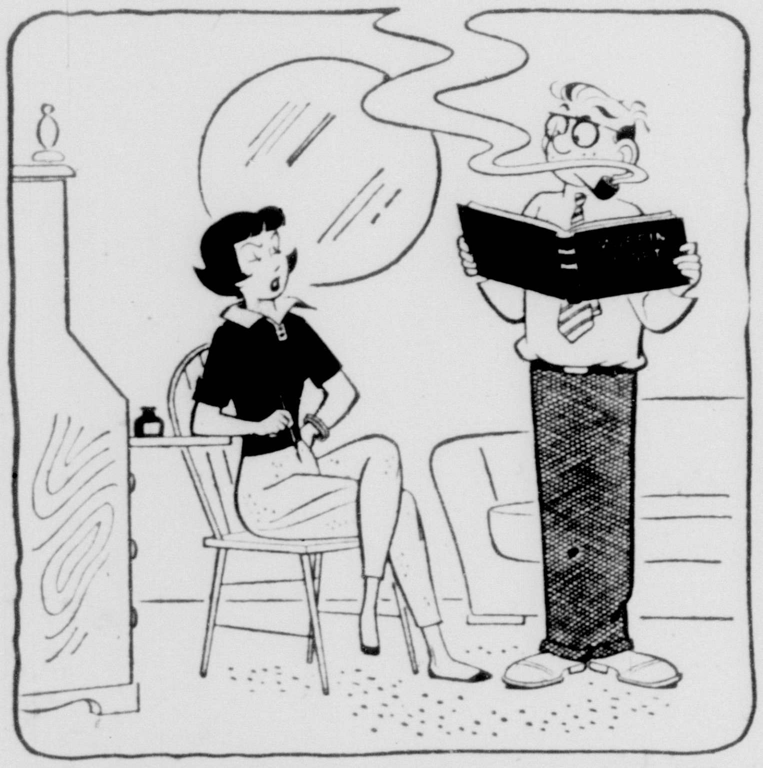
YOU'LL HAVE to see the finished product (which should be due sometime in December), however to learn exactly what item of attire it is which the skipper holds aloft for his crew to see.

But here is a clue.

The skipper's dialogue, as it appeared in the working script, at least, went something like this:

"There's no question about it—they, I mean it, has simply got to be one of ours."

THE MUFFINS



"NOW I SUPPOSE YOU'RE GOING TO COME UP WITH SOME HAIR-BRAINED SCHEME...LIKE QUIT SPENDING!"

BAHIA-MAR OFFERS FACILITIES FOR 400 PLEASURE CRAFT

. . . Fort Lauderdale marina built at cost of $2,500,000

Plush Bahia-Mar -- Marina 'Nobody Visits Only Once'

BEFITTING a city which likes to call itself the Venice of America, Fort Lauderdale has the largest, most plush pleasure boat marina in the nation . . . and probably in the world.

Bahia-Mar was built in 1949 at a cost of 2½ million dollars, with facilities for more than 40 boats and yachts of all sizes and types.

The city owns and operates the marina. Its 27 acres include three miles of docks, 450 car parking spaces, two restaurants, a marine repair yard, a marine supply sales store and a 28-acre shopping center.

In addition, a U.S. weather recording station, U.S. post office contract station, individual electricity, water and telephone connections, and numerous other services are provided.

The administration and operation requires 35 regular employes, and 15 additional helpers during the winter season. Most have a boating background.

* * *

LEASED SERVICES employ about 160 additional persons.

Bahia-Mar (bay-sea in Spanish) is operated by the Fort Lauderdale Parks and Recreation Division, which has designed a code of ordinances for a good business operation. Employes take pride in dealings with yachtsmen, and this bolsters the marina claim that "nobody visits here only once."

The site was a World War II Coast Guard base, and during the Seminole wars a fort stood there.

A 10 per cent business increase is anticipated for the 1958-59 season. Last season, 1,500 yachts were logged in.

Commercial boats based at the marina do a thriving business. There are 26 charter fishing craft and seven sightseeing boats.

Bahia-Mar has more winter residents than do many South Florida municipalities. During seasonal months (December through April), upward of a thousand persons live there aboard boats.

* * *

THE LITTLE WORLD of what is said to be the world's greatest yacht basin comes alive at this time of year. A decorated boat parade in early February was successful, and marine interests intend to revive the tinselled regattas on an annual basis.

The basin affords sights to stir the heart of anyone who feels the lure of the sea.

Sleek yachts are laying up alongside the long docks, and the tips of masts are showing up against the sky over the glossy tops of cabin cruisers.

It's a montage of mahogany, coiled rope, canvas-shoed khaki-clad mates, glistening white hulls, churning water, shining brass and the sparkle on the waters of New River sound.

The panorama isn't soon forgotten.

As Boats Get Beamier, Trailers Must Grow, Too

THE TREND toward broader beamed 16- and 17-foot outboard boats is being reflected in the public's request for larger trailers, a leading manufacturer reports.

In a statement which was based on surveys made at the opening of 1959 boat show, it was reported that the demand for 14-foot boat trailers is remaining at a standstill while the 16-and 17-footers are gaining in popularity.

By Lawrence Thompson

AFTER WAITING longer than we should, our family finally visited Everglades National Park. We really didn't give it proper inspection, going only to the Royal Palm Station, but that gave us an idea of what is in this 2,300 square miles of wilderness.

What is in it is swampland, alligators, snakes and birds. It is not exciting, as is the Grand Canyon or Zion or Yellowstone, for the scenery is flat and unchanging. But it is interesting, and some time we are going to take one of the boat trips that get you into the back country — where, I suppose, there are even more alligators, snakes and birds.

We decided to combine the trip with a picnic, knowing that they have picnic facilities at Royal Palm. If you drive to the end of the road, at Flamingo, there also are picnic grounds, a camping area, restaurant, service station and a motel. You can rent boats at Flamingo. Guided boat tours and guided walks are made from both Royal Palm and Flamingo.

The Good Woman fixed up sandwiches and at my insistence brought along a box of marshmallows. I often have told the children of the fun we had in my youth roasting marshmallows, and I promised them that they now could enjoy the same pleasure.

We had no charcoal, but I said it would be easy to buy some along the way.

* * *

WE KEPT going along the way until we were near the park entrance, and I had forgotten to get the charcoal. Fortunately, there is a store which advertises all sorts of supplies, plus providing charcoal grills, and we stopped there.

They had charcoal grills, all right, but no charcoal. And you can't buy charcoal in the park. It turned out it didn't matter, since you can't build a fire on the picnic grounds anyway, so I told the children we'd have our picnic on the way home.

We arrived at the Royal Palm station too late for one of the guided tours, so we toured by ourselves. That's simple, because there's a long trail leading to a catwalk which extends far into the glades, giving a close-up view of the swamp and its inhabitants.

They ran ahead along the trail and I nearly had heart failure each time they stopped at the edge of the road to peer off into the water. This nervousness was doubled when they stopped on a bridge and leaned over to see the hundreds of fat gar fish.

I didn't know what I'd do if one of my youngsters had fallen in. Normally, I would do the manly thing and dive in after them, trying to save them. But I do not care for alligators. Something I don't like just as much is a snake. And there were snakes in this water.

* * *

I COULDN'T visualize myself leaping into a place infested with snakes and alligators. I realized it would look pretty bad for me to stand on the bridge shouting: "Help! Help!" until a park ranger came rushing up.

"What's wrong?" he would say. "Are you in trouble?"

"No," I would say. "It's my child who is in trouble."

"He's the tow-headed boy in the water — the one being eaten by that alligator," I would say.

No, that wouldn't have looked heroic or proper at all, and I got a firm grip on my offspring and kept them next to me for the rest of the walk.

Then we headed for home and the picnic. I kept telling the kids about those delicious roasted marshmallows, and from the way they kept clamoring in the back seat that we stop for the picnic, I knew they anticipated the treat.

We got the charcoal in Homestead, but couldn't find a park with grills until we got to South Miami.

"You had to wait a long time," I told the children, "but it will be worth it." I started the fire, cut sticks, then called to my son to bring the marshmallows.

"I can't," he said. "We ate them."

It was a nice fire, though.

Here's Miami in a Package --Tied With a Musical Bow

Text and Photos by Ray Fisher

By Ray Fisher

WHEN STEREOPHONIC records first started coming out a few months ago, a group of local musicians thought that it would be an opportune time to start the discs rolling with a recording which would be atune to Miami as they saw it stereophonically.

The result was a "Package" put together by Rey "Mambo" Baumel. In fact, that is the title of the record album "Package."

The group which produced this record consists of successful musicians who make Miami home.

Rey Mambo, or Rey Baumel (his real name) grew up in Miami Beach. He is musical director for the Seville Hotel, and has worked with all types of music throughout the area.

The eight musicians and vocalists have worked together at various times in the past few years, and round out the album with rhythm men on bongos, guitar, piano, drums, maracas, bass, along with some melody from a trombone, and flute. This is all supplemented by a female and male vocalist.

The music on this packaged tour ranges from Latin numbers such as the Nursery Rhyme Cha-Cha to jazz with the Musick Trio doing Lullabye of the Leaves. It also has sessions of vocals with George Darrow singing old standards like Spring Will Be a Little Late This Year.

For the technically curious, the recording sessions were handled by Mack Emerman who had available such strange instruments as a Telefunken U-47 microphone, and Ampex 350-2 recorders, Westrex 3A, 45-45 stereo cutters, along with Scully lathes with Grampian Gotham feed-back cutting heads.

Frances Langford Stars on Ch. 7

Songstress Frances Langford will be star of an hour-long NBC color special at 10 tonight over WCKT (Ch. 7).

Miss Langford will have a whole galaxy of guests — Bob Hope, Hugh (Wyatt Earp) O'Brain, Julie London. Edgar Bergen, George Sanders. Jerry Colonna, Bobby Troup. Tony Romano, The Four Freshmen, Murray McEachern, the Jon Gregory Dancers, the Earl Barton Dances and David Rose and his orchestra.

The "Frances Langford Presents" show will be built—musically—around the star's wartime experiences, entertaining the armed forces. The "I'm in a Mood for Love" girl traveled a million air miles to six battle fronts in World War II and to Korea.

Now married to Ralph Evinrude, the outboard motor manufacturer, Miss Langford divides her time between a home in Milwaukee and a home and yacht at Stuart, Fla.

Housewives Protective League

Unique Program Is Choosy About Those Sponsors

By Jack Anderson

DID YOU KNOW, ladies, that there is a CBS radio program designed to protect you from the sponsors? Well, not all of them. Just the purveyors of tobacco, bottled spirits, small loans and patent medicines.

ANDERSON

I might tell you at the onset that protection for you local distaffers is a long way off. CBS has its Housewives Protective League branches in only 11 cities. The network has no plans for one here.

I learned about the HPL the other day from its major-domo or general manager, Ed Wood. He was here to inspect some Florida real estate. The owner wants to advertise with the HPL programs and Wood's job was to see whether the real estate comes up to HPL standards.

Each City Has Its Own Program

THE PROGRAM IN each city is separate and distinct from the other in program content. But each is staffed by a CBS man on the spot and all are sponsored by the same carefully screened advertisers.

The programs are a chatty, interview type of entertainment, in the manner of the Galen Drake show. As a matter of fact, Drake is an old HPL man from way back although his radio network program has nothing to do with it. His HPL stint is heard only in New York.

In the main, said Wood, the two characteristics which bar just any old advertiser from an HPL program is a hint of fraud or gross exaggeration of claims.

Some sponsors make the grade only after their sales pitches have been completely toned down and HPL insists upon doing the toning down itself.

"We don't accept any prepared sponsor 'message', written out for us or transcribed," said Wood. "Our people prepare the commercials and only their voices are ever heard delivering them. All the sponsor or his advertising agency does is supply our people with the facts. We handle it from there."

Sponsor Claims Strictly Curbed

He admitted the protective league is a curious exception to the rule in daily broadcasting, that its "protection" begins and ends with each program leaving the housewife to the mercies of the loan sharks and tired blood pill peddlers immediately before and after the program is on.

"I know all that. Nobody has an answer to it," said Wood, "but I do know this that the protective league programs are a huge success. There are a lot of sponsors who want in in spite of the restrictions we place on their advertising. It may well be that all radio broadcasting would be better off if it set up and stuck to the same high standards we do."

And did the Florida real estate (Leisure Lakes near Lake Placid) make the grade as a would-be sponsors with the HPL? It did.

THE CAST of Playhouse 90's two-part production, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," the final part of which will be presented at 9:30 Thursday night on WTVJ (Ch. 4). Co-stars Maria Schell and Jason Robards Jr. are forefront.

Audrey Nearly Buried Under Toy Elephants

AUDREY

When Audrey Totter of NBC-TV Network's "Cimarron City" series on Channel 7 was eight years old, she ran away with a circus. However, the adventure was short-lived and she was soon returned to her anxious parents.

Years later, Audrey has reasons to remember this incident vividly, saying: "When I left new York for Hollywood friends gave me a huge silver elephant and when I arrived here, word went out that I was just crazy about elephants. Within a short time, my apartment was just crawling with elephants — 500 of them"!

Miss Totter is quick to point out that fortunately, none of the pachyderms was live. "I was getting elephants in all shapes, sizes and materials, anywhere from dime store trinkets to valuable art pieces," she recalled. Fans and friends provided her with articles of apparel, like blouses, with elephant designs; china elephants and elephant dolls.

Some of the most unusual items, she added, included a row of elephants crossing a bridge carved out of worm and teakwood and estimated to be 700 years old; an elephant made in Mexico from stalagmites (" or stalactites, I never can remember which"); and a set of silver elephant earrings from Tibet.

Audrey also has a gold charm bracelet with gold elephants. It was given to her by Robert Montgomery who co-starred with her in "Lady of the Lake."

"The elephant that really gave me the creeps was one given to me by a pilot," she said. "It was a cheap plaster of Paris elephant which belonged to Hitler. I finally threw it away, I felt so eerie about it."

Living with a house full of elephants presents its problems. "It was getting so cramped that I decided to get rid of all but a handful, figuratively speaking."

Viewers' Questions Keep Her on Toes

"I've got to know if Jim Garner and Jack Kelly are really related," the almost-frantic voice on the telephone said. "There's a $1,000 bet riding on it."

Miss Eileen Steiner of ABC's Program Information Desk told the caller the only kinship between the two was the one created by the producers of "Maverick" (Sundays, 7:30 p.m. Ch. 10).

"Aw, shucks," muttered the caller.

"He must have been the loser," commented Miss Steiner.

Such calls are standard occurrences in the second floor room in ABC's building at 70th Street and Broadway. The department is directed by Miss Ellen Heagerty, a network employe for 16 years, 10 as a question-answerer. Miss Heagerty handles the mail queries.

"I love the variety and stimulation here," she explained. "We always have to by ready for everything and that's what we get."

All telephone calls to the network not for a particular person or department are channeled to Miss Steiner's phone.

"We get some really wild ones, but we're also called on to supply information for the police, the United Nations, the State Department and agencies like that. Entertainers call for casting information, and writers want to know where to send scripts.

"Those from the general public are the most challenging, though," she added.

"We've got our regulars, too," she added. "One teenage boy calls weekly. His last request was that cameras on 'American Bandstand' (Monday-Friday, 4-5:30 p.m.) focus more on the dancers' feet. "How else can I learn the hep steps?' he asked."

Miss Steiner says she also gets calls from persons with helpful hints. "When advice is constructive, we relay it to the proper person at the network," she added.

Miss Heagerty treats her correspondence in a like manner.

NANCY CLASTER, FOUNDER OF

Television's Romper Room

A Video Kindergarten Started by a Baltimore Matron Has Boomed Into A System of Studio Classrooms in 71 American and Canadian Cities

Although mother of three fast-sprouting youngsters of her own (all of them well over the kindergarten stage), Mrs. Claster takes a poor view of grandmother cracks. Founder she may be. But grandmother? Not yet, anyway.

No superannuated type could begin to keep in smooth-running order daily television kindergartens in 71 American and Canadian cities reaching an estimated audience of 4,000,000 pre-school children and their mothers.

Not only does Mrs. Claster keep in touch with all these outposts, but she still teaches the original Romper Room on Baltimore's WJZ-TV, where it all started six years ago, and conducts a school for Romper Room teachers.

It was a rare vacation for the founding "Miss Nancy," as she is known in Romper Room annals, when she and husband, Bert, managed a brief trip to Miami Beach here recently.

Miami is one of the four Florida cities with Romper Room branches. The one here convenes at 9:30 in the morning, Monday through Friday, on WCKT (Ch. 7). Its current teacher is a dark-eyed young beauty named Sue Shutter.

Miss Shutter also uses the "Miss Nancy" monicker, a popular pseudonym among Romper Room teachers, for television purposes. Its popularity of use is a tribute to Mrs. Claster who trains each of her Romper Room deputies before they ever set foot before the cameras.

A pretty girl may in most instances be like a melody but this gives her no automatic entree into the Romper Room ranks. Aspiring teachers are carefully screened and interviewed by the Clasters' field representative.

If the applicant passes this first muster then she's off to Baltimore for another scrutiny by Mrs. Claster. Once accepted, the applicant undergoes training for her duties.

"We take only college graduates," Mrs. Claster says, "but a girl need not necessarily have had school teaching experience."

"We have a waiting list a mile long in Baltimore," says Mrs. Claster. "Some of the applicants never get on the air. They grow out of the age bracket (they can't be over 32) before we can get to them."

The Romper Room way of doing business and on which the Clasters and their aides keep a constant check closely parallels the typical nursery school program.

Daily classrooms of children, selected by mail from the viewing audience, play games, hear stories, take part in marching to their own rhythm band.

There's a let's pretend period, a milk-and-cooky break, a finger painting session, all of the fun with a certain built-in educational value.

Basic disciplines are inculcated through the use of two characters, "Do-Bee," a happy looking insect and "Don't-Bee," an unhappy type. Face washing and teeth cleaning and fundamental rules of safety are encouraged in this fashion.

The vivacious, firm-figured Mrs. Claster is a graduate of Goucher College with a major in education and once operated a real non-television nursery school. It was this school which gave her and husband, Bert, who had been a theatrical producer, their idea for a daily television classroom.

The first session of a Romper Room took place Feb. 9, 1953 on Baltimore's WBAL-TV. The show caught on quickly, not only with the viewers but with sponsors.

The Clasters found themselves in the syndicate business when stations in Norfolk, Va., and Scranton, Pa. joined the Romper Room fold, and others followed in rapid succession.

D.A.'s Man Is Tennessean

Canny Compton Munches Gophers, Saves His Cash

By CHARLES DENTON

HOLLYWOOD — The advance propaganda on John Compton, the slightly homespun new "D.A.'s Man," seems to be aimed at planting the idea that he has to be chased through the hills and roped every morning to bring him to work.

COMPTON

And certainly a guy who dines on self-snared gophers, bluejays and owls and lets bees sting him so he can snack on them between meals must be classed as a character, even in Hollywood.

Add Compton's cornpone-accented conversation, buttered with homilies from the Tennessee hills, where his kinfolk have been mashing out Jack Daniels whiskey since long before Roosevelt made it legal, and you have a press agent's dream.

But anyone who lets these little eccentricities delude him into marking Compton down as strictly from Cukieville is in for a shock. If this guy is squirrely, acorns should be on every table in town.

Brings Own Lunch

COMPTON, looking about as tense as a bowl of clabber, uncoiled his six-feet one-inch in a dressing room chair at Republic Studio the other day and studiously skinned a homegrown tangerine.

"I eat gophers and stuff like that because I like to live off the land," he said with an off-handedness that made gopher steak seem as logical a dish as caviar. "It's cheaper, too."

He popped a wedge of tangerine into his mouth, crunched the seeds and nodded toward a brown paper bag on his dressing table.

"Look, I bring my lunch in a sack," he said. "I've got a little place up in the hills. It's really a converted chicken coop, but I've got it fixed up pretty nice. And the mortgage is paid down to where it only costs me $50 a month — and hardly any of that's interest.

"I'm getting $600 a show, plus about $130 overtime. Maybe that isn't so hot by the standards out here, but I'm saving $1,000 a month on it. If we get signed for 39 more shows after this 26 are finished, I'll be a rich man—rich for me, anyway."

Saves His Money

AND EVERY time Compton accumulates a sock full of currency, he buries it right where you'd expect a farm boy to — in land, housing developments and investments of similar solidness.

All of which might not impress Clark Gable, but it isn't bad for a lean 34-year-old who was dragging down a fat 75 cents a day on the farm when an adoring girl friend talked him into hitchhiking to Hollywood not so many years ago.

His "big break" was long in coming and cost him $100 —the price of a small part in a little theater play. Warner Brothers talent scout Solly Biano spotted him and, according to John, declared enthusiastically:

"Well, he can't act, but he might photograph well. Anyway, I've got to send the studio someone to interview."

That auspicious start led to a contract and a number of parts.

"But it was just an adventure with me then," Compton said, "just a way to get off the farm. I'm serious now. I love those paychecks."

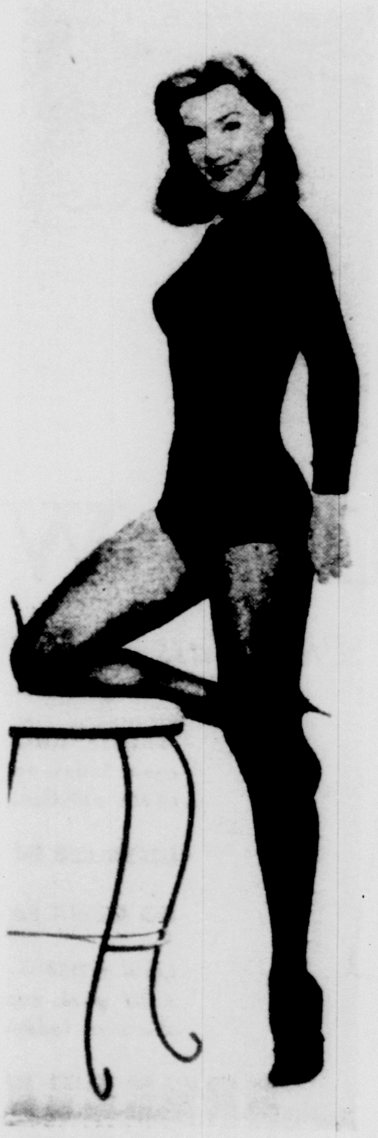
"I just say the lines and hope they print it," he shrugged. "To hell with whether it's any good or not."



SHAPELY regular on NBC's Thin Man series on Channel 7 at 9:30 Friday nights is Nita Talbot.

No Birdbrain

Ann Tyrrell May Be Goofy Before the Cameras But Off-Stage She's Completely Serious-Minded

MANY television performers, especially those in continuing series, find a good deal of their own personalities creeping — sometimes unconsciously—into the roles they portray on the screen.

Ann Tyrrell, who plays the part of the somewhat birdbrained secretary, Olive, in The Ann Sothern Show, is the exception to this rule.

The role Miss Tyrrell essays in the CBS-TV comedy series is so far from her own personality that, aside from the physical aspect, there is practically no resemblance. When she is being Olive Smith, foil to Ann Sothern's "Katy," Ann Tyrrell is onstage and acting — 100 per cent.

As a matter of fact, that she's in comedy at all comes as no little surprise to red-haired Ann Tyrrell, since all her early training and most of her not inconsiderable theatrical experience on the stage and in movies was very heavily on the dramatic side.

DON'T LET ANN TYRRELL'S TV FACE FOOL YOU

. . . she went to comedy from psychopath roles

She Was a 'Heavy'

SEEING ALL her friends acting on television — and not dying in the experience — also brought Ann Tyrrell to the world of the cathode tubes, but not as a comedienne. All her early roles, she recalls, were of the off-beat "psycho" variety — and heavily dramatic.

The mild-mannered, highly articulate actress says that this type-casting in a variety of "weird" roles was beginning to have an effect on her — or at least, on the attitude exhibited by her neighbors in non-theatrical Eagle Rock, a hilly, tree-shaded section of Los Angeles adjacent to staid Pasadena.

For a time, Miss Tyrrell reports, she thought the psychotic roles were wonderful in an artistic sense, but soon she noticed that the grocer, the cleaner, the milkman, and her next-door neighbors were beginning to view her with some suspicion.

"They couldn't come right out and tell me," laughs the actress, "but subconsciously they were identifying me with the parts I was playing on television — and I was playing some pretty horrible characters."

Her entry into the "Private Secretary" comedy series with Ann Sothern cured that, however. As "Vi Praskins," the lovable but ineffectual receptionist, she became a personality that her neighbors could identify with their own lives — and it wasn't long before she was getting warm smiles from them instead of the covert glances.

"My cleaner, to this day," says Ann, "calls me Miss Praskins. He knows my name is Tyrrell, but he'd rather call me Miss Praskins. And that's fine with me."

Happy Role Better

THE CLEANER is typical. These people know Ann Tyrrell. They've known her for years. And they know that the characters "Vi" and "olthe characters "Vi" and "Olive" are not the real Ann Tyrrell. But the actress has found it's much better to be associated with a happy role than that of a "heavy."

And it's not just because of the neighbors.

"I didn't really know whether I'd like comedy," Ann admits now. "I didn't think it was much of a challenge — but I've found that, as an actress, a successful comedy portrayal is, to me, every bit as difficult, and every bit as satisfying, as a dramatic role. I like to see people happy, and if I can have a part in making them that way, I feel I've done something worthwhile."

People still call her "Miss Praskins" or "Vi." That's a carryover from the "Private Secretary" series now in reruns.

"I'll like it better," she admits, "when they switch over to my new character — when someone on the street says hello to me and calls me Olive."

Paul Ford Signs Again

Paul Ford is in extreme demand for picture and stage roles but he feels that his first loyalty belongs to the Phil Silvers Show.

That's why Ford, whom viewers have come to know as the bumbling Col. Hall, target for Sergeant Bilko on CBS Friday nights, has just signed a new contract which calls for him to appear in no less than 30 of the 38 episodes which Silvers films yearly.

Outside commitments by Hall will be made with that schedule in mind.

Stinson Veteran

JOHN B. STINSON, news director of WAME, is a radio veteran of 26 years. He started his career on CKLW, Windsor, Ont. After three years there he switched to Detroit's WJR. Five years later, he came to Miami to join the staff of the old WIOD (now WCKR). Stinson did regular newscasts for WIOD and developed a variety of remote broadcasts for the station. He later left Miami to join WLW in Cincinnati where he spent four years covering news. He went on from there to WWOL, Buffalo,—now a sister station of WAME—where for seven years he directed both news and sports coverage. His familiarity with Miami made him the ideal choice for the new WAME post here and he headed south. Stinson handles all of WAME's news coverage and newscasts. He is 44 and unmarried.

TV's RITA MORENO IS

Sick, Sick, Sick! Of Those Torrid Babe Roles

By Hal Humphrey

RITA'S WEARY OF OFF-SHOULDER GARB, TOO

HOLLYWOOD — It was "Rita Moreno Week" recently on television. The gal appeared as Lola Montez on NBC's "Wells Fargo", then turned up as a "fiery half-breed" on the CBS "Trackdown" series. The following week the same Rita played a Mexican hot tamale on CBS's "Zane Grey Theater."

"It's what I always get, and I'm sick of it," says Rita, who is not at all impressed with her sudden spurt of employment. "Before I even pick up the script, I can tell you how my part is described.

"'Enter Conchita,' it says. 'She is a bright, sparkling, smoldering-eyed young child of nature with a temperament that can destroy men, yet underneath is a young naivete about the world.'

"My wardrobe hardly ever changes, either. I think the Western Costume Co. must call it 'The Rita Moreno Wardrobe.' There is the same off-the-shoulder blouse, dirty striped skirt with ruffles across the bottom, sandals, loop earrings and a long piece of hair—if I could only get rid of those sandals!

All Shook Up

"THEN, OF COURSE, I must always be in a state of high emotion and have flaring nostrils and flash my eyes. I feel like a contortionist."

Rita also is given to understand that she hardly ever is to get her man. She was bowled over to learn she winds up winning Fernando Lamas in the upcoming "Zane Grey Theater."

"I don't know how that happened, and I doubt that it will ever hapen again," says Rita, dejectedly.

Her role as Lola Montez on "Wells Fargo" she does not care to discuss at all.

"That was a terrible show. I did it because I needed the work. Whenever you see me in things like that, you'll know I have to have the money," says Rita.

"It has rifles in the front and pistols for door handles. I couldn't believe it."

She's Choosy

RITA IS VERY definite about whom she likes or dislikes. She was offered a running role in a western series but turned it down because she "couldn't stand the guy who was playing the lead."

She studies hard and wishes that someday a producer or director could see her as just an actress, instead of a "Spanish spitfire" with "flaring nostrils."

"I am not optimistic, though, especially where television is concerned. When a man who makes corn flakes, or something like that for 25 years, has the power to tell a producer how to fix a script, I don't think anything really good can happen on television," Rita says.

Apparently no producer has the courage to cast Rita as just a girl. In a recent "Father Knows Best" episode she was a foreign exchange student from India, "and so naive I was pitiful."

She got a call not long ago to play a "Eurasian girl" in a private eye series.

"I read some of the scripts, but the part didn't call for an actress; a girl filled with formaldehyde could have served the purpose."

Rita seems doomed to be a "Spanish spitfire" (she was born in Puerto Rico), but I wouldn't want to be the next producer who offers her that type of role, or the next wardrobe mistress who hands Rita that off-the-shoulder blouse and sandals. I can't stand the sight of flaring nostrils.

Cowboy Star's Relative Recognized Him on His Screen

Television Western Reunites Breck Brothers

PETER BRECK with Anna Lisa his co-star in NBC's Black Saddle. Peter and his brother are sons of a famous vaudeville artist.

"What's your full name?" the man asked.

"Joseph Peter Breck," the actor replied.

"Was your father Joe Breck, the Prince of Pep?"

"Yes," was the annoyed reply. "What's it to you?"

"I'm your brother."

Recently George, a machinist in nearby Glendale, was watching the Saturday night western, "Black Saddle." He thought he detected a family resemblance in the show's cool, straight-shooting hero. When he learned the actor's name was Breck, he felt his long search for his older brother would be fulfilled.

"We both had been looking for each other for years," Peter Breck explained. "Since I became an actor 14 years ago, I've toured with plays in 36 states. In every town I visited, I tried to find some trace of George. I had just about given up hope."

The two brothers are now getting acquainted and tracing what has happened in their lives. They were the sons of Joe Breck, a popular show business figure of the '30s. The boys last lived together when Peter was 8 and George was 2. Now they're 30 and 24.

As part of a divorce agreement, Peter went with his father and George stayed with his mother. Their paths grew farther apart, then the two families lost touch.

"We both were in the Navy at the same time," Peter remarked. "But we never met up with each other. George served on the west coast and I was on the east coast."

After his Navy service, George settled in Glendale, Peter started an acting career at the University of Texas, appeared in 140 plays before he was tapped for a Robert Mitchum movie while playing in a Washington, D.C. theater. He came to Hollywood and did four pictures in 14 months before landing the TV series.

"I've been lucky," he said, "but the luckiest part about my career is finding my brother again."

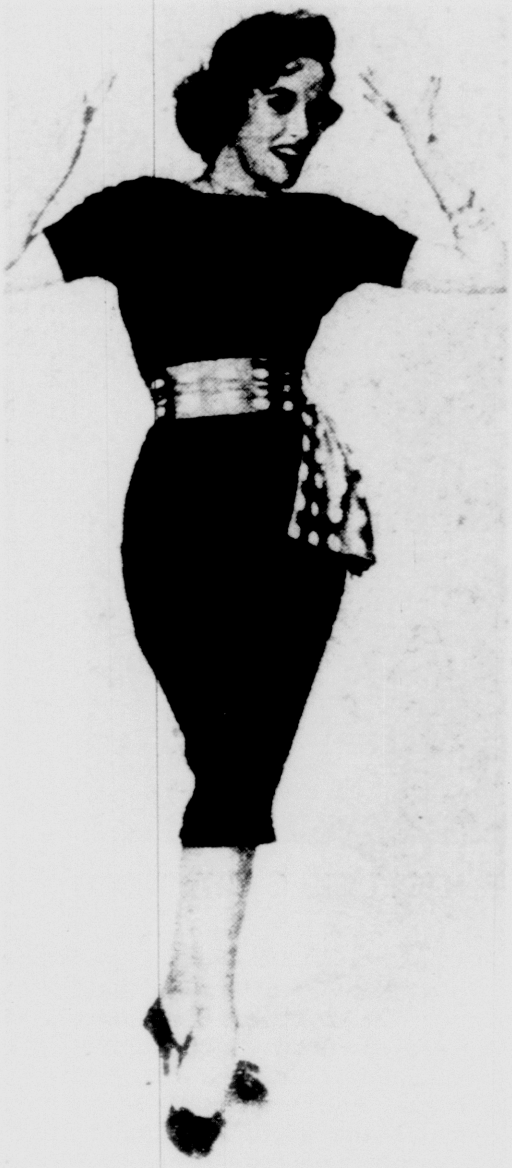
TV's Lisa Davis Has Fine Talent for Acting In Addition to a Highly Mobile Chassis



LISA DAVIS
. . . George Burns' aide

AT SOME POINT or other in all the recent George Burns Shows (Tuesdays, 9:00 p.m. on Ch. 7), an improbably spectacular young lady, apparently provided by Nature with a universal joint at the end of her spine, swivels engagingly onstage.

She then proceeds to deliver her lines flawlessly, while the mere fact of her physical presence plays cat's-cradle with the thread of the plot—at least for male viewers.

Scriptwise, this nymph is known as "Miss Jenkins." Off-camera, she answers to the name of Lisa Davis, and has gained professional recognition for much more than her pin-up configuration and uniquely oscillating center of gravity.

Born to Show Business

LISA DIDN'T enter show business in the usual sense of the word — she was born into it, in London in 1936. Her mother and grandmother before her had been professional dancers, and her father, Harry Davis, was a popular British swing-bandleader. Lisa's sister is singer Beryl Davis, now married to Peter Potter.

"There was really never any question about my career," Lisa recalled, in accents delicately reminiscent of tea and crumpets. "I didn't attend regular school — I went to a professional place called the Arts Educational School. We had the usual studies for a half day, and were tutored in dancing, singing and acting for the other half."

Cameras are nothing new to her. Lisa began working in films at the age of six. By the time she left England at 15, she had appeared in 25 motion pictures, all on merits which had not, as yet, been augmented by the dazzling endowments of maturity.

Family Came to U. S.

WHEN LISA was 15, the whole Davis family migrated to the United States, arriving in June of 1951. A week after she hit Hollywood, Lisa was signed to a one-year contract with MGM.

Her American screen debut was wisely delayed, though, while she studied. At the age of 18, Lisa made her first picture — with Tyrone Power in "The Long Gray Line."

Others followed, but one is notably memorable in Lisa's mind — "Queen of Outer Space," starring Zsa Zsa Gabor. Any type of association with Zsa Zsa is apt to sear itself indelibly upon the quivering cerebellum, but it was a young actor named Patrick Waltz who occupied Lisa's full attention.

Waltz was a native of Akron, Ohio, who turned out to have been stationed with the U.S. Air Force in London during the war. Lisa probably had been, he informed her with an exasperating grin, one of the kids who kept pestering him and his buddies for "Gum, chum?"

This infuriated the young lady so, she naturally married him.

STRIKE! or so NBC sportscaster Mel Allen hopes as he tries his hand in the Jackpot Bowling Show he broadcasts each Friday night at 10:45 p.m. on WCKT (Ch. 7).

That's Kookie

MARTHA SCHULTHEIS, of Opa Locka, Fla., is one of many Edward Byrnes (of 77 Sunset Strip) admirers who wants a quick bio on the young man.

EDWARD

Officially, he's billed as Edd, and is from New York City. He's unmarried, lives in Hollywood Hills, has jobbed around on most of the TV Westerns, is an avid sports car and hi-fi fan. He's six - feet high, weighs 165, has brown hair and blue eyes. He graduated from high school in 1951, which would make him 25 or 26 years old.

Tax Problem

MRS. F. W. LUSSIER, of Philadelphia, asks who pays the taxes on the merchandise won on "The Price Is Right."

The contestants pay a tax on the prizes' estimated value.

Faye's State

Faye is currently single. She's had three husbands, including Elliott Roosevelt and Skitch Henderson, and has an 18-year-old son.

Where's Liz?

MRS. S. E. MABLEY, of Wichita, Kan., asks why she never gets to see Liz Taylor on Shows like Ed Sullivan's or Steve Allen's.

LIZ

Liz is among the extremely popular Hollywood stars who quite wisely refuse to do television because it might hurt the take at the box office for their latest movie. You will be able to see her, however, at the Academy Awards Show on April 6.

Why Not Fred?

MRS. ROBERT DREXLER, of Reading, Pa., asks why Fred Robbins was replaced by Dennis James on Haggis-Baggis.

The program is in a perilous state and will go off the air if ratings do not improve. Hence, it was thought that Dennis, with a large following among the ladies, would bring in a ready-made audience. We'll see.

Game Player

MR. J. C. T. of Philadelphia, wonders if Chester of "Gunsmoke" is really a cripple and what's his real name.

DENNIS

His name is Dennis Weaver and he is not a cripple. In fact, at the U. of Oklahoma, he was track star. The limp was devised so that Chester, large and robust otherwise, wouldn't be on the same level of efficiency with the true hero, Matt Dillon. They later discovered that the limp provided the show with an added touch of character.

Whither Fibber

MRS. H. C. SMITH, of Upper Darby, Pa., asks why the new Fibber McGee and Molly series being planned won't have Molly and Jim Jordan, who created the roles, starring.

Jim and Molly own the property but feel that they are both too old for the parts and also too old to go through the grind of turning out a film every week.

They're Game

MRS. J. E. SAMPLES, of Wichita, Kan., asks if TV's Paladin on Have Gun, Will Travel and Dr. Styner of Medic are the same man.

Yes, he is Richard Boone who is currently involved with still another character, Abraham Lincoln, in The Rivalry on Broadway.

BUSY BEE is Molly Bee, the 19-year-old recording star. The Oklahoma-born beauty is now featured regularly on the Liberace Show at 1 p.m., daily on WPST-TV (Ch. 10).

Wearin' 'O' the Green

LOVELY STAR of her own ABC show is Donna Reed at 9 Wednesday nights on WPST-TV (Ch. 10).

Londoners May See TV In Open Air

The New York Times Service

LONDON — Londoners may soon be watching television out-of-doors.

The back-to-nature project is under study by the London County Council, which wants not only to expand the summer entertainment program offered by its parks, but also to lure the inveterate televiewer into the fresh air.

Details have not been worked out, because the project is still very preliminary. But one idea being considered provides for the establishment of 27-inch screen television sets in groups of three in some of the nearly 100 parks under the council's jurisdiction.

This, it is felt, would offer an attractive supplement to a park entertainment program that already includes both symphonic and jazz concerts, dancing, motor-cycle racing, films, and special children's activities.

There are still questions to be answered, however.

IRISH LASS Erin O'Brien will visit NBC's Bob Cummings Show at 9:30 Tuesday night on WCKT (Ch. 7).

In Song Again

Bob Paige, emcee of "The Big Payoff" is being paged to do a singing role in a forthcoming NBC-TV spectacular. Bob used to vocalize in films before transferring his talents to television.

Knock, Knock

ABC-TV's Pat Boone revives the "Knock, Knock" gags with one of his own: "Knock, knock!" "Who's There?" "Sam and Janet." "Sam and Janet who?" "Sam and Janet Evening."

BACK FOR ANOTHER colorcast special is singer Dean Martin this week. He will stage his show for NBC at 8 Thursday night on WCKT (Ch. 7). His guests will be Donald O'Connor and Gisele Mackenzie.

Dean Martin Stars on Channel 7

Dean Martin will stage the second of his hour-long special shows for NBC at 8 Thursday night on WCKT (Ch. 7). The program will be in full color.

Martin's guests will be Gisele Mackenzie and Donald O'Connor. It is reliably reported that Bing Crosby also will drop by, just to see how things are coming along.

His debut as a dancer will be made by Martin when he joins O'Connor in a sketch called "Back in the Old Routine." He'll also sing a couple of songs with O'Connor.

VIVACIOUS Mitzi Gaynor will sing and dance as guest on Jack Benny's hour-long special show for CBS at 10 Wednesday night on WTVJ (Ch. 4). Bob Hope will be Benny's special guest for the show.

Championship Bout on Ch. 10

Featherweight champion Hogan 'Kid' Bassey will defend his crown for the second time when he meets Davey Moore of Springfield, Ohio, at 10 Wednesday night on WPST (Ch. 10).

It will be a 15-round bout, fought in Los Angeles' Olympic Auditorium. Jack Drees will be commentator, as usual.

Bassey who hails from Nigeria has won his last 10 fights. He won his featherweight crown from Cherif Hamia on June 24, 1957. The challenger Moore is a current winning streak of 13 bouts in a row.

5th Annual Garden Guide

Edited by Nixon Smiley, Herald Farm and Garden Editor

More Ideas For Grower

THIS IS THE HERALD'S fifth annual Garden Guide, which was launched in March, 1955.

Each year we have tried to add many new gardening ideas, and yet we have tried to carry general information which should be of value to the newcomer as well as the old-timer in solving gardening problems.

This is certainly a land of gardening that is vastly different from any gardening experience one might have in any other part of the country.

While gardening experiences brought from other places may be helpful, it is seldom that experiences can be applied directly to local problems.

The plants here are new, as are the soil and the climate.

The newcomer soon learns that local soils are much poorer than are northern soils; that the soils of the tropics and the areas of the world on the border of the tropics are not so rich as they had been led to believe.

But plants will thrive here if provided with ample fertilizer and water.

And the gardener soon learns that the pruning tool is one of the most important items that a South Florida gardener can own.

Knowledge of plants—and what they need for growth, and to be able to recognize their troubles when the first symptoms appear—is probably more necessary in Florida gardening than in gardening anywhere else in the country.

Living Up to Name

It has been the aim of the Garden Guide to help the gardener by providing this knowledge.

And if you have kept your previous four guides, you should have a collection of valuable material, both in photographs and in the form of gardening tips, that should help you to be a topnotch horticulturist.

On The Cover

The bougainvillea tree on page one is the result of several years of effort on the part of the staff at the U. S. Plant Introduction Garden at Chapman Field. It was trained on a pipe and pruned to take the form of a tree. For size compare it with Kay Moran, Hollywood model.

Grass Offers A Challenge

THE SELECTION, planting and care of lawn grasses give the South Florida home owner more worries than any other triple-headed problem that he has to face year in and year out.

The Inquiring Gardener receives more questions about lawns than about any other gardening problem. Sometimes the questions about lawns more than equal all the other questions put together.

Many of these questions we can answer effectively. But others we can't. How do you answer someone who wants to plant a grass that will spread quickly but will grow slowly and won't require much mowing?

Then there's the fellow who wants a grass that insects won't bother—one which doesn't need much care, and which must stay green all the time.

There seems to be an almost universal feeling that, with the advances in science in so many fields, all the problems of making lawns and maintaining them should have been solved.

Many of our readers find it hard to believe that there isn't a good answer for every question. "Somebody knows," seems to be the feeling.

* * *

Maintenance Problems Mount

WELL, THE TRUTH is that we know very little about turf grasses—about what goes on beneath the soil, responses to fertilizers and moisture, mowing practices and insect control. And what we do know has been learned within a few years.

The problems of maintaining turf grasses were not nearly so great before the days when home owners demanded perfection—lawns of one pure strain of grass, free of weeds and which responded well to a high maintenance program.

In recent years problems have mounted. People have had more money to spend on their lawns.

So they fertilized heavily three and four times a year and installed sprinkler systems so that their lawn grasses never went thirsty.

High maintenance lawns must be mowed at frequent intervals. They require periodic topdressings with sand or soil to overcome the heavy matting effect.

And rich lawn grass, succulent and loaded with proteins, is very attractive to several kinds of insects. These must be kept under control.

Preventive rather than control measures should be emphasized where practical.

* * *

Moisture, Insect Problems

ANY GOLF COURSE superintendent can tell you a lot about turf grasses. He could talk for a week without ever having to repeat himself.

One thing he could talk long about is the great amount of care his greens require compared with the fairways.

There is no better example of a high maintenance turf than that on a golf putting green. Mowing is done daily.

A suitable moisture level must be maintained at all times. Insects and diseases must be kept under control. This is no place for an amateur.

The fairways are much less demanding than the greens. They receive less fertilizer and water. In fact, on some golf courses there are no provisions for irrigating the fairways.

And they may be fertilized but once or so a year.

A green, on the other hand, may receive a little fertilizer every month.

* * *

Frequent Queries Discussed

THE PROBLEMS OF LAWN making and maintenance are so many that we could continue to write until we had filled three garden guides the size of this one.

But the result would be mostly confusion, of mixing known and unknown things, of beliefs and doubts, so that in the end nothing would be accomplished.

Instead, we will confine ourselves to answering the principal questions we receive about grasses and their maintenance. The exceptions will have to take care of themselves.

All photographs and drawings which appear in the Garden Guide were made by members of The Miami Herald photographic and art staffs.

WHAT TO PLANT on the north side of a house is often a problem, when the gardener wishes to get away from ferns, monsteras and crotons. The planting shown here is made up of five plants, beginning with a shrubbery barleria at left. The large cut-leaved plant is an arborescent philodendron. The tall palm in the corner is a Chamaedorea erumpens, a widely used indoor cluster palm. At right is a clusia, which is really a tree but which may be maintained as a shrub by careful pruning. Standing above the philodendron, at the left-center is a dracaena.

Garden Really Serves As An Outdoor Room

In planning a garden, it might be helpful to look upon it as an outdoor room — really as an extension of the house itself.

The garden can be an outdoor living room — a nature room — without a roof, unless one likes to be poetic and look upon the sky as a roof.

The border plantings can be the walls, and the open area in the middle a carpet of grass.

In this open area there can be furniture and other comforts that add to the pleasure of using this room when the weather and leisure permit.

Now you can clutter an outdoor room just as you can an indoor room. You can have too much furniture, too many trees, to much gaudy color. And you can have just as messy an outdoor room as you possibly could have indoors.

Thus it seems like a good idea to plan the outdoor room as carefully as one would an indoor living room. Keep plenty of open space in the center, and confine the "pictures" to the walls.

As with the interior, color is important in the outdoor room. But it can be overdone. You wouldn't want your walls all croton yellow or acalypha red. The idea is to

If you have a buttercup taste you will follow your bent. If you have no taste at all there's nothing that can keep you from making a mess of things, when you're determined to do so.

And even if you are endowed with good taste, you will need at least a little skill.

But whatever you do, if you will confine most of your efforts to border planting you will make fewer mistakes than if you insist on planting every square foot of space.

Tibouchina Presents Problems

This plant will not thrive in limestone soil areas unless the gardener goes to the trouble to provide suitable conditions for it.

If the underlying "soil" is solid limestone rock, it may be necessary to dig out a large hole with the aid of a pick, and refill with a sandy mixture containing some peat, sheep manure and azalea fertilizer.

Use the azalea fertilizer at all times in order to promote acid soil conditions.

Like the azalea, the tibouchina does best in semi-shade, or where it is protected from the mid-day sun in summer.

We have never recommended the general planting of azaleas and tibouchinas in South Florida. Only topnotch gardners—or gardeners who are willing to master the technique of growing them—have success.

Not all kinds of azaleas do well here. The Indian group is the kind recommended.

They are generally the varieties offered for sale by Central Florida and North Florida nurserymen. Occasionally they are sold here.

You are not likely to have much success in growing the hothouse type of azalea that you receive as a gift at Easter.

Camellias are for a cooler climate. They are not generally satisfactory here except during cool years.

Gardenias, on the contrary, do well here, but when planted in the garden they must be of the grafted type.

The gardenia is too subject to nematode infestation to be grown on its own roots in Florida soils. Non-grafted gardenias should be grown in containers of peat moss.

Seeds Start Pandanus

Pandanus is propagated from large woody seeds that make up the pineapple-like pandanus fruits. When ripe, the fruits begin to disintegrate, with the large seeds dropping to the ground.

The fruits then may be cut off and the seeds collected for planting. Barely cover the seeds with soil and keep them moist.

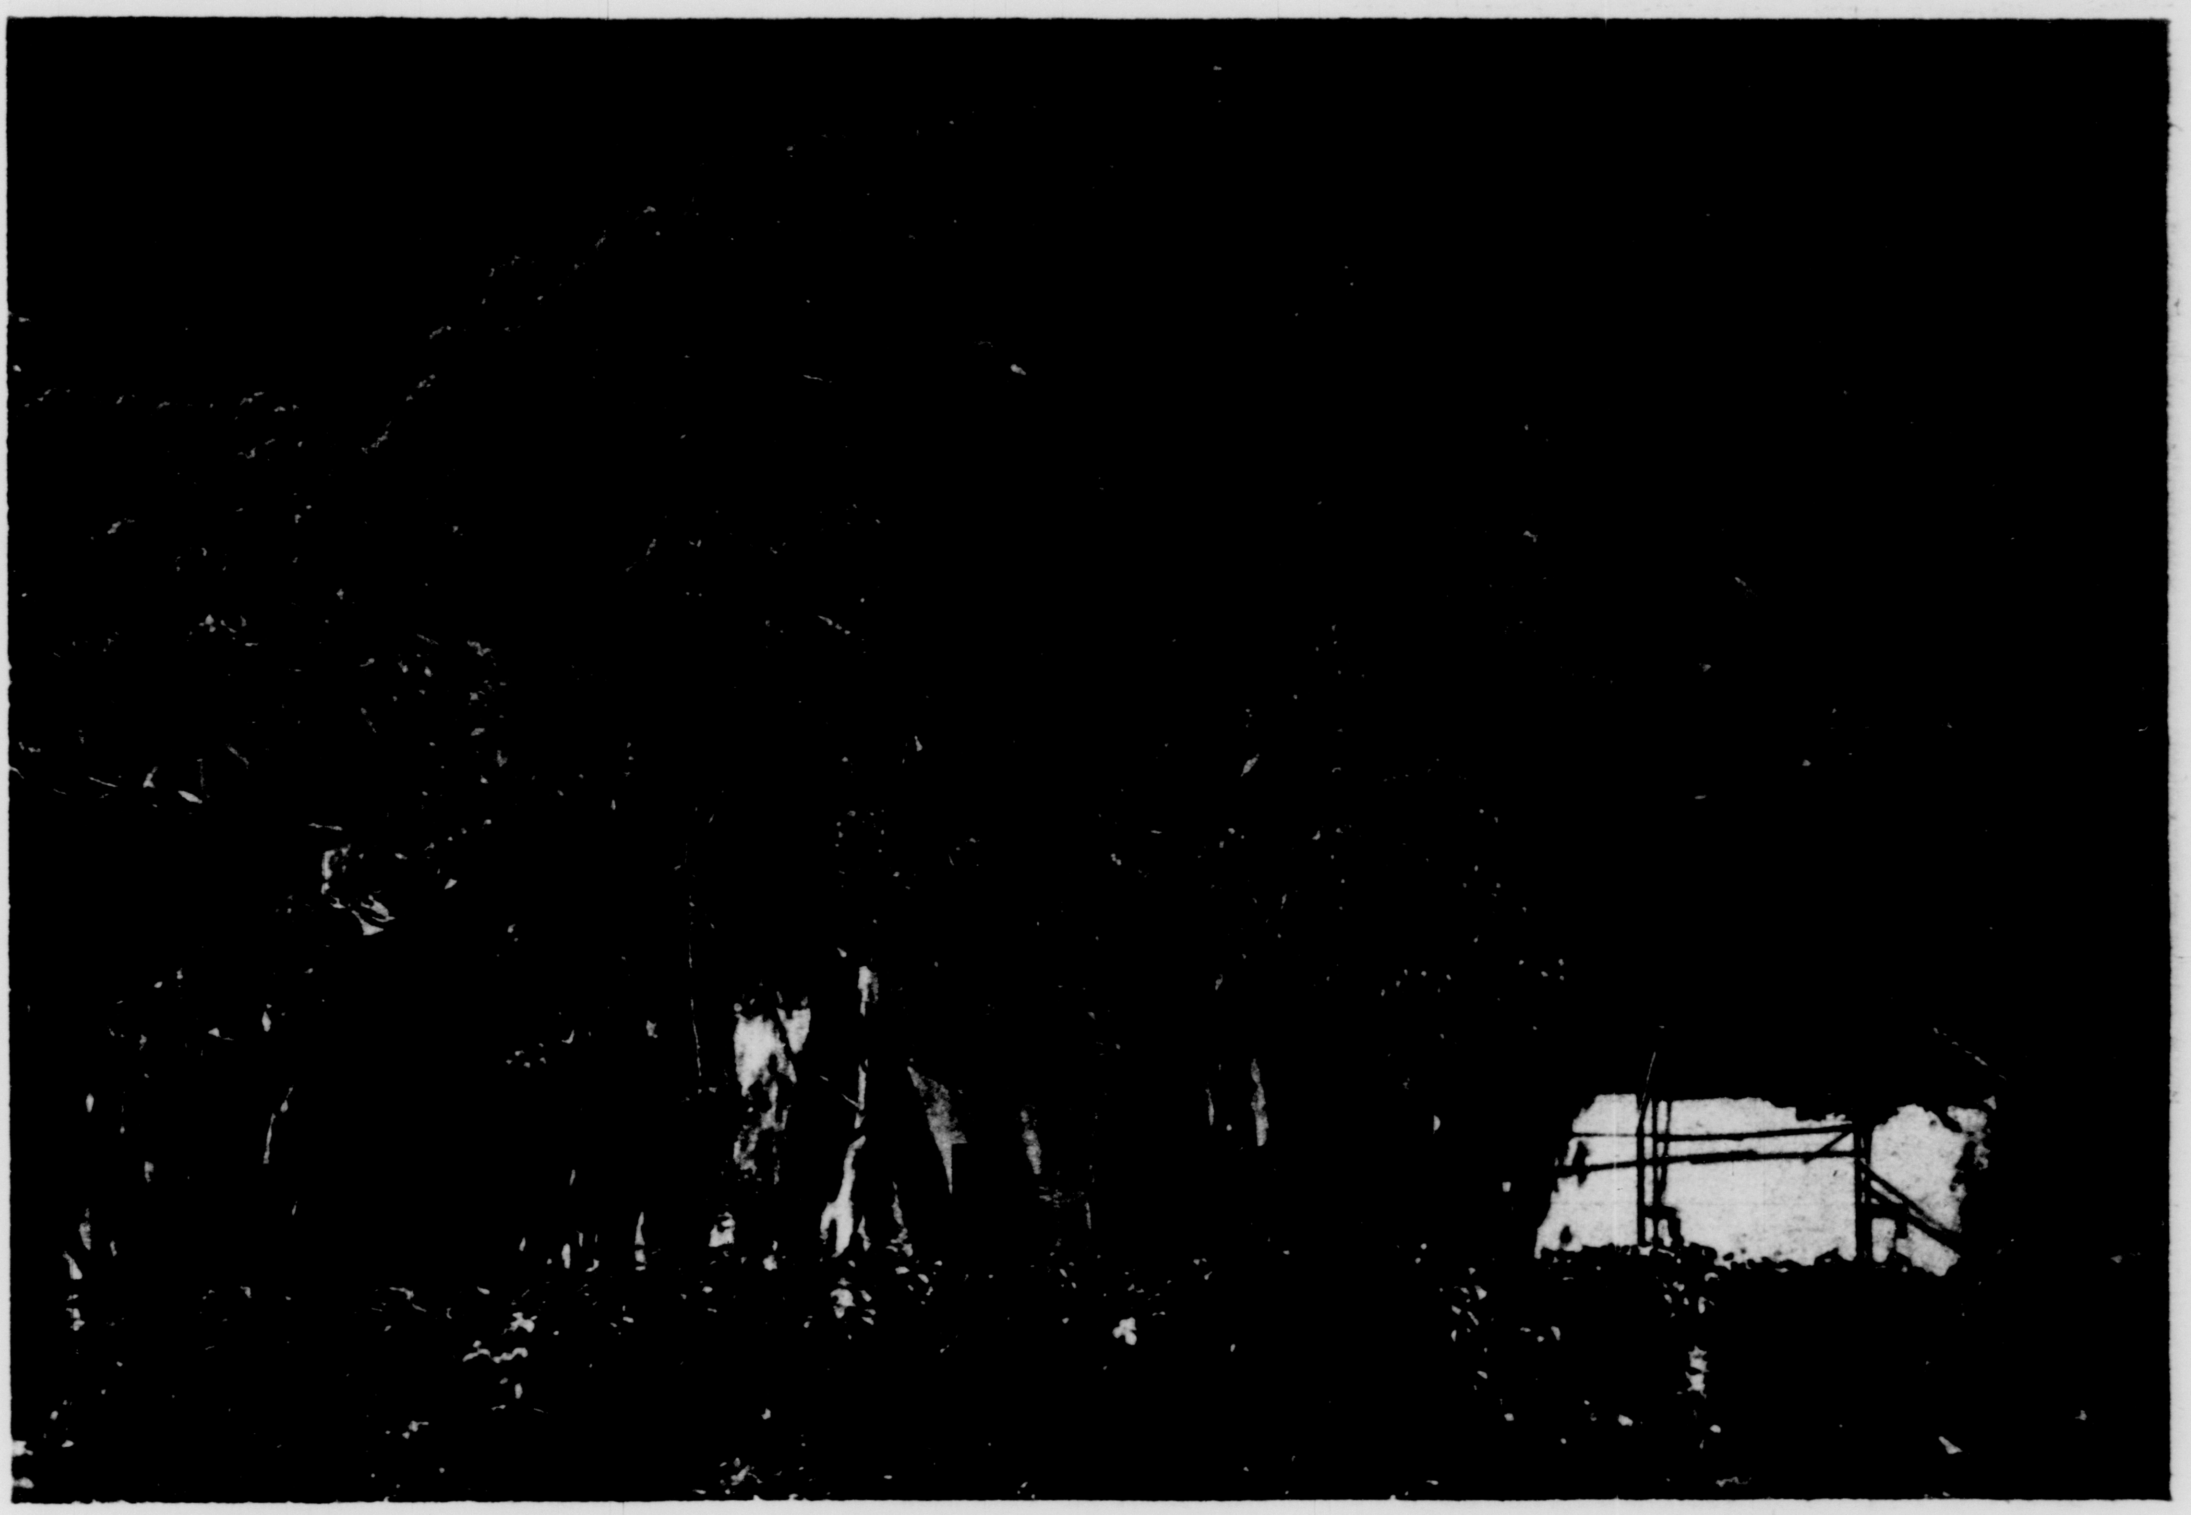
ROYAL POINCIANA

OUTSTANDING OF FLOWERING TREES in Florida it blooms in June and July. Visitors who spend only two or three weeks or months in Florida in winter never get to see the spectacular poinciana in bloom. Nor is it worthwhile for the winter resident to cultivate the poinciana, because the tree is bare of foliage part of the time during the winter, and is likely to be in bloom while the part-time resident is living in his summer home. But the year-round resident can enjoy the poinciana both for its color and for the cool shade it produces in summer.



These Tips Will Help You to Better Lawn

Here are questions about lawns and their care which The Herald most frequently receives, and answers to them. We hope that the answers will be of some help to you in the development and maintenance of a good lawn.

QUESTION — Name the kinds of lawn grasses that are suitable for planting in Florida and which are the most popular.

ANSWER — Here they are, listed in the order of their popularity: St. Augustine, centipede, zoyzia, Bermuda and Bahia.

QUESTION—Is Bitter Blue immune to chinch bugs?

ANSWER — Positively no.

BITTER BLUE
CHEW! CHEW!

QUESTION — How can I tell Bitter Blue from St. Augustine grass?

ANSWER — Bitter Blue is a variety of St. Augustine. They look exactly alike. Bitter Blue is supposed to be tougher and to lie flatter on the ground than common St. Augustine.

QUESTION—If other kinds of grass are immune to chinch bugs, while St. Augustine is eaten up by the pests, why is St. Augustine still so widely planted?

ANSWER — Because St. Augustine is a rapid grower, withstands drought, cold and shade better than most other grasses. Because of its rapid and aggressive growth it is less troubled by weeds than any other grass.

QUESTION — Is there any sure way to get rid of chinch bugs? Is preventive spraying recommended?

ANSWER — Commercial spray men usually apply parathion, which is very effective when properly used. This is too poisonous to be recommended for use by the home owner.

THIS CHART SHOWS at a glance a comparison of the several permanent grasses used for lawn making in Florida.

Grass	Texture	Shade Tolerance	Fertility Requirement	Mowing Requirement	Care Required	Propagation
Tiflawn Bermuda	Fine	Poor	High	4 to 6 days	Very High	Sprigs
Tiffine Bermuda	Very Fine	Poor	High	4 to 6 days	Very High	Sprigs
Zoysia (common)	Fine	Good	Moderate	8 to 10 days	Moderate to High	Sprigs
Meyer Zoysia	Intermediate	Good	Moderate	7 to 10 days	Moderate to High	Sprigs
Emerald Zoysia	Fine	Good	Moderate	7 to 10 days	Moderate to High	Sprigs
Centipede	Intermediate	Fair	Very Low	10 to 15 days	Very Low	Seed or Sprigs
St. Augustine	Coarse	Excellent	Moderate	6 to 8 days	Moderate to High	Sprigs
Bahia	Coarse	Fair	Low	10 to 12 days	Moderate	Seed or Sprigs

The Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Florida is presently recommending diazinon or VC-13 for chinch bug control. We receive many conflicting reports about the effectiveness of these insecticides, but believe that poor results generally are due to the users' failure to follow directions.

QUESTION — When dealing with commercial sprayers who offer guarantees, how can one be sure of making a contract with a reliable individual?

ANSWER — Make certain that individual is listed in the telephone book and that he has some other satisfactory credentials, such as membership in the spray men's organization and in the chamber of commerce. And you might be suspicious of extremely low prices for spraying. Bargains do happen, but they need double-checking. We have known of hot-seated spray men offering to spray lawns at a price below the cost of the chemicals they would have to use in order to do a good job.

QUESTION — Which grass does The Herald garden editor recommend as the best grass for Florida conditions?

ANSWER — He makes no recommendation. Success with

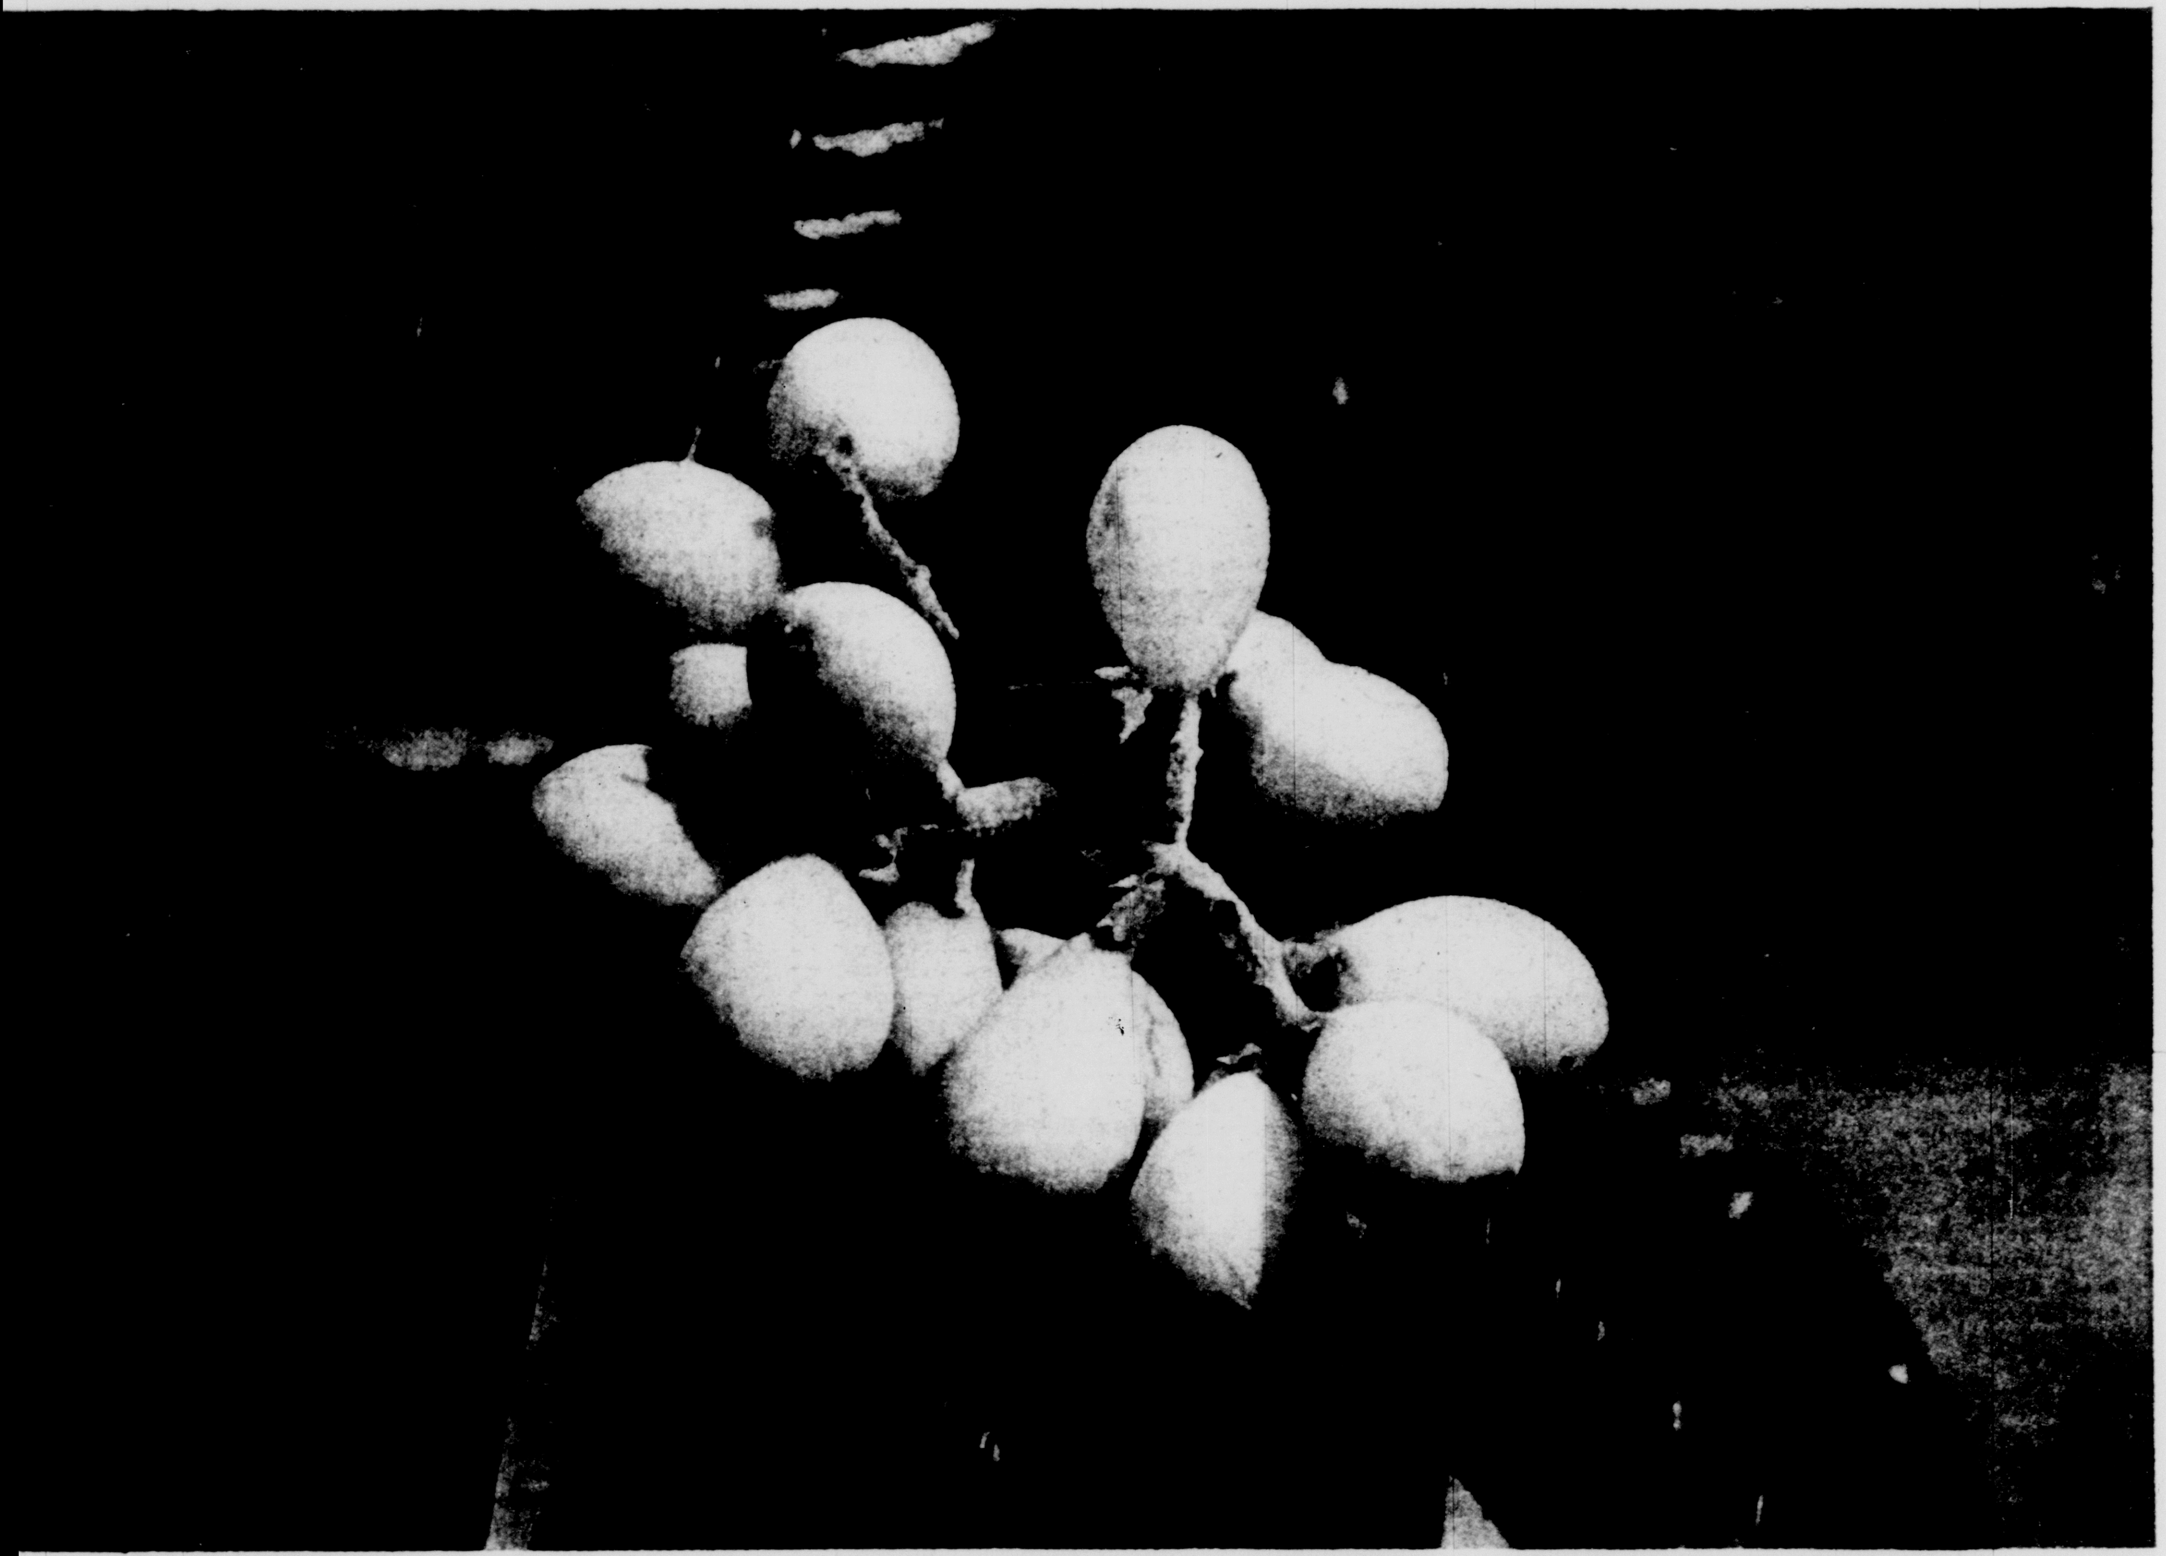
LOQUAT

This Oriental Tree, Makes a Handsome Ornamental for the Yard As Well As Providing Tasty Fruit for the grower.



THE LOQUAT, an evergreen tree that pro- es an abundance of yellow-orange olive- fruit in the late winter, is one of the st satisfactory small ornamental-dooryard that can be planted in South Florida.

This tree thrives as far north as Jack- ville, but does not fruit in the northern t of the state when the winters are un- ally cold.

It blooms in late fall or early winter d the fruit ripens in late January or Feb- ary.

The loquat is at its best when eaten out of hand as it is picked fresh from the tree.

It is an excellent tree for children, who go for the fruit in a big way.

* * *

BEING A TREE of rather small size the loquat makes an excellent screen, or its dark green foliage makes it a good candidate to serve as a background plant.

The trees can be grown in groups, just as you would plant a group of ornamentals.

Old trees may get to be 20 feet high, but they can be kept to any height desired by thinning out the taller branches from year to year.

Size of Hose Is Important

Size makes a difference when it comes to selecting garden hose.

A garden hose with an inside diameter of three-fourths inch will yield 31 gallons of water at the same time that a hose with an inside diameter of one-half inch will yield 10.5 gallons of water.

Best to Get Best When Buying Shrubs or Trees

YOU GET no more than you pay for when you buy plants. So buy the best.

For instance, if you wish to buy a shrub, be sure that it is a shrub you buy and not a switch.

A shrub is a compact, bushy plant, often as wide as it is tall. It costs more to grow a shrub two feet high and two feet wide than it does to grow a switch four feet high.

A shrubby shrub will cost more than a switch any day.

The State Plant Board is now working out a system of grades for nurserymen to use in displaying their plants.

The Florida State Nurserymen and Growers association is cooperating in this study. When it is worked out and put into practice it should be of great help to the buyer.

★ ★ ★

IT TAKES some knowledge of horticulture to grow good shrubs — vigorous, compact, bushy plants. And it takes time.

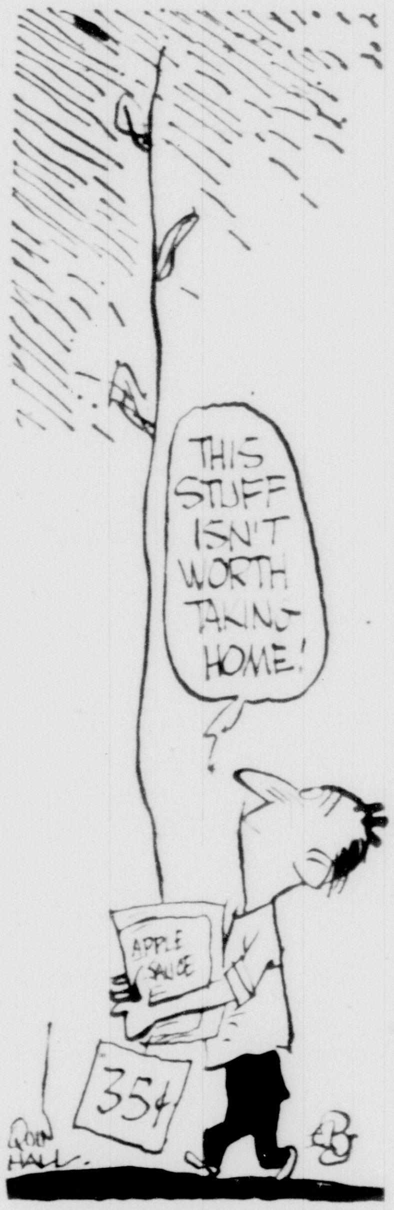
Smart, spindly growth must be cut back. Wherever a branch is headed back it is likely to send out two, three or four new shoots. These, too, must be cut back in time.

Nipping out the terminal bud (the lead growth) may be sufficient. This promotes the growth of branches from buds along the branches.

The home gardener as well as the nurseryman must know the importance of heading back new, smart growth to prevent shrubs from losing their compact forms.

In the case of the flowering shrub, the more branches the shrub has the more prolific will be the bloom.

As for trees, they are all switches at first. Here the nurseryman must encourage a single-stem growth. It is often necessary to fasten the slender growth to a stake stuck into the container to keep the "switch" from falling over.



THIS STUFF ISN'T WORTH TAKING HOME!
APPLE SAUCE
35¢
HALL

Topping is done where the nurseryman wants to encourage branching to begin.

If topping is done near the ground, then a compact, shrubby tree may be the result. This is desirable only where there is ample room on the property.

If the owner of the tree hopes one day to be able to walk beneath the branches, then the topping must be done above head height, and branching promoted there.

★ ★ ★

IN MANY instances the gardener may find that a young nursery tree is too weak to stand upright after it is planted.

The wind tends to blow it around. And when it begins to develop a heavy top, it may bend under the weight.

This bending and blowing around can be prevented by the use of stakes or by tying guy wires to the tree and anchoring the other ends.

But the guy wires should be covered where they encircle the tree. Short pieces of worn out garden hose make excellent wire covering.

Small fruit trees grown along the property border perhaps should be trained as compact shrubs, with branching encouraged to start within half a foot of ground level.

Thus the trees when properly planted make excellent screen, provide good foliage background, and at the same time yield fruit. Citrus can be trained this way.

★ ★ ★

THERE IS nothing to an apparently widespread belief that a "tree" won't produce fruit if it is trained as a large "shrub."

The lychee is an example of a tree that is commonly trained as a shrubby plant, with branching beginning near ground level.

Citrus is the same. In Central Florida where the trees are spaced far enough apart for individual full development, branches begin near ground level.

Thus one may stand in one of these groves and see the trunks and main branches from one end of the grove to another.

But in a well planned grove, one may see only the foliage and the fruit. In this case the shrubby tree is the superior producer because of the greater total leaf surface.

Don't Taste Fruit Unless It's Edible

Keep alert and alive.

Don't eat fruits and nuts your ornamental plants produce, unless you are sure of what you are eating. Some of these things are deadly poisonous.

Even many of the flowers are poisonous. Looks don't mean a thing. Something that "looks" poisonous may be harmless, while another thing that "looks" good to eat kill the heck out of you.

Job Killing Nutgrass

If you have nutgrass in your St. Augustine lawn you might as well learn to live with it, unless you have the time, the energy and the inclination to pull out each plant individually.

There is no weed killer that will kill nutgrass in St. Augustine grass without also killing your St. Augustine.

Regular mowing helps to keep nutgrass under control.

There's Lot of Cides

An insecticide is for killing insects. Lindane, DDT, parathion, rotenone and toxaphene are examples of insecticides.

A fungicide is for controlling and preventing fungus diseases. Copper, nabam, zineb and ferbam are fungicides.

An antibiotic is for controlling bacterial diseases. Streptomycin is an antibiotic that is commonly used in agriculture.

A miticide is for killing plant mites, tiny pests almost microscopic in size that hide on the undersides of leaves. Sulphur, dimite and ovatran are miticides.

A fumigant is for fumigating the soil. The fumigant kills all living things in the soil, including plants or roots of plants. Methyl bromide and vapam are fumigants.

A nutritional spray is for correcting nutritional problems in plants. Copper, zinc, manganese and boron are metals used in nutritional sprays.

Don't Smoke With Fluids

Anyone who smokes while handling inflammable fluids has a low IQ.

Anyone who tries to justify smoking while handling inflamable fluids not only has a low IQ but is insane and should be put away in a safe place.

Shook-up ShadeTrees

Not as tough as they look, trees shock easily. When you plant or transplant a tree, gentle it! Enrich the soil around roots with Baccto Peat. Your tree will show its gratitude in fuller, greener growth. Insist on Baccto Peat, the living soil conditioner!

Rapid Growing Hedge Available

If you want to grow a hedge in a hurry, plant the common aralia.

Use cuttings up to 18 inches in length, inserting five or six inches into the soil. This is a rapid growing, vigorous plant, and it is easy to root.

But growth will be much faster, of course, if it is planted in rich soil.

Prepare a place two feet wide and at least a foot deep. (In limestone soil you may not be able to go deeper than six or eight inches.)

Set cuttings a foot apart.

Aralia, incidentally, need not be considered a permanent hedge, if you are against having anything so common.

It is a tall growing plant rather than a low, bushy plant. It can be set within a foot of the property line.

After your permanent plants have matured you can remove the aralia plants, if you wish.

This plant makes an excellent background. It also serves as a windbreak as well as a screen.

There are several varieties of the common aralia. The most popular one has a small amount of variegation along the edge of the serrated leaves.

There also are several relatives of the aralia, including the well known Queensland umbrella tree, the schefflera, which makes a large spreading tree.

The common aralia is usually seen as a smaller plant well under 10 feet in height.

But it is true that very old plants, if permitted to develop fully, may reach 15 feet or more in height.

Common aralia makes a dense hedge and windbreak

. . . it is a rapid grower

Don't Pinch on Maintenance After Investing in Garden

Why is it that some persons who seem willing to spend thousands of dollars for the design and planting of rich gardens are reluctant to spend a few hundreds on maintenance?

Yet maintenance is just as important as design and planting. And without sharp maintenance the effects of good design are soon lost and the original investment is wasted.

This neglect of the original planting in landscaping is not restricted to homes. Miami Beach hotels and the modern motels along the highways are guilty of the same.

We often get calls from people who are distressed that their plants are "declining," wilting and dying.

After a bit of confusing conversation, it is determined where the trouble probably lies — neglect due to lack of watering or lack of fertilizing and protection from insects.

Who is to blame? The owner blames the landscape nurseryman who did the planting.

But is he?

A contractor can't plant a tree so well that it will live without being watered. Shrubs and ground covers have to be maintained. Grass must be mowed regularly, and watered too.

No doubt the things were watered at first. But when the owner takes possession of the business or the home where the planting has been done, he is likely to sever connections with the nurseryman who did the planting and with the landscape architect who designed it.

And, being a "man of the world," he is likely to disdain to have any knowledge of lowly plants which do no respond to his orders or cringe when he shifts the cigar in his mouth.

Thus he turns the job of caring for the plants over to a flunky, a fellow who will say "yessir this" and "yessir that," but who, on the other hand, knows not much more about plants and their care than the boss.

Gardens must have good care. And the only one who can provide good care is an experienced, intelligent person.

You can't make a gardener out of a jughead, although there may be nothing against putting the jughead under the charge of a good gardener.

Grow Home Fruit Trees for 2 Purposes

With a little elementary planning, you can grow an abundance of fruit trees on a city lot.

And you can make them serve many purposes — to screen your yard from neighbors, to provide an interesting background, to serve as a cover for birds, as well as yield tasty fruits.

Mainly small shrubby type trees should be selected for planting along borders. And they should be planted far enough from the property line to keep them out of your neighbors' hair.

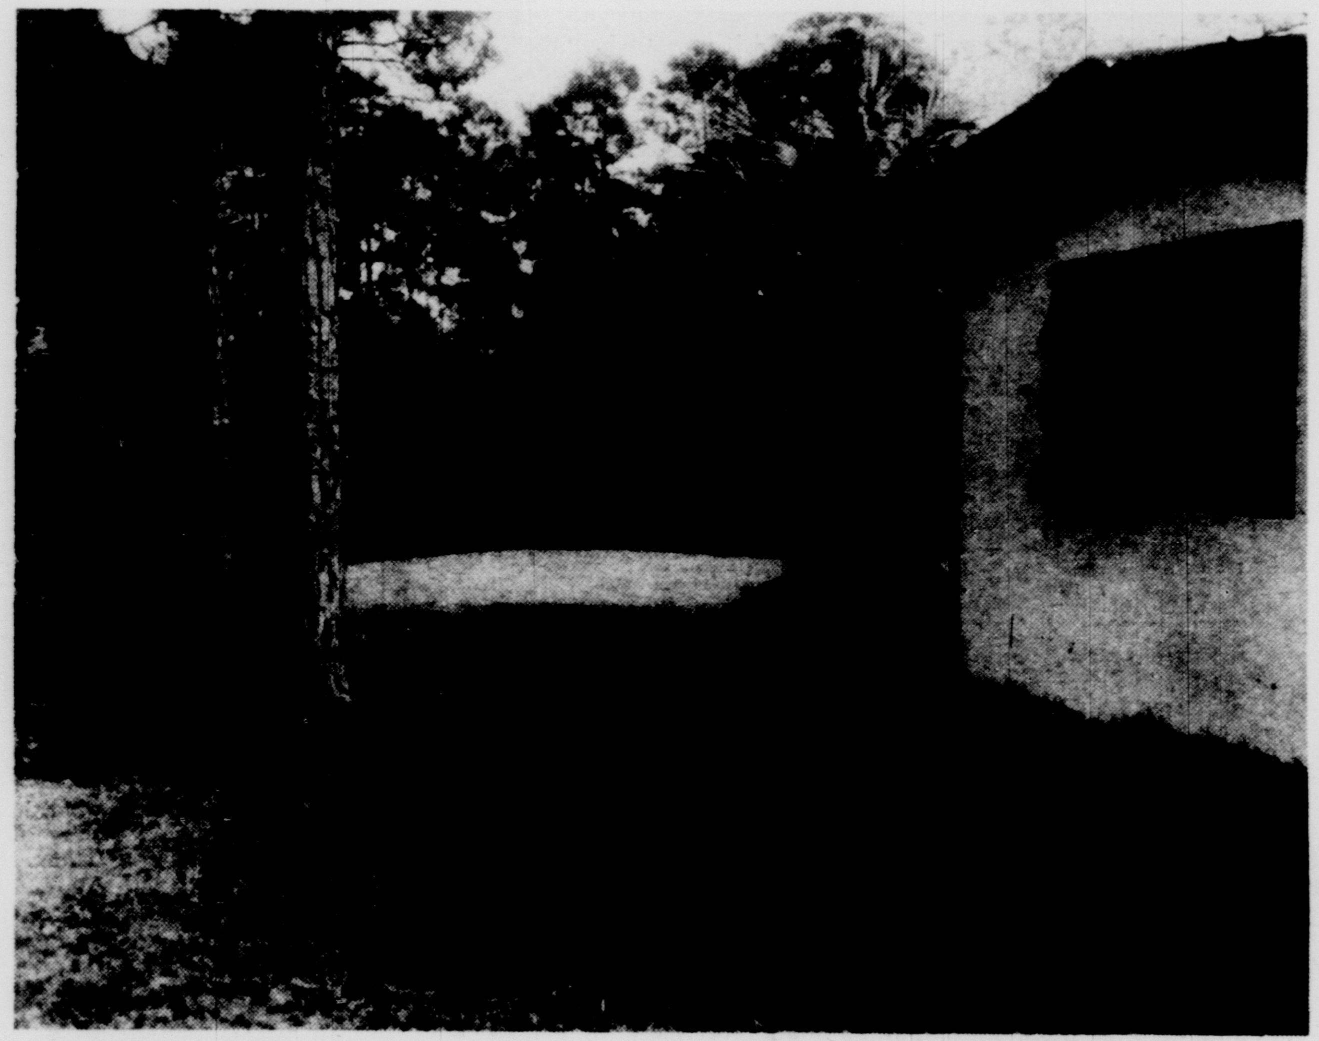
On the other hand, it is always a good idea to invite your neighbors to share the harvest with you.

Shrubby trees suitable for border planting include the Barbados cherry, dovyallis, citrus, governor's plum, loquat, carambola, macaamia, egg fruit, carissa, and the eugenias, including the Surinam cherry and the Eugenia dombeyi or grumachama.

If such large and shrubby trees as the lychee are used, they should be planted not closer than about 10 feet of the lot line.

The border of plants can be enclosed within an irregularly scalloped line, and this area can be mulched if the owner wishes.

It is not practical to use a ground cover about fruit trees, unless it is of a type that will withstand trampling. The Sarawak bean is one of the few plants that would stand it. But this plant is likely to creep out into the lawn and make itself very unpopular.



SHRUBBY FRUIT TREES can be used effectively for border planting, providing screening and an abundance of fruit. By planting several varieties it is possible to step out and pick fruit at almost any day of the year. Such gardens are of special interest to children. Here the background planting is made up of dovyallis, Barbados cherries, Surinam cherries, a carambola and citrus trees. The border makes a solid mass of foliage of varying color and texture.

Dwarfing Operation

South Florida has many trees that should lend themselves to dwarfing like the Japanese bonsai pan.

First off, you might try the Queensland umbrella tree (Schefflera). And you might want to try some of the rubber trees (Ficus), and especially the native strangler fig.

Other trees suitable for a trial in the dwarf garden are the clusia and the pond cypress.

In dwarfing trees, one must start with a small branch as a cutting or, better, start from seed.

Ground Covers Need Plenty of Attention

You must give ground covers good care if they are to be satisfactory and serve their purpose well.

To do their best, most ground covers require a fairly good soil. If your soil is poor, improve it before planting.

Lay down an inch or two of peatmoss, add regular fertilizer at the rate of six pounds per 100 square feet, and finish off with pulverized cow or sheep manure applied at the rate of about 25 pounds per 100 square feet.

Dig this into the soil, moiste nand let stand for a week before planting.

Additional fertilizer must be applied periodically. For wedelia, zebrina, jasmines, barleria and shrimp plant, apply fertilizer at the rate of three or four pounds per 100 square feet. This may be done three times a year.

Apply while the plants are dry, but not when the soil has been dry for a long period. Irrigate well one day and apply fertilizer the following day. This prevents the plants from absorbing so much fertilizer at one time.

Ants Tattle On Insects

Look out for scales or other insect pests on your plants when you see large ants crawling over them. Ants move scales and aphids about from plant to plant, and harvest from them a sweet substance which they excrete.

Kill the pests and the ants will disappear. But in case you wish to be doubly sure of getting rid of the ants, dust chlordane on the ground near your plants.

Avoid Wind

Weed killers should not be applied while the wind is blowing. The chemicals are carried to ornamentals, injuring or even killing them. Wait until the air is quiet to apply weed killers.

Airlayer Limes

Both the Persian and key lime can be air layered with ease. After roots form in the moss used for air-layering, remove the rooted branch and plant in a container of good soil. After the plant is well established, in five or six weeks, it can be planted in a permanent location.

Self-Heading Philodendrons Need Cupid

THE SELF-HEADING philodendron, being a non-vining type of plant, must be propagated by seed. There's no way to take cuttings.

Vegetative propagation is possible only when one of these plants has reached considerable size and has produced a tall trunk.

Then the trunk may be severed and the top replanted. But when this is done, the gardener must be careful to cut the top off in such a way that several of the rope-like roots are taken along with it.

Planted in good soil, the top will continue to grow, and the trunk that is left will send up several new sprouts and produce other plants.

It may take several years for a self-heading philodendron to become large enough to propagate in this manner.

A better way is to depend on seed for the propagation of this philodendron. But seed are not set unless the flowers are hand-pollinated.

That is, the gardener must play the part of cupid in the mating process.

There are several species of self-heading philodendrons, but the propagation of them is done in the same way.

The infloresence — a cone-like structure bearing the flowers—is borne in a spathe which opens when the flowers are receptive. Opening takes place late in the afternoon or early in the evening.

This is the time to do the pollinating. But one must have pollen. That means that it must have been collected and stored, or the gardener must have enough plants on hand so that pollen may be available from one of them.

★ ★ ★

ACUTALLY, both female and male flowers are borne on the same cone, but both are not active at the same time. The female flower is the first to become active, and after its activity has passed then the male part becomes active.

This usually the next evening. Thus there is almost never a chance for self-pollination.

If pollen is collected it can be stored in the bottom of a refrigerator for a week, but must be kept in a clean, dry, air-tight container. When a second flower opens, if it does, you will have live pollen to apply.

But the flower must be caught the first evening of opening. When the female part is ready to receive the pollen, the entire flower structure, including the spathe in which it is enclosed, will be warm to the touch.

Carefully cut most of the spathe from the corncob-like structure. Apply the pollen with the aid of a stick applicator with a piece of cotton at the tip. You can buy sterile applicators from a drug store.

If the flowers fail to set seed the whole flower structure will drop. But if the operation is successful, the cone will set hundreds — even thousands — of seed.

It takes four to six months for seed to ripen. They turn a yellowish color when mature. But wait until you are certain they are ripe before harvesting.

★ ★ ★

ONE EXPERIENCED grower mixes the gooey seed with dry sand, then sprinkles the whole thing evenly over a pot of peat moss and covers very lightly with peat.

Sprouting takes four days to three weeks.

When the plants are two inches high they are removed to small pots of suitable soil. A mixture two parts peat, one part gravel and one part sand makes a good potting medium.

Add a quart of sheep manure to the soil at the rate of about one quart per wheelbarrel full.

You'll wind up with hundreds or even thousnads of plants. You'll have a problem of disposing of them. But don't think you can make a fortune selling your plants.

Nurserymen already are propagating more than they can sell, so don't be a sucker.

Keep Roses Free of Insects

Diligent Gardener Can Get Good Rose

It's the diligent, the constant gardener who grows the best roses.

Anybody who has ever done any gardening at all knows that roses require good soil to grow well. You never saw hybrid roses thrive in poor soil.

But few realize how important it is to dust regularly in order to prevent insects and diseases.

Weekly dusting with a special rose dust is recommended.

Apply dust while the plants are dry. The dust clings to tiny hairs on the leaf surfaces. If dust is applied while hhe plants are wet you will get too much dust on them.

Regular fertilizing also is important. Some folks fertilize as often as twice a month. But once a month should be plenty.

Keeping a constant but adequate supply of fertilizer available is important — a lot more important than applying huge amounts of fertilizer and then letting the plants suffer from want before fertilizing again.

Roses require a constant supply of moisture. But they won't thrive where the soil is kept soggy. Nor is it a good idea to run a sprinkler on the plants every day as some folks do.

The best way to water roses is to soak the soil thoroughly, so that there is moisture to the depth that the roots reach.

Then lay off watering until the soil has a chance to dry out a bit, but not until the leaves of your plants wilt.

A little experience is necessary. If mulch is used, you may not have to water established roses more often than once a week—when you water deeply.

Up and Down Planning Can Add to Beauty

IN PLANNING a garden some thought should be given to the "uplook," that part of the garden we see when we raise our eyes above ground level.

In older gardens the uplook usually is the most striking part of the planting, for here the eyes must be raised to see the foliage of trees and palms and the flowering plants when they are in bloom.

The saddest garden is one which has no trees, where everything has been pushed off by a bulldozer before the house was built.

Here the uplook is absent, unless we consider the sky and the power poles and the power and telephone lines that bisect the garden overhead.

No matter how scrubby the growth on a wooded lot might be, it is better to preserve some of these scrubby things than to destroy them.

Even the skinniest live oak, the rattiest cabbage palm, or even some thorny pineland scrub is preferable to bareness.

But when all native plants are removed from building lots, the owner might do well to consider the uplook idea when buying ornamental and fruiting trees and shrubs.

Massing of plants near the borders of the lot, with much open area in the center, will eventually produce effective uplook situations.

* * *

Striking Look

WITH A scattering of slender palms, of large character type shrubs or small trees, and with these growing behind banks of lower shrubs and ground covers, it is possible to develop striking uplooks. The power poles and power lines disappear. Sure, they're still present in reality, but the eyes don't pay any attention to them.

It is not necessary to build a full screen of foliage about the garden in order for objectionable objects to be obliterated.

As a matter of fact, zoning rules in some areas require that hedges be kept to five feet.

Thus masses of plants that might be considered a hedge, and reaching up to 12 or 15 feet, may cause neighbors to complain.

But where groups of palms are planted here and there along the borders, interspaced with several kinds of small trees, no objections are likely to be raised. The end product is not a "hedge" in the full sense of the word. For the sky shows through and breezes pass freely.

As for hedges, it is still possible to have them. They can be lined up close to the property line behind the plantings of uplook shrubs, palms and trees.

* * *

Looking Down

WHILE ON the subject of uplooks, perhaps we should say a word or two about downlooks.

The downlook is of importance mainly in the garden where there is a two-story house.

Here we are no longer interested in silhouettes and leaf patterns against the sky, but in patterns near the ground level, mainly of foliage and flower masses and shadows across green lawns. himself in trouble here.

But to know of the importance of these features in the garden is helpful, both from the standpoint of enjoying the garden and of its development.

To build uplooks and downlooks to perfection may be beyond the abilities of the home owner who is inexperienced in both design and in horticulture. Even the landscape architect often finds UPLOOK FEATURES in the garden nearly always can be improved by the planting of palms because of their striking leaf patterns against the sky. Schfflera, cecropia, avocado and other trees which have large foliage also are effective uplook plants.

DOWNLOOK FEATURES include striking ground covers, plants that make interesting shrubbery masses and even such things as the pattern, texture and color of materials used in patio construction. Note the effectiveness of the three-dimensional effect here because of the presence of the allamanda vine on the bannister of the second-story porch.

Arborescent philodendrons require rich soil and lots of growing space

. . . growing among wedelia ground cover

Here's a Good Ornamental

THE NON-VINING type of philodendron, variously known as self-heading or arborescent philodendron, is one of the landscape planting that is being grown in Florida.

There are several species and varieties of these philodendron selloum, which under good growing conditions makes a plant eight to 10 feet across and might eventually get to be 15 feet tall if permitted to grow full height.

Improper use of this philo-outstanding ornamentals for dendron has caused it to lose some of its popularity. It does not thrive in dense shade and thus is not suitable for use as an indoor plant.

Nor is it suitable for use in the average planting bin on account of the large size which it attains.

These philodendrons do better in full sun than in full shade. They seem to do their best in broken sun and shade, as found in slathouses or in fairly open forests. But when in doubt plant in full sun.

While the better known kinds make very large plants, there are dwarf species now available which get to be no more than one-fourth the size of the giant kinds.

These are becoming popular with the owners of small gardens.

However, the large kinds are quite suitable for use in the proper places. But they should be planted where they have ample room to grow, as on the borders of gardens or patios.

* * *

THERE'S NOTHING especially difficult about growing arborescent philodendrons, but if these plants are to be kept in good growing condition they must be fertilized and watered regularly.

Once a month isn't too often to fertilize. Use one part of general purpose garden fertilizer and one part of sheep manure. Do not apply close to the plants, but out in the area where the roots are growing.

It is important to plant a philodendron in a good soil to begin, a soil that is loose and which contains a lot of humus.

Original richness isn't as important as humus and aeration, for richness can be supplied by fertilizer.

In preparing a planting hole, it should be remembered that these philodendrons develop a widespread root system.

We have seen their roots extend for 15 feet, where the going was good. However, preparation of a planting site five or six feet in diameter is sufficient.

As the plant, or plants, grow additional humus can be supplied by mixing leaves and peat moss and heaping it somewhat about the plants and over the site occupied by the root system.

* * *

WATERING IS very important. A well established plant will stand drought it is true, but if a plant is to be kept in a deep green, healthy condition it must receive water at least once a week.

When watering, do it thoroughly, wetting the soil to a depth of several inches. Then let the soil dry out again somewhat before watering again.

The philodendron is a lush, tropical looking plant, and it has a place in the tropical garden. However, it's good use is yet to be learned by most gardeners.

More often the arborescent philodendron is seen as a yellow, sickly plant, set out in the middle of the yard, and getting hardly any attention.

It's better not to plant this philodendron if you do not intend to provide good care for it.

Dooryard Citrus Is Fine If You Want Work

IF YOU CAN GROW good dooryard citrus you can grow just about anything else.

Citrus is planted in the dooryard mainly for ornamental purposes. But if the trees are to be decorative they must be well grown and kept free of insects and diseases. And when well grown citrus trees are likely to produce high quality fruit.

Citrus care is a year round problem. It should begin in January and continue until December.

The trees should be examined every week for signs of insects, and steps should be taken immediately to clear the trees of pests.

However, this schedule is complicated, and while its recommendations are necessary for the maintenance of a commercial grove, a more simple guide can be used by the dooryard citrus grower.

* * *

UNDER IDEAL GROWING conditions, insects are kept in check by natural enemies. But such conditions seldom exist in the dooryard.

As a matter of fact, conditions usually are ideal for the build up of insects. Thus spraying is necessary to keep pests under control.

Citrus is fine

. . . when healthy

Probably the best citrus insecticide is a combination of malathion and oil emulsion. This combination is now available under various trade names. Use according to directions. It will control scale insects, aphids, whitefly and certain mites.

If you intend to mix your own combination, the usual recommendation is two teaspoonsful of 50 per cent malathion emulsion and two tablespoonsful of oil emulsion to one gallon of water. This can be used monthly if needed, since the amount of oil used is not enough to do any harm to the tree or to the quality of the fruit.

* * *

JANUARY — Apply nutritional spray containing zinc, copper and manganese.

FEBRUARY — Fertilize.

MARCH — Check for aphids on new growth and kill with malathion or nicotine sulphate.

JUNE — Fertilize.

NOVEMBER — Fertilize. (This application can be made near the end of October, if you wish).

ALL MONTHS — Keep a constant watch for insects and keep them under control by spraying with malathion-oil emulsion combination. Once a week is not too often to check for pests. And check the underside of foliage as well as the upper surface.

* * *

IF THE GARDENER doesn't care to go in for so much spraying, some revision of cultural methods may be necessary.

Make lighter applications of commercial fertilizer and supplement with pulverized sheep manure or cow manure.

Mulching is also recommended, but don't let mulch pile up about the trunk. Spraying must be avoided, including nutritional spraying.

Some of the organic gardeners won't use any kind of commercial fertilizer, believing this practice produces unhealthful fruit.

We won't get into this argument, but the fact remains that organic gardening practices have merit, especially where insect control and fruit quality are concerned.

Heavy feeding with fertilizer that gorges trees on nitrogen and minerals may encourage them to produce large amounts of succulent growth that is quite attractive to insects. And mineral sprays applied to foliage covers everything with a deposit which provides a favorable place for scale and mites to become established.

* * *

THE IDEAL SITUATION would be one where the trees are supplied with a constant but low level of nitrogen and minerals at all times, and where the leaves are kept free of surface deposits such as may be formed by sprays.

Pineapples Will Grow Here If--

You can grow pineapples in Florida, but you'll need to provide plenty of fertilizer and water, and, by all means, keep insects under control.

When properly used, pineapple plants make interesting ground covers. However, if planted closely together fruit production may be poor.

Pineapple plants aren't always easy to find. You may have to plant the crown plants that grow on the top of the pineapple fruit.

If you intend to make your pineapple garden in full sun, where production is likely to be better than in the shade, it is best to root plants in clay pots.

Fertilize growing pineapple plants with regular fertilizer, scattered on the soil within the vicinity of the plants.

Plant not closer than two feet apart, except where you intend to produce only a ground cover situation, in which case you can plant as closely as you wish.

Incidentally, the soil should be enriched before the plants are set out. And, if it is practical to do so, better fumigate the soil for the control of weed seeds before planting.

Keep plants watered all year, providing at least one inch of water every week.

Probably the worst hazard pineapple growers in South Florida have to face is the mealybug, a sucking insect which thrives in large colonies sometimes at the base of the pineapple plant.

Keep a sharp lookout for these pests and kill them by spraying with malathion.

Divide Bulb

The amaryllis is an evergreen bulb plant and is not lifted from the soil and stored in Florida. If lifted for division and transplanting, replanting can be done immediately.

A Florida Product

New Kind of Grape Is Available

A new kind of grape, developed at the Grape Investigations Laboratory at Leesburg, has proved to be a good producer in Dade county.

It is Lake Emerald, a name given by its developers. The variety has been under test for the past four years at the Subtropical Experiment Station at Homestead.

Lake Emerald is a result of a cross between a native white fruited grape known as Pixiola and the cultivated Golden Muscat.

It appears to be immune to virus, which has caused most grape failures in Florida in the past.

The juice is sweet, aromatic, and agreeable in flavor and is light in color. It is high in sugar.

Few nurserymen have propagated Lake Emerald grape for sale in South Florida, and the home owner who wants to plant a grape arbor may have to wait awhile to obtain plants.

Cover All Surfaces With Spray

When applying spray to plants for control of insects or diseases, it is necessary to cover all surfaces, and especially the under surface of leaves.

Spray should not be applied in large droplets, but the spray nozzle should be adjusted so that the spray is broken into very fine droplets.

If a spreader (detergent) has been added to the solution, these droplets will spread out evenly over the surface of leaves and stems.

If dust is preferred to spray, apply when the plants are dry rather than wet. The dust likewise should be applied to all plant surfaces.

Weeds Have Needs

So who wants to feed weeds? Better mulch with Baccto Peat — smothers weeds while it helps flowers, shrubs, vegetables, trees get food and drink from soil. Never do a good deed for a weed. Insist on Baccto Peat... the Bacti-vated living soil conditioner.

Just the right grass for the barefoot boy to tread upon. Uganda will compare with the putting quality of Bentgrass, cut at ¼ inch. Common Bermuda does not invade W & G Ugandagrass. The improved hybrid Bermudas, TIFGREEN (State Certified), TIFFINE and TIFLAWN, also withstand this rigorous putting green ¼'' cutting program daily. But, when the height of cut is raised to ½'' to ¾'', the above listed strains, under the close cut, will still form the most dense turfgrass. So-o-o-o the better golf green strains will make the best lawn, by planting sprigs.

Tips Tell How to Keep a Healthy Lawn

any grass depends on the amount of care it receives. The home owner should weigh the advantages and disadvantages of several grasses, select one of his own accord and plant it. Then if it fails he will have nobody to blame but himself.

QUESTION — What is meant by high maintenance grasses and low maintenance grasses?

ANSWER — A grass that normally requires a great deal of care, such as fertilizing, watering and mowing is a high maintenance grass. Bermuda is a "very high" maintenance grass. Zoysia requies a moderate amount of maintenance. St. Augustine is considered to be in the low to moderate bracket, while centipede is "very low." (See chart on page 00 which gives maintenance comparisons between grasses.)

QUESTION — How high must the various grasses be cut for the best effects?

ANSWER — This is a hard question to answer, if the answer must be given in inches.

Grass should be mowed often enough so that the blades remain mostly in a horizontal position. If mowing is stubs of blades on the stems. Sometimes the scalping is so bad that the grass may die in spots, if it is a variety which produces all of its runners on top of the ground, such as St. Augustine and centipede.

Now to answer the question about mowing heights. Set the mower blade at such height that ample grass blades remain after the mower runs over the grass. And the more often mowing is done the shorter the grass may be cut.

Heights vary from one-half inch for fine Bermuda, such as on croquet and putting greens, and two inches for St. Augustine. But if St. Augustine is mowed at least once weekly during the warm season when it is growing rapidly, the blades can be set somewhat lower.

To avoid scalping is important. If you are scalping the lawn you are cutting too low.

QUESTION — How often should grass be fertilized?

ANSWER — That depends on the grass and on the kind of maintenance you prefer. Let's start with St. Augustine. Some folks fertilize once a year while others fertilize up to four times a year.

Bermuda will require fertilizer at least three times a year, and up to six times a year if you insist on maintaining "the best lawn" in the neighborhood Zoysia will need three to four applications a year.

Be careful with centipede. If you can get by without fertilizing this grass you may keep it longer. But if it must be fertilized, do it lightly. Usually one application a year is sufficient. And this should be applied at half the rate recommended for other grasses.

Normally the rate of application for most grasses is 25 to 30 pounds of fertilizer per 1,000 square feet. For centipede use half this amount.

Where only one application is made a year, the recommended time in South Florida is in the fall, after the end of the rainy season.

QUESTION — How often should lawns be watered and how much?

ANSWER — Water only when grass needs it. Newly planted grass sprigs or seed must be watered daily for awhile to get them established. But as grass becomes established it can be watered less frequently, and after grass has covered and is throughly established, watering can be cut to once a week or even longer.

When watering is done it should be done thoroughly. Put down at least one inch.

QUESTION — Which grasses can be seeded and which must be planted from sprigs?

ANSWER — Most grasses except St. Augustine can be seeded. All improved varieties, however must be sprigged. This includes the improved Bermuda grasses espcially. And there are now improved zoysias which are much superior to the seeded zoysia. Centipede is usually planted from sprigs.

THERE MUST BE AN EASIER WAY

QUESTION — How can you tell when your sprinkler system has put out one inch of water?

ANSWER — Set some pans around and mark the time it takes for them to collect an inch of water.

QUESTION — How often should a lawn be topdressed with soil and how much soil should be used?

ANSWER — Topdressing is done to make lawns even and to eliminate sponginess. Put down only enough material to solve these problems.

QUESTION—Which is best, sand or muck, for topdressing?

ANSWER — Sand, by all means. Muck is organic material which soon oxidizes and disappears into the air. But if sand and muck are mixed at the rate of eight or nine parts of sand and one to two parts of muck, you've got a good top dressing.

A loamy soil is always superior to sand for topdressing, but it is often hard to find, especially material that is free of weed pests.

QUESTION — What kind of grass is best for winter lawns?

ANSWER — Rye is most widely used, but bent, redtop and other northern type grasses are often used in South Florida. Plant the seed in the fall and you'll have a green lawn all winter. These grasses will die out in the summer.

QUESTION—What is your opinion of the mixed grass seed now being sold in the Miami area?

ANSWER—There's much to be said in favor of the mixed seed. But whether to plant this type of lawn depends much on what the individual likes.

These grass seed mixtures usually contain two or three permanent varieties, including Bahia, zoysia and centipede, and temporary varieties, including bent and redtop.

Of course you wind up with a mixture of grasses. But you will have a lawn and if you keep farily good care of it — especially if you mow it regularly — you should have a good lawn.

QUESTION — Do you advise nutritional spray for lawn grasses?

ANSWER — Not as a rule. An application of iron to centipede in the fall helps to keep this grass green. (Don't let this mineral come in contact with walls or walks.)

QUESTION — Which is the better mower, the rotary or the reel type?

ANSWER — For precision mowing, the reel type is a must. One of the faults of the rotary is that when its blade is dull it frays the ends of grass blades. Most owners of rotary mowers fail to keep the blade sharp.

There are situations where the rotary is much superior, as in rough areas where rocks and debris exist. The rotary is valuable for mowing areas that are not cut often.

A reel type mower is especially recommended for cutting tough grasses such as zoysia and Bahia.

QUESTION — Is there a grass that is immune to insects?

ANSWER — No. And the higher the maintenance — the more grass is fertilized — the greater will be the insect problem.

QUESTION—Are chemical weed killers practical?

ANSWER — By all means. Unfortunately many persons don't follow directions. They apply too much weed killer and they do almost as much injury to their lawn grasses as they do to the weeds.

WHY SKIMP?
WEED KILLER

St. Augustine is especially susceptible to damage from the weed killers. Normally manufacturers recommend that weed killers be used at half strength for St. Augustine. If the manufacture excludes St. Augustine from the grasses on which his product can be used, better believe him.

Normally week killers will help you to control broad-leaf weeds that run through your grass. But don't expect them to kill nutgrass or crowfoot grass. And you'll be sorry if you expect a weed killer to kill Bermuda grass in St. Augustine. For St. Augustine will be the first to succumb, leaving the Bermuda in good form.

QUESTION — What insects attack grasses and what is the best method of dealing with them?

ANSWER — Chinch bugs are pests in St. Augustine but not in other grasses. Sod webworms, armyworms, grubworms, Rhodes grass scale, nematodes, pillbugs, slugs and several other minor pests attack all grasses from time to time. Here are recommended controls:

Sod webworms and armyworms — Toxaphene or DDT.

Pillbugs — Diazinon.

Chinch bugs — Diazinon or VC-13.

Slugs — Metaldehyde bait.

Rhodes grass scale — Malathion and oil emulsion mixed together.

Follow directions found on containers, and it's always a good idea to buy chemicals from places where you can get information about their uses.

COLORFUL BLOOMS of an African amaryllis rewarded a Colorado Springs grower by getting his picture made by United Press International photo service. We are using this photo not because the amaryllis is a rare plant in South Florida, but to show how popular this bulb plant is in other parts of the country, where it must be grown indoors. In South Florida the amaryllis thrives in gardens and makes an attractive evergreen ground cover even during the time of year when not in flower. But when in bloom it is one of our most striking flowering plants. The grower is L. Byron Richards. His plant has eight blooms.

Barbados May Need Some Food

Those unproductive Barbados cherry bushes which bloom but do not fruit may need fertilizer.

But first be sure that you buy selected varieties. It's a mistake to plant seedlings because you don't know what to expect in the way of quality and yield.

And after planting your trees, take good care of them. Apply fertilizer following each crop.

Also fertilize in the fall after the end of the rainy season and again in late winter or early spring.

At least one application of a mineral spray, containing zinc and manganese, should be applied. The best time probably is in January, but other applications may be made during the year if malnutrition is suspected.

We recommend growing the Barbados cherry as a shrub rather than as a tree. This can be done by encouraging lateral branches near the ground and by trimming back vigorous top growth.

It is difficult to harvest the fruit when the plants are trained as trees, since the branches are above your head.

Stephanotis Thrives

The stephanotis plant will thrive in South Florida, provided it is kept free of nematodes, is grown in acid soil and is given ample water and fertilizer.

A sandy soil is recommended, to which about 15 per cent peat moss is mixed, along with sheep manure and garden fertilizer. Use gardenia type fertilizer.

And be sure the plant is located where it will receive sun most of the day.

You must, of course, prepare ample trellis for the vine to climb.

A stephanotis requires a lot of moisture, but it won't live in soggy soil that never has a chance to dry out any. So don't plant where water is likely to stand for several hours after a rain.

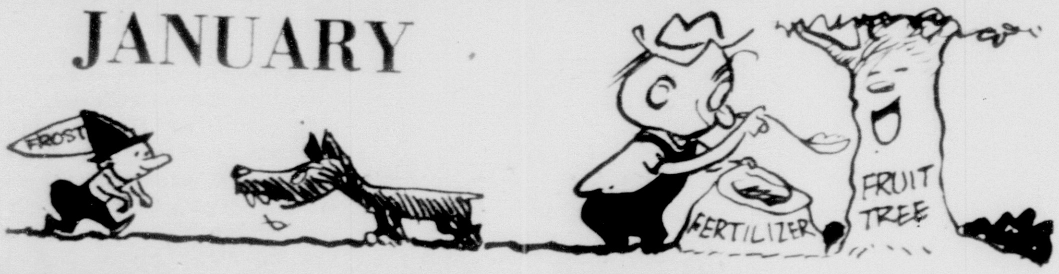
JANUARY



TEMPERATURE — South Florida's coolest month. Average daily high, 74; average daily low, 62.

RAINFALL — A dry month. Average, 2 inches. Wettest January, 1926, with 7.93 inches. Driest January, 1957, with .08 inch.

FROST — Precautions needed all month. Chances of frost in Miami during month, one in-four years. Chances of freeze, one in 15 years.

PLANTING — When practical to do so, defer transplanting of tropical shrubs trees and palms until April.

VEGETABLES — Beans, cabbage and relatives, carrots, cucumbers, corn, lettuce, parsley, peas, peppers, spinach, tomatoes, turnips and watermelons.

ANNUALS — Asters, calendulas, carnations, ciomos, daises, pinks, gaillardias, hollyhocks, lobelias, lupins, nasturtiums, pansies, petunias, phlox, salvia, scabiosa, snapdraggons, statice and verbenas.

FERTILIZING — Feed shrubbery, fruit trees and lawn this month.

NUTRITIONAL SPRAY — Apply spray containing copper, zinc, manganese and iron to fruit trees and to shrubs and vines suffering from mineral deficiency. Get no spray on painted walls or sidewalks.

WATERING — Put down equivalent of one and one-half inches of rain. If thoroughly done each time, watering can be done once a week.

INSECTS — Plant mites may be bad this month. Dust susceptible plants, especially citrus, crotons and hibiscus, every two months from Nov. 1 until May with sulphur or other miticide.

FEBRUARY

TEMPERATURE — A cool, dry month. Average daily high, 75; average daily low, 62.

RAINFALL — Average, 1.73 inches. Wettest February, 1957, with 6.15 inches. Driest February, 1944, with a trace of rain.

FROST — Chances for frost or freeze about the same as in January.

PLANTING — Get spring vegetables and annuals seeded early this month. Plant papaya seeds this month.

VEGETABLES — This is last month of season for planting seeds of cabbage, broccoli, sweet corn or tomatoes in the South Florida garden.

ANNUALS — Last month for calendulas, hollyhocks or nasturtiums. Other annuals planted to bloom after May 15 may prove difficult.

BULBS — Plant those recommended for January and any others you find in local garden supply stores.

FERTILIZING — Feed monthly all shrubs, palms and trees you want to push.

INSECTS — Continue January precautions.

TRANSPLANTING — Avoid moving of palms and other tropical plants.

DISEASES — Begin weekly spraying of tomatoes with fungicide to prevent late blight. Ask your garden store owner to sell you the right kind of spray. (Never use sprays containing oils on vegetables or annuals.)

MARCH

PINKS

TEMPERATURE — Average daily high, 76.7: average daily low, 64.8.

RAINFALL — A dry month, average 2.15 inches. Wettest March, 1919, with 9.74 inches. Driest March, 1920, with .06 inch.

FROST — Precaution advised until March 15.

PLANTING — Most tropical plants can be safely put in this month, especially after middle of month, but be prepared to water. Wait until April to plant tender palms.

VEGETABLES — It's too late to put in seedbeds of most vegetables, but you can plant seedlings of such crops as cabbage, collards, peppers and tomatoes. Seed pole beans, carrots, cucumbers, leaf lettuce, squash and melons.

ANNUALS — Experienced gardeners may have success with most of the annuals recommended for February (see January list). Especially recommended are asters, cosmos, daisies, pinks, gaillardias, lobelias, verbenas and zinnias.

BULBS — Gladiolus, crinums or other tropical and semi-tropical bulbs available can be planted. A good month to put in a bed of caladiums.

INSECTS — With the weather turning warmer, look out for new pests. Aphids are almost sure to attack new citrus growth.

PRUNING — Cut back poinsettias this month, and make cuttings if desired.

APRIL

NICE DUSTIN'
ROSE GARDEN

TEMPERATURE — Weather warming rapidly. Average daily high, 79, compared with 75 in February; average daily low, 68, compared with 62 in February.

RAINFALL — Average, 3.34 inches. Wettest April, 1942, with 13.62 inches. Driest April, 1938, with .23 of an inch.

PLANTING — Where water can be supplied readily, all types of plants may be set out now in permanent locations. A good time to begin landscaping.

VEGETABLES — Only experienced gardeners can hope to raise good crops of pole beans, collards, cucumbers, peppers and squash.

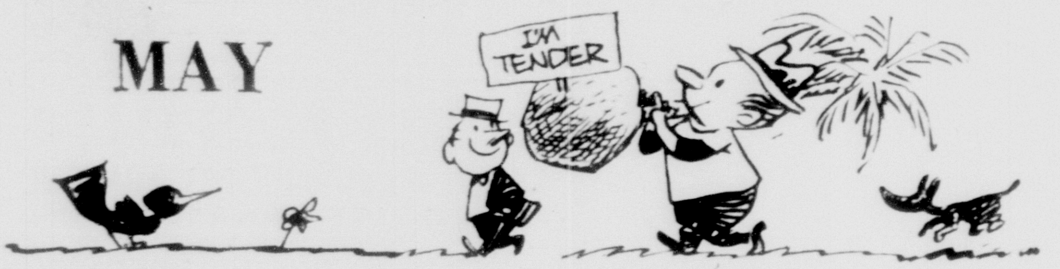
ANNUALS — Experienced gardeners can successfully grow asters, balsam, cock's comb, globe aramanth, annual hollyhocks, marigolds, morning glories, periwinkles, petunias, salvias, strawflowers and zinnias.

DISEASES — You're almost sure to be troubled with fungus diseases from now until fall. If it rains, dust rose bushes every two weeks, spray fig trees with neutral copper once a month to prevent rust. Give fruiting mangos an application of copper fungicide.

WATERING — April showers don't always come to South Florida. Be prepared either for a dry April or a wet April.

INSECTS — Pests are building up now. Go after caterpillars with toxaphene or DDT. Grasshoppers are best controlled by toxaphene. Watch out for leafhoppers and aphids on the underside of leaves of vegetables and annuals. Use lindane.

MAY



TEMPERATURE — First month of "summer weather." Average daily high, 82; average daily low, 72.

RAINFALL — Beginning of rainy season, with average rainfall of 4.27 inches. But May, like April, can be wet or dry. Wettest May, 1925, with 18.66 inches; driest May, 1951, with .32 of an inch.

PLANTING — Move any tropical plant this month, including tender palms you were advised not to transplant in winter. Plant lawn grasses.

VEGETABLES — Collards, cowpeas, mustard, papayas, okra, peanuts, pumpkins, New Zealand spinach, yellow squash, sweet potatoes, and turnips (for tops).

ANNUALS — Balsam, cosmos, cock's comb, four-o'clocks, globe aramanth, annual hollyhocks, marigolds, morning glories, periwinkles, petunias, salvia and zinnias.

PROPAGATION — Begin making new plants by air-layering this month.

PRUNING — Do major pruning this month. Cut back bougainvilleas, jasmines, crotons and winter and spring bloomers that are through now. Fertilize after any drastic pruning.

INSECTS—Keep watching for signs, and go after the bugs at the first indication of their presence.

JUNE

DO YOUR DUTY-PINCH THAT BUD!

TEMPERATURE — Average daily high, 85.4; average daily low, 75.2.

RAINFALL — Rainy season usually begins in June. Average, 5.55 inches. Wettest June, 1930, with 25.34 inches. Driest June, 1940, with .07 of an inch.

PLANTING — Get as much grass planted this month as possible. Also try to get in all fruit trees you intend to plant this year.

ANNUALS — Balsam, cock's comb, four-o'clocks, globe aramanth, marigolds, morning glories, periwinkles, petunias, salvia and zinnias.

PROPAGATION — Continue propagation by air-layering. It's possible to air-layer six-foot branches of rubber trees by this method.

FERTILIZING — Fertilize fruit trees and shrubbery. Give grass its final summer application this month.

INSECTS — Watch out for chinch bugs in St. Augustine grass. Check also for cottony cushion scale and other scale insects.

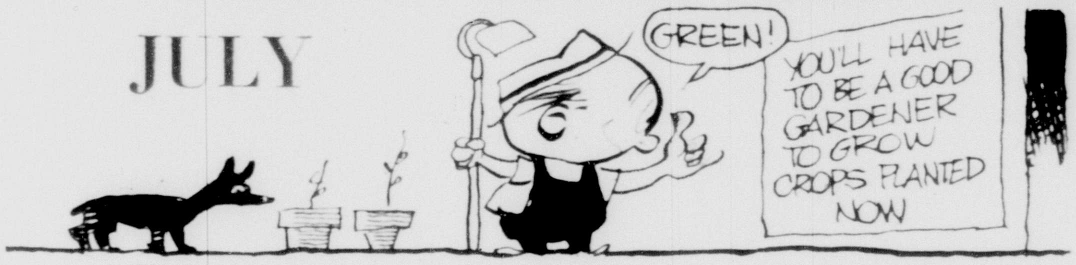
JULY



GREEN!
YOU'LL HAVE TO BE A GOOD GARDENER TO GROW CROPS PLANTED NOW

TEMPERATURE—Average daily high, 87; average daily low, 76.4. Although the sun temperature is very hot in South Florida in July, there usually is a breeze from the Southeast and a person can be very comfortable in the shade.

RAINFALL—Average, 4.36 inches. Wettest July, 1926, with 15.22 inches; driest July, 1932, with .48 of an inch.

HURRICANES — Second month of storm season, with an occasional tropical disturbance brewing in the West Indies. But the highest wind recorded in Miami during July was 53 miles an hour, in 1936.

PLANTING—Get all grass planted this month, if possible, in order to have full coverage by the end of October.

VEGETABLES — See June calendar. You'll have to be a good gardener to bring in crops planted at this time of year.

ANNUALS—See June calendar.

PROPAGATION — Continue air-layerings, if you need new plants. This also is a good time to propagate new house plants if your present ones are tall and leggy.

FERTILIZING — Feed monthly any plants set out in May or June. Also feed house plants monthly using a soluble plant food.

INSECTS—This is usually a bad month for chinch bugs, especially if month is unusually dry. Scale insects build up rapidly on citrus and ornamentals at this time.

DISEASES—If you have carried rose bushes over from last winter better dust them every week with a rose dust to prevent leaf spot.

AUGUST

TIME TO CLEAN YOU UP!
BUT I'M NO INSECT!

TEMPERATURE—Average daily high, 87; average daily low, 77.

RAINFALL — Average, 5.06 inches. Wettest August, 1922, with 15.05 inches. Driest August, 1941, with .66 inches.

HURRICANES—One may come but so far Miami hasn't had one in 54 years of Augusts.

PLANTING—Try to complete all major transplanting this month. Put in chrysanthemum cuttings.

VEGETABLES—You can seed a number of crops this month if you are a hardy gardener and know what you're doing. Include carrots, cucumbers, celery, leaf lettuce, mustard, okra, cowpeas, peppers, squash and turnips.

ANNUALS — Asters, balsam, cosmos, cock's comb, dianthus, forget-me-nots, gaillardias, marigolds, periwinkles, petunias, phlox, portulacas, salvia, scabiosa, tithonias, verbennas, zinnias.

PROPAGATION — Continue air-layering. Make this the last month for dividing tropical bulb plants such as amaryllis or crinums.

INSECTS—Get all insects cleaned up before September. Check for whitefly especially. Use sulphur to check whitefly on papayas.

DISEASES — Watch for fungus on leaves of soft-foliage plants and rust disease on leaves of fig trees. Neutral copper will control fig rust and a variety of other diseases.

FERTILIZING — Make monthly application to newly planted trees and grass. But be prepared to fight sod webworms and armyworms in grass fertilized during summer. Follow directions closely.

SEPTEMBER

PLANT THIS SOMEWHERE
KEROSENE LAMP

RAINFALL — September is wettest month of year, with average of 7.29 inches. Wettest September, 1931 with 19.70 inches; driest September, 1921, with 2.08 inches.

HURRICANES — Florida has had its worst storms during September.

PLANTING — Veteran gardeners put cucumbers, celery, collards, escarole, kale, leek, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, parsley, parsnips, peppers, rhubarb, romaine, rutabagas, sage, spinach, squash, Swiss chard, tomatoes and turnips.

ANNUALS — Asters, baby's breath, bachelor's buttons, balsam, calendulas, candy-tuft, carnations, cosmos, cockscomb, daisies, dianthus, forget-me-nots, gaillardias, globe aramanth, hollyhocks, lace flowers, lobelias, lupins, marigolds, nasturtiums, pansies, periwinkles, petunias, phlox, poppies, portulacas, salvia, scabiosa, snapdragons, statice, stocks, strawflowers, sweet william, verbenas, zinnias.

PRUNING—Do final cutting back of poinsettias and bougainvilleas at beginning of month.

FERTILIZING — Avoid fertilizing, if possible, during this rainy month except young plants which you want to push ahead.

OCTOBER

NO PRUNIN' TILL APRIL
QH

TEMPERATURE — Average daily high, 83; average daily low, 73. Days and nights become cooler as month progresses and by end of month Miami may get first chilly weather.

RAINFALL—Most of October's rain usually comes during first two weeks. Average, 7.88 inches. Wettest October, 1924, with 25.02 inches. Driest October, 1925, with 1.12 inches.

HURRICANES — Chances for a big blow about the same as in September. Highest wind ever recorded in Miami during October, 122 miles an hour in 1950.

PLANTING—Now is the time to get in seed beds, if you intend to harvest anything by Christmas. Prepare rose beds early this month, and plant toward end of month or in November.

VEGETABLES — See September list.

ANNUALS — See September list.

BULBS — See September list.

HERB GARDEN—Most common herbs for kitchen use can be raised in South Florida during winter. Try basil, borage, marjoram, sage or thyme. Mint does well here all year, and can be started best from cuttings.

PRUNING—Lay off until next April.

FERTILIZING—Put down fall application after Oct. 15 when it appears that the rainy season is about over. But withhold fertilizer from bearing-size mango trees until bloom begins to show.

NOVEMBER

CAN THAT MEAN ME ?
JACK FROST
NO TRESPASSING
FLORIDA

TEMPERATURE—Average daily high, 77.5; average daily low, 66.5. November begins South Florida's most delightful part of the year with warm, sunny days and cool nights.

RAINFALL—Beginning of dry season with average of 2 inches for month. Wettest November, 1925, with 17.72 inches; driest November, 1944, with 0.21 of an inch.

FROST—Outlying areas of Miami have experienced frost by Nov. 20. Get protection ready by Nov. 15. Wrap bundles of grass about the trunks of young mango trees. A bean hamper will protect a young avocado from frost.

PLANTING — Almost any vegetable, annual, sweet herb or semi-tropical bulb can be planted at this time of year. Be sure to get rose bushes planted this month.

VEGETABLES — See September calendar.

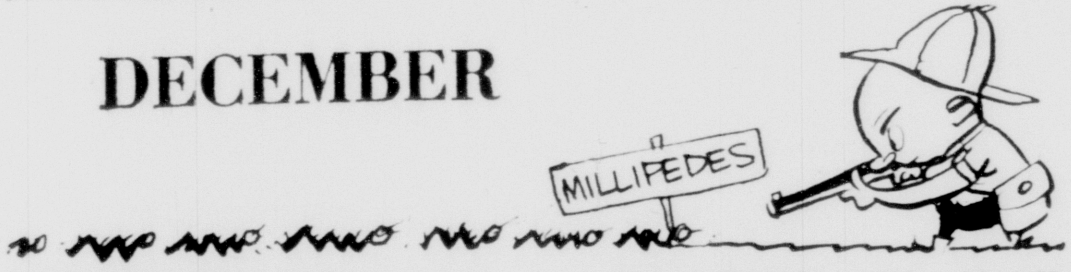
ANNUALS — See September calendar.

BULBS — See September calendar.

HERBS—See September calendar.

INSECTS — You'll have to keep after insects in your annuals and vegetables, although most pests on shrubs and other plants are on the wane. There is one type of pest, however, which may give you trouble throughout the dry season unless you use preventive measures. This is the plant mite. Beginning Nov. 1, apply miticide every two months to citrus, acalyphas, crotons, hibiscus and other susceptible plants until April.

DECEMBER



TEMPERATURE—Average daily high, 75; average daily low 63.5.

RAINFALL — Average, 1.76 inches. Wettest December, 1929, with 9.03 inches; driest December, 1921 with 0.14 of an inch.

HURRICANES — Negligible danger from now until next summer.

FROST—Protection needed all month.

PLANTING—Make progressive plantings of short crops in vegetable and annual garden.

VEGETABLES — See September list. Farmers often plant watermelons in December but they will grow very little if the weather is unusually cool.

ANNUALS — See September list. Add sweet peas if you have space left in your garden, or a fence for them to run on.

INSECTS — If millipedes didn't get started in November they probably will be on the march in December. The blackish, hairy caterpillar-like creatures crawl very rapidly and crunch when stepped on.

DISEASES — Continue blight-preventing sprays on tomatoes. Dust roses monthly with a rose dust to prevent both insects and diseases. Repeat dusting following each rain.

'Villain' Here No Pistachio

If you have a pistachio tree or a peanut tree in your garden, beware.

For the pistachio doesn't grow in Florida and there is no such thing as a peanut.

The culprit which is known by these aliases is a poisonous tree which is more correctly known by another alias — the physic nut tree.

Botanists know it as Jatropha curcas.

Each fruit or capsule, a little over an inch long, yields three oily seeds. They are more drastic purgatives than castor oil, which comes from the castor bean tree, a relative of the physic nut.

The physic nut is not even a distant relative of the true Pistacia vera, which produces the pistachio nut of commerce.

The pistacia, like the olive, requires a dry climate. Both thrive in the southwestern part of the United States and in the likewise dry Middle East.

The physic nut tree is a rapid grower, and quickly makes a soft-wooded scrubby tree 12 to 15 feet high.

Upon maturing, the green fruits turn brown and the outer covering cracks, permitting the easy removal of the three seeds within with the aid of the thumb nails.

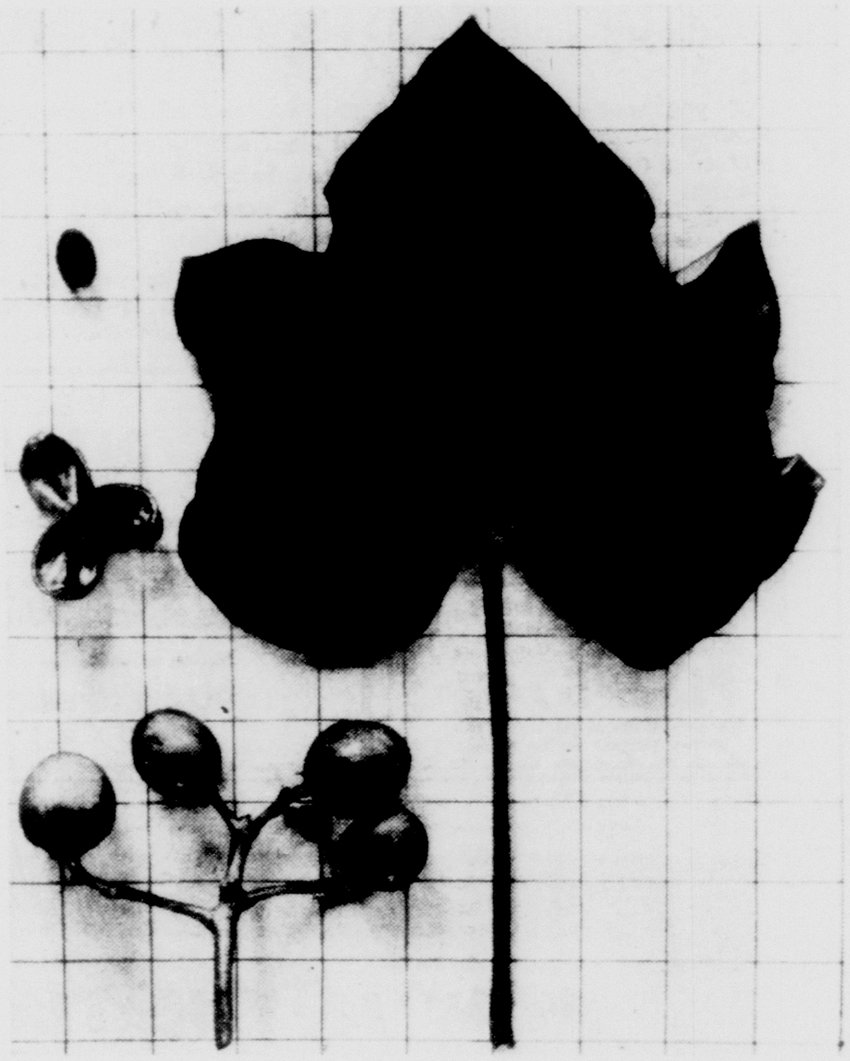
A few of the seeds will do no more than upset you, but to eat a quantity of them can put you in a hospital, or even in a morgue.

This is but one of a number of poisonous ornamentals that are cultivated in the Miami area, and which are too often mistaken for edible fruits or nuts.

Before sampling the fruits of the things grown in your garden, be sure you know what you are eating.

And, a further word of caution: Don't depend too much on your neighbors to tell you what is good and what is bad.

Because it is likely as not that if you are cultivating a physic nut tree, you got a cutting from your next-door neighbor.



Physic nut tree, alias 'pistachio' tree

Only Grafted Gardenias

Plant only grafted gardenias in South Florida, for two reasons. Grafted gardenias will live in limestone soil and will be free from nematodes.

Non-grafted gardenias will not thrive on their own root system. They must be kept potted in peat moss.

New Plastic Good Mulch

A relatively inexpensive black plastic, now available in some garden stores, can be used as a mulch in vegetable gardens.

It is especially suitable for such plants as tomatoes, peppers and strawberries.

Plants are set in holes or slits made in the plastic. Increases in yield have been reported as a result of the plastic.

It also prevents fruit from coming in contact with the soil and helps the gardener control seeds, besides preventing loss of soil moisture.

Lasting Longer

Cut flowers are said to last longer if a pinch of fertilizer is dissolved in the water in which the flower stems are placed.

Clear Beds Of Wireworm

When preparing plant beds or garden plots for vegetables or annuals, be sure to get the soil free of wireworms and cutworms and kill off night-feeding slugs that might destroy your newly set out plants.

Chlordane dust can be raked into the soil. It will control wireworms and cut worms.

A slug bait should be spread about the area a couple of nights before planting. It will catch the slugs and also some of the cutworms that might have escaped death by chlordane poisoning.

Mites Are Tiny But Herculean

Several kinds of mites attack ornamentals and fruit trees in South Florida, sometimes doing so much damage that plants drop their leaves.

Mites attack avocados, roses, hibiscus, jasmine, crotons, palms, citrus, most indoor plants, and even orchids.

Of the several kinds of mites the best known is the red spider, a mite that spins a web.

This red mite can be seen with a normal pair of young eyes, but there are other mites that require the help of a microscope.

The experienced gardener, however, quickly recognizes the signs left by mites, which damage plants by piercing their leaf surfaces and sucking on the juices.

Leaves become specked with tiny puncture dots. When a great many mites are present the leaves may develop a distinct rusty appearance.

Mites are in the spider and tick group of insects and many of them are readily killed by sulphur. However, some of the most damaging of mites aren't killed by sulphur, and a more potent miticide is required.

A number of improved miticides have been put on the market in recent years.

New ones can be expected to come out from time to time as improvements are discovered.

Mites are present in most gardens at all times, but they are likely to be much worse during dry weather than during wet weather.

Miticides can be purchased from garden stores. Follow directions carefully.

RED SPIDER MITES

Banyan Spreads

The most interesting of all rubber trees is the banyan, Ficus benghalensis. It makes a large tree, spreading out with the aid of aerial roots which attach themselves to the ground. Alexander is said to have camped his army under a banyan when he invated India.

Nemacides OK If Used Right

The new nemacides, chemicals which kill nematodes in the soil, are a great help to the South Florida gardener when used correctly.

Follow directions carefully. The materials may be used as a soil drench about the plants themselves, but certainly in no stronger solution than that recommended by the manufacturer.

So far only two nemacides have been offered on the market, Nemagon and VC-13. The latter has been used this summer as a chinch bug killer as well as for control of nematodes.

Its power as a chinch bug killer was discovered where it was applied to grass believed to be infested with nematodes.

Nematodes feed on the roots of susceptible plants. Most plants are attacked to some extent by these eel-like worms.

There are several kinds of nematodes, the most commonly known kind being the one which causes rootknot. Some feed at the tips of roots. They don't cause rootknot but do severe injury to plants nevertheless.

Earthworms Help Lawn

Earthworms do no harm to lawns.

Where they are abundant they keep your lawn top-dressed by depositing soil in the thatch as it accumulates. And they help to break down the humus that is covered by the soil they deposit.

But in areas where it is necessary to keep earthworms under control, as in golf greens and croquet courts, repeated applications of chlordane will get rid of them.

Use a Soluble

Always use a soluble fertilizer as a starter solution when setting out plants such as tomatoes and strawberries. Follow directions on the container.

Real Gone Lawn

Run-down lawn running you ragged? Give it the velvet touch! Top dress old lawns, prepare "patches" and new lawns with Baccto Peat—give soil the loam-like quality that grows velvety turf. Insist on Baccto Peat—the living soil conditioner!

Don't Take Chances

Keep dangerous insecticides and other chemicals out of the reach of children or where pets can come in contact with them.

A special "poison" locker is recommended, where chemicals can be kept locked.

But dogs and cats, and children, too, can get in trouble with insecticides after they have been applied.

The use of strong chemicals for control of insects in areas where children or pets may come in contact with them should be avoided.

Never "mix your own" insecticide for your pet. For instance, malathion is now used on cats and dogs.

But that, which you buy for spraying scale insects on plants might kill your animals if it is applied to them.

The correct strength of an insecticide is important. Most people have no idea what the "safe strength" is.

In general, if directions on labels are followed, most insecticides can be used without much danger.

But be sure to read that fine print on the label. It's as important as the fine print on a contract.

no matter where you live . . . you can have a RED LIVING FENCE like this Greetings from Red Robin Farms . . .

From this beautiful valley I ship thousands of Living Fences each year. My Red Robin is blooming month after month in thousands of homes (actually, close to one hundred thousand homes) in many climates, in many kinds of soil. They're beautifying just about every kind of home from small homes on city lots and larger country homes right up to million-dollar movie star estates.

But best of all, I think you'll find your Living Fence is a happy fence. Of the thousands of letters of appreciation I get each year, one I enjoy most is from an elderly woman in Oregon, who wrote that one of the things she likes best about the Red Robin Living Fence is that it makes friends of neighbors.

I'm so convinced that your home and my Red Robin Living Fence were meant for each other, I'm making you a very special offer: If you'll order now I'll send you extra plants for promptness. For each 10 plants you order I'll send an extra plant. For example if you order 50 plants (enough for 75 feet of Living Fence) I'll add 5 plants . . . enough for an additional 7½ feet at no added cost!

Thanks for letting me talk to you for these few moments!

Sincerely

Ben Ginden

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED ABOUT LIVING FENCE PLANTS:

Q. Does your living Fence need much trimming?

A. No. Trim the new growth back a few times to get thick, heavy growth. Then trimming once or twice a year will give you a neat hedge.

Q. How far apart should they be planted?

A. Plant 18" apart for landscape or garden use. For quick small-animal proofing plant 12" apart.

Q. Is it disease resistant?

A. And how. Many people don't spray them at all.

Q. Will it grow in the desert? The mountains?

A. Yes. In hot desert country (with irrigation), in mountain weather below zero, the Living Fence thrives.

Q. How much sun does it need?

A. Don't plant in dense shade as it should have at least 4 or 5 hours sun a day.

Q. Can I plant in fall? In winter? In spring?

A. Yes to all three.

Q. Is the Red Robin a new, untime-tested rose?

A. Far from it. Its botanical name is Gloire Des Rosomanes. It is one of the magnificent Bourbon roses and was introduced about 1825 by the great French hybridizer, Vibert. While other roses have come and gone, Red Robin by virtue of its superior qualities of growth and color has endured. It is generally classified as one of the ever-blooming Hybrid Chinas.

Q. Can I buy Red Robin anywhere else in the country?

A. No. Red Robin is grown in my own fields under my personal supervision and the name is copyrighted by me.

Living Fence

now protecting over 100,000 homes across the country!

IT'S BEAUTIFUL

Be the proud owner of America's most beautiful fence . . .

A living wall of lush green foliage covered with glorious richly scented magnificent Red Robin Roses (Gloire Des Rosomanes) for month after month after month. Many consider it one of the most beautiful fences that money can buy. Yet it is so tough, so hardy it thrives in every state in the union. Plant now . . . this summer you'll have a beautiful Living Fence exploding into full bloom month after month. In some areas Red Robin never stops blooming. Folks tell me they've picked up to a thousand deeply scented gloriously red blooms from a single Red Robin plant in one season! And these are the fabled Gloire Des Rosomanes roses with a rich damask fragrance from every glowing crimson bloom.

IT'S PERMANENT

Thrives in even the poorest soils

Thousands and thousands of my Red Robin Living Fences are in year round use all over America. Red Robin is adapted to a wide variety of soil and site conditions. It needs no support. Its strong deeply foliaged growth is upright, unlike the sprawling old-fashioned multiflora. It will grow as high as you like. You may have a low handsomely shaped ornamental hedge 3 or 4 feet high. You may prefer a higher hedge of 5 feet to keep children and pets in . . . and strangers out. Or you can enjoy a full six-foot living wall of lush green foliage bursting with hundreds of roses along every foot of this sturdy barrier. A full six-foot living fence will give your home the privacy of a country estate, shutting out noise, wind and intruders. Yet it is so beautiful your neighbors will enjoy it as much as you.

FAST GROWING

Up to 4 feet high in a few short months

Your Red Robin plants never see the inside of a hothouse. Each plant is field grown, hardy. Ruggedness is bred into every plant to make Red Robin thrive through hot dry summers, severe winters. My men plant the cuttings directly in my own fields under my supervision. When they are ready for shipment they are trimmed back to hold in all the strength and growing power of the sturdy plant. A specially developed packaging method delivers them to you fresh, moist, in perfect growing condition. Just plant them and watch them grow. In a few short months you'll have a vigorous trespass-proof fence, bursting with fragrant red roses. Forget the usual fence upkeep costs when you plant Red Robin. This friendly fence mends itself, repaints itself month after month with a fresh coat of green foliage and countless red blossoms.

PLANT NOW!

This is one of the best times of the year to plant your Living Fence. Here's why: your Red Robin plants start to grow almost at once and are soon growing like magic. Imagine this: they will be covered with fragrant red blossoms THIS SUMMER! Don't worry about late cold snaps or hot dry weather . . . Red Robin is so hardy it can withstand drought, extreme heat or below zero cold. If you plant Red Robin now the plants will burst into life almost before your eyes and will quickly become the beautiful and inexpensive fence you've been wishing for. To enjoy your Red Robin Living Fence this summer . . . use my FREE BONUS OFFER COUPON BELOW.

Preventive Action Best

Most fungicides control fungus diseases by acting as a preventive rather than as a cure.

Once a fungus has established itself well it is hard to kill. Late blight in the tomato is a good example. Blackspot in roses is another.

Sure, you can stop these diseases by repeated sprayings, but much damage may be done before the spreading fungus is killed.

Not all fungi can be seen with the unaided eye. Under the microscope their thread-like bodies are visible.

The threads, or mycelia, enter the plant tissue and kill it. But it is difficult to reach the active fungi threads with a fungicide and kill them.

Thus when it is recommended that tomatoes be sprayed every five days or roses dusted every week, the control of fungi is based mainly on prevention rather than cure.

Fungus spores alighting on fungicide-covered plants are killed before they have a chance to germinate and "dig in."

Label Plants for Convenience

If you make a hobby of gardening—of collecting plants, growing them and showing them off to your friends — it is a good idea to keep them labeled and also to keep a written record about your plants.

Of labels, several kinds are available and may be examined in garden stores. But whatever labels you buy, plastic or wood, none will last more than a few years.

Use India Ink to write names on labels. Let dry of own accord. Don't blot. India ink will last two to five years, depending on the surface of the label.

A record book also should be kept, in which the names of plants received are listed, along with their source, date of planting and location in the garden.

NU-IRON A Neutral Iron Compound Containing 30% Iron as metallic with approximately 50% of total Iron Content Chelated.

NU-IRON brings lush green beauty to your plants — protects against Chlorotic conditions and maintains luxurious growth of foliage and blossoms.

Most soils are deficient in available iron—Tennessee's NU-IRON corrects iron deficiencies in plants, restores them to healthy lush green beauty and stimulates healthy plant growth.

Easily applied in spray or dust form direct to the foliage—NU-IRON is safe to the foliage—has good adherence to foliage.

A BOULDER GARDEN built on the border of a swimming pool also has a waterfall which splashes into the pool. This kind of setting can be fitted into any garden where there is background and a pool. The pool can be a small ornamental pool for gold fish and a few water plants. In selecting plants for such built-up gardens, species should be used which can withstand drought, since it is difficult to keep such areas moist, unless some set up is arranged for automatic intermittent spray. Under such conditions tree ferns and other moisture-demanding lants can be grown.

Spraying Better Than Dusting

Of the two methods of insect control — spraying and dusting — spraying is the most effective.

However, if dusting is done often, and done well, it can be satisfactory for the control of both insects and diseases on some plants. Roses is an example.

Several general purpose rose dusts are now on the market which give good control of chewing insects and also sucking insects such as mites and aphids.

And these dusts also give control of fungus diseases such as black spot and mildew.

Dusts must be applied regularly, about once a week in the case of roses. Apply while the plants are dry, but be sure that the dust is applied on the underside as well as on the upperside of leaves.

Spraying is usually best for the control of scale insects. This is especially true where the insects are mature and are well encased in their waxy shells.

A mixture of malathion and oil emulsion spray may be necessary to overcome their resistence.

Don't Bruise Roots

Be extremely careful when cultivating close to annual or vegetable plants. Roots often grow close to the surface and are likely to be injured by cultivation.

Roots of the calendula, for instance, may grow within half an inch of the surface. To hoe around them or scratch around them with a rake or handtool is asking for trouble.

When the roots of a plant are severely damaged the growth of the plant itself is affected.

Use of mulch may help to solve the problem of cultivation. Black plastic film now available in some garden stores can be used as effective mulching material.

Green Raises Home Value

By ROBERT T. VAN TRESS

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — The reasons for, and benefits from, a suitable landscaping program for the home, are many and apparent. It is a commonly accepted axiom that "it's not a home until it's planted."

A recent survey of real estate operators showed that better than 98 per cent of a large number questioned, felt that good planting around the home added generously to its resale value.

Their opinion of the percentage of increase in value varied from 7½ per cent to 50 per cent.

Truly beautiful landscaping is not created by hastily buying a few shrubs and trees and placing them just anywhere.

Every plant should be chosen for its particular suitability to location and purpose, and every part of the planting should so "tie into" and blend with each other that, as years go by, the effect is a useful harmonious picture with something of interest for every month of the year.

* * *

MOST LANDSCAPE developments divide naturally into three or less definite areas:

1.—The public area.
2.—The service area.
3.—The private area.

The public area is usually the front lawn and parkway. It seems to belong more to the passerby than to its owner.

It usually consists of a foundation planting by the house and some lawn trees. Frequently there will be front corner plantings and even low hedges or informal borders, if space permits, and if such an arrangement fits in with adjoining properties.

The service area comprises the driveway and garage, clothesdrying space, vegetable or fruit garden, and a place for compost piles and refuse cans. This area is usually screened from the public and from other parts of the home grounds by various plantings.

The private area, commonly called the outdoor living room, is the owner's own private domain.

It should give reasonable screening from the outsider's eyes, so that it becomes a place for peaceful relaxation and play, apart from the rest of the world.

Pineapples Need Care

If your pineapple plants refuse to grow, although you water and fertilize them, suspect mealybugs or nematodes. Mealybugs hide near the base of the plants. Control them by spraying them with malathion.

Nematodes can be controlled by drenching the soil with one of the new nemacides now being sold by garden stores.

Ceylon Peach

It's a Peach!

Produce a good tree if you expect your Ceylon peach tree to produce good crops for you.

It's a bit late to help much if your tree already has bloomed and set a few scrawny fruit before you get around to fertilizing.

Fertilizing may help some at this time, but most important are the applications that are made after the crop has been harvested — when you are trying to grow a strong tree for next year's crop.

There is only one dependable variety of peach for South Florida, the Ceylon.

It is a small, clear-seed fruit, but colorful and very tasty. The tree is well worth the trouble of cultivating.

As with other trees, the Ceylon peach tree requires fertilizer. It should be in good condition at the time it sets flowers in spring, and it should not be permitted to "run down" in the process of bearing a heavy crop.

A rule-of-thumb fertilizer recommendation might go like this:

1—A FAIRLY heavy application of general purpose fertilizer in the summer as soon as the crop has been harvested.

2—A LIGHT application in November to carry the tree over the winter.

3—A LIGHT application in late winter so that the tree won't be caught short of nitrogen at flowering time.

4—A LIGHT application after the fruit is set, especially if there is a very large crop.

In limestone soil a peach tree should have at least one application a year of nutritional spray containing copper, zinc and manganese. One application can be made in the early summer, after the crop has been harvested, and another should be made in January.

Make the January application even if the leaves have been shed. The branches will absorb enough of the chemicals to do a lot of good.

Mulching will help to keep down nematodes which do attack the roots of the Ceylon peach to some extent.

When the spring is dry, as it often is, watering should be done to help size up the fruit. But too much watering can be done. A thorough watering once every two weeks is sufficient.

It is possible to produce rather large peaches by watering every other day or so, but the fruit tends to lack good flavor.

Briefly

Leafminers, which make tunnels in the leaves of tomatoes and some other plants, can be controlled by spraying with diazinon. Follow directions on the container.

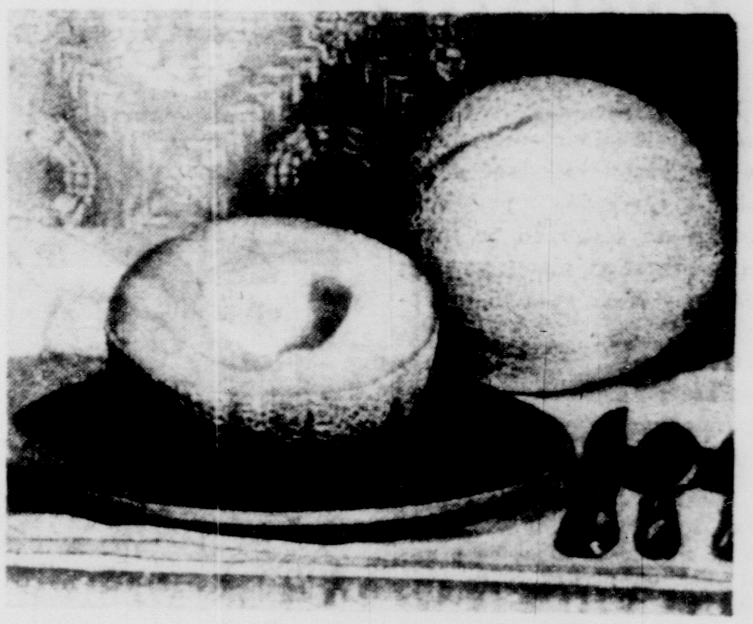
Hibiscus, okra and cotton are in the same plant family. Haven't you noticed the similarity in their flowers?

The pongam makes a sturdy, hurricane resistant shade tree.

There's no special time of the year to fertilize a hungry plant. When a plant is hungry, fertilize it.

Para grass can be killed by spraying it with dalapon. Dalapon also will kill other grasses, so be careful.

Mango trees have been known to produce as many as five or six crops of fruit a year, but there is no variety which does so every year.



YOU CAN GROW cantaloupes in South Florida, provided you are willing to give them the protection from insects and diseases that they need. The one shown here is Gold Cup 55 Cantaloupe, developed by the Ferry-Morse Seed Co. It is resistant to mildew, a disease that gives Florida cantaloupe growers a great deal of trouble.

Pruning? Better Know What You're Doing

PRUNING TIME, HON?

PRUNING — How it's done and why it's done — seems to be the least understood of all other gardening activities. And there seems to be more misinformation about pruning than any other gardening subject.

One person believes it is necessary to prune citrus, for instance, to force it to bloom and to fruit.

Another gardener thinks that if a "tree" is supposed to be a tree, it must be pruned like one; that if a fruit tree has low branches and grows like a shrub it won't produce fruit.

And still another believes that if a plant is pruned at any time of year except the right time — the very right week or day of the year — it will surely die.

On the other hand, there is the gardener who will transplant a fairly large bush without removing a single leaf, although most of the roots are destroyed in the digging and moving.

* * *

FROM THE STANDPOINT of fruit production, it should be remembered that trees got along some how without pruning long before man came along to cultivate them.

Not that pruning isn't a necessary thing in both gardening and grove care. It's something that has to be done regularly, but the person doing pruning should know why.

Pruning is done primarily to control the growth of plants — to shape them, to remove awkward growth, to keep plants from growing out of control and to remove dead or diseased wood.

For instance, a mango tree should be carefully trained in its young stage to produce four or five very stout branches rather than to develop into a giant slingshot handle with only two main branches.

A "Y" forked tree is a weak tree and eventually is likely to split in a storm.

A rubber tree might need to be pruned once a year to prevent it from getting too large. For it must be remembered that many of the rubber trees now being planted, such as the common Ficus benjamina, eventually grow into tremendously large trees.

With a little pruning each year it is possible to prevent these trees from becoming so large, and thus costing a great deal of money to cut back after they have grown into huge, overpowering specimens.

* * *

CITRUS NEEDS to be pruned only for shaping and removal of dead, weak and awkward growth. Watersprouts, or heavy suckers, also should be removed as they form. These appear at the base of the tree or along lower branches.

Growth on citrus should be fairly evenly distributed over the tree.

In some instances where citrus trees have grown into rather awkward specimens, the shape can be improved by cutting the larger branches back half way or more. This is known as "hatracking." This method results in a compact, rounded tree.

There is a tendency to encourage heavy growth in the top of fruit trees and little growth lower down, near the ground. Citrus trees look their best when the foliage extends from ground level. The tree is allowed to grow more like a shrub than a "tree."

Another tree that develops a striking form when permitted to develop its branches all the way down to the ground is the lychee.

And normally shrubby plants such as the Barbados cherry, Surinam cherry, and many ornamental shrubs, should be encouraged to develop a low, sprawling form.

* * *

THERE ARE situations, of course, where it is necessary to force the development of tall trees or "shrubs" with the main spread above head-height rather than near the ground level.

If a tree is planted for shade, for instance, this kind of training is necessary.

And, of course, you wouldn't want to grow a large tree such as a mango or a ficus with all the branches lying on the ground. These are trees — large trees — and should be grown as such.

Smaller trees or shrubs that are to be encouraged to develop low, compact growth should be planted along borders of the garden rather than spotted about in the center.

Treat Seeds

Treat seeds with a seed disinfectant before planting. You can buy seed treating compounds from garden supply stores.

Cut 'Em Down

To let a dead tree stand in your yard is dangerous. It is likely to blow down and bang a hole in your house — and maybe in your head.

Good Tools Help

Several kinds of pruning tools may be needed in the garden tool collection.

A small pair of hand clippers is necessary for minor trimming, such as for the removal of small branches or twigs.

After shrubs and trees attain a size where branches cannot be easily reached with the above tools, it is necessary to have an extension pruner.

With this kind of pruner it is possible to cut off branches 15 feet above the ground.

The extension pruners come with lopping blade, which is operated with the aid of a strong line. But some come in combination with saw and lopper.

With the saw it is possible to sever branches which are too large to be cut with the lopper.

Books Reveal Many Secrets of Gardening

BOOKS ARE the backbone of good gardening, because one book may be based on a hundred people's experiences. But the ideal all-inclusive book on tropical gardening hasn't been written—nor will it be any time soon.

For the ideal book would illustrate in color every plant in the tropical garden, including weeds; and there would be information with each picture so that the gardener could quickly find the answer to any problem that might come up.

Such a work would equal in size all the editions of the Encyclopedia Britannica ever published, stacked on top of one another, and would cost the gardner more than his house and lot.

But there are many excellent books on tropical gardening, although most of them were published in other parts of the world, and the home owner who wants to know a lot about the subject will do well to build a small library on tropical gardening and horticulture.

Another source of helpful information is the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Florida, Gainesville. The extension service distributes thousands of bulletins each year on a variety of gardening subjects, and individual copies are free to Florida residents.

Bulletins have been published on tropical vines, ground covers, lawns, palms, fruit trees, annuals and vegetable growing.

Copies may be seen at the office of the county agricultural agent in each county. In Miami the office is 2690 NW Seventh Avenue.

FRUITS FOR SOUTHERN FLORIDA, by David Sturrock. This is a new one, released at the end of 1958. It not only has valuable information about the growing of tropical fruits, but it also contains much information about Florida soils and climate and how to solve horticultural problems the average gardener has to face.

MONTH BY MONTH, by Nixon Smiley. (University of Miami Press). The Herald farm and garden editor and director of the Fairchild Tropical Garden tells what to do in the garden each month. You will know South Florida after reading this book, whether you are a gardener or not.

THE MODERN TROPICAL GARDEN, by Kuck and Tongg. One of the very best books available on the tropical garden, written by two Hawaiian residents. Fits South Florida conditions.

WHAT FLOWERING TREE IS THAT? by Edwin A. Menninger. The most useful book of its kind for identifying Florida's tropical flowering trees. Well illustrated.

TROPICAL PLANTING AND GARDENING, by MacMillan. This is an old book containing gardening information of little value to South Florida. But it is one of the best books available where one wants a volume that illustrates and describes the common plants of the tropics.

THE WORLD GROWS ROUND MY DOOR, by David Fairchild. This book, in which Dr. Fairchild tells about the plants he collected throughout the world and planted about the Kampong, his home in Coconut Grove, has led many a person into the hobby of collecting and growing plants.

COMMON EXOTIC TREES OF SOUTH FLORIDA, by Mary F. Barrett. Describes South Florida's introduced trees and gives the locations of many of them so that the reader may see them for himself.

THE NATIVE TREES OF FLORIDA, by West and Arnold. This University of Florida Press publication is now the standard reference for the identification of Florida's native trees.

PLANTS INDOORS, by Noble and Merkel. A guide to the selection, use and care of indoor plants. Thoroughly illustrated.

* * *

THERE ARE many additional titles, including publications from India, Hawaii, Australia, Africa and the Philippines, all in English, of course.

Some of these foreign publications are much better illustrated than can be found in this country, because of the lower costs, no doubt. Books in foreign languages also are available.

Most of the books listed above can be found in any book store. But anyone wishing to look for additional titles will do well to visit the Montgomery Library at the Fairchild Tropical Garden, 10901 Old Cutler Road.

The library has one of the best collections of books on tropical horticulture and botany that is to be found in Florida.

In Live Spot

There's no need to check the dead areas in your St. Augustine grass for chinch bugs. The place to look for them is in the green grass surrounding the dead areas.

Kill Caterpillars

Oleander caterpillars can be killed by spraying the plants with any of a multitude of insecticides, including DDT, arsenate of lead, chlordane, lindane, toxaphene, to mention a few common chemicals.

Biggest Boon Ever -
To Bermuda or St. Augustine Lawns!

New TAT-42

KILLS WEEDS BEFORE THEY GROW

Read how you can keep established or newly sprigged lawns
FREE OF WEEDS for MONTHS

One spraying with amazing new chemical discovery kills germinating weeds for 3 months on
Bermuda and St. Augustine Lawns.

At last! An amazing easy-to-use chemical formulation that KILLS the SEEDS of annual WEEDS as they germinate! Specially prepared to protect Bermuda and St. Augustine grass, permits your lawn to grow thick and luxurious before the hot summer arrives.

TAT-42 is the latest news from Linck's Lawn Laboratories, serving the home-owner and horticulturist with dependable lawn products for over 25 years. TAT-42 contains a chemical ingredient tested and proven for three years on some of the largest agricultural lands in the country. A chemical that controlled the growth of annual weeds and weedy pest grasses so well that it virtually revolutionized certain crop cultivation methods. A "wonder chemical" that actually eliminated weeding operations for many growers.

What This Discovery Means To You

And now this truly amazing chemical compound has been formulated to perform the same miracle on your lawn! Kills every seed of an obnoxious annual weed or weed-like grass it touches, as the seed attempts to grow. Protects your lawn grasses from infiltration of undesirable infestations. Allows your good grass to get ALL the benefit of fertilization and watering. Hastens a luxurious, thick-knit carpet of green during the Spring growing season.

How TAT-42 Works

IF YOU HAVE AN ESTABLISHED LAWN of Bermuda or St. Augustine grass, you may never see an annual weed in your lawn again! Spray with TAT-42 now, before weed seeds germinate, and prevent them from getting a foothold. Applied as directed, one treatment of TAT-42 remains working in the soil for months, killing weeds before they become a problem.

IF YOU ARE PLANTING A NEW LAWN with sprigs, stolons or plugs of Bermuda or St. Augustine grass, you may have a fully grown lawn in a fraction of the time, with a fraction of the work it would normally take! After planting the grass, spray your lawn with TAT-42. For months, TAT-42 attacks and destroys weed seeds as they start to grow, protects your newly planted grass during the critical period. Now when you water and fertilize your lawn you don't feed weeds, your grass gets all the nourishment. Free of competition your new lawn grows into a thick, healthy turf sooner than you ever thought possible.

TAT-42 Kills All These Weeds
Before They Grow

Crowsfoot, commonly called silver crab, Crabgrass, Dallis Grass, Pursley, Ragweed, Goosegrass, Knotweed, Witchweed, Chickweed, Purslane, Spurge and many other broadleaf weeds and undesirable weedy grasses may now be prevented from ever appearing in your lawn again.

You can use TAT-42 to help eliminate overseeded rye grass, too. Apply it during the Spring when Bermuda starts to grow. Frequent watering assures complete control by bringing the chemical down to the roots of the rye. When used for this purpose in the Spring, TAT-42 will not interfere with germination if rye grass is seeded in the Fall. Poa annua may be controlled the same way. When top dressing, make sure you don't introduce new weeds. After top dressing spray with TAT-42 to protect your lawn.

Just released to the public, TAT-42 is being distributed as fast as possible. Don't take chances with your lawn this year. Spray TAT-42 NOW and get rid of the annual weed problem BEFORE it starts.

Fertiliezr Numbers Tell You the Content

When using fertilizer in your garden, it is helpful to know what's "in the bag."

New gardeners, stinking up their fingers with fertilizer for the first time, usually are confused over such terms and "4-7-5" and 6-6-6," and they don't know the first thing about the meaning of "high nitrogen-low potash" fertilizer and things.

Let's start out and explain the figures.

A 4-7-5 fertilizer is a mixture containing 4 pct. nitrogen, 7 pct. phosphorus and 5 pct. potash. A 6-6-6 mixture is one which contains equal amounts of the three plant foods.

In a 100-pound bag of 6-6-6 the manufacturer guarantees the bag to contain 18 pounds of fertilizer elements. What is the rest of the 82 pounds in the bag?

Well, those 18 pounds of active ingredients aren't pure chemicals. They are in chemical compounds, such as ammonium sulphate which is about 20 per cent nitrogen, 23 per cent sulphur, and 57 per cent of "other" materials. To have one per cent of nitrogen in 100 pounds of fertilizer five pounds of ammonium sulphate is required.

But all nitrogen doesn't come from ammonium sulphate. This is a relatively inexpensive source, but it is quickly leached out of the soil.

Thus only part of the nitrogen in a bag of high quality fertilizer comes from an inorganic source. The rest comes from organic sources, such as tankage and sludge. And, since organic materials have but a small percentage of nitrogen, more than half of the fertilizer content is organic.

A tag on the fertilizer bag, required by the State Department of Agriculture, lists the materials in a fertilizer bag.

Phosphate ordinarily is listed as phosphoric acid, derived from superphosphate. Potash may be listed under the names of sulphate of potash, muriate of potash and sulphate of potash magnesia.

Thus, it is easy to see if your bag of 100 pounds of fertilizer contains much more than 18 pounds of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Also present are sulphur and magnesium and rather large quantities, and both are required by plants. And there also will be many "impurities" which plants require, such as copper, zinc and manganese.

Hibiscus Care

Hibiscus plants may be killed or severely damaged by over-watering. Keeping them excessively wet may cause the leaves to turn yellow and drop and the roots to die.

Parks Offer Live Examples for Newcomer

GETTING GOOD information about gardening is a real problem to the newcomer here, and to whom the plants, the soil and the climate are strange.

Books and bulletins offer much help. But reading about tropical gardening is not enough. One must see the plants and know the soil personally.

And, too, one must have personal experiences with the plants, the soil and the climate.

This takes time, that's true. But the more the gardener learns from books and from seeing plants grow in other gardens and in plant collections.

* * *

BELOW IS a list of gardens and parks in Dade County that the newcomer will do well to visit, not once but many times, in an effort to learn the tropical ornamentals and fruit trees that can be grown in this area. There is no admission charge. Visitors must NOT pick fruit or flowers.

FAIRCHILD TROPICAL GARDEN — At 10901 Old Cutler Road. Here are collections of palms, flowering trees, shrubbery and ground covers, planted according to the best landscape design. Plants are labeled. Open daily from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

GIFFORD ARBORETUM — At the University of Miami botany department. A collection of ornamental trees and shrubs commonly grown in South Florida. Plants are labeled.

MATHESON HAMMOCK — On Old Cutler Road, at turnoff to Matheson Hammock Beach. A natural jungle of native Florida and Caribbean trees. Offers the newcomer an opportunity to learn about the nature of plant growth in Florida. Several trails have been cut through the hammock.

MORNINGSIDE PARK — At 850 NE 55th Terrace. Has good collection of hibiscus.

REDLAND FRUIT AND SPICE PARK — At Coconut Palm Drive and Redland Road, in south Dade County. Take U.S. Highway No. 1 to Princeton and turn west on Coconut Palm Drive. Follow Coconut Palm Drive to Redland Road, where Fruit and Spice Park is located.

SIMPSON PARK — At South Miami Avenue and 15th Road. This is an eight-acre section of old Brickell Hammock which once extended from Miami River to Coconut Grove. An excellent collection of native trees in a superb setting.

SUBTROPICAL EXPERIMENT STATION — On Waldin Drive, one-fourth mile west of Redland Road in south Dade County. Has best collection of tropical fruits in country, and one of best collections in western hemisphere. In addition to excellent fruit collection,, station has an arboretum which contains several hundred species of palms, trees and shrubs. Plants bear labels.

U.S. PLANT INTRODUCTION GARDEN — On Red Road three miles south of South Miami. Has representative collection of trees which the garden has introduced from other parts of the tropics during the past 30 years. The trees are not labeled.

LEARN THE PLANTS of the tropics if you hope to be a topnotch gardener. The plants you see in the tropics of the world —in Singapore, Manila, Honolulu or Nassau — generally are the same plants that you can grow in your garden in Miami. This attractive garden is in Nassau, but the plants are common plants that are available in South Florida nurseries. It takes time — and know-how— to create and to develop such gardens as this one. You need to know both plants and good horticulture to do as well yourself.

CATTLEYA ORCHID

Striking Species Thrives Outdoors on Tree Branches in South Florida

Do the Job Correctly

POTS AND HANGING baskets and blocks of fern tree are fine for growing orchids, but if you have a live oak, or other trees that don't produce a solid shadow, you can grow fine orchids on them.

The live oak is looked upon as the finest of all trees for growing orchids. But citrus trees, pandanus trees, even palms and pines, are all suitable for supporting orchids on their trunks and branches under certain conditions.

If you're in doubt, check with the people who sell orchids—who sold your orchids to you. Most certainly we wouldn't recommend that you take a $25 hybrid and stick it on a tree.

But there are many species and varieties of orchids, inexpensive fellows, that might be used.

There is a problem. They must be watered, fertilized and kept clean of insects.

A regular schedule should be followed.

* * *

THE IDEAL SETUP for growing orchids in trees is to have a sprinkler system installed in the tree, with a valve on the ground where the system can be cut on. A few minutes of sprinkling each morning is usually sufficient.

Plastic pipe can be used to carry water up the tree and out on the branches to the sprinklers. If the pipe seems unsightly, plant philodendrons at the base of the tree and let them grow up the trunk and hide the pipe.

Just don't let the philodendrons "get away" and climb over your orchid plants.

If the sprinkler system is set up so that soluble fertilizer can be fed through it you will find it easier to keep the orchids fertilized.

* * *

MANY BROMELIADS also can be grown on trees, and their presence in an orchid tree provides contrast in foliage and in flowers.

When attaching orchids to tree branches, the job must be done well, so that the plants will not be moved about by the wind.

Once they become well established, with a network of roots developed about the trunk or branch, then the material used to attach them may be removed—if this is desirable.

In most instances orchids are attached with the aid of galvanized nails and wire, or with nails and plastic screening.

Where one doesn't want to use nails, tie the orchid plants on the branches with the aid of thin strips of plastic screen.

Sometimes it is helpful to use a little osmunda fern root about the plant, but a problem may be created when roots grow into this material, and then it decays, leaving the roots floating in the air.

It is helpful to see how others apply orchids to trees before doing it yourself. Many commercial orchid growers have such set ups, and a study of the methods used may prevent the cultivation of mistakes.

All Trees Shed

There is no such thing as a tree that never sheds its leaves.

Check Insects Closely

Do you keep the insects off your orchid plants?

A lot of beginners make the mistake of learning everything else about orchid care before they learn how to keep insects under control.

Yet, insects can be so devastating that this is one of the first things that should be learned—insect control.

Orchids are especially a target for scale insects and mites.

They should be continually watched and sprayed with malathion and miticides when insects are present, or when their presence is suspected.

Instead of just "dropping in" somewhere and buying a batch of orchid insecticides, you'd better go to an orchid place—where they grow orchids, sell orchids and orchid supplies, and where they can give you minute directions for maintaining your collection.

Only 1 Banyan

Although many rubber trees are referred to as banyans because of their habit of growing aerial roots, the true banyan is Ficus benghalensis.

CHORISIA

This Brazilian Tree Produces Masses of Colorful Rose-Pink Bloom in yard of Coconut Grove Residence

Real Winter Showoff

ONE OF THE SHOWIEST winter blooming trees which South America has given to Florida is a Chorisia which came from the state of Sao Paulo in 1930.

The original is located at 3024 McDonald St., Coconut Grove, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hatcher.

Mrs. Hatcher brought seeds of the Chorisia from Brazil where she had spent several months in the town of Mirasol.

Now there are many kinds of the Chorisia, all of which appear to be one species—Chorisia speciosa. But the flowers of these trees vary tremendously.

The bloom of some are so insignificant that the trees are not worth cultivating.

But not the Hatcher Chorisia. It is by far the most outstanding Chorisia so far introduced to Florida.

Mrs. Hatcher saw the trees growing wild in Brazil. She obtained seeds and brought them back with her to Orlando, where she then lived, and planted them.

All of the seeds appeared to come up, but a freeze came along and killed all of them to the ground.

Only one plant recovered. When the Hatchers moved to Miami they brought the plant with them and planted it in their yard.

Since then the tree has become fairly widely distributed. However, propagation is not easy from cuttings or by airlayering, and Hatcher had to learn how to graft and to bud the tree in order to increase it.

Now he buds it on Chorisia seedlings. Although the seedlings themselves will bloom in time, the budded ones come into production sooner and are more dependable.

The Chorisia eventually makes a rather large tree, getting to be more than 50 feet tall in South America. The one on McDonald Street has reached about 30 feet.

Tin on Tree Stops Rats

Keep rats out of avocado trees by encircling the trunks with tin. The tin should be 18 inches wide to prevent the rats from jumping over it.

Tie the tin with a piece of wire. Don't use nails. Paint the tin the color of the bark, if you don't like the bright color of the tin.

Planting a Tree? Know Where to Put It

THE SOUTH SIDE of a house is not necessarily the best site to plant shade trees, and for two reasons.

First, in the summer the sun is directly overhead at noon and does not hit the south side of the house anyway.

Plant your shade trees on the east or west sides — or both.

Secondly, the sun is far south in winter and falls on the south side of the house much of the day. This is desirable, since the rays of the sun are pleasantly warm and comforting at this time of year.

Thus trees planted on the south side give small shade benefit to the house in summer and cast shade on the house in winter when shade is not desirable.

The west side is by far the most important for shade tree planting. Daytime breezes in Florida quickly cool the east side of the house after the sun passes overhead, but the wind dies down in the evening and thus the west walls which have been exposed to the sun's rays all the afternoon cool slowly.

Where west sun rays enter through windows or penetrate into patios, the collecting heat of the afternoon is held for hours when there is no evening breezes to disperse it.

But if the west walls and windows are protected by shade trees one should expect the indoors to be cooler in the evening.

Wide eaves also protect a house from the sun.

There is one fault in the building of many homes, however, that creates a serious heat problem in summer which is difficult to overcome with the help of shade trees — unless they are immense in size and cover the entire hourse.

This fault is the failure of builders to use sufficient insulation when putting on roofs.

Unless insulation is used the heat of the sun penetrates the roof and enters the house, collects in the ceiling and hangs there long after the sun goes down.

A poorly insulated house tends to be hot in summer and cold in winter. And a poorly insulated house is cost-

Pampering of Hibiscus Can Lead To Trouble; Treat Them Rightly

If you're having trouble with your hibiscus you may be pampering the plants too much.

Daily watering, weekly fertilizing, spraying every time the moon changes — these things may spell trouble.

An established hibiscus — one which has been in the ground for several months and has had time to develop a good root system—just doesn't require all the fuss and bother that people give these plants.

Pushing plants with water and fertilizer encourages rapid and succulent growth.

During periods of high humidity perfect conditions exist for the invasion by fungus. Leaves begin to show spots, to become yellow, and to drop. Even soft twings are damaged by the fungus.

The virulent fungus is rapidly transmitted to nearby healthy plants.

This fungus has come to be known as "black splash." We have seen it go through a neighborhood in a week.

When the disease hits, the recommended practice is to cut plants back to mature growth, to spray with a copper fungicide, and to fertilize to encourage recovery of growth.

Over-watering appears to be the biggest problem in encouraging the black spot disease.

The hibiscus requires much less water than most folks seem to think. When well established plants are kept a bit on the dry side they are more likely to bloom than plants which are kept saturated and kept in new growth all the time by repeated applications of fertilizer and by daily watering.

Fertilize, yes, but do it sparingly.

Every time there is a heavy bloom, then a light application of fertilizer might be recommended.

But watering once every week is nearly always enough, and very often the space between watering time may be extended for two weeks or more, even in dry weather.

We've seen hibiscus plants that never received water after they had become established, and they were healthy and yielded regular crops of bloom. This probably is too drastic a way to maintain a hibiscus shrub. Probably the best is a balance between the extremes of too much and not at all.

Iron Lacking

The light yellow color of centipede or St. Augustine grass, which is often seen where there is over-fertilization or in the vicinity of septic tank drains, can be corrected by spraying with iron. Follow directions on the container and do not let spray come in contact with walks or walls as staining will result.

Pests Must Be Hit EARLY, Hard and Frequently

LEARN HOW to identify the insects that attack your fruit trees and ornamentals, if you wish to keep your plants in healthy condition and free of pests.

Many gardeners make the mistake of waiting until insects have caused severe damage to plants before doing anything about it.

They aren't aware of the presence of insects until they see the damage.

Then it's often too late to do much good, and one must depend mainly on the affected plant to grow a new crop of foliage.

But if insects can be recognized as soon as they get on your plants; if you will look for them each time you walk through your garden; if you will get out the insecticides and do something right then, you will have little trouble with pests.

Caterpillars, grasshoppers, and such large insects are often spotted quickly.

But aphids, scale insects and whitefly are more difficult to spot until they have built up large colonies.

Malathion is one of the top all-round insecticides. But it may be more effective against scales when it is mixed with oil emulsion.

This combination can be bought ready for use. Just read the directions for mixing, follow them and spray.

* * *

YEAR ROUND diligence on the part of the gardener is necessary if scale insects are to be kept under good control.

Best time to kill scales is while they are young. After they are mature and have developed shell-like coverings over their bodies they are hard to kill. Very often extensive damage already has been done before the gardener notices the presence of scale insects.

The kind of sprayer also is to be considered. Pressure type sprayers are likely to give better results than are hose-attachment sprayers. The latter are very useful for applying insecticides to lawns.

There are several kinds of scale insects. They are especially bad on citrus, but may attack almost any ornamental or fruit tree. More often they are found on the undersides of leaves, especially in their early stages. They are flat objects and may be easily removed with the aid of a thumb nail.

If the scale is dry it may be dead. But if a fluid oozes out from under the scale after a slight pressure on it from a thumb nail, it is alive.

Scale insects are a major cause of sooty mold that accumulates on leaves of many plants. The scales excrete a sweet material which drops onto the upper surfaces of the leaves below and spreads out on them in a thin film.

If the spores of a black fungus alight on the surface it begins to grow in the sweet material and soon is spread to other leaves where the material has accumulated.

Scale control also controls sooty mold.

Help Tomato

A hormone is available in garden stores which if applied to tomato blossoms will help to set them. The hormone is especially valuable if the weather is extremely hot when blooming starts.

FOR PROPER PLANTING and CARE . . . DO AS FOLLOWS

1. Dig hole for plant 18 inches wider than plant ball.
2. Mix soil with sheepmanure.
3. Do not pack soil around plant, to firm put water in well. This will eliminate the hardening of soil around the roots preventing a good root growth.
4. After plants have been planted for 3 weeks start feed properly:
5. Trim and prune your trees after fruiting period.

A. Use a good 6-6-6 fertilizer with organic to promote a good growth if tree is not blooming or in fruit.
B. Feed a 2-8-10 fertilizer to trees before blooming and fruiting time of trees.
C. Use a 4-8-8 fertilizer after fruit has started to develop.
D. Supplement your feeding with a good manure.

We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1949 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.

NICHOL

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Fender-to-Fender, Miami Drivers Sweat Out a National Ailment
. . . hardening of the traffic arteries: cars, cars everywhere and barely a bus in sight

While We Strangle in Traffic

Transit Systems Are Dying All Over U.S.--Ours Next?

Miami is not alone in its fight to keep from being strangled in its own traffic.

Cities all over the U.S. are struggling with the acute problem of moving people to and from their jobs on traffic-clogged streets.

What's wrong? And what's the solution?

This is the first of five articles on the problem that grows worse daily.

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.

By JOSEPH N. BELL
Herald Special Writer

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the United States.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the United States. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Lemus Pays A Visit to West Point

WEST POINT, N. Y. —(AP)— President Jose Maria Lemus of El Salvador visited the U. S. Military Academy Saturday and made the traditional—and popular—request to forgive cadets their sins.

In a speech he told some 2,400 cadets and officials that "only force based on morality can create an atmosphere favorable to progress, liberty and the happy and orderly living together of the human race."

A career army officer with service in the U.S. prior to becoming president in 1956, Lemus said. "I am filled with happiness at the vision of youth that has chosen military instruction as the goal of a deeply-revered vocation. The moral bond which unites military men makes itself felt here."

As a visiting head of state he has authority to request amnesty for cadets with accumulated hours of punishment which they walk off with rifles in their spare time.

Lex Barker, 41, Weds Girl, 22

LUCERNE, Switzerland —(AP) — Lex Barker, onetime movie Tarzan and a former husband of Lana Turner, was married in a civil ceremony Saturday to 22-year-old Swiss Drama Student Irene Labhart.

It was the fourth marriage for 41-year-old Barker, the first for Miss Labhart. They met while working on a film in Rome. Immediately after the ceremony in Lucerne City Hall, they left for a honeymoon in Italy.

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100 million dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers—but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists"—the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Easy to Identify

SIENA, Italy — (UPI) — Authorities had no trouble identifying the automobile stolen by four youths in nearby Pistoia. The car belonged to Pistoia's police chief.

Outriggers Snare Help From the Sky

'The Best Shot I've Ever Seen' 'Chutes Distressed Yacht Home

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A pump, dropped by parachute from an airplane 300 feet up, landed neatly on the outrigger of a 52-foot yacht, 17 miles off Fort Lauderdale Saturday. The pump enabled the crew to keep the boat afloat until the Coast Guard took the craft in tow.

Lt. Cmdr. Russell Lentner of the Coast Guard base at Dinner Key piloted the plane which dropped the pump and a gasoline motor to the cabin cruiser, Mister Jim.

Capt. Edward Twist, 52, and his son, Donald, 24, were the only persons aboard the yacht, which developed trouble on its way to Bimini. They live at 4580 SW 34th Ter., Fort Lauderdale.

"The chute hit right on the outrigger," said Donald Twist. "It was the best shot I've ever seen."

The Twists sent a distress signal at 8:30 a.m. The line which discharges water from the engines cooling system broke. The engine room was about three quarters full of water before the pump was dropped.

"We spotted them about 9:13 a.m.," Cmdr. Lentner said. "I saw the two of them up top with life jackets on. They had a raft over the side."

Edward Twist said he and his son left Port Everglades at 6:15 a.m. to pick up the yacht's owner in Bimini for a fishing trip. The owner is Andy Griffith of Orangeburg, S.C.

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $350,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind. — (AP) — A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed on Hutchison.

6 Nabbed As Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.

McLANEY

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Antonio Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitimate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonio Prieto.

No address was given by the Cubans for the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

Their boat carries the same name, "Nacional de Cuba."

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

Oxygen Too Late: Tot Dies

Boy Taken From Canal

A two-year-old boy, found struggling in a canal near his home, died Saturday before an ambulance rushing oxygen could reach him.

He was Mark McLendon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. McLendon, 5389 SW 92nd Ave.

"All he needs is a little oxygen," the ambulance dispatcher said. Artificial respiration administered before the ambulance arrived failed.

2 Men Stabbed; One Is Killed

One man was killed an another seriously wounded in two separate stabbings Saturday, police said.

Sam Clark Jr., 24-year-old Negro, was found dead in his apartment at 226 NW 16th St. —a paring knife in his chest.

Police charged Miss Winton Theresa Shelton, 39, Negro, with the slaying.

In another case, police said, truck driver Doyle Jacks, 31, was in serious condition after being stabbed three times in the chest with an ice pick.

Amos Burton Kepley, 53, was arrested in the stabbing. It occurred at the LaSalle Hotel, 829 NW 21st St., where both men lived.

Crash Kills Hotel Man

Gerald Delmar (Jerry) Paulding, Miami hotel owner-manager, was killed in a Georgia highway accident early Saturday after checking out of the Atlanta hotel convention early so he could spend the weekend with his parents in Miami.

Mr. Paulding, 34, of 8221 SW 35th Ter., was driving south on U.S. 19 about 60 miles south of Atlanta when a truck collided with his car. The Georgia Highway Patrol said truck driver Lester Lee Dean, 34, of Atlanta, was charged with driving on the wrong side of the road.

Mr. Paulding was owner-manager of Miami's Alcazar Hotel and had been a leader in business and civic life. He is survived by his wife, a son, his parents, a brother and three sisters.

350 Cities Lose Transit Systems; Are We Next?

pany of Portland, Ore., — sole operator of transit service within the city — has withdrawn its last trackless trolleys and made arrangements for the remaining gasoline buses to run only through October, 1959.

—BOSTON, which has had a comprehensive public transportation blueprint known as the "Coolidge Plan" since 1948, has chosen to ignore it; now, because the Boston suburban areas are reluctant to support mass transportation, the entire system is a deficit operation and tottering on the verge of extinction.

—ALMOST 350 CITIES in the United States — including 42 in Illinois alone — have lost their city-wide transit systems since V-J Day.

* * *

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile, than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

* * *

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the United States has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually — and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

* * *

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

Her 'Fling' At Sunny Pays Off!

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.

SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

And if there's any money left she may travel to Tennessee to see her son, Merton Lowell, 24.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Fortune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

Today's puzzle is on page 14B.

National Summary

By early afternoon Saturday temperatures neared the 70 degree mark from the Gulf States northward into portions of the Ohio Valley and parts of Texas warmed to the 80's before noon while a wintry storm accompanied by high winds and heavy snow spread out of the Rockies into the central plains.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance centered over Kansas, controlled the circulation over most of the country Saturday. Warming breezes carrying moisture northward from the Gulf accounted for patches of rain from Eastern Texas into Georgia, while increasing cloudiness was noted over much of the east.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

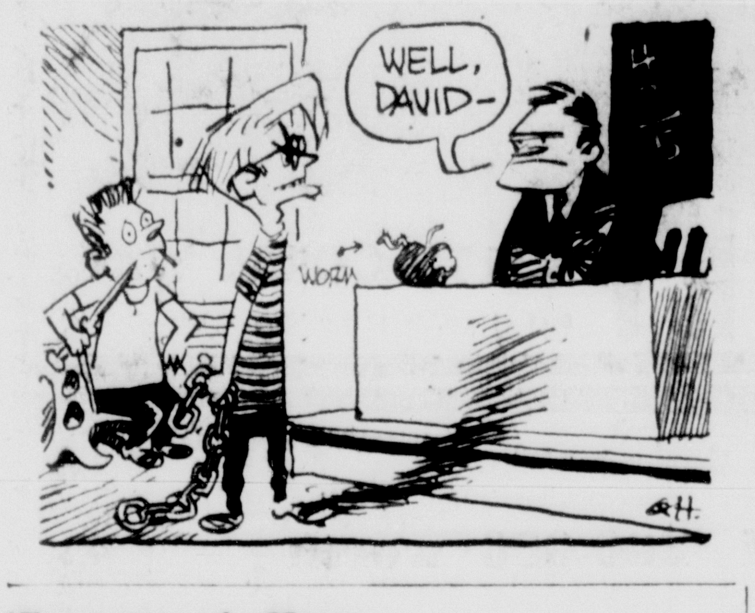
'They're Monsters'

Why Teachers Quit



By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Who says school days, taught to the tune of the hickory stick, are gone?

In Palm Beach County, maybe.

But a former New York school teacher vacationing in West Palm Beach can tell you a blackboard jungle tale where the hickory stick—or a modern counterpart — has its place.

Tony Carusone, now a welfare worker, says at public high schools in the Mohawk Valley region of upstate New York, teachers go forth each day with a "meet 'em, greet 'em and defeat 'em" attitude.

"They're monsters," he says of the younger generation.

For instance, he was teaching an electrical shop class whose favorite pastime was wiring the teacher's chair with an electric charge.

And once he had a study room filled with 36 girls who all decided they were going to sing the "Mickey Mouse Mambo." They did, despite his frantic shouts of "Quiet, Quiet."

When he started teaching in 1955, an oldtimer sent him into the classroom with this admonition: "Circle the room, never turn your back, and never get in the middle of them."

He slipped up once — he turned his back. And the kids quietly, but deftly, took all the screws out of his desk. When next he leaned on it, he fell on his face.

"They're organized too," Carusone said. "They have captains and lieutenants."

Each day when he went into class, he had to take on one of the leaders in a test of strength. If he won with Indian wrestling, he could teach, and the lieutenant enforced the discipline with a snap of his fingers.

How does it go on?

The teachers have a saying that sums it all up:

"The teacher is afraid of the principal, the principal is afraid of the Board of Education, the Board of Education is afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the students and the students aren't afraid of anyone."

Besides coping with his own students, Carusone was called upon by the fair sex on the teaching staff for help.

The same school marm who appealed to him to help control her unruly class also ended up one day getting herself locked in a closet by her students.

"After a year, I quit," he says.

"He swapped jobs with a social worker who "pooh-poohed" his tales out of school.

"In three months, she had a nervous breakdown," he said.

'Emergency' Move

Methodist Laymen Call Race Parley

BIRMINGHAM —(AP)— Methodist laymen from Alabama and Northwest Florida will meet here Thursday to map strategy aimed at preserving racial segregation in their churches.

The object of the meeting is to form an organization, known as the Methodist Laymen's Union.

Earlier this month, laymen who started the wheels in motion for the organization, sent a 22-page booklet to churches in Alabama and Northwest Florida.

The booklet, signed by Circuit Judge Whit Windham of Birmingham, Circuit Judge L. S. Moore of Centreville, Ala., K. E. Cooper, Birmingham attorney, and 31 other laymen, outlined pronouncements the organization hopes to adopt.

Mainly, the booklet deals with what the laymen consider a danger the church, on a national basis, is moving toward integration.

"Our idea is not be be wild, rough or mean," said Windham. "This is simply a union of Christian laymen, looking to the future welfare of Christianity in general, and the Methodist Church in particular."

Windham pointed out the Methodist General Conference in 1956 adopted a resolution that called church segregation an evil. A committee was named to study the jurisdictional system and report at the 1960 conference.

"I'm not a member of that committee," said Windham, "but I've got more than my suspicions about what recommendations they are going to make."

He declined to elaborate on his opinion but said:

"Let's just say we are trying to get ourselves ready for any emergency."

'Option' Plan to Be Heard

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI) — The Bailey-Ervin parent-option tuition plan of avoiding forced integration will be outlined to school officials at the annual Florida Education Association convention in Tampa this week.

Assistant Attorney General Ralph Odum, top expert on segregation law, will explain the bill at a meeting of school board officials Thursday morning, preceding opening of the FEA's three-day session that afternoon.

The bill, which Attorney General Richard Ervin and State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey will recommend to the Legislature, permits parents to withdraw their children from integrated schools and get a state subsidy or about $240 a year to educate them privately.

The School Board members and State Association of County School Superintendents will start their annual meetings Wednesday. The superintendents will discuss problems of over-crowding on buses.

Principal business before the FEA, the voice of teachers in Florida, is election of a new president and adoption of a legislative program.

Mrs. Evelyn Sewell, Jacksonville school teacher, is the only announced nominee so far to succeed outgoing president Phillip Constans of Gainesville. But numerous other nominees are expected to be presented during the convention.

The legislative program to be offered the convention calls mainly for measures to improve the ability of the counties to get additional funds for operation of their schools.

The program offers no suggestions of where the increased local revenue will come from. Nor does it recommend any pay raises for teachers in the coming session.

Approximately 7,000 persons are expected at the convention, with U. S. Sen George Smathers, Bailey and Dr. Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature the main speakers.

Gov. LeRoy Collins will introduce Smathers for a Friday night address. Bailey will speak Friday night and Cousins Thursday night.

Acres of Scrub Oak A Hardboard Source

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A Florida State University geographer says the scrub oak infesting two million acres of Florida could be used profitably for manufacturing hardboard.

Dr. John O. Boynton said a two-year scientific study has shown manufacturing plants would find it worthwhile to clear out the straggly growth and replant the sand ridges in pines.

Timber-producing pines grew on the sand ridges originally, but were cut for timber and the scrub oaks took over. Few pines will grow there again until the oaks are torn out.

Dr. Boynton said industrialists could build a plant at a cost of one million dollars that would turn the scrub oaks on five acres of land into 120,000 square feet of hardboard, or chipboard. Both are standard building materials.

In addition, the bark from the oaks could be sold separately for the tannin it contains, he said.

Police Hunt Wife of Policeman

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Authorities said Saturday they have been unable to find the wife of retired Police Sgt. Joseph Luberda, who has refused to testify about names of underworld figures and $19,000 found in his car.

Assistant District Attorney Aaron A. Koota of Brooklyn said a subpena was issued for Mrs. Mary Luberda March 6 but attempts to serve it have been unsuccessful.

Ervin Rules 3.2 Beer is Covered

Malt Can 'Influence' Drivers, Too

By Herald Wire Services

TALLAHASSEE — Persons driving under the influence of malt liquor beer can be charged with driving while drunk, Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin has ruled.

Ervin said a majority of the courts in the U.S. have ruled malt liquor beer is an intoxicant within the meaning of the law, even though there is some distinction between true beer and malt liquors, or 3.2 beer, in dry counties.

To rule that a person drunk on malt liquors was not covered by drunk driving laws would do "violence" to those laws which are designed to promote public safety, Ervin advised Judge Charles H. Snowden of Miami.

In another opinion, Ervin said a police officer cannot arrest for drunk driving without a warrant unless the offense occurred in his presence.

Answering a question from L. B. Vocelle, city attorney for Vero Beach, Ervin said an officer who heard what appeared to be an auto crash and then went to the scene, could not make an arrest for drunken driving without a warrant because he did not witness the driving.

State Has Word On Virginia Law

RICHMOND, Va. — Asst. Atty. General Ralph Odum returned to Florida Saturday after a conference with Virginia Atty. Gen. Albertis S. Harrison on school segregation.

The two officials met for six hours behind closed doors Friday to discuss "mutual problems on the school situation." Harrison called the visit both "personal and business."

Earlier Friday, Odum called on Gov. J. Lindsay Almond for an informal talk.

It was the second meeting in three days between Virginia officials and southerners on the school problem. A six-man Alabama delegation spent several hours Wednesday with Almond and Harrison.

State's Speedy Test Is Germ War Weapon

Cuts Time Of Naming Bacteria

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Federal officials believe Jacksonville field tests of a new rapid germ identification technique will prove vital in the battle against certain diseases and in defense against possible germ warfare.

The significance of the work was revealed in a statement by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in Washington.

Dr. James L. McQueen, U.S. Public Health Service veterinarian assigned to the Florida Board of Health, and Mrs. Edith I. Jones, laboratory technician, have been working on the Jacksonville tests.

Known as the fluorescent antibody technique, Flemming said the new test is important because:

"It opens up a practical new diagnostic avenue as a material aid looking toward the eventual eradication of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

"It could greatly speed the diagnosis of a wide range of communicable diseases such as rabies, diptheria, polio, influenza, typhus and Rocky Mountain spotted fever, so specific treatment could be started immediately.

"It could be become an indispensable tool for rapid application of counter measures against germ warefare attack. For example, such an attack might come from the air—by explosion of a germ bomb, by spraying germs, or by release of infected insects."

Flemming said, in addition to trials here, another with comparable results is being conducted with the cooperation of the Alabama Department of Health.

The first successful field test, he said, was conducted by the Florida Board of Health in cases of suspected cases of rabies in animals.

Specimens were tested with the new technique in a matter of hours and the same specimens were put through the standard rabies test, which takes two to three weeks.

"On Feb. 3, field reports showed results obtained from the fluorescent antibody technique agreed 100 per cent with results from the time-consuming test," Flemming said in his statement.

With the new technique, enough specimens containing the bacteria or virus could be obtained from any surface, or even from a sample of air, to make a reliable test, he went on.

Another advantage, Flemming said, is that specimens "could be tested for several different diseases at once in a very short time."

The fluorescent technique was discovered 10 year ago at Harvard school of medicine. Steps for putting it to routine use in a public health laboratory were developed at the communicable disease test center of the Public Health Service in Atlanta.

3 'No-Mix' Proposals In Works

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The Florida Legislature, faced with prospects of first integration in the public schools next fall, appears set to strengthen state laws against race mixing in its 1959 session, opening April 7.

An Associated Press poll combined with individual interviews with key legislators, indicates the Legislature likely will pass these type bills:

1. A PARENT OPTION tuition plan, which would authorize a parent to withdraw his child from an integrated school and send him to a non-church private school, with aid of a state subsidy.

2. A "LAST RESORT" or "local option" bill which would authorize voters of any county to close public schools, by a referendum, to avoid integration.

3. STRENGTHENED pupil assignment law, which will provide added criteria, drawn from Alabama's pupil placement act, upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mechanics of the bills are still being worked out, and financing is still a major problem, but sentiment appears to have jelled in the direction of giving Florida a stronger hand to deal with the race problem.

Another related proposal with strong support, particularly in the Senate, is an independent school plan which would create a board to set academic standards for private schools. The plan also calls for spending of state funds on scholarships for pupils to attend private schools.

An AP poll of legislators in December showed strong sentiment for stronger laws in the racial field, but many were on the fence at that time.

Since then there have been two important factors which helped sentiment to jell. One was the collapse of Virginia's massive resistance program. The other was the recent action of the Dade County School Board in voting to admit four Negro children to a white elementary school in Miami.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the Dade action, coming so soon before the session was "badly timed" and stirred legislators into proposing stronger legislation than would have been advanced otherwise.

Other legislators took the opposite viewpoint, that the Dade action strengthened Florida's pupil assignment law, and made other legislation unnecessary.

The segregation battle is due to erupt almost as soon as the Legislature gets under way. Some leaders say the battle should be over in the first two weeks. They said that if the fight is prolonged it could degenerate into a bitter, personal level and put a cloud over the whole 60-day session.

Discovery of Haiti Flag-Pact A Bonanza for Professor

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Suppose some foreigner told congress that Betsy Ross used an orange petticoat in the American Flag instead of a red one?

And suppose he had the original garment to prove it: Would a law be enacted to change the colors of the Star-Spangled Banner to orange, white and blue?

Well, that's just about what happened in Haiti recently. The foreigner who discovered the mistake was Maurice de Young, professor at the University of Florida.

And the Haitian government not only changed the colors of the flag, but it had a reception for De Young in a swanky hotel and awarded him a medal "Ordre d'Honor et Merit."

De Young, 39-year-old economics professor, had gone to the French-speaking country to do some research under a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

Quite by accident, De Young claims, he turned up some proof that the Haitian flag was intended to have black and red bars — not blue and red as it had been since 1806.

According to legend, on which the flag's colors were based, revolutionary forces led by Toussaint L' Ouverture against France ripped up a French Tricolor and sewed the red and blue stripes together.

But De Young, microfilming revolutionary documents, turned up a colored map used by Gen. Rochambeau, Napoleon's last commanding general in Haiti. And the map positively identified the rebel flag as red and black.

"I wrote an article about it for a professional journal," De Young says, "and I didn't think anything more about it."

"Then the editor of the journal turned the article over to some local newspapers since he felt it had more than just a professional interest," De Young explained.

After the article appeared in several newspapers, Haiti's flag became the topic of conversation all over the island. "Some felt the flag should be changed," De Young said. "Others felt since it had been red and blue so long, why not leave it the way it was."

Soon, history experts, state officials and other archives specialists were examining De Young's findings.

When the government recognized their century-old mistake, a presidential proclamation was handed down Nov. 18, "and also my birthday," De Young said.

"A big ceremony was held in the Champ de Maraso, next to the palace, at Port au Prince," De Young recalls. "The army turned out for a big parade and a general came forth in a symbolic ceremony, giving back the old flag and taking up the new one."

Later, De Young was guest of honor at a huge reception. Lamartin Honorate, minister of information, pinned the medal of merit on the proud professor before the country's highest nobility.

Since then, Haiti President Duvalier has appointed De Young to a five-man commission to reform laws on archives.

De Young, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., and educated at Tulane University, said he is now working on a book dealing with Haiti's society and economy. But he says he doesn't expect to turn up anything as history-making as his last research project did.

Senate, House Pass It

Citrus Dye Bill Goes To Ike in Final Test

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— President Eisenhower had on his desk Saturday a bill to permit Florida and Texas citrus growers to continue dyeing their oranges orange. Critics branded it a calculated health risk.

The measure, passed by the House Friday and the Senate earlier, would permit the growers to dye their oranges with Citrus Red No. 2, a coal tar product. Texas and Florida oranges are greenish when ripe.

A law that expired last month banned the use of coal tar colors in food. But another expired law permitted Texas and Florida orange growers to use Citrus Red No. 32, a coal tar dye.

The new bill would substitute No. 2 for No. 32. Supporters cited a House Commerce Committee report which described Red No. 2 as having "a significantly less . . . toxicity level."

Rep. James J. Delaney (D., N. Y.) said coal tar colors are suspected by the government of being a possible cause of cancer. He and other critics said there was no proof that Red No. 2 was absolutely safe.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department and the Food & Drug Administration said they had no objection to the bill.

Plastic Surgery Giving Many A New Life, Surgeon Declares

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function.

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons.

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Srtippers Beat Peeping Toms

IPOH, Malaya — (AP) — The Rose Chan striptease show has permission to perform here, thanks to Dr. W. Holmes, acting head of the town council.

Issuing the permit, he told the council: "There is a tendency in every male to be something of a Peeping Tom. It is perhaps better this way (the striptease show) than to have people peep into your bedrooms at night."

It's Jail Again After 69 Years

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon W. Hartent, who says he has spent 69 of his 83 years behind bars, has been given another three years in jail.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank A. Picard handed Hartent the sentence for attempted bank robbery.

Bank guards grabbed Hartent recently when he walked into the National Bank of Detroit and handed a teller a note asking for $1,000.

It'll Be 'Woodrow Wilson'

'Oppenheimer' Ruled Out As Name for New School

LEVITTOWN, Pa. — (AP) — The school board for this commuters' community has decided that Woodrow Wilson would be a better name for its new high school than J. Robert Oppenheimer.

When the Bristol Township decided last year to name the high school after the famed scientist, often called the "father of the atom bomb," the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars raised a hue and cry.

In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission had denied Dr. Oppenheimer security clearance, although affirming his loyalty to this country. The commission, during lengthy hearings, had asked him questions about alleged Communist associations in his younger days.

At a meeting attended by 400 persons the board voted four-two to rename the school after the World War I president. The school is still under construction in this southeastern Pennsylvania town.

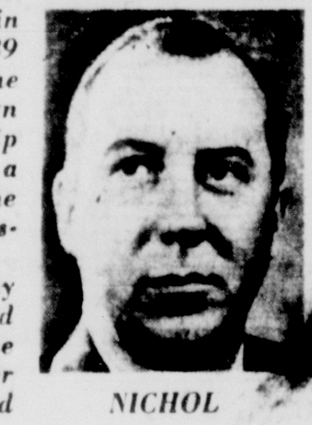
We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1939 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.



NICHOL

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Fender-to-Fender, Miami Drivers Sweat Out a National Ailment
. . . hardening of the traffic arteries: cars, cars everywhere and barely a bus in sight

While We Strangle in Traffic

Transit Systems Are Dying All Over U.S.--Ours Next?

Miami is not alone in its fight to keep from being strangled in its own traffic.

Cities all over the U.S. are struggling with the acute problem of moving people to and from their jobs on traffic-clogged streets.

What's wrong? And what's the solution?

This is the first of five articles on the problem that grows worse daily.

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.

By JOSEPH N. BELL
Special to The Herald

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the U.S.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the U.S. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Bus Travel Lures Just Don't Exist

(First of Two Articles)

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Almost a million persons travel around Dade every day and try their best never to do it on a bus.

KUNDE

From the windows of their automobiles, they catch glimpses of another 200,000 people waiting on street corners for buses which don't run often enough, charge too much when they do come along, and usually don't take the passenger exactly where he wants to go.

Metro's traffic engineers drew this picture from a six-month survey of Dade's transit "service" and needs. Headed by George Kunde, the engineer found the service woeful, to the surprise of no one, and the needed improvements tremendous.

If the improvements don't come, they predict, transit ridership will continue to drop off, and the shakiest of the seven private bus companies in the area will simply quit.

The result would be still more cars on Metropolitan Miami's already inadequate streets, and an increase in the 75 million dollars a year currently being spent on county roads of all types.

A backdrop for all the engineers' planning and citizens' complaints over transit shortcomings is the simmering negotiation between Metro and bus tycoon William D. Pawley.

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100-million-dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers—but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists"—the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Iraqi Planes Attack Village In Syria, Damascus Charges

LONDON — (AP) — The Damascus radio said Iraqi planes attacked a village about six miles inside Syrian territory Saturday.

The broadcast monitored in London said a vehicle was destroyed but made no mention of casualties.

Radio Cairo came on the air at the same time and was believed heard to say that the planes used rockets in the raid.

But London monitors said the Cairo broadcast was indistinct and could not be heard with real accuracy.

Relations between Iraq and Syria have worsened since the Iraqi government put down a rebellion centered at Mosul in the northern provinces early this week.

Syria is linked in the United Arab Republic with Egypt, which has stepped up oral attacks on the Iraqi regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

On Tuesday U.A.R. sources charged Iraqi planes shot up the Syrian border village of Hamoudiya in the Tel Kotchek area of northeast Syria.

There was speculation the jets may have been hunting rebels in Northern Iraq fleeing toward the Syrian frontier, about 75 miles northwest of Mosul.

The village of Hamoudiya is about three miles inside Syrian territory.

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid-summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $350,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Buses Fail to Tempt County's Car-Riders

over his three lines to Metro in a "paper" sale. Metro would take title to the companies, saving about $1.5 million a year in federal taxes. Pawley would continue to operate his lines until he was paid, out of transit revenues, about $8.5 million.

The county would put up no cash, and own the Pawley system outright after an estimated six to eight years.

County Manager O. W. Campbell and a Metro Commission transit committee headed by Ben McGahey favor accepting Pawley's offer. The commission voted 9-2 last week to continue negotiations.

Bus-riding here has slumped 25 per cent in the past 10 years — a period which saw population rise 75 per cent. The new Dade Countians are mostly car-riders who have never been tempted, by the lures of convenience or economy, to set foot inside a bus. The lures don't exist.

In the last few months Metro Miami passed Los Angeles in cars-per-capita figures and now leads the nation. This area how has one car for each 1.75 persons. Ninety-one per cent of all travel done inside Dade County is by automobile. In other big cities fighting traffic strangulation and transit-use decline, the percentage of travel by car is far lower. For instance, 31.9 per cent in St. Louis, 17 per cent in Philadelphia, 30 per cent in Chicago

Kunde, Dave Reynolds and others on the Metro traffic staff approached the transit problem with a limited goal, one they considered attainable. There's no hope, in a spread-out, car-owning metropolitan area like this, of getting most of the daily travelers back into buses.

If they can find ways to induce 20 per cent of the moving population to use buses (13 per cent more than at present), Dade will have a reasonable car-transit ratio. The bus companies would carry enough riders to stay solvent, and the road-improvement problem will be merely tremendous instead of hopeless.

During their fact-finding, the engineers learned that many common conceptions of the "transit problem" don't hold true in Metro Miami, and what worked elsewhere would flop here.

The usual idea of a transit's main function is carrying workers and shoppers into the downtown business district. But only 24 per cent of the persons who board a bus anywhere in Dade County end up downtown. This is true even though midtown Miami is served by the largest and most efficient Dade busline, Miami Transit Company.

Lack of crosstown routes which never approach midtown is the biggest failing of Metro Miami's splintered, disorganized transit service. Miami International Airport, second only to the downtown business district as a traffic generator, draws 12,000 workers a day. But only 100 travel by bus.

Miami Transit Company employes receive free passes, but still 74 per cent drive their own cars to work.

In other cities, providing exclusive bus lanes on major arteries has speeded service and lured commuters back to transit. That gimmick won't work here, the engineers say. Too many arterial streets here have only two moving lanes.

If, by some magic, half the cars could be removed from Flagler St. during rush hour, and buses had lanes all to themselves, the overall speed of traffic still would be increased only three to five per cent, Reynolds concluded.

Metro Miami, a unique area in so many ways, demands a bold, original assault to its transit problem.

Dust Turns Texas Day Into Night

By United Press International

A fast-moving March snowstorm whipped out of the Rockies into the plains Saturday, dmping heavy snow and piling up deep drifts, and dust storms turned daylight "darker than night" over Texas.

The storm headed across an area battered and isolated a week ago by 20-inch snowfalls in one of the worst snowstorms of March in recent years.

The giant dust storm covered the Texas Panhandle, drastically reducing visibility. At Amarillo, visibility was one mile during the storm, while other areas reported zero visibility.

Dust storms also swept over parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through Northern Iowa, northeast Nebraska, southwest South Dakota, southern Minnesota and southern and central Wisconsin, and the central and southern portion of lower Michigan.

Four to six inches of snow whitened the Nebraska landscape shortly after the storm slipped out of the Rockies. Brisk winds, accompanying a cold front, whirled the snow into drifts three to four feet deep over many sections of Nebraska. Highways were treacherous due to snow and drifts.

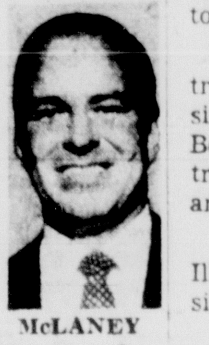
6 Nabbed As Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.



McLANEY

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Jesus Antonion Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitmate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonion Prieto.

Cuban police said Solomon was carrying $150,000 in pesos and Prieto $30,500.

No address was given by the Cubans for the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

350 Cities Lose Transit Systems; Are We Next?

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

* * *

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the U.S. has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually—and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

* * *

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

Mrs. Bertha Gates
. . . 'had given up hope'

Her 'Fling' At Sunny Pays Off!

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.

SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

And if there's any money left she may travel to Tennessee to see her son, Merton Lowell, 24.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Fortune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

Today's puzzle is on page 14B.

Snow Forecast for New England; 70's Recorded in Gulf States

Forecasts

INDIAN RIVER AREA—Partly cloudy through Sunday night. A few showers likely Sunday. Highest Sunday 74 to 78. Low Sunday night 62. Winds southeast to south 15 to 25 mph.

NAPLES AND OKEECHOBEE AREAS—Partly cloudy Sunday and Sunday night. A few showers likely Sunday afternoon. High Sunday 78 to 82 with southerly winds 15 to 25 mph through Sunday night.

BROWARD, PALM BEACH AND KEYS AREAS—Partly cloudy through Sunday night with a few showers likely late Sunday. High Sunday 78 to 82. Low Sunday night 66 to 70. Southeasterly winds 15 to 25 mph.

SMALL BOAT BULLETIN — Seas moderate to locally rough and the inland waters choppy. Southeasterly winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Winds becoming more southerly and increasing some during the day. Warmer.

MARINE — Jacksonville through the Florida Straits: Small craft warnings are displayed from St. Augustine northward. Increasingly southerly winds in the north portion of up to 35 m.p.h. Southeasterly winds over the south portion at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Partly cloudy with showers developing late today. East Gulf: Small craft warnings are displayed north of Tampa. Southerly winds of 20 to 35 m.p.h. in the north portion and southeast to south winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. over the south portion increasing some during the day. Cloudy with showers in the north portion and partly cloudy with showers developing by afternoon in the south portion.

National Summary

By early afternoon Saturday temperatures neared the 70 degree mark from the Gulf States northward into portions of the Ohio Valley and parts of Texas warmed to the 80's before noon while a wintry storm accompanied by high winds and heavy snow spread out of the Rockies into the central plains.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance, centered over Kansas, controlled the circulation over most of the country Saturday. Warming breezes carrying moisture northward from the Gulf accounted for patches of rain from Eastern Texas into Georgia, while increasing cloudiness was noted over much of the east.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

Field Work at Jacksonville

State's Speedy Test Is Germ War Weapon

Cuts Time Of Naming Bacteria

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Federal officials believe Jacksonville field tests of a new rapid germ identification technique will prove vital in the battle against certain diseases and in defense against possible germ warfare.

The significance of the work was revealed in a statement by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in Washington.

Dr. James L. McQueen, U.S. Public Health Service veterinarian assigned to the Florida Board of Health, and Mrs. Edith I. Jones, laboratory technician, have been working on the Jacksonville tests.

Known as the fluorescent antibody technique, Flemming said the new test is important because:

"It opens up a practical new diagnostic avenue as a material aid looking toward the eventual eradication of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

"It could greatly speed the diagnosis of a wide range of communicable diseases such as rabies, diptheria, polio, influenza, typhus and Rocky Mountain spotted fever, so specific treatment could be started immediately.

"It could be become an indispensable tool for rapid application of counter measures against germ warfare attack. For example, such an attack might come from the air—by explosion of a germ bomb, by spraying germs, or by release of infected insects."

Flemming said, in addition to trials here, another with comparable results is being conducted with the cooperation of the Alabama Department of Health.

The first successful field test, he said, was conducted by the Florida Board of Health in cases of suspected cases of rabies in animals.

Specimens were tested with the new technique in a matter of hours and the same specimens were put through the standard rabies test, which takes two to three weeks.

"On Feb. 3, field reports showed results obtained from the fluorescent antibody technique agreed 100 per cent with results from the time-consuming test," Flemming said in his statement.

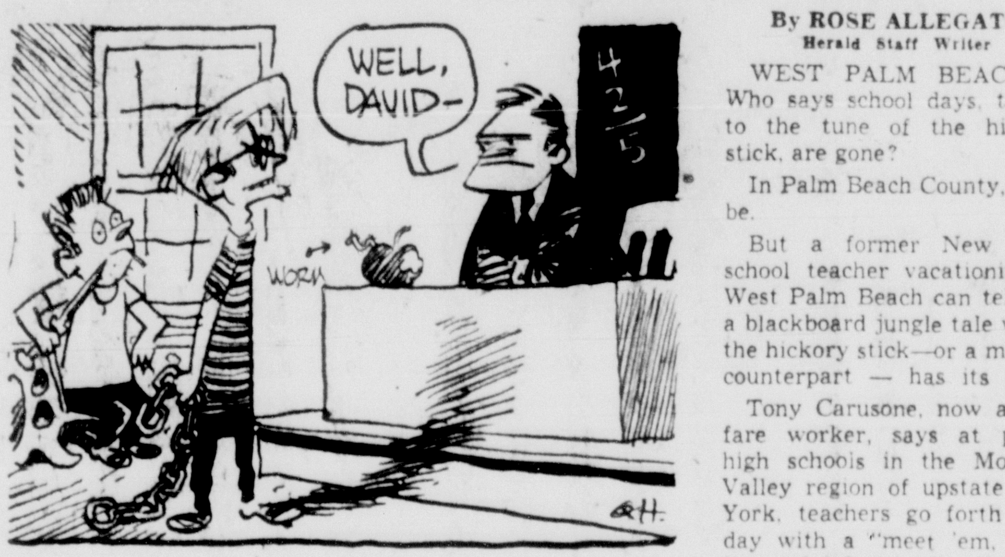
With the new technique, enough specimens containing the bacteria or virus could be obtained from any surface, or even from a sample of air, to make a reliable test, he went on.

Another advantage, Flemming said, is that specimens "could be tested for several different diseases at once in a very short time."

The fluorescent technique was discovered 10 years ago at Harvard school of medicine. Steps for putting it to routine use in a public health laboratory were developed at the communicable disease test center of the Public Health Service in Atlanta.

'They're Monsters'

Why Teachers Quit



By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Who says school days, taught to the tune of the hickory stick, are gone?

In Palm Beach County, maybe.

But a former New York school teacher vacationing in West Palm Beach can tell you a blackboard jungle tale where the hickory stick—or a modern counterpart — has its place.

Tony Carusone, now a welfare worker, says at public high schools in the Mohawk Valley region of upstate New York, teachers go forth each day with a "meet 'em, greet 'em and defeat 'em" attitude.

"They're monsters," he says of the younger generation.

For instance, he was teaching an electrical shop class whose favorite pastime was wiring the teacher's chair with an electric charge.

And once he had a study room filled with 36 girls who all decided they were going to sing the "Mickey Mouse Mambo." They did, despite his frantic shouts of "Quiet, Quiet."

When he started teaching in 1955, an oldtimer sent him into the classroom with this admonition: "Circle the room, never turn your back, and never get in the middle of them."

He slipped up once — he turned his back. And the kids quietly, but deftly, took all the screws out of his desk. When next he leaned on it, he fell on his face.

"They're organized too," Carusone said. "They have captains and lieutenants."

Each day when he went into class, he had to take on one of the leaders in a test of strength. If he won with Indian wrestling, he could teach, and the lieutenant enforced the discipline with a snap of his fingers.

How does it go on?

The teachers have a saying that sums it all up:

"The teacher is afraid of the principal, the principal is afraid of the Board of Education, the Board of Education is afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the students and the students aren't afraid of anyone."

Besides coping with his own students, Carusone was called upon by the fair sex on the teaching staff for help.

The same school marm who appealed to him to help control her unruly class also ended up one day getting herself locked in a closet by her students.

"After a year, I quit," he says.

"He swapped jobs with a social worker who "pooh-poohed" his tales out of school.

"In three months, she had a nervous breakdown," he said.

'Emergency' Move

Methodist Laymen Call Race Parley

BIRMINGHAM —(AP)— Methodist laymen from Alabama and Northwest Florida will meet here Thursday to map strategy aimed at preserving racial segregation in their churches.

The object of the meeting is to form an organization, known as the Methodist Laymen's Union.

Earlier this month, laymen who started the wheels in motion for the organization, sent a 22-page booklet to churches in Alabama and Northwest Florida.

The booklet, signed by Circuit Judge Whit Windham of Birmingham, Circuit Judge L. S. Moore of Centreville, Ala., K. E. Cooper, Birmingham attorney, and 31 other laymen, outlined pronouncements the organization hopes to adopt.

Mainly, the booklet deals with what the laymen consider a danger the church, on a national basis, is moving toward integration.

"Our idea is not be be wild, rough or mean," said Windham. "This is simply a union of Christian laymen, looking to the future welfare of Christianity in general, and the Methodist Church in particular."

Windham pointed out the Methodist General Conference in 1956 adopted a resolution that called church segregation an evil. A committee was named to study the jurisdictional system and report at the 1960 conference.

"I'm not a member of that committee," said Windham, "but I've got more than my suspicions about what recommendations they are going to make."

He declined to elaborate on his opinion but said:

Rec Fund Of $10,000 Is Sought

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — A budget of $10,000 has been set by the South Broward Youth Recreation Board, Dr. Howard Winton, chairman, announced Saturday.

The board was named two weeks ago at a meeting, called by Mayor J. J. Spitznogle to consider means of financing the area youth recreation program, threatened with curtailment.

A campaign is planned by the committee to raise the money. Budget expenditures:

Little League, $1,500, including 300 shirts and caps, baseballs, bats, insurance, and equipment; Pony League, $1,500, including insurance and baseballs and, the biggest item, lighting of the ball park.

Senior League, new this year, $500 for equipment and insurance. American Legion baseball, $500, including lights and equipment assistance.

Gymnastics, $2,000, most for equipment. Teen activities, $1,500 including dances and special activities to be selected by an advisory council of young people.

Special days, $1,500, among these Junior Olympics, father and son, family and similar "days," kite flying and other activities. Girls' activities, $1,000.

Members of the board include Winton, Stan Koller, Mrs. Pat Poole, Ed Reynolds, Clifford McNulty, Bill Kowalske, Hal Jury and John Smith.

Orange Blossoms Are 'Spotty'

LAKELAND — (UPI) — Florida Citrus Mutual said Saturday early and midseason orange blooms are "spotty."

General Manager Robert W. Rutledge said a 21-county survey, however, is a "representative sampling and not all-inclusive."

Rutledge said it is still to early to determine whether this spotty condition is an indication of the size of next season's early and midseason oranges.

But he said citrus trees are showing excellent recovery from last winter's freezes and that many trees have considerable new growth.

The valencia bloom, the report noted, was "excellent." Volume movement of valencias this season is expected in about three weeks.

Melon-choly

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — America's watermelon growers in session here faced one major disappointment Saturday: no home grown melons were available and those placed on display had to be imported from Cuba.

Acres of Scrub Oak A Hardboard Source

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — A Florida State University geographer says the scrub oak infesting two million acres of Florida could be used profitably for manufacturing hardboard.

Dr. John O. Boynton said a two-year scientific study has shown manufacturing plants would find it worthwhile to clear out the straggly growth and replant the sand ridges in pines.

Timber-producing pines grew on the sand ridges originally, but were cut for timber and the scrub oaks took over. Few pines will grow there again until the oaks are torn out.

Dr. Boynton said industrialists could build a plant at a cost of one million dollars that would turn the scrub oaks on five acres of land into 120,000 square feet of hardboard, or chipboard. Both are standard building materials.

In addition, the bark from the oaks could be sold separately for the tannin it contains, he said.

Need Study Of Schools Will Start

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — An analysis of Martin County school needs will be made by J. W. Kindelen of the firm of Rino, Mahoney and Arner, Miami accountants, William V. King, president of the Martin County Taxpayers Association, said today.

"Purpose of the study," said King, "is to get down on paper school needs from an auditor's viewpoint."

King added Kindelen will study school need reports of the School Citizen's Committee, and the county school board to the State Department of Education.

A physical survey of all school plant, as well as projected five year estimate of needs will be included in the report.

"This is not an investigation," said King. He added the taxpayers association needs facts, in order to acquaint members with the "true picture" of the school situation.

Thomas Lee Crook, county school superintendent said, "We are 100 per cent for this study and will cooperate in every way."

Need for an analytical report grew from failure of the million and a half dollar school bond issue in November. Only 27 per cent of the registered freeholders cast ballots. State law provides that more than half must vote for a bond referendum to be valid.

Opponents of the issue plugged for a "pay-as-you-go" plan of school construction.

"What Mr. Kindelen will find in his study, I haven't the slightest idea," said King. He may make a recommendation for a school bond issue, or that additional schools be financed on the "pay-as-you-go" basis.

The construction program, to be financed with bond issue funds, proposed by the school board, included:

High school at Stuart, $655,020; Elementary school at Stuart, $381,062; Salerno school, $45,000; Warfield school at Indiantown, $86,400; Jensen Beach school, $28,800; Hobe Sound school, $28,800; Booker Park school at Indiantown, $14,400; Dunbar school at Hobe Sound, $28,800; Stuart Training school, $145,540, and for site purchases, $40,000.

Press Cable Rates Reduced

'Option' Plan to Be Heard

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI) — The Bailey-Ervin parent-option tuition plan of avoiding forced integration will be outlined to school officials at the annual Florida Education Association convention in Tampa this week.

Assistant Attorney General Ralph Odum, top expert on segregation law, will explain the bill at a meeting of school board officials Thursday morning, preceding opening of the FEA's three-day session that afternoon.

The bill, which Attorney General Richard Ervin and State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey will recommend to the Legislature, permits parents to withdraw their children from integrated schools and get a state subsidy or about $240 a year to educate them privately.

The School Board members and State Association of County School Superintendents will start their annual meetings Wednesday. The superintendents will discuss problems of over-crowding on buses.

Principal business before the FEA, the voice of teachers in Florida, is election of a new president and adoption of a legislative program.

For Indian River

Hospital District Act Is Prepared

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH—A special act, creating a hospital special tax district in Indian River County, will be presented to the State Legislature. Legal advertising of the bill has been started by the Indian River Hospital board of trustees.

The bill would create a hospital district to cover the entire county, and empower the district to construct and operate hospitals, levying a tax for this purpose.

Governing board of the district would be a five-member board of trustees, elected by the people of the county.

The district would assume the $750,000 county hospital bond issue, approved by freeholders at a November referendum. Validation of these bonds is now pending in Circuit Court.

The Indian River Memorial Hospital, a non-profit institution, will be transferred to the district when the bond issue is approved. It will be expanded to meet needs.

A five-member board of trustees was appointed by Gov. LeRoy Collins after the November bond issue election. The trustees are Paul Goodridge, chairman; E. G. Thatcher, secretary; M. L. Medlin, treasurer, and Dan Richardson and T. A. Peebles.

The hospital is still under control of the Indian River Memorial Hospital Association and will not be transferred to the new district, or county, until the bond issue is validated.

At an annual meeting of the association Thursday night seven directors were reelected. They are R. C. Beuttel, M. C. Mitchell, S. B. Taylor, Mrs. Paul O. Semon Jr., Randolph Sexton, Peebles, and Richardson.

Thatcher, also secretary of the association, said the directors would function as an advisory board when control of the hospital is transferred.

TV Repair Racket Broken Up

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Two men operating an appliance store in downtown Jacksonville have been arrested and charged with stealing television sets from people who thought the sets were being taken for repairs.

Detective Sgt. J. R. Heard said the store advertised low cost service calls but when a repairman arrived in response to a call he said the set had to be taken to the shop for repairs.

He obligingly offered to leave another set for the customer while his was being repaired and asked the customer to sign "insurance papers" on the temporary set.

Heard said the papers were actually bills of sale and when a customer asked when his repaired set would be returned, he was told the company knew nothing of a set being picked up for repairs but the customer was behind on payments for the set he bought.

The company then would repossess the set, which the customer thought had been loaned to him, Heard said.

Charges of grand larceny were filed against Edward W. Barsh, 40, and Perry L. Roberson, 24, Friday.

Woman Quizzed On Narcotics

DELAND — Mrs. Elizabeth Cain, 66, of Lakeland has been questioned in a Volusia County narcotics investigation, Sheriff Rodney Thursby reported.

The sheriff said she is the mother of Thomas Cain, 29, musician at a Daytona Beach night club under arrest on charges of possessing and selling narcotics. Three other night club entertainers have been charged with possessing narcotics.

Justice Douglas To Talk on Asia

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— William O. Douglas, associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, will deliver a lecture here Monday night on the battle between democracy and communism in Asia.

Worried by Younger Rivals, Women Asking for Surgery

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function.

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons.

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind.—(AP) — A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed in Hutchison.

Marine Study Given $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,000 grant to the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami for basic research on radium distribution in the waters of the Florida Straits, the Bahamas and the Caribbean area.

This work is to ascertain how fast radium escapes from the sediments on the bottom. Research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Fritz Koczy, associate professor of oceanography.

Three to Attend Child Unit Meet

Chairman Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey, Mrs. Sydney Weintraub, and Dr. Stephen Wright, all of Miami, will attend a meeting of the Florida Children's Commission Monday and Tuesday in Jacksonville.

Top item on the agenda will be a discussion of recommendations to be made to the coming session of the Legislature.

Songwriting Firemen Haven't Stopped Work
. . . Joe Farrell, left, and Jim Conway collaborating

One Hit's Not a Living, Say Wives of Tunesters

What's it like when the first song you ever wrote makes a hit?

In the case of firemen Jim Conway and Joe Farrell, it's spurring them on to new successes But their wives say they've been goofing off on their part-time jobs.

By MARCIE FEINGOLD
Herald Staff Writer

"Tomboy" tunesters Jim Conway and Joe Farrell can't get a note in edgewise these days. Their wives are doing all the singing.

Ever since the songwriting firemen had their first taste of sweet success — when Perry Como bought their saucy ballad for his TV show — they've been goofing off. At least that's what the wives say.

But now that the songwriting bug has bitten, both boys spend all their spare time down at the fire station with a dilapidated old piano banging out music.

"Joe better go out and get a job," jokes Kathaleen Farrell. "It takes more than a fireman's salary to feed our six youngsters."

Kathaleen says "Tomboy" was not written for her even though she used to play basketball when she was younger.

"Why he hasn't written a thing for me!" she exclaims. "Not even when we were just dating."

But Rose Conway coyly admits Hubby Jim has penned a lot of little poems for her in the last few months—even though he hasn't written her a song.

The songwriting duo turns out a finished tune in a couple of hours. Conway does the lyric while Farrell writes the music. Since they marketed "Tomboy," they have completed 16 new songs.

Conway and Farrell have returned from New York, where they made the rounds of music publishing houses. They took their 16 songs with them and left two with Como and two with Pat Boone for "consideration."

"They haven't sent them back yet," says Jim. "At least that's a good sign."

Their list, "Tomboy," has sold 3000,000 records. But the royalties won't start flowing in until August.

The songwriters net a penny on every record sold, so they've made $3,000 so for. In addition, they have a contract which gives them three cents for every piece of sheet music sold and 50 per cent of all other income received from the tune.

Ervin Rules 3.2 Beer is Covered

Malt Can 'Influence' Drivers, Too

By Herald Wire Services

TALLAHASSEE — Persons driving under the influence of malt liquor beer can be charged with driving while drunk, Atty. Gen. Richard W. Ervin has ruled.

Ervin said a majority of the courts in the U.S. have ruled malt liquor beer is an intoxicant within the meaning of the law, even though there is some distinction between true beer and malt liquors, or 3.2 beer, in dry counties.

To rule that a person drunk on malt liquors was not covered by drunk driving laws would do "violence" to those laws which are designed to promote public safety, Ervin advised Judge Charles H. Snowden of Miami.

In another opinion, Ervin said a police officer cannot arrest for drunk driving without a warrant unless the offense occurred in his presence.

Answering a question from L. B. Vocelle, city attorney for Vero Beach, Ervin said an officer who heard what appeared to be an auto crash and then went to the scene, could not make an arrest for drunken driving without a warrant because he did not witness the driving.

FLORIDA ROUNDUP

State Has Word On Virginia Law

RICHMOND, Va. — Asst. Atty. General Ralph Odum returned to Florida Saturday after a conference with Virginia Atty. Gen. Albertis S. Harrison on school segregation.

The two officials met for six hours behind closed doors Friday to discuss "mutual problems on the school situation." Harrison called the visit both "personal and business."

Earlier Friday, Odum called on Gov. J. Lindsay Almond for an informal talk.

It was the second meeting in three days between Virginia officials and southerners on the school problem. A six-man Alabama delegation spent several hours Wednesday with Almond and Harrison.

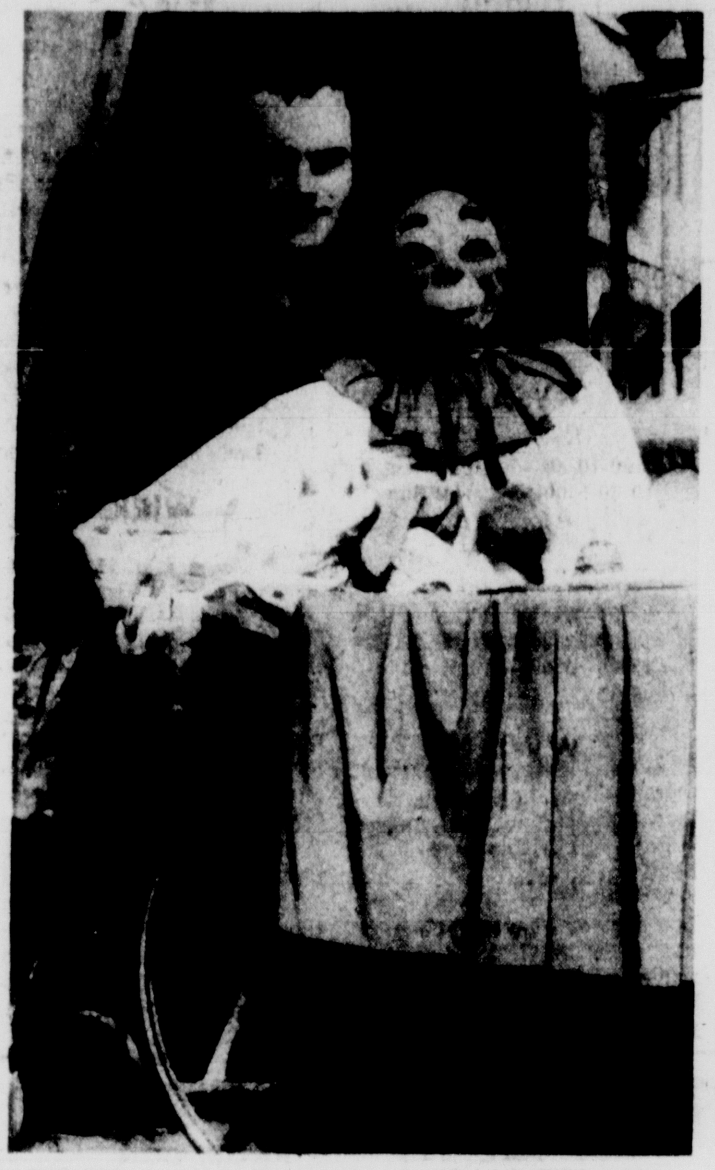
A 'Hopeless' Fight, But Jerry Won



—Herald Staff Photo

Jerry Chapin and Pal Timothy
. . . his wheelchair is his stage

By MARCIE FEINGOLD
Herald Staff Writer

The doctors told him he would never be able to get out of bed—that he would never again have the use of his hands or arms. But Jerry Chapin was determined not to accept their verdict as final.

Delighted laughter when Chapin performed a puppet show the other day was evidence that he has won his battle.

But what really thrilled Chapin is that his audience didn't suspect that the stage they were looking at was a wheelchair and that behind the curtain was a man strapped to the chair to keep him from falling out.

"It was the first time I have been able to perform without the public knowing I'm handicapped," said Chapin. "When they applauded I knew they were really enjoying the show, not just sorry for me. It was a great personal triumph."

In his hands, four foot "Timothy," dressed in a bright polka-dotted clown suit, comes alive on the wheelchair stage.

Chapin was stricken with polio in 1946, a few months after he was discharged from the Navy.

In 10 days the six-foot, six-inch 180-pound frame wasted away to 85 pounds. Three times he pushed back death.

In 1950 he entered the University of Miami. By this time, he had mastered wheelchair living. But he was restricted to classes in ground level rooms.

One of these classes just happened to be a course in puppetry. So, by chance, Jerry began his professional career.

Combining his puppetry, advertising and drama courses for an advertising project, he constructed a puppet, dramatized a play and staged an advertising puppet show for an exterminating company.

For several years, Chapin concentrated on making puppets and gained a national reputation. But, he could not manipulate his puppets because he could not lift his arms.

Then came Lee, a professional puppeteer. Chapin went to see one of her shows, they met, and a year later were married.

Lee knew a type of puppet that Jerry could manipulate.

With the "marote" puppet, Chapin's arms and hands become the puppet's arms and hands. Some actions are remote-controlled. A tape recorder and amplifier are used for music and trick effects.

Dean on Visit

Burt Going To Press Seminar

Al Burt, chief of The Herald's Broward County news bureaus, has been selected as one of 28 U.S. editors who will take part in a two-week news editing seminar beginning Monday at Colubia University in New York.

BURT

Under sponsorship of the American Press Institute, the group will discuss an improvement of newspaper editing and content.

They will hear experts on problems in selecting and training personnel, fulfilling community responsibilities of newspapers, and coverage of such special newsfronts as business, religion and schools.

Burt, former assistant executive sports editor, has been a member of The Herald staff since 1955 and was named chief of the Broward bureaus in 1958.

How's the Season? Ask Those Who Make Living at It

From South Beach to Surfside, from cabbie to waitress to bellhop — tourist mecca Miami Beach was "smiling again Saturday

For most of those in the service fields — whose income depends largely on generous-tipping tourists — it's been a pretty fair season.

Not as good a one as three years ago but a far cry from the frigid 1958 winter.

Here's how they sum it up:

WAITRESS Neva Yeo, Cock Robin Restaurant:

"O.K. I did all right last year, too. It's been a good season so far. I'm hopeful for the same this month. You hear a lot of complaints and belly-aches, and I suppose many of those are justified. But as for myself: I haven't been crying —not too loudly, anyway.

"One thing, though: We've got a different class of tourist down now. That's very noticeable in the tips they leave. If you know what I mean."

BELL CAPTAIN Edwin Maguire, Algiers Hotel:

"Up—but just barely up over last season. But I can't really kick. There has been more traffic (tourists) this year, but your real spenders are missing. Don't get me wrong: the tips are there—but they're not the tips we used to get.

"We are definitely noticing a different class of tourist coming in. Used to be, nobody counted his change when you broke a buck (dollar bill) for him. Now everybody does."

CRUISE CAPTAIN Kelley McElyea, Sightseeing Boats:

"Business? Good. Tips? No comment, other than to say they have been better. The traffic (tourist flow) is here—but the money isn't. I mean, they're (visitors) spending, but they're watching what they're spending on.

"Tipping and spending on cruises are down from other seasons—but certainly up from last year. There's also a big increase in tourists this year over last season."

DOORMAN Don Waite, Royal York Hotel:

"Better than last year—but far below standard. The big tips are gone. The big spenders are no more. There are too many hotels, too many doormen. To tell you the truth, we've reached the saturation point on the Beach, so far as those in our field making any real money."

MERCHANT Libby Margol, 705 Washington Ave.:

"Not as high as it should be, but business has been good. No comparison at all with last year's slow season. For us, the season started to move around Christmas. It's been steady ever since.

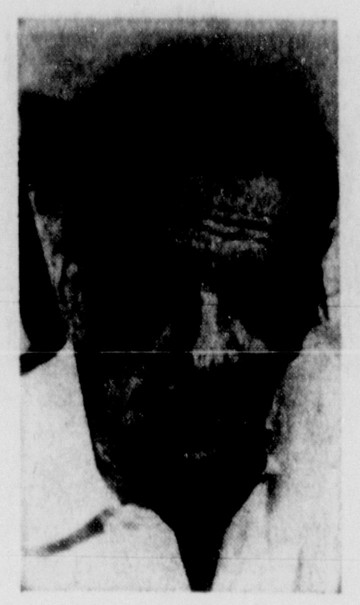
CABBIE Eli J. Lieberman:

"Up—but just a little. I don't like to paint a dark picture, but a check on most of the boys in this (taxi) business will show that they are really grinding to make a living. It's been rough—but it was rougher last year.

"Believe it or not—the hotels are killing us. They have their own courtesy cars now. Nightclub package tours are putting more and more people on private buses to haul them around. Still, March may be O.K., yet."



NEWSSTAND VENDOR Don Darvis, 73rd St. and Collins Ave.:

"O.K. About the same as last year. Not losing. Gaining a little. Different crowd, though. Very noticeable. Penny-watchers. Your real tourist is gone—from this part of the Beach, anyway.

"It's been steady so far. Looking for March to be good, too. The weather definitely made it for us this year. Without it—I'd probably be peddling shoelaces today."

METER-CHECKER Mrs. Pat Powers, City of Miami Beach street parking department:

"Handing out more tickets this year—if that's any indication of a good season or not. Good for me; bad for those who get the tickets. Traffic has been heavy right up to last week.

"No slow down in violators, though—just as tricky as last year. They've been keeping me busy. I guess you might say I'm having a 'good' season—but don't quote me."

VD Gains Reported In Dade

Veneral disease is on the rise in Dade County — and in the face of reports from other areas that penicillin, the top drug used in fighting it, may be losing some of its effectiveness.

Health authorities here do not consider the present rate of climb too alarming. It is still not out of line with the increase of population.

But they warn that the campaign against VD must be stepped up. Local authorities have been meeting to this end with a visitnng official from the Atlanta, Ga., office of the United States Public Health service.

Purpose is to develop a new system so that field workers can take blood samples from large groups suspected of having been exposed to syphillis, without first sending them in to the public health laboratories. Too frequently they fail to make that promised trip to the laboratory.

Gonorrhea, the disease which some experts now believe is developing bacterium resistant to penicillin, increased here in 1958, after having declined steadily since 1952. There were 1,498 cases here last year.

Syphilis also continued to show more cases, 58 as against 30 for the previous year.

The figures are from Dr. Lee Elgin, director of venereal control for the Dade County Health Department. Both he and Dr. T. E. Cato, health commissioner, said the penicillin treatment is still effective here.

Beef Rushed To Sudan

NAIROBI, Kenya — (AP) — Operation "Corned Beef" has been launched by the Kenya Meat Commission to help hundreds of Sudanese struck down by an epidemic of protein deficiency.

The epidemic, which is heaviest in the Upper Nile region of Sudan, has already put more than 500 people in the hospital.

M. P. Guido, of the U.S. consulate in Khartoum, flew to Nairobi on behalf of the U.S. operative mission to Sudan to buy vitamin supplies. He bought 34 tons of corned beef.

Workers Don Chains In Protest

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. —(AP)— Eleven workers remained chained to a pillar in the General Electric plant Saturday, protesting the company's plan for what they termed an April Fool's Day shutdown.

GE intends to move most of the plant's operations to the south after April 1.

Nearly a score of the workers linked themselves together with a chain and rolled out a banner from fourth floor windows, proclaiming "we want the right to work."

They said they would remain chained in the building until ejected forcibly. A group of them left during the night, however. The reason for the departure was not explained.

Those who stayed in the plant played cards and took turns sleeping on a pile of felt in a corner.

The thin chain was wrapped around their wrists or bodies. It had no locks.

Chennault Job Filled

TAIPEI —(AP)— Adm. Felix B. Stump (Ret.) has taken over the airline job of the late Gen. Claire L. Chennault of Flying Tiger fame.

An announcement said the former head of the U.S. Pacific Command has been elected chairman of the board of the Asiatic Aeronautical Co., Ltd., the post held by Chennault.

Asatic Aeronautical is the parent body of Civil Air Transport, the Far East airline Chennault organized. The company has headquarters here and a maintenance base at Tainan.

FRANCE'S HIGH-CALIBER glamor gal, Brigitte Bardot, shows off the shooting technique she uses in a new movie called "Babette Goes to War." She was appearing on a Paris television show.

Mother of 7 Slain, Ex-Boy Friend Held

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — A bizarre marital tangle exploded in a shooting sequence that left a 28-year-old mother of seven children dead and her ex-boy friend critically wounded.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Beverly Ann Swan, whose body was found on a street by a newsboy, apparently had two "husbands." There were two bullet wounds in her head and one in her chest.

Her legitimate husband, Harold, 34, told police he and his wife had separated last summer and she had started suit for divorce.

The other husband, Robert Bielmeier, 27, with whom Mrs. Swan went through a marriage ceremony in Iowa one month ago, told police he killed her because she told him she planned a reconciliation with Harold. He was charged with first degree murder.

When police, directed by Harold, went to Bielmeir's rooming house after her body was found, they heard a shot. Breaking in the door they found Bielmeier with a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head. En route to the hospital, Bielmeier admitted slaying Mrs. Swan.

Swan told authorities that he had placed their six children, ranging in age from two to nine years, in the county home, when his wife left the city. She had another daughter, born prior to her marriage to Swan. The 12-year-old girl lives in St. Paul, Minn.

$175,000 Willed In Few Words

EUREKA, Calif. — (UPI) — Walter Mosley, who died last week, was a man of few words, even in his will leaving his $175,000 estate to his sister. It read: "I will to Ann Mosley the works."

Car Didn't Get Washed

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — A motorist pulled into a car wash establishment and turned his car over to an employe. Instead of pulling the car into line, the employe drove away. The thief and dirty car had not been located at last report.

'Lovable' Man Called A Thief

CHICAGO — (UPI) — A bank cashier and a steel company executive were named in an FBI complaint Saturday on charges of misapplication of funds from the suburban Bank of Lyons, where investigation showed a shortage of more than $400,000.

The cashier, Rudolph Belasick, 34, was described by his boss as "the most lovable character you'd ever want to see."

Named with him, and charged specifically only with the misapplication of a $13,000 check issued by Belasick Oct. 21, was Alvin A. Schultz, 42, president of the Knox Steel and Wire Co.

The two were ordered brought before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike.

In all, the complaint continued, more than $400,000 in such checks was issued to Schultz by Belasick over a 2½-year period.

And Give Advice

2 Metro Officials To Address Meeting

Metro's two top-ranking officials will tell the Urban County Congress in Washington Monday how Dade County is faring with its pioneering attempt at county-city federation.

Metro Commission Chairman Walter Weiss and County Manager O. W. Campbell will be lead-off speakers at the congress, first ever sponsored by the National Association of County Officials.

"We will tell the convention briefly how Metro got started, and offer some advice to other areas which may be considering the same step," Weiss said.

"One thing I would advise is for any future Metros around the country to have it clear from the start what its taxing powers are," Weiss added. "Our own powers to levy taxes other than ad valorem is still in doubt, and this situation is hampering Dade County's Metro."

The builk of Weiss' and Campbell's time on the rostrum will be spent in answering questions from the anticipated 1,000 delegates to the convention.

Contest Rules

1—Solve the puzzle as you would any crossword puzzle. Fill in your name and address. Incomplete entries ineligible.

2—To mail: Clip the puzzle coupon and paste or glue to the back of a three-cent U.S. postal card. Address to Sunny Fortune, P.O. Box 3700, Miami, Fla. No entries in envelopes will be opened.

3—Puzzles may also be deposited in the Sunny Fortune Box at The Herald front counter 200 S. Miami Ave. Postal cards are not necessary for entries dropped in this box. No entries in envelope will be opened.

4—Postmark deadline for entries is midnight Wednesday following publication on the previous Sunday or Monday. Deadline for entries at The Herald first floor counter is 5 p.m. Wednesday.

5—You do not have to buy the Miami Herald to enter. Exact size hand-drawn puzzle facsimiles are eligible. Duplicates of puzzles by mechanical means, or carbon paper will NOT be accepted.

6—The Miami Herald puzzle may be examined at circulation office of The Miami Herald or at city library free of charge.

7—Each contestant may submit as many as six entries.

8—If only one completely correct entry to each week's puzzle submitted in accordance with these rules is found, The Miami Herald will pay the winner a minimum of $300. If more than one set of correct answers is received, the award money will be divided equally among the winners.

9—If no correct entries are received in any week, $100 will be added to the original prize money each week until there is a winner.

10—Winners will be announced as soon as judging is completed. There is only one correct solution. The decision of the judges is final, and all contestants agree to abide by the judges' decision. No entries will be returned. All become the property of The Miami Herald.

11—The Miami Herald cannot be responsible for entries delayed or lost in the mails.

Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

Across

1—A novelist usually has a better chance of success if he makes his story a LIVELY one (Likely). —If it's LIVELY, the story will be of interest in itself. If it's but LIKELY, it may be about something which, though LIKELY, is quite dull.

4—Cynical indeed is the man who says that every husband has at least one FOE! (Woe). — FOE is the stronger term, and fits better with cynical indeed. A man who says that every husband has at least one WOE (a wife) might be called cynical, but not very cynical or cynical indeed.

5—A girl with social ambitions is apt to regard her parents' advice as mere attempts to BAR her progress (Mar). — They're merely advising her, not taking definite action. BAR is better; it means merely to obstruct. MAR goes much further; it means to spoil.

7—People who are very much ALIVE often get on well together (Alike). —Not ALIKE; too much depends on the characteristics they share. The natures of people who are very much ALIVE, vital, are more likely to be in harmony.

10—As a rule, the naughtier a child the more likely it is to be SORE topic of conversation between its parents (Sole.) — SOLE goes too far; the sole topic is the only topic, to the exclusion of all others. SORE, painful, doesn't cover such a wide field.

11—To get their way, even fond wives sometimes GALL their husbands (Gull). — To get their way fond wives more frequently than sometimes GULL, or beguile their husbands. They might do so by flattery! GALL is stronger, meaning to vex, annoy, harass; and that they sometimes do so is not going too far.

13—As a rule, an observant young man can soon tell when a girl friend of his has CLASS (Claws). If she's fond of him she might well try to conceal that she figuratively has CLAWS, that she can be a cat. Not so CLASS, quality or excellence, which is as a rule quickly recognized.

14—Alas! many men succeed in life through being WILY (Oily). —Some men might succeed in life through being OILY, greasy of manner, but not many. Many men succeed through being WILY, crafty, cunning, sly.

Down

1—We're seldom surprised when a person who is LED doesn't have much will-power (Lad). — Not LAD; lads can be very self-opinionated and stubborn. A person who is LED is one who takes the line of least resistance.

2—Mean of a cynical turn of mind are seldom the type that women can LEAD on (Lean). — LEAN is weak, because such men might well have a sense of duty. LEAD fits well.

3—You can often tell that a man is tactful by the way he PREVENTS an argument. (Presents.) — PRESENTS is less apt because many arguments do not call for tactful presentation. It's normally more obvious that he's tactful by the way he PREVENTS an argument.

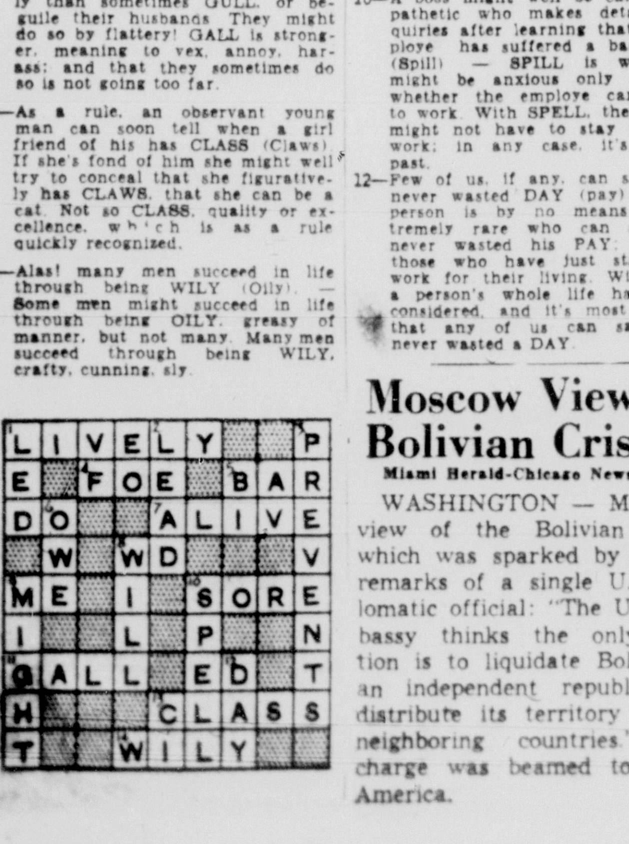
6—It's usually a shock when we find after a friend's death that he didn't OWE nearly so much as he pretended (Own). — With OWN it would be a surprise rather than a shock; most of us try to keep up appearances. It's more likely to be a shock with OWE; he might have borrowed money to pay mythical debts.

8—It's sometimes necessary for a man to quarrel with a woman to know her WILL (Well) — He might well come to an understanding of her, without quarreling; it is more reasonable to say that they'd have to qurrrel before he knew her WILL, her true wishes or desires. Sometimes we disclose in anger things we would not otherwise express.

9—Riches often enable a man to have MIGHT on his side! (Right). —Even flippantly, the statement is not true with riches. His being rich scarcely changes wrong into right. MIGHT is better.

10—A boss might well be called sympathetic who makes detailed inquiries after learning that an employe has suffered a bad SPELL (Spill) — SPILL is weak. He might be anxious only to know whether the employe can return to work. With SPELL, the employe might not have to stay from his work; in any case, it's in the past.

12—Few of us, if any, can say we've never wasted DAY (pay) — The person is by no means so extremely rare who can say he's never wasted his PAY; consider those who have just started to work for their living. With DAY, a person's whole life has to be considered, and it's most unlikely that any of us can say we've never wasted a DAY.



Moscow Views Bolivian Crisis

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON — Moscow's view of the Bolivian crisis, which was sparked by alleged remarks of a single U.S. diplomatic official: "The U.S. embassy thinks the only solution is to liquidate Bolivia as an independent republic and distribute its territory among neighboring countries." The charge was beamed to Latin America.

50 Pct. of South's Whites Want Dixiecrat to Run

Integration Issue May Split Democratic Party in 1960

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

The Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N. J. — In 1948, the civil rights issue split the Democratic National Convention. In 1960, integration may possibly do the same.

Sentiment among white Democrats in the South for a third party candidate is substantial at this time if Northern Democrats insist upon a strong pro-integrationist as the party's 1960 presidential candidate.

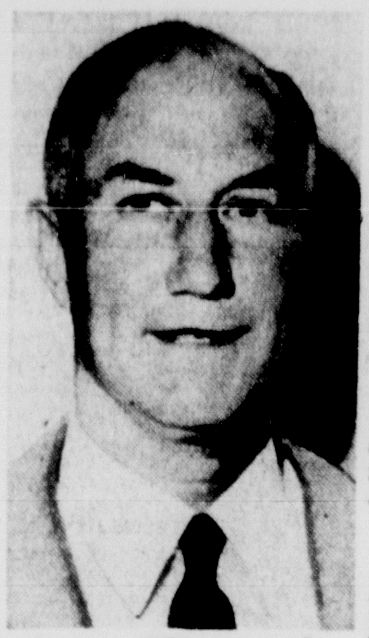
This important political fact emerges from a study conducted by the Gallup Poll of the possibilities of a Third Party movement developing again in the South as it did in 1948.

The study shows that, although Southern white Democrats are divided today on the issue of whether or not they would favor a States' Rights movement if the 1960 Democratic nominee is a Northerner who strongly favors school integration, more say they are for it than say they are against it—by a margin of 50 per cent to 29 per cent.

About one Democrat in five, 21 per cent, is undecided as of now.

* * *

THE obvious political dilemma facing the delegates to the 1960 democratic national convention in Los Angeles will be to select a candidate who will be acceptable to both the Northern liberal wing of the party as well as to the Southern conservative wing.



Strom Thurmond
. . . a 1948 figure

To determine just how strongly Southern white Democrats feel about a States' Rights party in the event the convention delegates choose a pro-integrationist in 1960, Gallup Poll reporters asked:

"Suppose that next year the Democratic Party nominates for the Presidency a Northern Democrat who strongly favors integration in the schools. In this case, would you be for or against organizing a separate States' Rights party and naming a candidate who opposes integration in the schools?"

The vote today of white Democrats in the South:

THIRD PARTY?	Pct.
For	50
Against	29
Undecided	21

Analysis of the findings shows that sentiment in favor of organizing a third party movement in the South if the convention chooses a pro-integrationist nominee is more substantial among older than with younger Southern white Democrats.

In the 1948 presidential election, four Southern states — Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina— deserted the Democratic column to vote for the Dixiecrat candidate, J. Strom Thurmond.

Thurmond polled 17 per cent of the popular vote in the South as the Dixiecrat presidential candidate.

* * *

IN 1952, General Eisenhower polled 49 per cent of the major-party vote in the South and captured five states—Virginia, Florida, Texas, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

In 1956, President Eisenhower received 51 per cent of the major-party vote in the South and in addition to the five states he carried in 1952 he also carried Kentucky and Louisiana.

In that election, an independent States' Rights party movement, with the party running under different names in the various states and with different presidential candidates in at least two states, made little headway.

Out of a total of 10,534,000 votes cast in the South, minor party candidates, including States' Rights candidates, polled 291,400—or 2.8 per cent of the popular vote.

German Industry Outlook is Good

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — A poll of 3,000 West German industrial firms suggests they will invest at about the same rate this year as they did in 1958. There may be decreases in coal and iron but heavy industry generally will gain. Some decreases are also expected in some consumer goods industries.

Pets Find Ranch a Happy Home

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH—There's a lion at Paradise Pet ranch, swank boarding home for dogs west of the city. There are also peacocks, a deer named Bambi that takes her breakfast toast from the mouth of the proprietor, Mrs. Betty Burdick, and also a pet cemetery.

The lion is the property of the West Palm Beach Jaycees and eventually will live in the proposed Jaycee zoo in Dreher Park.

The Jaycees acquired George — all male lions apparently are called George—from a family in South Florida.

George has been raised a pet — a house pet. He doesn't realize that he isn't human as this family had had him since he was two months old. Fact is, though, that George is rapidly outgrowing his cute baby ways.

Now a hefty 150 pounds—and getting heavier by the day—George is eight months old. At the ranch he has plenty of leeway, but is kept on a chain secured to the ceiling of his shed. George has been de-clawed.

With an excellent appetite, his lion's share of food as of now includes four pounds of hamburger a day, vitamins, milk, and succulent bones on which he crunches. And please, don't disturb him while he's boning up on his future as a social lion in the zoo.

(Fran Duval, photographer, kept at a respectful distance from George, who didn't relish the idea of having his picture taken. Fran didn't want to be lionized, either.)

Preening their feathers around and about the ranch are the proud peacocks. Those exotic fans are possessed only by the males. The boy peacock spreads the fan to attract the girl peacock. Some peacocks at Paradise ranch have a fan spread of six feet.

Many believe that peacocks mate for life, but Betty Burdick says at the ranch they have obsered that a peacock may have any number of wives, but they do observe the amenities. One wife at a time until she has deposited her quota of eggs. Just where the eggs are deposited Mrs. Burdick has never discovered, but at intervals the peahen will appear with her little family.

Nothing is more vainglorious than a peacock with outspread fan with its dazzling colors of green and gold and its peculiar eye-like markings.

Body of the peacock is peacock blue—what did you expect, flamingo pink?

Betty Burdick raised Bambi, now 11 years old from the time the gentle fawn was four days old. Bambi is always hungry, and will eat anything. She was interested in testing the flavor of Fran's camera.

The proposed zoo will have the lion, some peacocks, some specimen of deer, and many other animals.

George Is Coming Into Young Lionhood
. . . distinguished ranch resident has been declawed

But at Paradise Pet ranch there is a pet cemetery, and that the zoo will not have.

The cemetery occupies a peaceful stretch of green ground under the pines. Pets are laid away in specially designed caskets covered with velvet brocade and lined with satin. If desired a metallic casket is available.

The ranch provides headstones with the name of the pet and the surname of its owner. Some of the small plots are enclosed in hedges and are kept decorated with flowers, many with potted plants. Families visit the cemetery, and an interment is often the occasion for a private family ceremony.

In the cemetery there is a separate plot for cats.

Fishing Widows Getting Attention

By CHARLES H. DEAL
Herald Correspondent

MARATHON—"Fishing widows" need weep no more—that is if a Marathon Chamber of Commerce project crystalizes.

Realizing the need for recreational facilities, the chamber of commerce membership voted two weeks ago to establish a fund for sheltered shuffle board courts.

The proposal was so pupular the fund immediately jumped to more than $500.

Millionaire parachute manufacturer Stanley Switlik kicked off the recreational project by suggesting that all visitors to the Marathon area did not engage in fishing.

With the presentation of a $50 check by the Marathon Guides Association during the monthly membership meeting the fund had grown in materials, labor and cash to more than $1,200.

Target in the drive is a minimum of 10 courts, chairman Harry Senning announced.

We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1939 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.

NICHOL

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Hits Talk Otherwise as 'Premature'

We Could Go to War Over Berlin—Fulbright

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid-summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the U.S.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the U.S. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Bus Travel Lures Just Don't Exist

(First of Two Articles)

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Almost a million persons travel around Dade every day and try their best never to do it on a bus.

From the windows of their automobiles, they catch glimpses of another 200,000 people waiting on street corners for buses which don't run often enough, charge too much when they do come along, and usually don't take the passenger exactly where he wants to go.

KUNDE

Metro's traffic engineers drew this picture from a six-month survey of Dade's transit "service" and needs. Headed by George Kunde, the engineer found the service woeful, to the surprise of no one, and the needed improvements tremendous.

If the improvements don't come, they predict, transit ridership will continue to drop off, and the shakiest of the seven private bus companies in the area will simply quit.

The result would be still more cars on Metropolitan Miami's already inadequate streets, and an increase in the 75 million dollars a year currently being spent on county roads of all types.

A backdrop for all the engineers' planning and citizens' complaints over transit shortcomings is the simmering negotiation between Metro and bus tycoon William D. Pawley.

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100-million-dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers—but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists"—the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Iraqi Planes Attack Village In Syria, Damascus Charges

LONDON — (AP) — The Damascus radio said Iraqi planes attacked a village about six miles inside Syrian territory Saturday.

The broadcast monitored in London said a vehicle was destroyed but made no mention of casualties.

Radio Cairo came on the air at the same time and was believed heard to say that the planes used rockets in the raid.

But London monitors said the Cairo broadcast was indistinct and could not be heard with real accuracy.

Relations between Iraq and Syria have worsened since the Iraqi government put down a rebellion centered at Mosul in the northern provinces early this week.

Syria is linked in the United Arab Republic with Egypt, which has stepped up oral attacks on the Iraqi regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

On Tuesday U.A.R. sources charged Iraqi planes shot up the Syrian border village of Hamoudiya in the Tel Kotchek area of northeast Syria.

There was speculation the jets may have been hunting rebels in Northern Iraq fleeing toward the Syrian frontier, about 75 miles northwest of Mosul.

The village of Hamoudiya is about three miles inside Syrian territory.

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $350,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Buses Fail to Tempt County's Car-Riders

over his three lines to Metro in a "paper" sale. Metro would take title to the companies, saving about $1.5 million a year in federal taxes. Pawley would continue to operate his lines until he was paid, out of transit revenues, about $8.5 million.

The county would put up no cash, and own the Pawley system outright after an estimated six to eight years.

County Manager O. W. Campbell and a Metro Commission transit committee headed by Ben McGahey favor accepting Pawley's offer. The commission voted 9-2 last week to continue negotiations.

Bus-riding here has slumped 25 per cent in the past 10 years — a period which saw population rise 75 per cent. The new Dade Countians are mostly car-riders who have never been tempted, by the lures of convenience or economy, to set foot inside a bus. The lures don't exist.

In the last few months Metro Miami passed Los Angeles in cars-per-capita figures and now leads the nation. This area how has one car for each 1.75 persons. Ninety-one per cent of all travel done inside Dade County is by automobile. In other big cities fighting traffic strangulation and transit-use decline, the percentage of travel by car is far lower. For instance, 31.9 per cent in St. Louis, 17 per cent in Philadelphia, 30 per cent in Chicago.

Kunde, Dave Reynolds and others on the Metro traffic staff approached the transit problem with a limited goal, one they considered attainable. There's no hope, in a spread-out, car-owning metropolitan area like this, of getting most of the daily travelers back into buses.

If they can find ways to induce 20 per cent of the moving population to use buses (13 per cent more than at present), Dade will have a reasonable car-transit ratio. The bus companies would carry enough riders to stay solvent, and the road-improvement problem will be merely tremendous instead of hopeless.

During their fact-finding, the engineers learned that many common conceptions of the "transit problem" don't hold true in Metro Miami, and what worked elsewhere would flop here.

The usual idea of a transit's main function is carrying workers and shoppers into the downtown business district. But only 24 per cent of the persons who board a bus anywhere in Dade County end up downtown. This is true even though midtown Miami is served by the largest and most efficient Dade busline, Miami Transit Company.

Lack of crosstown routes which never approach midtown is the biggest failing of Metro Miami's splintered, disorganized transit service. Miami International Airport, second only to the downtown business district as a traffic generator, draws 12,000 workers a day. But only 100 travel by bus.

Miami Transit Company employes receive free passes, but still 74 per cent drive their own cars to work.

In other cities, providing exclusive bus lanes on major arteries has speeded service and lured commuters back to transit. That gimmick won't work here, the engineers say. Too many arterial streets here have only two moving lanes.

If, by some magic, half the cars could be removed from Flagler St. during rush hour, and buses had lanes all to themselves, the overall speed of traffic still would be increased only three to five per cent, Reynolds concluded.

Metro Miami, a unique area in so many ways, demands a bold, original assault to its transit problem.

Dust Turns Texas Day Into Night

By United Press International

A fast-moving March snowstorm whipped out of the Rockies into the plains Saturday, dmping heavy snow and piling up deep drifts, and dust storms turned daylight "darker than night" over Texas.

The storm headed across an area battered and isolated a week ago by 20-inch snowfalls in one of the worst snowstorms of March in recent years.

The giant dust storm covered the Texas Panhandle, drastically reducing visibility. At Amarillo, visibility was one mile during the storm, while other areas reported zero visibility.

Dust storms also swept over parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through Northern Iowa, northeast Nebraska, southwest South Dakota, southern Minnesota and southern and central Wisconsin, and the central and southern portion of lower Michigan.

Four to six inches of snow whitened the Nebraska landscape shortly after the storm slipped out of the Rockies. Brisk winds, accompanying a cold front, whirled the snow into drifts three to four feet deep over many sections of Nebraska. Highways were treacherous due to snow and drifts.

6 Nabbed As Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.

McLANEY

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Jesus Antonion Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitimate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonion Prieto.

Cuban police said Solomon was carrying $150,000 in pesos and Prieto $30,500.

No address was given by the Cubans for the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

350 Cities Lose Transit Systems; Are We Next?

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

* * *

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the U.S. has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually—and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

* * *

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

Her 'Fling' At Sunny Pays Off!

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.

SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

And if there's any money left she may travel to Tennessee to see her son, Merton Lowell, 24.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Forfune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

Today's puzzle is on page 14B.

NAPLES AND OKEECHOBEE AREAS—Partly cloudy Sunday and Sunday night. A few showers likely Sunday afternoon. High Sunday 78 to 82 with southerly winds 15 to 25 mph through Sunday night.

BROWARD, PALM BEACH AND KEYS AREAS—Partly cloudy through Sunday night with a few showers likely late Sunday. High Sunday 78 to 82. Low Sunday night 66 to 70. Southeasterly winds 15 to 25 mph.

SMALL BOAT BULLETIN — Seas moderate to locally rough and the inland waters choppy. Southeasterly winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Winds becoming more southerly and increasing some during the day. Warmer.

MARINE — Jacksonville through the Florida Straits: Small craft warnings are displayed from St. Augustine northward. Increasingly southerly winds in the north portion of up to 35 m.p.h. Southeasterly winds over the south portion at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Partly cloudy with showers developing late today. East Gulf: Small craft warnings are displayed north of Tampa. Southerly winds of 20 to 35 m.p.h. in the north portion and southeast to south winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. over the south portion increasing some during the day. Cloudy with showers in the north portion and partly cloudy with showers developing by afternoon in the south portion.

National Summary

By early afternoon Saturday temperatures neared the 70 degree mark from the Gulf States northward into portions of the Ohio Valley and parts of Texas warmed to the 80's before noon while a wintry storm accompanied by high winds and heavy snow spread out of the Rockies into the central plains.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance, centered over Kansas, controlled the circulation over most of the country Saturday. Warming breezes carrying moisture northward from the Gulf accounted for patches of rain from Eastern Texas into Georgia, while increasing cloudiness was noted over much of the east.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

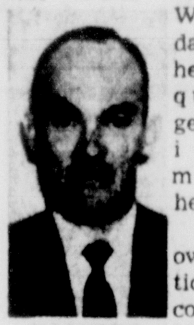
Around Island

On Ball Citizens Needed

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief



CAICEDO

KEY WEST — Some hard, down-to-earth viewpoints on matters of vital concern to this island were voiced at Wednesday's public hearing on the question of getting some improvements built here.

Three motel owners, in particular, offered comments and made suggestions which merit close examination from every citizen who is interested in his community.

The sum total of the motelmen's message: Key West better get on the ball — immediately — or face up to some unpleasant consequences.

Herman Sarno of the Key Wester expressed special concern over local dependence on the Navy's payroll. The changing face of modern warfare might do away with the submarine "tomorrow, next week or five years from now," he said.

He plugged for development of the tourist trade as a "backstop and perhaps one day as a substitute for the military."

Key West has many natural assets to draw the visitor: sunshine, historic charm and a unique geographic position as the U.S.'s southernmost city. Well, in the continental U.S., anyway.

* * *

Keys Hustling

THESE THINGS, however, of themselves do not keep the visitor here. Other attractions and activities are needed to engage tourists for several days.

Sarno and his two fellow motelmen thought a convention hall and an enlarged golf course would be a good start toward establishing these attractions.

Sam Golan, of the Key Ambassador, pointed up the growing competition for the tourist traffic from Marathon. They already have an 18-hole course and another one on the way, he said. They also have a convention hall.

Sarno and Golan are businessmen and their out to make money. They are interested in tourism obviously because it means more business for them.

* * *

70 Cents

DOES IT MEAN business for anyone else? That question wasn't specifically asked, but Melvin Levitt, owner of the Marine Motel, answered with a positive yes.

The tourist dollar is split roughly 30 cents for the motel operator and 70 cents for the community, he said.

Directly and indirectly, tourism creates prosperity through more employment, more sales, more money circulating for more people to spend. Levitt compared it to a chain which pulls the entire economy of the community.

All this is undoubtedly true. Key West's big problem now is deciding who's going to pay for the facilities needed to hold the dollar-spending tourist here. The taxpayer? Private enterprise? An angel?

* * *

Private Job?

SO FAR the taxpayer has indicated his unwillingness to plunk out more coin for a program to build these improvements.

Everybody says, "Let private business come in and do it." But nobody seems to know whether private business is interested — now, today — in assuming these undertakings.

If business wants to build Key West a new golf course, a convention hall and a marina, great. Bring them in.

Otherwise, the world will keep right on moving along while the Southernmost City (Continental) is still arguing the problem amid all its sunshine and historic charm.

Melon-choly

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — America's watermelon growers in session here faced one major disappointment Saturday: no home grown melons were available and those placed on display had to be imported from Cuba.

Flower Display Will Open Today

By VALERIE N. DEAL
Herald Correspondent

MARATHON—A theme of "Florida Keys Creations" has been selected for the third annual Tropical Flower Festival of the Marathon Garden Club. The event opens at 3 p.m. today at the Marathon Chamber of Commerce and the Marathon Yacht club.

The floral event will continue in both buildings through Wednesday. It will be open from 1 p.m. until 10 p.m. daily. The expanded exhibition will feature 21 classes of trees, flowers, and foliage.

Mrs. John Goggin, president of the club since its organization two years ago, is general chairman of the show.

The club was founded to acquaint people with tropical plants. Many of the plants to be seen are transplants from other regions of the world.

The public may take guided tours through a brilliantly blooming garden and arboreteum. Orchids, African violets, bougainvillea, Key Vaca developed croton species, rare hibiscus, the passion flower and many other tropical plants are on display.

Dainty miniature arrangements — under three inches in height — require close inspection for full appreciation of their jewel-like makeup.

Shadow boxes have been arranged to give the illusion of peering through a ship's port hole. A portion of the show is devoted to hanging baskets, shells, both local and Caribbean, tropical fruit arrangements, and place settings.

Poisonous plants of the Keys will be isolated in an educational display.

A tropical jungle will be made up of coconut palms, numerous species of cacti, orchids and fruit trees.

Assisting Mrs. Goggin are Mrs. William E. Kennedy, Mrs. S. H. Rosen, Mrs. D. R. Hutchinson, and Mrs. James S. Y. Ivins.

Art, Music Fete Today Is Feature

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST—Treats for the eye and the ear are on tap today at the annual Festival of Music and Art at West Martello Tower.

A four-man art show will feature works by Gene Otto, Karl Agricola, Gerald Leake and Dorothe Chilcutt. In the musical section, a program, continuous from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m., has been arranged.

A guest artist, John Steele of Miami, will open the program with organ selections. Thereafter there will be half-hour performances by:

Tom Whitley and his orchestra, Key West High School Choral group, Southernmost Accordian band, Mrs. Paul Auman, piano selections, and Mrs. Marian Fort, playing the flute.

These will be followed by the Community Choral group, vocal numbers by Mrs. Mari Draper, Mrs. Marie Valenzuela at the piano, Miss Martha Starke, flute numbers; piano by Bill Provost, instrumental music by members of the Key West High School music department.

The evening will be capped with old English folk ballads, performed by Sean Crawford, and another recital of organ melodies by John Steele.

The festival is sponsored by Holy Innocents Episcopal Mission, with Dr. Dennis Hoeffler acting as master of ceremonies. Tickets will be on sale at the tower, on the Monroe County Beach.

Show Today To Seek CP Unit Funds

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST—Miami TV star, Chuck Zink, headlines the amateur and professional talent to appear in the Radiothon benefit, 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. today.

Nine bands, plus dozens of single and group performers, will take part in the program, Chairman Lou Carbonell said.

The five-hour show, to be staged at the high school auditorium, is open to the public free of charge.

Proceeds from the affair will go to support the therapy center of the Monroe County Cerebral Palsy and Crippled Children's Association.

The center, operated on a non-denomination and non-racial basis, treats patients at no charge. At present, Carbonell said, there are 31 patients receiving treatment, including seven Navy children.

Professional entertainers from every night club in town have volunteered to appear. Included are a number of trios, several vocalists and a brass band.

Pledges and donations may be phoned to CYpress 6-5614 during the radiothon, Carbonell said. Contributions may be mailed, or brought in person, during the show, he added.

Members of the local Telephone Operator's Union are volunteering services and a group of women plan to canvass neighborhood's for donations during the show, Carbonell said.

Breakfast Will Open Fund Drive

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST — William Lantaff, former U.S. congressman from this district, and Rear Adm. F. D. McCorkle, Key West Naval Base commander, will top the guest list at the United Fund kickoff breakfast Tuesday.

Lantaff was campaign chairman of the recently concluded Dade County United Fund drive. He will be the keynote speaker at the breakfast, at 7:45 a.m. at the La Concha hotel.

Adm. McCorkle will present a check, representing the Navy's contribution to the 1959 United Fund drive here.

Joe Pinder, president of the fund, urged all volunteer workers taking part in the drive to attend the meeting.

Ten agencies are participating this year in the United Fund. Five are devoted to youth work, three to servicemen, and the other two are general welfare agencies.

Pinder stressed consideration of the agencies' work and that the Fund's effort enables one solicitation to support them all.

"The continued operation of these worthwhile agencies depends on each firm and individual in the community assuming a fair share of the united drive," he said.

TV Repair Racket Broken Up

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Two men operating an appliance store in downtown Jacksonville have been arrested and charged with stealing television sets from people who thought the sets were being taken for repairs.

Detective Sgt. J. R. Heard said the store advertised low cost service calls but when a repairman arrived in response to a call he said the set had to be taken to the shop for repairs.

He obligingly offered to leave another set for the customer while his was being repaired and asked the customer to sign "insurance papers" on the temporary set.

Heard said the papers were actually bills of sale and when a customer asked when his repaired set would be returned, he was told the company knew nothing of a set being picked up for repairs but the customer was behind on payments for the set he bought.

The company then would repossess the set, which the customer thought had been loaned to him, Heard said.

Police Hunt Wife of Policeman

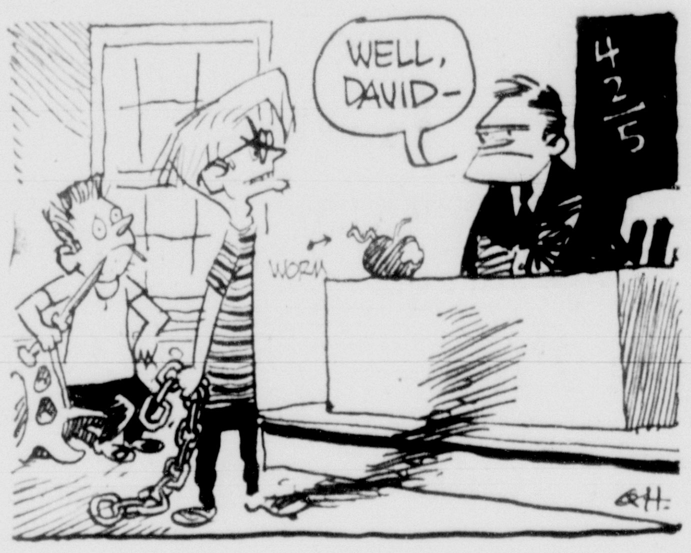
NEW YORK —(UPI)— Authorities said Saturday they have been unable to find the wife of retired Police Sgt. Joseph Luberda, who has refused to testify about names of underworld figures and $19,500 found in his car.

Assistant District Attorney Aaron A. Koota of Brooklyn said a subpena was issued for Mrs. Mary Luberda March 6 but attempts to serve it have been unsuccessful.

'They're Monsters'

Why Teachers Quit

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer



WEST PALM BEACH — Who says school days, taught to the tune of the hickory stick, are gone?

In Palm Beach County, maybe.

But a former New York school teacher vacationing in West Palm Beach can tell you a blackboard jungle tale where the hickory stick—or a modern counterpart — has its place.

Tony Carusone, now a welfare worker, says at public high schools in the Mohawk Valley region of upstate New York, teachers go forth each day with a "meet 'em, greet 'em and defeat 'em" attitude.

"They're monsters," he says of the younger generation.

For instance, he was teaching an electrical shop class whose favorite pastime was wiring the teacher's chair with an electric charge.

And once he had a study room filled with 36 girls who all decided they were going to sing the "Mickey Mouse Mambo." They did, despite his frantic shouts of "Quiet, Quiet."

When he started teaching in 1955, an oldtimer sent him into the classroom with this admonition: "Circle the room, never turn your back, and never get in the middle of them."

He slipped up once — he turned his back. And the kids quietly, but deftly, took all the screws out of his desk. When next he leaned on it, he fell on his face.

"They're organized too," Carusone said. "They have captains and lieutenants."

Each day when he went into class, he had to take on one of the leaders in a test of strength. If he won with Indian wrestling, he could teach, and the lieutenant enforced the discipline with a snap of his fingers.

How does it go on?

The teachers have a saying that sums it all up:

"The teacher is afraid of the principal, the principal is afraid of the Board of Education, the Board of Education is afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the students and the students aren't afraid of anyone."

Besides coping with his own students, Carusone was called upon by the fair sex on the teaching staff for help.

The same school marm who appealed to him to help control her unruly class also ended up one day getting herself locked in a closet by her students.

"After a year, I quit," he says.

"He swapped jobs with a social worker who "pooh-poohed" his tales out of school.

"In three months, she had a nervous breakdown," he said.

'Emergency' Move

Methodist Laymen Call Race Parley

BIRMINGHAM —(AP)— Methodist laymen from Alabama and Northwest Florida will meet here Thursday to map strategy aimed at preserving racial segregation in their churches.

The object of the meeting is to form an organization, known as the Methodist Laymen's Union.

Earlier this month, laymen who started the wheels in motion for the organization, sent a 22-page booklet to churches in Alabama and Northwest Florida.

The booklet, signed by Circuit Judge Whit Windham of Birmingham, Circuit Judge L. S. Moore of Centreville, Ala., K. E. Cooper, Birmingham attorney, and 31 other laymen, outlined pronouncements the organization hopes to adopt.

Mainly, the booklet deals with what the laymen consider a danger the church, on a national basis, is moving toward integration.

"Our idea is not be be wild, rough or mean," said Windham. "This is simply a union of Christian laymen, looking to the future welfare of Christianity in general, and the Methodist Church in particular."

Windham pointed out the Methodist General Conference in 1956 adopted a resolution that called church segregation an evil. A committee was named to study the jurisdictional system and report at the 1960 conference.

"I'm not a member of that committee," said Windham, "but I've got more than my suspicions about what recommendations they are going to make."

He declined to elaborate on his opinion but said:

"Let's just say we are trying to get ourselves ready for any emergency."

Several laymen have voiced a fear the Negro jurisdiction of the church might be abolished, putting the Negro Methodists in jurisdictions now all-white.

Five white conference and one Negro conference were set up when the Methodist Episcopal Church North, Methodist Protestant Church and the Methodist Church South united in 1939, closing a split that had existed since the Civil War.

In Miami, Glenn W. Geld, district lay leader of the Methodist Church, said South Florida representatives would not attend the Birmingham meeting "because that is really an all-Alabama affair."

He said "the only reason" Northwest Florida is affected is because the area west of the Apalachicola River has long been a part of the South Alabama conference of the Methodist Church.

(Gold said no other Florida branch of the Methodist Church was "interested" in the proposal.)

Orange Blossoms Are 'Spotty'

LAKELAND — (UPI) — Florida Citrus Mutual said Saturday early and midseason orange blooms are "spotty."

General Manager Robert W. Rutledge said a 21-county survey, however, is a "representative sampling and not all-inclusive."

Rutledge said it is still to early to determine whether this spotty condition is an indication of the size of next season's early and midseason oranges.

But he said citrus trees are showing excellent recovery from last winter's freezes and that many trees have considerable new growth.

The valencia bloom, the report noted, was "excellent." Volume movement of valencias this season is expected in about three weeks.

Justice Douglas To Talk on Asia

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— William O. Douglas, associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, will deliver a lecture here Monday night on the battle between democracy and communism in Asia.

He also will make a television appearance and will be an overnight guest at the governor's mansion.

Douglas, whose appearance is sponsored by the University Lecture Series, has traveled widely in Asia.

Field Work at Jacksonville

State's Speedy Test Is Germ War Weapon

Cuts Time Of Naming Bacteria

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Federal officials believe Jacksonville field tests of a new rapid germ identification technique will prove vital in the battle against certain diseases and in defense against possible germ warfare.

The significance of the work was revealed in a statement by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in Washington.

Dr. James L. McQueen, U.S. Public Health Service veterinarian assigned to the Florida Board of Health, and Mrs. Edith I. Jones, laboratory technician, have been working on the Jacksonville tests.

Known as the fluorescent antibody technique, Flemming said the new test is important because:

"It opens up a practical new diagnostic avenue as a material aid looking toward the eventual eradication of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

"It could greatly speed the diagnosis of a wide range of communicable diseases such as rabies, diptheria, polio, influenza, typhus and Rocky Mountain spotted fever, so specific treatment could be started immediately.

"It could be become an indispensable tool for rapid application of counter measures against germ warefare attack. For example, such an attack might come from the air—by explosion of a germ bomb, by spraying germs, or by release of infected insects."

Flemming said, in addition to trials here, another with comparable results is being conducted with the cooperation of the Alabama Department of Health.

The first successful field test, he said, was conducted by the Florida Board of Health in cases of suspected cases of rabies in animals.

Specimens were tested with the new technique in a matter of hours and the same specimens were put through the standard rabies test, which takes two to three weeks.

"On Feb. 3, field reports showed results obtained from the fluorescent antibody technique agreed 100 per cent with results from the time-consuming test," Flemming said in his statement.

With the new technique, enough specimens containing the bacteria or virus could be obtained from any surface, or even from a sample of air, to make a reliable test, he went on.

Another advantage, Flemming said, is that specimens "could be tested for several different diseases at once in a very short time."

The fluorescent technique was discovered 10 years ago at Harvard school of medicine. Steps for putting it to routine use in a public health laboratory were developed at the communicable disease test center of the Public Health Service in Atlanta.

Woman Quizzed On Narcotics

DELAND — Mrs. Elizabeth Cain, 66, of Lakeland has been questioned in a Volusia County narcotics investigation, Sheriff Rodney Thursby reported.

The sheriff said she is the mother of Thomas Cain, 29, musician at a Daytona Beach night club under arrest on charges of possessing and selling narcotics. Three other night club entertainers have been charged with possessing narcotics.

Worried by Younger Rivals, Women Asking for Surgery

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function,

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons.

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind.—(AP)—A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed in Hutchison.

Marine Study Given $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,000 grant to the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami for basic research on radium distribution in the waters of the Florida Straits, the Bahamas and the Caribbean area.

This work is to ascertain how fast radium escapes from the sediments on the bottom. Research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Fritz Koczy, associate professor of oceanography.

Three to Attend Child Unit Meet

Chairman Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey, Mrs. Sydney Weintraub, and Dr. Stephen Wright, all of Miami, will attend a meeting of the Florida Children's Commission Monday and Tuesday in Jacksonville.

Top item on the agenda will be a discussion of recommendations to be made to the coming session of the Legislature.

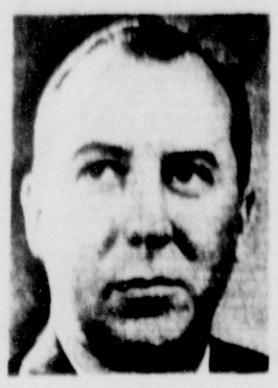
We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1939 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.



NICHOL

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Fender-to-Fender, Miami Drivers Sweat Out a National Ailment
. . . hardening of the traffic arteries: cars, cars everywhere and barely a bus in sight

While We Strangle in Traffic

Transit Systems Are Dying All Over U.S.--Ours Next?

Miami is not alone in its fight to keep from being strangled in its own traffic.

Cities all over the U.S. are struggling with the acute problem of moving people to and from their jobs on traffic-clogged streets.

What's wrong? And what's the solution?

This is the first of five articles on the problem that grows worse daily.

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the U.S.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the U.S. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Bus Travel Lures Just Don't Exist

(First of Two Articles)

By LEO ADDE

Almost a million persons travel around Dade every day and try their best never to do it on a bus.

KUNDE

From the windows of their automobiles, they catch glimpses of another 200,000 people waiting on street corners for buses which don't run often enough, charge too much when they do come along, and usually don't take the passenger exactly where he wants to go.

Metro's traffic engineers drew this picture from a six-month survey of Dade's transit "service" and needs. Headed by George Kunde, the engineer found the service woeful, to the surprise of no one, and the needed improvements tremendous.

If the improvements don't come, they predict, transit ridership will continue to drop off, and the shakiest of the seven private bus companies in the area will simply quit.

The result would be still more cars on Metropolitan Miami's already inadequate streets, and an increase in the 75 million dollars a year currently being spent on county roads of all types.

A backdrop for all the engineers' planning and citizens' complaints over transit shortcomings is the simmering negotiation between Metro and bus tycoon William D. Pawley.

Hits Talk Otherwise as 'Premature'

We Could Go to War Over Berlin—Fulbright

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid-summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100-million-dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers—but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists"—the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Iraqi Planes Attack Village In Syria, Damascus Charges

LONDON — (AP) — The Damascus radio said Iraqi planes attacked a village about six miles inside Syrian territory Saturday.

The broadcast monitored in London said a vehicle was destroyed but made no mention of casualties.

Radio Cairo came on the air at the same time and was believed heard to say that the planes used rockets in the raid.

But London monitors said the Cairo broadcast was indistinct and could not be heard with real accuracy.

Relations between Iraq and Syria have worsened since the Iraqi government put down a rebellion centered at Mosul in the northern provinces early this week.

Syria is linked in the United Arab Republic with Egypt, which has stepped up oral attacks on the Iraqi regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

On Tuesday U.A.R. sources charged Iraqi planes shot up the Syrian border village of Hamoudiya in the Tel Kotchek area of northeast Syria.

There was speculation the jets may have been hunting rebels in Northern Iraq fleeing toward the Syrian frontier, about 75 miles northwest of Mosul.

The village of Hamoudiya is about three miles inside Syrian territory.

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $550,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Buses Fail to Tempt County's Car-Riders

over his three lines to Metro in a "paper" sale. Metro would take title to the companies, saving about $1.5 million a year in federal taxes. Pawley would continue to operate his lines until he was paid, out of transit revenues, about $8.5 million.

The county would put up no cash, and own the Pawley system outright after an estimated six to eight years.

County Manager O. W. Campbell and a Metro Commission transit committee headed by Ben McGahey favor accepting Pawley's offer. The commission voted 9-2 last week to continue negotiations.

Bus-riding here has slumped 25 per cent in the past 10 years — a period which saw population rise 75 per cent. The new Dade Countians are mostly car-riders who have never been tempted, by the lures of convenience or economy, to set foot inside a bus. The lures don't exist.

In the last few months Metro Miami passed Los Angeles in cars-per-capita figures and now leads the nation. This area how has one car for each 1.75 persons. Ninety-one per cent of all travel done inside Dade County is by automobile. In other big cities fighting traffic strangulation and transit-use decline, the percentage of travel by car is far lower. For instance, 31.9 per cent in St. Louis, 17 per cent in Philadelphia, 30 per cent in Chicago.

Kunde, Dave Reynolds and others on the Metro traffic staff approached the transit problem with a limited goal, one they considered attainable. There's no hope, in a spread-out, car-owning metropolitan area like this, of getting most of the daily travelers back into buses.

If they can find ways to induce 20 per cent of the moving population to use buses (13 per cent more than at present), Dade will have a reasonable car-transit ratio. The bus companies would carry enough riders to stay solvent, and the road-improvement problem will be merely tremendous instead of hopeless.

During their fact-finding, the engineers learned that many common conceptions of the "transit problem" don't hold true in Metro Miami, and what worked elsewhere would flop here.

The usual idea of a transit's main function is carrying workers and shoppers into the downtown business district. But only 24 per cent of the persons who board a bus anywhere in Dade County end up downtown. This is true even though midtown Miami is served by the largest and most efficient Dade busline, Miami Transit Company.

Lack of crosstown routes which never approach midtown is the biggest failing of Metro Miami's splintered, disorganized transit service. Miami International Airport, second only to the downtown business district as a traffic generator, draws 12,000 workers a day. But only 100 travel by bus.

Miami Transit Company employes receive free passes, but still 74 per cent drive their own cars to work.

In other cities, providing exclusive bus lanes on major arteries has speeded service and lured commuters back to transit. That gimmick won't work here, the engineers say. Too many arterial streets here have only two moving lanes.

If, by some magic, half the cars could be removed from Flagler St. during rush hour, and buses had lanes all to themselves, the overall speed of traffic still would be increased only three to five per cent, Reynolds concluded.

Metro Miami, a unique area in so many ways, demands a bold, original assault to its transit problem.

Dust Turns Texas Day Into Night

By United Press International

A fast-moving March snowstorm whipped out of the Rockies into the plains Saturday, dmping heavy snow and piling up deep drifts, and dust storms turned daylight "darker than night" over Texas.

The storm headed across an area battered and isolated a week ago by 20-inch snowfalls in one of the worst snowstorms of March in recent years.

The giant dust storm covered the Texas Panhandle, drastically reducing visibility. At Amarillo, visibility was one mile during the storm, while other areas reported zero visibility.

Dust storms also swept over parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through Northern Iowa, northeast Nebraska, southwest South Dakota, southern Minnesota and southern and central Wisconsin, and the central and southern portion of lower Michigan.

Four to six inches of snow whitened the Nebraska landscape shortly after the storm slipped out of the Rockies. Brisk winds, accompanying a cold front, whirled the snow into drifts three to four feet deep over many sections of Nebraska. Highways were treacherous due to snow and drifts.

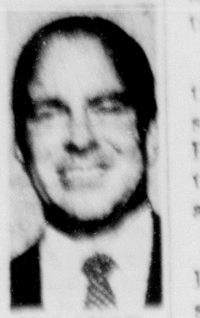
6 Nabbed As Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.



McLANEY

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Jesus Antonion Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitimate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonion Prieto.

Cuban police said Solomon was carrying $150,000 in pesos and Prieto $30,500.

No address was given by the Cubans fon the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

* * *

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the U.S. has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually—and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

* * *

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

Her 'Fling' At Sunny Pays Off!

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.

SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

And if there's any money left she may travel to Tennessee to see her son, Merton Lowell, 24.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Fortune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

Today's puzzle is on page 14B.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

Hollywood's 8th Irish Fair Rollicks Along

Shamrocks, 'Small Pies', O'Goats to You

HOLLYWOOD — Flowery Young Circle, boom-time five-acre momento beribboned by Federal Highway, shook with mirthful tremors of the Irish Fair Saturday.

St. Patrick would have been proud.

Opening day was all Irish. The shamrock became a symbol of fun throughout the city.

Thousands of glad-eyed youngsters — alone, chaperoned and accompanied by parents — played games, munched apples-on-the-stick and cotton candy, and participated in special events.

Music was furnished by the McArthur High School band.

Officials found plenty of freckles on the pretty face of 11-year-old Suzanne Peters, 2107 Rodman St. — 64 to the square inch to be exact. That was enough to out-stipple red-haired runnerup Helen Cohen, 11, of 1813 Harding St.

The 60 freckles crammed in an equal amount of space on shiny face of 11-year-old Douglas Prentis, 2811 Adams St., was enough to win the boys' contest.

Chubby Billy Thomas, nine, pie-spattered and happy, showed about 100 other kids how

'They're Small'
. . . claims Billy Thomas

he got that way by polishing off a couple of lemon meringue pies. "They're only small pies," he mumbled between mouthsful.

The O'Lambs, McCalves, O'Donkies, and O'Sheep, herded off to a corner by themselves, made a big hit with the tots. The Irish animals didn't seem to mind petting a bit.

The city recreation department-sponsored fair will run through Tuesday, St. Patrick's Day. Top event for adults Saturday was the Irish musical "Killarney" shown in the Young Circle Bandshell at 8 p.m.

Today's fun-packed schedule features a Green Hat Regatta at 10 a.m. on North Lake, and a student art exhibit in the recreation building on Federal Highway at 2 p.m.

"Killarney" will be staged again Monday night at 8. An international AAU collegiate and high school track meet will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at South Broward High School.

Some 475 ribbons, 34 trophies and 70 certificates will have been awarded by the time the eighth annual Irish Fair is history.

Carpenters Offered $3.25 Hourly Scale

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A contractors' negotiating committee has agreed to pay union carpenters $3.25 an hour—five cents more than the carpenter's district council demanded when its members stopped work more than a year ago.

But Mrs. Lily Goehring, Broward Builders Exchange executive secretary, pointed out Saturday that more than a year has elapsed since the two parties haggled between the extremes of $2.85 and $3.20.

The carpenters' walkout lasted more than six weeks. They went back to work without a contract with with the Exchange. Since the walkout some contractors have been paying the $3.20 originally demanded by the carpenters and some less, according to the contractors.

"An automatic rate increase in Miami fron $3.25 to $3.40, effective April 1, put us in a very bad bargaining position," Mrs. Goehring said.

Frank Pierce, union business representative, said the proposed rates are $3.25 until Oct. 1; $3.32½ from October until April 1, 1960; $3.40 from April to Oct. 1, 1960; and $3.45 from October until the expiration of the contract on March 31, 1961.

The committee's agreement is subject to votes by union and Exchange members.

The increase will affect some 2,000 union members in this area, Pierce said. Non-union carpenters will benefit indirectly, he added.

A federal mediator was appointed to aid in the settlement. Both sides said they had agreed not to comment on the outcome of the negotiations "in the interest of restoring harmony."

Ratification is not expected for about two weeks. Pierce said that locals in Boca Raton, Pompano Beach, Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale will hold separate elections, but the ballots will be counted together. Richardson said Exchange members will probably vote during the week of March 23.

The work stoppage stirred strong feelings. Contractors charged it was illegal.

Thieves Tuned In For $40,000 Haul

Herald Bureau

HILLSBORO BEACH—Police searched Saturday for thieves who snatched some $40,000 worth of furs and jewelry from a swank beachfront home as two servants watched television.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Graves, 973 Hillsboro Mile, found their room a shambles when they returned home at 1 a.m.

The burglars gained entry by removing a jalousie and cutting a screen sometime after the Graves left at 6 p.m. Friday, police said.

Nicklaces, rings, two or three mink stoles and a fur coat were among the items reported missing by Police Chief Ray McMullin. Sheriff's investigators were called in.

A housekeeper and caretaker in another wing of the house took the dog for a walk between 10:30 and 11 p.m., McMullin added. Any noise would have been drowned out by the television and heavy surf, he said. Graves is a Shaker Heights, Ohio, executive.

Conductor Finds His Project

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD — Conductor Whitey Berquist wasn't walking out on his musical career when he left NBC in Chicago a year ago and came to Hollywood.

"In fact, I left because I wanted to do something — become productive again," he said.

Berquist is a white-haired, red-faced, enthusiastic man who at the moment is arranging the 23 numbers for "Killarney," the musical production of the Irish Fair. The first show was Saturday night. The final one will be Monday at 8 p.m.

"Radio dwindled to practically nothing as far as I was concerned as a staff conductor," Berquist said. "What television there was moved to New York or to California, where the talent is. Although I was being paid handsomely, I just wasn't doing anything. I wasn't ready to retire."

Berquist, 55, is now musical director for Channel 10 in Miami, but productions requiring his services there are few. He plans to start "selling" his talents — return to active conducting soon.

On a desk in his home at 1162 Grant St., there is a stack of papers. They are his own compositions.

He believes the rock 'n' roll is beginning to wane a little.

"Don't get me wrong," he said. "I like a beat. I like jazz; big band jazz. But this use of gimmicks on an unmusical voice along with a couple of guitars doesn't contribute much to the art."

How was Killarney shaping up? he was asked Friday.

"Fine. Eileen Wall, the choreographer, has done a terrific job with all of the kids. They are mostly amateurs. There is some real talent in the show, though."

How about his end of the production?

"The usual. I do it every time. I'll be up all night — drinking coffee and smoking cigarets. But it will be ready by show time."

Pump Dropped by Parachute Kept Them Afloat

Aid From Sky Saves Crewmen

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A pump, dropped by parachute from an airplane 300 feet up, landed neatly on the outrigger of a 52-foot yacht, 17 miles off Fort Lauderdale Saturday. The pump enabled the crew to keep the boat afloat until the Coast Guard took the craft in tow.

Lt. Cmdr. Russell Lentner of the Coast Guard base at Dinner Key piloted the plane which dropped the pump and a gasoline motor to the cabin cruiser, Mister Jim.

Capt. Edward Twist, 52, and his son, Donald, 24, were the only persons aboard the yacht, which developed trouble on its way to Bimini. They live at 4580 SW 34th Ter., Fort Lauderdale.

"The chute hit right on the outrigger," said Donald Twist. "It was the best shot I've ever seen."

The Twists sent a distress signal at 8:30 a.m. The line which discharges water from the engine's cooling system broke. The engine room was about three quarters full of water before the pump was dropped.

"We spotted them about 9:13 a.m.," Cmdr. Lentner said. "I saw the two of them up top with life jackets on. They had a raft over the side."

Edward Twist said he and his son left Port Everglades at 6:15 a.m. to pick up the yacht's owner in Bimini for a fishing trip. The owner is Andy Griffith of Orangeburg, S.C.

'They're Monsters'

Why Teachers Quit

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Who says school days, taught to the tune of the hickory stick, are gone?

In Palm Beach County, maybe.

But a former New York school teacher vacationing in West Palm Beach can tell you a blackboard jungle tale where the hickory stick—or a modern counterpart — has its place.

Tony Carusone, now a welfare worker, says at public high schools in the Mohawk Valley region of upstate New York, teachers go forth each day with a "meet 'em, greet 'em and defeat 'em" attitude.

"They're monsters," he says of the younger generation.

For instance, he was teaching an electrical shop class whose favorite pastime was wiring the teacher's chair with an electric charge.

And once he had a study room filled with 36 girls who all decided they were going to sing the "Mickey Mouse Mambo." They did, despite his frantic shouts of "Quiet, Quiet."

When he started teaching in 1955, an oldtimer sent him into the classroom with this admonition: "Circle the room, never turn your back, and never get in the middle of them."

He slipped up once — he turned his back. And the kids quietly, but deftly, took all the screws out of his desk. When next he leaned on it, he fell on his face.

"They're organized too," Carusone said. "They have captains and lieutenants."

Each day when he went into class, he had to take on one of the leaders in a test of strength. If he won with Indian wrestling, he could teach, and the lieutenant enforced the discipline with a snap of his fingers.

How does it go on?

The teachers have a saying that sums it all up:

"The teacher is afraid of the principal, the principal is afraid of the Board of Education, the Board of Education is afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the students and the students aren't afraid of anyone."

Besides coping with his own students, Carusone was called upon by the fair sex on the teaching staff for help.

The same school marm who appealed to him to help control her unruly class also ended up one day getting herself locked in a closet by her students.

"After a year, I quit," he says.

"He swapped jobs with a social worker who "pooh-poohed" his tales out of school.

"In three months, she had a nervous breakdown," he said.

Worried by Younger Rivals, Women Asking for Surgery

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function,

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons.

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind.—(AP)—A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed in Hutchison.

Marine Study Given $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,000 grant to the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami for basic research on radium distribution in the waters of the Florida Straits, the Bahamas and the Caribbean area.

This work is to ascertain how fast radium escapes from the sediments on the bottom. Research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Fritz Koczy, associate professor of oceanography.

76 Trombones? Yep, and 98 Candidates

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Presidential hopefuls of both parties, congressmen with relatives on their payrolls, and bearded Fidel Castro were joshed Saturday night at the 47th annual dinner of newspaperdom's famed Gridiron Club.

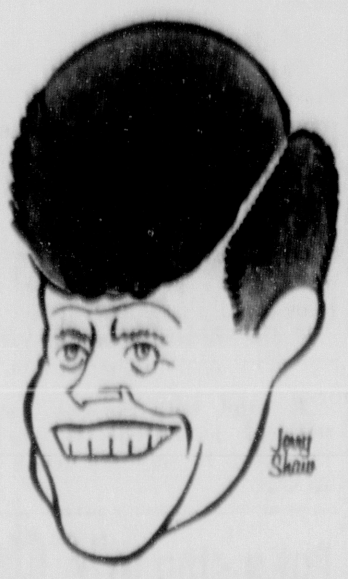
President Eisenhower, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, ex-White House Adviser Sherman Adams, and the Defense Department's brass and braid also came in for their share of needling at the gala affair which featured skits and songs with members of the club impersonating the high and mighty.

Many of the satirized targets were among the 500 distinguished dinner guests which included Supreme Court and cabinet members, top diplomats, government officials, congressmen and other prominent figures from various walks of life.

The President himself was not present, however, having declined an invitation as he had for several years past.

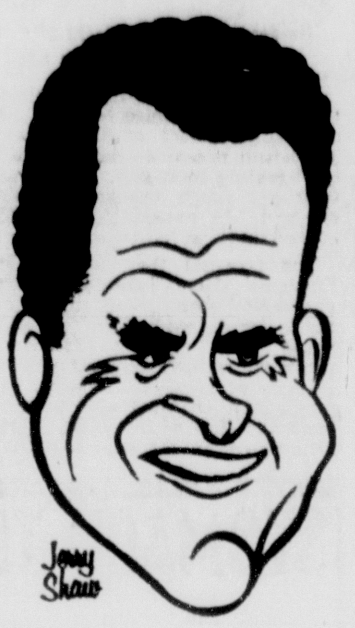
The dinner was held at the Hotel Statler Hilton. Accompaniment for the song parodies was provided by the U.S. Marine Band orchestra under the leadership of Lt. Col. Albert F. Schoepper, who is also the Gridiron Club's music director.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sens. John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) and two-time Democratic Presidential Candidate Adlai E. Stevenson came in for tongue-in-the-cheek treatment because of their unavowed presidential aspirations.



Sen. John Kennedy

. . . papa's lyrics



Richard M. Nixon

. . . the blues

To the rollicking tune of "76 Trombones," the club chorus burst forth:

"Ninety-eight lined up for the White House race
With the flush of a candidate on each face
Nominees by the rows and rows of political virtuosos,
Running madly for first place."
"There'll be 98 contenders by convention time,
Thundering, thundering, louder than before,
Candidates of every size,
Are trying hard to hypnotize
The voters who decide the final score."

The Democratic contenders were spoofed in a scene set in Johnson's "Big Chance Casino" purportely in Las Vegas where odds were listed against the various candidates.

In the Republican phase, a bedraggled set of survivors of the 1958 election were shown trying to erect a "Bridge on the River Quail" stretching from Gettysburg, Pa., to former Treasury Secretary Humphrey's Thomasville, Ga., plantation.

Here is how the barbs were planted:

Kennedy (with his wealthy father portrayed as singing to "All of Us.")

"All of us
Why not take all of us
Fabulous
You can't live without us."

Johnson:

"I'm the top
I'm the U.S. Senate
I'm the top
Take a vote—I'll win it"

Symington:

"I hear voices and there's no one there.
I see visions made of just thin air
Only Harry Truman seems to care—
I wonder why
Could it be I?"

Stevenson:

"Just one more chance
When Ike is not my competition
When Dick or Rock's the opposition
Just one more chance."

Nixon:

"Now, now I'm opposed
Now, now when the fight begins
I dream of the might-have-beens
This nearly was mine."

Rockefeller:

"I'll pitch my tent
Where Richard Nixon thought he should of went
Love that rock a fella
A really true blue chip."

The impersonator of Castro turned up singing "How are you fixed for blades?"

Something New—Apartment Igloo

PARIS —(UPI)— France's polar expedition took delivery on an igloo apartment house that will be taken to Greenland shortly. The igloo is a two-story, eight-room, air-transportable structure made for the expedition by an aircraft factory.

Digger Buried For 10 Minutes

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — (AP) — Sam Scott, 42, of nearby Robstown, was completely buried for 10 minutes when a cesspool he was digging caved in on him.

His newphew, Wayne Muckelroy, 20, of Robstown frantically clawed loose sand from Scott's head until it was cleared. Oxygen was fed him through a tube and mask until the sand could be dug away from his chest.

Six Years Left To Get Ready

NEW YORK —(AP)— Are you afflicted with triskaidekaphobia?

If you are, this makes it two months in a row that you have suffered the slings and arrows of Friday the 13th. We had one in February, too.

But cheer up. Two Fridays the 13th in a row will not happen again for six years. Oh yes, this triskaidekaphobia: It's fear of the figure 13.

Airmen Show Love for Town

Base officers credited the city's friendly atmosphere with decisions of many of the 1,464 Air Force men at the base to reenlist during 1958 — believed to be an Air Force record.

Slow-Paced European Life Gives Way to Motor Cars

Europe, once the motorists's paradise because of lack of traffic, has undergone a revolution. The teeming streets of Paris and London have spread traffic into the hinterlands.

Catching up with the production of busy automobile plants with roads to handle the vehicles has become a major headache for almost every European government.

All's Clear on the Autobahn, left

. . . Rome's traffic, right, is another story

LONDON—(AP)—A motor car revolution is changing the traditionally slow-paced life of Europe.

An American tourist on a sentimental journey to some picturesque European village remembered from a decade or two ago would be shocked to see streams of cars and trucks filing through its narrow streets.

The changes have been swift — and there is no doubt the automobile is here to stay. In Sweden, one in every two families owns a car. In England and France, it's one in every three.

Even in underdeveloped Spain there is one car for every 49. Five years ago it was one in 450.

While the motor car is bringing Europeans together and helping to wipe out ancient hatreds, it is also creating new problems.

European governments must cope not only with social changes — including the new role of women who are now driving cars in ever greater numbers — but with a steadily rising accident toll. And they must somehow convert the age-old cowpaths into modern highways.

Some Europeans are working hard to safeguard the artistic past. In Florence, for instance, an organization has sprung up to try to keep a new Italian superhighway away from the city. The Florentines are afraid the highway would mean new industries and consequent damage to the "city of art."

But most cities want new highways as close as possible as a booster to the city's industrial potential.

How great is the recent increase in auto production?

England and West Germany each produced over a million cars last year. In Germany this was nearly three times as many as in 1953. Production in France is advancing almost as rapidly. Italy and Sweden also are barreling ahead on new car production.

And it's not only the well-to-do who are buying them. Officials at the Volkswagen works in Wolfsburg, biggest auto factory on the European continent, estimate that 40 per cent of their production last year went to workers and white collar employes. This compares with six per cent five years ago.

In most of Europe your status in the world is marked by what you drive. It's not uncommon for a worker to start with a bicycle and move right up to a motorcycle, a tiny car and ultimately a standard model.

The lowest price standard car on the market in Western Europe is the Volkswagen. Its deluxe model sells in West Germany for about $1,000.

The small Italian Fiat sells for about the same price. The French Renault is perhaps $50 more expensive. That same Renault sells for $1,800 in Spain, whose government makes a big take on car sales through rigid price fixing.

In the middle-price range the French Citroen DS19 sells for $2,500, the Swedish Volvo for $2,000 and a host of competing British economy class cars for about $1,700.

You can pay as much as $24,000 for a Rolls-Royce. The big Mercedes limousine costs about $7,000, the flashy Italian Ferrari about $10,000.

American cars sell well in some places, particularly the Benelux countries. In Sweden there is a flourishing market for used American cars three to five years old. They bring around $600.

These millions of cars running around Europe have created traffic jams that are monumental in cities such as Paris and London.

The Place de la Concorde in Paris is quite hopeless at certain times of the day. You could walk faster if you weren't in deadly danger merely by setting foot on that square.

In London the Bobbies tow away cars that are obstructing the flow of traffic. Late afternoon is regarded as rush hour but nobody does much rushing. They're too busy waiting in queues for the fellow in front to move along.

In the low countries famed for years for the number of bicyclists, you have to be mighty agile at the wheel to keep from causing mass mayhem to the men and women pedaling along.

In Spain you have to dodge burros and wagons, and at night this is difficult because they don't come equipped with lights.

What are the European governments doing about the traffic snarls?

Swiss authorities, who say their roads are unable to cope with the mounting traffic, plan an east-west road and a north-south one.

Swedish officials estimate it will cost four billion dollars to put their highway system in shape to deal with modern traffic. In a country of seven million, there were some 900,000 cars registered last year, not to mention 8,000 buses and coaches, 113,000 trucks, 230,000 motorcycles and half a million "mopeds" — bicycles with motors. Thes were eight times as many vehicles as were registered in 1938.

Britain has launched its biggest roadbuilding program, planning a total of 850 miles of superhighways linking much of the country.

Spain, whose roads were the best in Europe before the 1936 civil war, has done little since. Now the Franco regime has launched a 165-million-dollar roadbuilding program.

West Germany, which was the world pioneer in superhighways in Adolf Hitler's massive autobahn program, has embarked on a four-year plan that will cost 1½ billion dollars. It is aimed at creating 1,200 more miles of superhighways. There are 1,300 miles of them now.

But secondary roads in West Germany remain inadequate.

Holland, with the best road network in Europe, is working hard to improve what it has.

One new problem arose for the Dutch last year when the major highway between Rotterdam and the Hague suddenly began to waggle and buckle. The soft ground underneath couldn't stand the pressure of 26,000 cars a day.

The great increase in the number of cars on the road has been a key factor in the rise in highway accidents. Driving habits are another.

In the U.S. it has long been recognized that a motor car is a lethal weapon. Europeans, newer to the driving game, are just learning this mortal truth.

We Want Half of Oil Profit, Arabs Say

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WELLER

KRIKUK, Iraq—If a grinning Moslem in burnoose and sandals wipes your windshield at your next filling station, don't be surprised. He's the new partner at the pump.

The Arabs are out for a 50-50 deal all the way through the 5,000-mile pipeline that ends at your tank cap.

So far their half-share has ended where the crude black goo spurts from the sand. They own the sand, hence the oil.

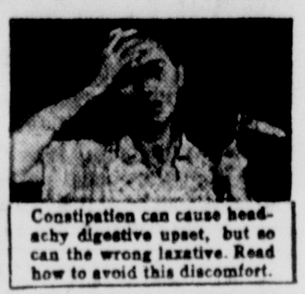
The Arab gets his Cadillac—or his shiek does—out of the 43 gallons in the barrel. This crude makes about 10 gallons of refined combustion for your car.

The Arab is declaring himself a shareholder in the 10 gallons high octane as well as the raw 43. He also wants half of any profits that are moving the fuel from him to you.

The first Arab oil congress, opening at Cairo April 16, is expected to be a gusher of "move-over" ideas, addressed to the West. The Arabs announced March 5 their intention to build an Arab pipeline to compete with the American-owned tapline from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean.

The Arabs are not absolutely insistent about wiping the windshields or paying for the free roadmaps. All they want is to be sure that "circle service" comes right back to them, with plenty of cash to build their schools, dams and military alliances.

Just as an interest-teaser, Osman Halik, the Saudi Arab chairman of the congress, suggests that the $1,200,000,000 parceled out in 1958 isn't enough for Kuwait, Iraq, Saudi Arbia, Qatar, Egypt, and Bahrein.



Put a stop to "CONSTIPATION MISERY"!

No need to suffer headachy after-laxative distress and digestive upset

Constipation can cause headachy digestive upset, but so can the wrong laxative. Read how to avoid this discomfort.

Many people have found it is quite unnecessary to endure cramps and other miserable results of taking a laxative. They find it easy to avoid that "washed-out" feeling next day. At the same time they get much prompter, more dependable results than with other laxatives.

The formula they use is Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a pure vegetable "prescription" that contains the ingredient "of greatest value" for relieving the over-tenseness of the intestines present in most constipation. Another ingredient it contains acts to promote the flow of intestinal lubricant to soften the dry, hardened wastes. There is no griping, no discomfort. No upset stomach because it does not act in the stomach but in the bowel lower down.

Is there any wonder these tablets were 58% more effective than 6 other laxatives in hospital test?

Don't let constipation worry you when you can get gentle, effective Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at any drug store in town. Get the large size for economy.

New YMCA Gym Opening--With a Plan

Youth Rally Scheduled April 4

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The second annual Youth Rally of the Fort Lauderdale High School Key Club, The Miami Herald and the Downtown Kiwanis Club has been scheduled for April 4.

An inspirational and entertainment program will be presented at War Memorial Auditorium at 2 p.m. before an anticipated 2,500 county high school students.

Prominent sports and political personalities will speak. Entertainers from Gold Coast hotels and supper clubs will perform, among them possibly some of the country's leading film and television figures.

The event will be a renewal of the Youth Rally held last year, when Gov. LeRoy Collins delivered the principal address to 2,000 teenagers.

Theme of it will again be a tribute to the good conduct of the county's young people and their low rate of juvenile delinquency — calculated at about two per cent, or approximately half the national average.

Students from Stranahan, South Broward, McArthur, Pompano Beach, Pine Crest and Central Catholic high schools will participate, along with those from Fort Lauderdale High.

Tickets will be allotted to these institutions on the basis of their pupil enrollments, and distributed through the student councils.

Only 10th, 11th and 12th grade students will be admitted this year, said Key Club president Dave Henry and rally chairman George Bonham. Last year, junior high pupils attended.

Plans are being formulated by a joint committee of faculty and student council representatives from each school.

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — There's more than just a public unveiling behind the YMCA's plans for an open house and entertainment at its new gymnasium Friday night.

Lurking underneath is a hope that among the throng of visitors will be some who will be converted to members and-or substantial donors to the building fund.

With the completion of what has been called a $250,000 gymnasium building — which they were able to have built for less than $200,000 — directors of the organization now are looking for funds with which to build a swimming pool.

This will cost from $50,000 to $100,000, depending on what contributions come in and how far they can be stretched.

Another $40,000 for gymnasium equipment also is being sought.

★ ★ ★

DOORS OF THE NEW structure will be opened at 7 p.m. Friday for public inspection.

Beginning at 8:15 p.m., an hour's program of gymnastics and exercises will be presented, along with a score of top-ranking sports world personalities who are in the area and being invited.

Balancing, tumbling, judo, weightlifting, an exhibition of women's precision exercises and a performance on the trampoline are on the program. A scheduled YMCA-Church League basketball game will follow.

Major league baseball players, prize fighters and pro golfers drawn from all parts of South Florida are expected to be in the circle of celebrities, said Chairman Carl Wolf.

Gymnasium Occupies High Upper Story of New Building
. . . dressing rooms, showers and offices are below

Monday night a campaign for members for the YMCA will be kicked off with a meeting of leaders and solicitors at the First Methodist Church.

★ ★ ★

THESE MEMBERSHIPS will carry privileges of the gymnasium and its locker and dressing facilities. Annual fees have been set at $3 to $15 for youngsters seven to 17; $20 to $30 for men, $15 for women, $50 for families.

Sustaining memberships, which carry no athletic privileges, are $10.

Savings and Loan Executive Louis J. Fifer heads the campaign.

The Y has 3,000 persons enrolled, many of them elementary and high school students, under its previous membership plan.

In the new gym is space for a regulation basketball court and two practice courts, a volleyball court and three badminton courts. On the ground floor of the building are separate locker and shower rooms for youngsters and adults, an office for the physical director, and storage facilities.

'La Plume' No Trouble for Florence Butler, 3
. . . pupil at Woodford Hall in Hollywood

She's Learning French And She's Only Three

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — The play period ended and three-year-old Florence Butler ran toward her classroom.

It was 10 a.m. and time for her daily French lesson.

Florence isn't French. She's never been to France and doesn't expect to go soon.

But she's learning the language.

"And doing very well," said Mrs. Arpad Erdos, head of the French department at Woodford Hall here.

Florence is one of approximately 100 youngsters who attend the private school and study French along with other subjects taught in public schools.

Mrs. Arpad Erdos, Woodford Instructor
. . . helps Syre Shulman add French touch

"We require French," said Headmistress Lamora Mickelson. "We consider it the most important of all foreign languages, and find that youngsters pick it up quickly and easily.

"The little ones learn the language as casually as they do nursery rhymes. It's a part of their daily lives and they do remarkably well."

Starting with a junior kindergarten and running through the ninth grade, the school also offers Latin, Spanish, Italian and German.

"The time to begin a foreign language is when you're small," Mrs. Mickelson said. "When a youngster is in high school there are too many outside interests."

Now in its 21st year, the state accredited school regards itself as "the school with a serious purpose."

"You won't find courses like underwater basket weaving here," Mrs. Mickelson said.

"Our curriculum is standard but individually paced so as to be challenging for the gifted, and encouraging to the student with temporary learning difficulties."

Mrs. Mickelson and her staff believe that teaching foreign languages in elementary grades "is an answer to a smaller world."

In West Hollywood

Resort Role Now Studied

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

WEST HOLLYWOOD — "Spend the winter in West Hollywood, a beautiful resort area with moderate prices . . ."

So right now the resort part is a dream, but the community is studying its future as a tourist resort.

"Future?" queried W. L. Ringgold. "It's here right now! This is the main drag of Hollywood. U. S. 1 is a little obsolete. We've been full all winter."

Ringgold is a motel owner, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's new motel, apartment, trailer court and restaurant committee, and generally the chief apostle of West Hollywood's hopes as a tourist community.

He will admit that perhaps he overstates the present situation a bit, but he believes the potential exists and that some day the area will be able to lure visitors in sizable numbers.

★ ★ ★

ITS HOPES MAY LIE in the fact that it can offer moderately priced accommodations to the vacationer who is willing to forego the oceanfront to winter in Florida on a budget.

A couple can stay in a West Hollywood motel for $35 a week in January, $45 to $50 a week at the height of the season, and be within reasonable driving distance of beaches, golf courses, race tracks, deepsea fishing and nightclubs.

"A lot of people," Ringgold observed, "would rather be away from the beach and not pay so much."

There's some question, however, as to how long this condition may last. Chamber President Regis Reasbeck pointed out that in view of the rapid rise in land values along State Rd. 7 — which in West Hollywood is Flagler St., Collins Ave. and Las Olas Blvd. rolled into one — the motels may not be able to maintain today's low rates. It's not economically feasible, he contended, to build a sizable motel with the intention of catering to slim vacation budgets.

Business volume in the community jumps about 25 per cent in the winter, said Henry Briggs, a bustling restaurant operator who is a rental representative for Food Fair properties.

★ ★ ★

THE GENERAL TENDENCY is to regard West Hollywood as a stable community which makes its way on the expenditures of its own residents and doesn't worry about the ups and downs of tourism.

Motel owner William Kline agreed that the settlement is "now actually a tourist haven," although it is devoid of the basic tourist attractions — "entertainment, fishing, beaches and golf courses."

He foresees, however, that if the current incorporation efforts are successful, "the community will concentrate on the things that make tourists happy.

"We have plenty of ground that could be developed."

Briggs agreed. "Tourists will only be attracted where accommodations are established. We'll get them when we have golf courses, playgrounds, parks and swimming pools.

"With the incorporation of the city, in the capable hands that it's in, a suitable plan can be worked out. Tourist accommodations are something many people are planning for the near future."

This Is Lazy Lake, a Tranquil 12-Acre Municipality
. . . no crime, no election excitement—but 100 per cent turnouts

Lazy Lake Candidates Amble Into Campaigns

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

LAZY LAKE — It's election time again for this sleepy town's 26 voters.

What promises to be a relaxed campaign got off to an unhurried start last week when Mayor Charles Lindfors announced an election will be held March 24 to fill two City Council vacancies.

Running (slowly) for them are the two incumbents, Edward Inglis and Sherwood More. A third candidate, Thomas Gattle, has also ambled into the race.

Not even the village's 14 children and some-odd dogs and cats work up much excitement over the elections. Out here, it's a calculated, Democratic process.

Police Chief G. E. MacFarlane, who administers law and order to the 12-acre town on the banks of three-acre Lazy Lake, will keep his job no matter who wins the election.

HIS RECORD is exceptional. As far as any of the village's satisfied residents can remember, the town has not had a crime in its six-year history.

Mayor Lindfors, who's also municipal judge, has never heard a case.

Lazy Lake was incorporated in 1953 when residents became concerned that their giant neighbor, Wilton Manors (population: 11,000), might swallow their community. The village is surrounded by Wilton Manors.

Mayor Lindfors, who's headed village government since its start, said the community began when he developed the section and brought in friends for its settlement.

Most of the well-landscaped homes are in the $40,000 to $45,000 price range, with one residence valued at $275,000.

★ ★ ★

"WE NEVER OFFERED land for sale," said Lindfors. "Everybody here knew somebody before they came in."

Lazy Lane, the town's tree-lined main street, is just that. It runs for about two blocks and is more like a private driveway than a main street.

Though the citizens refrain from heated political campaigns, they always are interested and vote.

"We always have a 100 per cent voting turnout," said Lindfors with pride.

"Of course we know pretty well who's going to win anyway. We get together beforehand and decide who we want."

Jan Scammon Works on Shop Sign
. . . 'there's nothing female about my work'

She's 'Signed Up' In Paint and Profit

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

DANIA — An attractive blue-eyed brunette with an Irish-French temper has crashed one of the last bailiwicks dominated by men.

"I'm a sign painter," said Jan Scammon, 33, shapely and sharp with a brush. She works out of a little shop at 113 NW Third Ave.

Male sign painters, vociferous critics of each other, used to laugh at her work, she said. "Now I can compete with any of them."

Dressed in shorts and jersey ("in summer I wear a halter"), Jan letters trucks, paints bulletins, window display cards; for sale, for hire, for rent signs; and placards and posters.

"There's nothing female about my work," she said. She shoved back her curly pony tail. "I guess the only womanly touch is the red polka dots on my work box and station wagon — and that's only for advertising."

Handy with a paint brush during school days, Jan entered the sign-painting business about four years ago because "somebody thought it was a good idea."

The "good idea" has paid off. She's the only female member of the Florida Outdoor Advertising Association.

Jan has convinced the men she's a good sign painter, but the women aren't sold yet.

"The only person who ever turned me down was a woman."

Work Day: Wednesday

75 LHS Seniors Hunting Jobs

FORT LAUDERDALE — Some 75 job-seeking seniors are asking the cooperation of local businessmen in the annual Fort Lauderdale High School Work Day project Wednesday.

They are aiming for a $3,000 scholarship fund to help deserving classmates attend college, and will do just about anything.

Seniors are planning — among other things — to sweep streets, paint a church, help a psychologist, report the news, enforce the law, educate the young and bury the dead.

They've been doing these things one day a year since 1951. Last year a larger class raised $5,000. One of its beneficiaries, Jo Abhau, now attending Barry College in Miami, recently told this year's class about the good work it can do.

Ginny Frykman is Work Day chairman. Employers who can help the project are asked to call committee members during school hours at JAckson 4-9403, or contact any senior.

Seniors Hunt Jobs For Fund

POMPANO BEACH—Pompano Beach High School seniors—240 of them—are leaving school Friday to go to work.

But the movement is sanctioned by the school.

The students are out to earn $1,200 if they can, to enrich the senior scholarship fund.

They'll accept any kind of job, anywhere in the area. And they are hopeful of earning at least $5 for the day.

The seniors have been scouring the area to get employment possibilities lined up. But if they missed, residents can call the high school with a job offer.

Rabbi to Talk About Fund

HOLLYWOOD — "The Jewish National Fund" will be the topic of an address here Tuesday by Rabbi David Shapiro of Temple Sinai.

He'll speak to members of the Hollywood-Fort Lauderdale chapter of Hadassah at 8 p.m. in the temple.

Members are urged to bring their blue boxes. A film, "New Roots," will be shown.

NATHANIEL E. DUVAL has been named campaign chairman for Broward County's 1959 Cancer Crusade. He is president of Duval Products, Inc.

Sayers Cited By Council

FORT LAUDERDALE — Miss Evelyn Sayer and her brother, Sam, who operate the coffee concession in the courthouse lobby, have received a certificate of meritorious service from the Florida Council for the Blind.

It was presented to the Sayers by the County Commission. They started running the busy stand almost 10 years ago.

Time Slip

DEERFIELD-BEACH — A memory expert from the Dale Carnegie Institute was supposed to be the main speaker at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club here.

But he didn't show up. He forgot.

They're Good Scouts: 5 Eagles in Family

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — To most fathers, having one son attain the rank of Eagle Scout is an occasion for justifiable pride.

But Harold A. Erickson has four sons who claim that distinction.

In addition, one other son is a Life Scout, another is a First Class, and one daughter is a member of a Brownie troop.

The eagle scouts in the Erickson family are Harold, 18; Frank, 17; Allen, 16, and John, 15. The four boys have a total of 85 merit badges.

Fourteen-year-old David is the Life Scout, and the First Class rank is held by Philip, 12. Little Eileen, 8, is the Brownie.

Charles B. Cook, Scout executive for the Cherokee area council, says as far as he can ascertain, the family is the only one in the council with four Eagle scouts.

"And it's one of the very few in the nation," he adds.

What does the father, who is manager of the wholesale department for a local florist, have to say?

"Naturally, we're very proud. We're pleased that they have enough ambition to want to go to the top, to finish what they start."

Erickson has five more boys, all of whom he says plan to be Scouts when they reach the required age.

Paradoxically, Erickson was never a Scout himself.

"But, I'm sorry now I wasn't," he says.

Birch Park Mural Shows Florida of Seminoles

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — How the Seminoles lived in Florida when the state was still theirs is depicted in a new mural on the wall of the refreshment pavilion at Birch State Park.

The 15 by 10-foot painting is a gift resulting from the chance meeting of Kermit L Ehly, district supervisor for the Park Board, and the artist, Herbert Tulk.

It provides a background for the Indian canoe in the pavilion, donated to the Florida Park Service by the late Dr. W. R. Birch of Fort Lauderdale.

Ehly and Tulk met when the latter was painting in the park. Their conversation led to Tulk's offer to do the mural.

The artist is from Franconia, N. H., where he has a studio. He and Mrs. Tulk spend six months of each year in Hollywood. They are staying at 1932 Grant St.

While he is here Tulk studies with Herbert Kniffin, professor emeritus of Rutgers University, who lives in Fort Lauderdale. Tulk also studied at the Art Students League in New York.

A one-man show of his work opened Friday at the First National Bank in Hollywood.

98,000 at Work in February

Broward Employment Reaches Record High

FORT LAUDERDALE — February brought Broward County the highest total employment in its history, the two offices of the State Employment Service reported.

Some 71,050 persons were at work in non-agricultural establishments and 98,000 in jobs of all kinds.

At the same time, unemployment rose to a peak of 7,200, an increase of 500 over January and 1,100 over February 1958.

The total civilian labor force stood at an all-time high mark of 105-200 a gain of 7,400 in the last year.

Unemployment was about evenly divided between Florida and out-of-state jobseekers, according to the report from Managers Charles R. Sanders of the Fort Lauderdale office and Mrs. Ruth Andreu of the Hollywood office.

Construction workers received 43.1 per cent of the unemployment compensation payments made during the month, they said.

The number of persons at work in this category dropped 100 between January and February — from 9,900 to 9,800. The February figure was 1,800 below that for February of 1958.

The total of 98,000 in jobs represented a gain of 7,300 over the same point last year and 2,000 since January.

In non-agricultural establishments, the gain was 3,350 in the past year and 1,300 since January.

Jobs in trade rose from 20,900 to 21,200 during the year; in retail trade from 18,600 to 18,850; in hotels from 4,150 to 4,950; in all services from 12,500 to 15,150; in manufacturing from 5,850 to 6,800; in agriculture from 2,250 to 4,700.

Chippewas Had Word For It

MINNEAPOLIS —(UPI)— The Chippewa Indian word Winnibigoshish means filthy, bad, miserable, wretched water, and is the name of a Minnesota lake.

The Chippewas weren't always that harsh in their descriptions. Their language is sometimes called the Italian of the Indian language because of its musical quality.

For example Mississippi is a Chippewa word meaning Great River. Saganaga Lake in northern Minnesota takes its name from its many islands. Mahnomen, a Minnesota community, means wild rice in English and Chisago Lake means large and lovely.

The Sioux Indians, also contributed their share of titles to Minnesota.

The name of the state means sky-tinted water. Minnehaha, made famous by Henry Longfellow, means laughing water. Minneapolis is a combination of the Sioux word for water and the Greek word for city.

Shriners to Meet

DEERFIELD BEACH—The monthly meeting of the Gold Coast Shrine Club will be 8 p.m. Monday in the Deerfield Beach Woman's Club Building.

Senator Cuts a Fine Figure

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—(UPI)—A Republican state senator from Westerly, R.I., boasts a wardrobe that would make any U.S. Senator envious.

This Beau Brummel is Antonio C. Trovato who says he wishes his colleagues weren't so casual toward their attire.

Trovato, who owns 23 suits, a dozen hats (including a fur Yukon cap), and seven fancy vests, says that "being a legislator is a high position and the members of the General Assembly should take greater pride in the way they dress."

The youthful senator can well afford to be critical, however. In private life he's a custom tailor.

Youth Tumbles to Locks at School

NOT TODAY, but one of these days I want to tell you about the six-year-old school boy who was nearly expelled for locking, from within, each of the stall doors in his school's restroom for boys.

I can't go into detail today because the incident happened so recently the boy's parents still aren't decided whether they should laugh or cry.

And the little fellow still faces the possibility of being deported to East Berlin or some such place.

This may appear comical to you, but I don't think it will ever be funny to the poor janitor who had to tear off each of the doors to right the wrong.

But that's my boy.

* * *

Boom Arriving for Merchants

TODAY'S MESSAGE is to offer encouragement to certain merchants who haven't had a prosperous season.

My folks arrive here from the North tomorrow and they're loaded.

Dad may not be loaded when he hits town (he does the driving) but he will be within 24 hours.

SEE ANY GADGET YOU WANT, DAD?
PACKAGE STORE
GR

Mother doesn't drink. But her pocketbook will be loaded with nickels and dimes she's been saving since they started planning this year's vacation last September.

They've been coming here each spring for 10 years and Mother has never lost her fascination for sea shells, alligator handbags, Florida pennants, brightly-painted coconuts, sun glasses, fancy beach towels, bathing suits, suntan lotion, straw hats, picture postcards and other souvenirs.

And money is no object when she goes to the grocery stores and passes through departments which feature pastries, nut breads, candy and fancy cheese spreads.

Dad does'nt go in for the showy demonstrations put on by my mother.

* * *

Shopping . . . Without Fanfare

HE DOES HIS SHOPPING without fanfare, and quietly secretes his purchases in a suitcase or under towels on the top shelf of our linen closet.

My folks have been married 38 years and I don't think Dad is aware that Mother knows of his occasional drinking sprees.

I don't want to take sides, but I do know a fellow can't eat a lot of cheese without washing it down with something.

So I'll close with this prediction:

Gimmick sales in Broward County will reach a season high over the next two weeks, and liquor dispensers will enjoy a prosperity unknown to this area.

SOUTH BROWARD

A Nag-ging Hot Tip...

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HALLANDALE POLICEMAN Fred Sanks got a hot tip this week—right from the "horse's mouth."

A man called headquarters. He wanted to speak to Chief Robert Aiken. The chief wasn't there, so he settled for Sanks.

He was indignant over The Herald's stories on bookmaking activity in South Broward. They were untrue, he said.

"We don't have any bookmaking here in Hallandale," he declared. "It's all in Dade County."

Before he hung up he added:

"I ought to know. I've been a bookie 30 years—and I intend to keep right on being one."

* * *

Design for Conversation

ASSISTANT POLICE CHIEF WOODY MALPHURS and I get along well. We don't agree on the extent of bookmaking operations in South Broward, but we don't get into heated arguments about it.

Woody has a blue and white tie.

It is mostly blue.

When he put it on Tuesday morning, he said he thought right away of The Herald.

The white parts of the tie is the design—little race horses.

Jefferson Said It First

NOTE TO MIRAMAR, PEMBROKE PINES, ETC.:

Great men say things that live through the ages. Their observations seem just as crisp today as when they were first made. That is one reason they are great men.

Thomas Jefferson, whose name is synonymous with American democracy, had this to say:

"The smaller the societies, the more violent and more convulsive their schisms."

* * *

Fair Weather for Irishmen

ONE OF THE REMARKABLE THINGS about Pat Heneghan's Irish Fair is the variety that was packed into the first day.

Where else could you see missiles, musicals, Indians, Julius LaRosa and an old-fashioned pie-eating contest all in one day at one spot?—Young Circle.

There were even some Irishmen around.

Wanted: Poisoner of Dogs

POLICE HAVEN'T CAUGHT UP with the notewriting dog poisoner, but Detectives Earl Mitchell and Louis Ottuso haven't forgotten the case.

It started when four dog owners in Lawnacres got postcards last month. The writer said he was going to poison their animals unless they were kept in yards. He later tried to poison one pet, but failed.

It is no simple thing to catch a deranged person, they are cunning. They do not think or react like a sane man.

But Ottuso and Mitchell are still working on it. They will be as long as there is hope for capture.

Ottuso owns a dog. Mitchell trained them for combat during the war.

HENRY KINNEY

Summer Job's Ready For Resort Industry

AT THE HEIGHT of a winter that in some respects is one of the best, touristwise, in history, the resort industry of Broward County should be preparing for summer.

We need a good summer tourist business this year, perhaps more than we ever have.

KINNEY

In other years, summer trade could be considered mostly velvet, a bonus for an industry geared primarily for winter operation. For this year, at least, or until we feel that we're fully recovered from the combined freeze and recession of 1958, we'd better look at it as something we need just as badly as we needed a good winter.

Good as it is, this is likely to be a short winter season. It started late—largely because the tourists didn't come down until they were sure we were going to have normal weather—and with Easter falling early, it may peter out early. This winter alone won't be enough to pull us out of 1958's red ink.

Fort Lauderdale business people, through their Chamber of Commerce, are preparing a good-will tour to St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago April 5-11 to promote summer trade. This should be supported by a strong spring and summer promotion program by the city and the industry as a whole, and promotional activities of some nature should be carried out by all of Broward's communities which are in a financial position to do it.

* * *

To Look, to Buy

CONSTRUCTION and real estate people would be well advised to join with the tourist industry in attempting to lure a bumper crop of summer visitors, likewise for the purpose of speeding up their own recovery.

The summer visitor, on the average, is not as well heeled as the winter type and not as good a prospect for big investments, but he's certainly a potential home buyer.

Some brokers subscribe to a theory that people come to vacation in the winter but come back in the summer to buy, and many who are considering taking up residence in South Florida investigate the summer climate before they make up their minds.

* * *

MONDAY A GROUP of volunteers will begin a membership campaign on behalf of the Fort Lauderdale YMCA. For the first time they will be able to offer active, participating membership in a YMCA program such as other cities have and which this city should have had long ago, memberships carrying with them the privileges of the new gymnasium and its facilities.

In a word, it's to be hoped that the response is just overwhelming.

The Y has carried on absolutely splendid programs with boys and girls and young adults for many years in accommodations that it outgrew around 1950. The dream of a new building was born about that time. Making it come true has been a hard task, requiring the utmost persistence and determination in the face of repeated disappointments.

While contributors, of course, have been numerous and generous over the years, the men who so stubbornly fought through this fine addition to the recreational and spiritual life of the community could literally be counted on the fingers of both hands. They have been most commendably tireless.

They could well afford to stop now and take credit for a job well done, but they have no intention of doing so. They're just getting their second wind for a renewed effort, this one aimed at enlargements and additional facilities which ultimately will require another $500,000. A swimming pool, dormitory rooms, more outdoor courts, proper administrative offices are all in the plans for the next few years.

In the meantime, the Y has moved ahead with admirable confidence and employed a full-time physcical director who will go to work April 1.

These repeated efforts to provide us with a truly comprehensive YMCA program certainly deserve now full support in the membership campaign.

PETER LAINE

Friday the 13th: Big Day for Porky

THE BIG MAN was sent home free at 1:15 the morning of Friday the 13th.

On trial all day and at work all night, Porky Baines had had a rough week.

No-doze pills couldn't keep him awake as six men took eight hours sifting the truth from a maze of conflicting testimony.

He stretched his 240-pound bulk, on a hard Criminal Court bench and slept soundly . . . perchance to dream.

The glaring lights in the still courthouse shed an atmosphere of unreality through the somber room.

The flag in the corner flashed the only touch of color. The white mink cape that caused it all was stuffed in a paper bag.

Attorneys, deputies, detectives, clerks drifted in and out killing time. Someone brought in sandwiches and real fine coffee.

The amplifier on the desk chattered away, playing back testimony. The jury popped in and out to check the parts they wanted to hear again.

What were they interested in? Only they knew. Spectators offered bets on the outcome, told jokes, studied architecture in a Playboy magazine.

Three times Bailiff Joe Leaird lumbered wrathfully after offenders who leaned accidentally on the jury buzzer.

Everyone was on edge. A thousand issues were riding on the verdict. Porky slumbered on. Then the buzzer sounded for keeps.

No, said the jury, Porky did not knowingly receive the stolen cape, nor did he knowingly aid in its concealment.

* * *

He's Second To Cry Frame

LIKE A STONE flung in a pool, the verdict's implications reverbertated in ever-increasing circles . . . city and county officials circles.

For the second time in two weeks, a jury of six average citizens found in favor of defendants who complained of official persecution.

Jim Gunn told the first court he was framed. It was his word against the state's witnesses. Gunn went free.

Assistant County Solicitor Wallace Allbritton, a man of powerful integrity, told the second jury frankly . . . if Porky is innocent, five officers mist have lied.

Allbritton, who conducted his case superbly, made Porky answer five times that officers who contradicted him were lying. It was a damaging line of questioning.

But Defense Attorney Ray Sandstrom, who faced his former colleague in both cases, turned in another magnetic brilliant performance.

Defense witnesses testified that detectives said they would get Porky one way or another . . . get his nightclub closed . . . wanted to get him real bad. This was damaging, too.

Porky, whose words tumble out in a Damon Runyonese style that would be hard to manufacture, made a good appearance in his own behalf.

It's still unclear why six officers trooped in to rearrest him one midnight when Sandstrom had offered to surrender his client upon notification.

Or why he was jailed one Saturday — ostensibly for a preliminary hearing the next Monday — when no one else had been given a preliminary hearing in two years.

But these are questions which yet need answers.

IT HAD TO HAPPEN someday, and the people who attended the Margate Council meeting last week were surprised when it finally did.

SEMET

Mayor Victor H. Semet was silenced by the Town Council as he sought to refute what he termed "a personal attack on me.

Semet was midway in his "defense" when Councilman John Tatum stood up and offered a motion that the mayor be stopped because the matter was not on the council agenda.

Election Day: Tuesday

* * *

THE MARGATE MUNICIPAL election is Tuesday, and it appears there is a scarcity of political issues in the contest.

About the only activity of note seems to be in the mayor's race, where a retired paratrooper colonel, John Lentz, is trying to unseat Mayor Semet.

And it seems the uproar over the city's obligation to buy a resuscitator is being used as the main campaign material.

Here's how it came about:

Several months ago a councilman proposed that the city purchase a resuscitator for emergency use in the police cars.

Mayor Semet advised the council, then, "We don't have any money, I don't see how we can buy it now."

So a group of citizens started a fund-raising campaign among Margate residents to buy the life-saving equipment.

Shortly after that, when the town bought some fire equipment, bids came in lower than anticipated. Mayor Semet announced that "we now have the money, we can buy a resuscitator."

But the campaign had already been successful, and enough money had been raised from the public to buy two of the machines.

Now there has been a series of letters and advertisements, and apparently a verbal campaign, aimed at Semet.

Pompano Trucks 'Cleaned Up'

THE CITY OF POMPANO BEACH won no prizes for its part in the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Cleanup Week. But it should. You can't help but notice how new all the city trucks look since they've been repainted. Makes a mighty nice impression on the public.

Sewage Plant: Progress Detour?

IT COULD BE SAID that the existence of the Collier Manor sewerage treatment plant, and the great amount of unfavorable publicity accorded it, has done more to slow down and detour Pompano's progress toward accomplishing a sanitary sewer system than any other single cause.

The public is "up in arms" about a plan which would run the city's sewer plant effluent into the Pompano Canal.

It seems quite probable that the average Pompano resident would not even know what an "outfall line" is, nor its function, had it not been for all the human emotion and public indignation that surrounded Broward Utilities, Inc., attempts to solve its effluent disposal problem.

Blocked Ditches A Threat

POMPANO BEACH — —Numerous drainage outfalls connected to highway culverts along Federal Hgwy. in Broward County have been blocked by private property owners in recent years, and the end result could be disastrous, a state road official has warned.

SRD District Engineer Winston Carlton admits his department can't do anything about it, either.

He explains it this way: Way back in 1932 when the highway was built, culverts beneath the road were put in line with drainage ditches.

"We didn't buy the property, or get easement rights then," Carlton explains, "because the land was nearly worthless and no one believed it would ever be developed."

Consequently, the department has no control over the numerous ditches that provide drainage of the highway, and many have been sealed off by land developers and property owners.

"Eventually someone is going to get in trouble," Carlton warns.

It is feared the highway will serve as a dike, in the event of abnormal rainfalls, and literally flood land west of the highway.

Furniture Buyers Protected

Phony Discounts Disappearing from Stores

(First of a Series)

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The flashy phrases "formerly sold for" and "reduced from" are gradually disappearing from merchandise in South Florida's furniture stores.

Already the more cautious words "comparable to" are being used as substitutes.

This is the beginning of some concerted moves to assure the furniture buyer that he can know what he's getting and will get what he pays for.

Furniture dealers are joining with state and federal authorities in an effort to bring more order to an industry of which one reputable Fort Lauderdale store owner recently said:

"I don't know of any business, with the possible exception of the diamond business, in which it's easier to cheat the customer."

Although some cheating goes on — much more in Dade County than in Broward, according to local dealers — the concern is with the use of phony prices and false discounts.

"Any price tag that shows a discount of as much as 50 per cent is a phony," bluntly says Carl Ross, president of the Broward County Retail Furniture Dealers Association and a member of the legislative committee of the Florida Furniture Dealers Association. "There isn't that much markup in furniture."

★ ★ ★

REPUTABLE DEALERS warn that in the store which consistently offers "20 per cent off" or something similar, the buyer must understand that his purchase is probably worth no more than the discounted price.

The U. S. government has stepped into this situation with a new Federal Trade Commission order on deceptive pricing on merchandise of all kinds, including clothing. It has many ramifications, but simply interpreted, it provides this:

No item may be advertised as "formerly priced at," or with any similar phrase, unless the dealer actually has regularly sold that item at that price.

Artificial markups are prohibited.

The use of such phrases as "manufacturers close-out," "clearance" and "wholesale prices" is prohibited unless they are literally true and the dealer can prove they are true.

★ ★ ★

MOREOVER, the FTC is warring on tricky advertisements — including those which may be true in themselves but create false impressions.

"Advertisements are not intended to be carefully dissected with a dictionary at hand," the agency has said, "but rather to produce an impression upon prospective purchasers."

The county furniture dealers' organization is following up the federal crackdown with an effort to get a similar state law through the forthcoming Legislature.

Such a law was drafted for the dealers by the office of Attorney General Richard Ervin, but it applied only to Broward County. Ross feels that no county can be so isolated, and that the law must be revised to apply statewide.

One of its provisions prohibits a dealer from luring in customers by advertising a drastic price reduction on an item which he doesn't have, and then telling inquiring patrons that the item is "sold out."

★ ★ ★

A STUDY OF CONDITIONS in the local furniture industry brought from reputable dealers a number of facts which the prospective purchaser may use for his protection when he goes out to buy. Among them are these:

You can be cheated most easily on bedding. Beware of big price reductions. Scrutinize carefully those silken tags on mattresses which look like factory tags; a dealer can buy any kind of tags he wants for a nickel each and put them on any bedding.

When you purchase furniture and have it sent to your home from the dealer's warehouse, examine it thoroughly to make certain that it's exactly what you bought; you might get a substitute that looks almost identical but is smaller and cheaper.

Don't expect a $40 chest of drawers to be made as well as a $400 piece. And don't expect, except in rare cases, to get a $200 chair for $89.95. You get what you pay for.

South Florida is hard on furniture. Woods warp, joints pull open, fabrics fade in the sun. You're wise to do business with a dealer with a reputation for servicing what he sells. Some better stores will service their goods indefinitely at no charge.

Be wary of advertised "estate closeouts" and "model home furniture," and of firms which suggest, "family gone North. You take over payments." Unethical dealers use these come-ons to sell regular furniture.

When in doubt about a price, ask the salesman to show you his factory catalogue.

But Grooming Does Help

It's Thumbs Down on Hitchhiking

Duane Jones Tries Luck
. . . as sloppy hitchhiker

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — If you're planning to hitchhike somewhere today, DON'T do it.

Thumbing a ride these days isn't so good.

But if you insist, put on a clean shirt and polish your shoes.

That'll help.

You'll be lucky to get out of town if you dress like most hitchhikers do these days.

I know.

Wearing some old Army fatigue pants and a 12-year-old cotton sweater, I watched approximately 400 cars sail by during a one-hour hitchhiking experiment Friday afternoon.

★ ★ ★

OF THE TOTAL, one clunker stopped. And its driver was dressed as badly as I.

"Climb aboard, Buddy," he beckoned.

After changing into a clean shirt, a sleeveless sweater and a pair of slacks, business picked up.

In another 60-minute period, three cars stopped.

One driver thought he knew me, and the other two explained that they simply "thought I was looking for a ride."

So if you're going hitchhiking today, spruce yourself up a bit. It'll pay off.

And there's something else you should keep in mind:

Don't forget that hitchhiking is frowned upon by most police departments, and that you could end up in the cooler on a vagrancy charge — regardless of how well you're groomed.

Another Group to Aid Miccosukees in Fight

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—The Miccosukee Indians have a new champion in their struggle for title to the Tamiami Trail lands they live on.

The Association on American Indian Affairs, an independent organization, will join the Friends of the Seminoles and the Seminole Indian Association in helping the Miccosukees.

Miss La Verne Madigan, energetic executive director of the association, has been in Fort Lauderdale for a week, using this city as headquarters for visiting both the Miccosukees and the Seminoles who live on Florida reservations.

"They are the least pitiful Indians I have ever seen," she said.

She said the Florida Indians were lucky to have been largely neglected by bureaucracy.

★ ★ ★

"THEY WERE ABLE to maintain their initiative," she said. She called their initiative "astounding."

The organized Seminoles need no help from the association in furthering their development plan.

"I've never seen a better one," Miss Madigan said. The plan includes leasing on Seminole land, development of pastures at Brighton and Big Cypress reservations and development an arts and crafts center at Dania.

But the association will work with the Miccosukees to get them perpetual title to the lands they now occupy. The Indians want the land. They don't want federal aid, she said.

The independent Miccosukees have refused to move to reservations. They maintain squatters' rights to state-owned land along the Tamiami Trail.

★ ★ ★

"THE ASSOCIATION will express the Indians' point of view to the public and to the federal government and work directly in the situation when asked, dealing with the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indians," Miss Madigan said.

She emphasized that the association will deal only with the Indians' request for title to land they occupy and will take no part in its separate action in the U.S. Court of Claims.

Confusion surrounding the Miccosukees' two separate requests has made their struggle for title more difficult, she believes.

The Association on American Indian Affairs is a 40-year-old group originally formed to aid the Pueblo Indians in New Mexico. The association has expanded its activities in the interest of all Indians. President is Pulitzer Prize-winning Novelist Oliver La Farge.

Miss Madigan is a former specialist in Greek archeology who "couldn't stay concerned with dead civilizations" and progressed from dealing with cultural minorities during World War II to her work for the Indians.

Careless Driving Charge

Harbor Patrolman Pays Road Fine

POMPANO BEACH — A man who enforces waterway traffic laws here was found guilty Friday on a careless driving charge.

City Judge William Sanders fined Harbor Patrolman Edward Newlin $15.

Fields, driving north on Federal Hwy., accused Newlin of entering the thoroughfare from a side street without stopping.

In another case the judge found Jesse James guilty on a public intoxication charge and sentenced him to five days in the city jail.

Sanders deferred action on a second charge — carrying a concealed weapon.

James admitted being intoxicated but denied knowing of the weapon.

"Someone must have put that knife into my pocket while I was drunk," he said.

Action also was deferred in a case involving a prisoner who escaped twice from the city jail.

Willie Bryant, 20, told the court he escaped from work crews to buy cigarets and again to purchase stationery. He returned voluntarily both times, once within an hour, and the following day.

Bryant is serving 135 days for assault and battery and resisting arrest.

Our Oldsters Can Be Saved From Psychosis

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Confused states, when memory plays tricks and older people begin to lose orientation to their surroundings, are warnings that immediate help is necessary.

Dr. Donald W. Hastings, professor of psychiatry at the University of Minnesota, told Mediclines doctors that one out of four people over 70 can be saved from senile psychosis if their condition is discovered soon enough.

"Cerebral reserve" is altered in advancing years, he said. In a quarter of the older people who begin to show symptoms of psychosis, the symptoms can be traced to physical causes such as diabetes or abscessed teeth. Such causes can be corrected and the senile trend reversed, he said.

But he issued warnings against the use of drugs. "The physician can make the patient worse," he said, and warned that particular caution is needed in administering sedatives or tranquilizers.

Hastings also said he had little use for reports on the success or failure of drugs tested without controls.

"The success or failure of any drug is partly psychological," he said. How it is administered and by whom may affect its effectiveness, he said.

Hastings said a doctor who administers a drug with a confident air that it will work is likely to inspire the same confidence in his patient.

The Mediclinic, a postgraduate medical refresher course staffed by doctors from the University of Minnesota, ended a 10-day session here last week.

Israeli To Speak

POMPANO BEACH — A young Israeli diplomat, Meron Medzini, will speak at a brunch on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal today at 10:30 a.m. at the Coach House Harbor.

Medzini is attached to the department of press and information with the Israel embassy staff in Washington, and is considered an authority on Middle Eastern affairs.

Reception To Honor Shapiro

HOLLYWOOD — More than 4,000 persons have been invited to a testimonial and reception honoring Rabbi David Shapiro, spiritual leader of Temple Sinai, Jewish community center, March 26 at 8 p.m. at Hollywood Beach Hotel.

The reception is scheduled four days after ground-breaking ceremonies for the $600,000 temple planned on Johnson St. between 12th and 13th Aves.

Rabbi Shapiro will be presented with a scroll, marking his new lifetime contract with the synagogue.

Rabbi Shapiro was born in Jerusalem Israel, in 1907. He moved with his family in 1919 to Stamford, Conn., where his father, Nathan Shapiro, was a rabbi.

He came to Temple Sinai in 1952.

Rabbi Shapiro belongs to Hollywood Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, Rabbinical Association of Greater Miami and Rabbinical Conference of America.

'Two for the Seesaw'

Play to Benefit Mentally Sick

FORT LAUDERDALE — A performance of the Broadway plan, "Two for the Seesaw," will be given here in April for the benefit of the Mental Health Association of Broward County.

Special permission has been given for it, the association announced, by Fred Coe, producer of the Playhouse 90 television series, who controls the production rights.

Auditions for the two roles in the play and for the job of directing it will begin Monday. They will be conducted by Bob Mayne and Pete Williams, public relations directors for the association's current annual fund drive.

Date of the presentation has not been set, Mayne said.

It was a Broadway hit last year with Henry Fonda and Anne Bancroft. Dana Andrews is currently starring in the Fonda role.

Optimists To Assemble

FORT LAUDERDALE — Optimist Club members from 37 South Florida units will meet with the Beach Optimist Club here Friday for the visit of the organization's international president, J. Harold Wilkins.

Wilkins, a Memphis automotive executive, will speak at the Beach Club Hotel at 8:30 p.m. Beach club president Don Martin announced.

Wilkins became international head last June at the club's convention in Dallas, Tex.

Barbecue Boost For 2 Groups

FORT LAUDERDALE — A barbecue benefiting the fellowship Club of the Mental Health Association and the Fraternal Order of Police Associates will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Broward Hotel. George J. Kelleher is general chairman.

Students Like Savings Accounts

Make Allowances for 'Em; Young Save $4,700 a Week

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — What does junior do with his allowance?

Despite these days of rising prices of hamburgers and milk shakes, quite a few school children are socking money away in savings accounts.

Fact is, some 13,400 students in Broward schools have accounts and their accumulative balances run to about $177,000. They save some $4,700 each week.

"These savings could purchase 4,500 bicycles or put 40 high school graduates through four years of college," said Z. H. Pilcher Jr., school savings officer at First Federal Savings and Loan Association. The institution handles accounts for 38 county schools.

The Key Club at Fort Lauderdale High operates a savings office at its club room through Atlantic Federal savings and Loan Association.

And the Wilton Manors National Bank provides the service for Wilton Manors Elementary. The students buy saving stamps at school. When a book is filled it is turned over to the bank and money is deposited in their account with interest.

Pilcher said that 51 per cent of the students in the schools he serves are regular savers.

The thirft program is student operated. They bring their savings to school each week in envelopes which include a passbook.

"Students are appointed in each class to serve as tellers. They do the bookkeeping and prepare records. An association official picks up and returns the envelopes. Regular interest is paid," Pilcher said.

"One of the important educational factors of the program is that children learn the value of thrift by saving regularly."

Also, First Federal sponsors an annual scholarship for a teacher to take a financial course at Florida State University. This year Kenneth Harding, Stranahan High teacher, was selected for the scholarship.

Fur and Feathers Friendship
. . . Tinker and Pepper are pals

A Catbird?

FORT LAUDERDALE — A couple of pals named Tinker and Pepper say that's all hogwash about cats being mortal enemies of birds.

Tinker, a cat, is crazy about Pepper, a parakeet, and it has nothing to do with appetite. They're pals.

"They've been pals from the start," owner George Bell, retired businessman from Spokane, Wash., said.

The start was about five months ago when the Bells cruised into Bahia Mar in their 43-foot yacht, Minx. Tinker and Pepper live aboard with Mr. and Mrs. Bell, and it's one happy family.

"Pepper can eat things right out of Tinker's mouth," Bell said. "There's never any trouble."

New Role Found For Nutrition

IOWA CITY —(UPI)— A research professor at the State University of Iowa says studies indicate the whole pattern of human growth may be affected by the type of nutrition the body receives.

Dr. Genevieve Stearns, of the department of orthopedics, said it has been found that Japanese children in this country who were fed a typically American diet grew considerably taller than children of the same economic level in Japan.

Dr. Stearns said a good diet shortens the period of growth and "it appears from animal studies" that such a diet may increase the length of the period of active maturity.

She also said that "children should be introduced to meats in infancy which provide a different, interesting texture and help them learn to chew."

She said if a child waits until the age of two to try "chewy" foods, he will have more difficulty learning.

Mehder Co. Expands Sales, Service Facilities in Handsome New Building

Another milestone in the meteoric growth of C. Mehder Co., local Carrier air conditioning dealer, was passed this week with the formal opening of the firm's new two-story building at 1620 N. Federal Hwy.

Show room, offices and service department of the firm occupy most of the first floor. The remaining space on the first floor is to be occupied as a permanent building and architectural display.

Second floor of the $200,000 building contains 5,000 square feet of office space. Tenants will have the use of a rooftop patio, awning covered and decorated with planters. Used brick, imported from Georgia, is effectively used to face the front of the building. Architects were Robert G. Jahelka and William H. Peck. Wilbur L. Kroetz, Inc. was the builder. John Ullmann Jr., interior designer, selected birch paneling and grasscloth for the executive offices to blend with the specially made walnut desks and office furniture.

Clyde Mehder
. . . president

The large, well-lighted showroom contains various models of air conditioning equipment. Along one wall of this room are the sales engineers' offices. Clyde Mehder, president of the company which bears his name, hails from Wisconsin and has been associated with Carrier Corp. since early in the 1930's.

In 1952, he gave up the lucrative post as head of the air conditioning department of the Carrier distributor in St. Louis to open a small office in Fort Lauderdale.

Within four years he had developed his reputation and that of his product, to the point where he doubled his facilities after completing a $7,000 expansion program. At the close of 1958, Carrier Corp. announced that the Mehder dealership in Fort Lauderdale was one of the top two per cent in sales in the nation.

Among the many major installations handled by Mehder in this area are the Chris Craft plant, The Escape, Jolly Roger and Yankee Clipper Hotels; The Broward National, American National and Coral Ridge National banks, Broward County Courthouse addition, Creighton's Restaurant and Four Seasons apartments were air conditioned by the Mehder Co. Mehder also designed the air conditioning equipment in many of the public rooms and the new theater at the British Colonial Hotel in Nassau.

The firm employs a staff of 26 and, in addition to sales and installation, operates a registered Carrier Certified Service shop which handles more than 300 active accounts each month.

Other officials besides Mehder of C. Mehder Co. are Norbert R. Miller, vice-president and treasurer, Charles C. Kanamann, vice-president and general manager, and Charlotte Mehder, secretary.

Executive staff of C. Mehder Co. consists of Herbert La Rue, service manager; Hugh Kirkpatrick and Fred Byers, sales engineers; Marion E. Maier, superintendent, and William Schmid, engineer.

FIRST TO OPEN DOORS in the community shopping center, U-Tote'm food chain store will occupy quarters in the building pictured above in artist's drawing. Other service facilities will be added to complete shopping needs of home owners in the new Broadview Country Club Estates community.

'Open House' Marks Formal Opening Of Food Market in Broadview Estates

"On next Sunday March 22," said I. Michael, president of Broadview, Inc., "we will reach another milestone in the development of Broadview Country Club Estates. We will formally open the U-Tote'm market, the first fully operative business in our community shopping center.

"In this we again are ahead of schedule in our building program. We did not believe we could open this market much before June but work has progressed so well that we can chalk up another record in the growth of Broadview Estates.

"For the occasion there will be free souvenirs and comic books for the youngsters and a carousel for their entertainment. For the heads of families we have ten big heaping baskets of choice food items which will be given away as door prizes. Festivities will get under way at 7 a.m. and continue until 11 p.m. This 'open-house' is not limited to residents of Broadview but is for the public at large. Visitors are cordially invited and will be warmly welcomed.

"In analyzing our sales over the past year we found that the three-bedroom, two-bath 'Greenbriar' was extremely popular. It is indeed a luxury model. The bedrooms are large and cross ventilated and so situated that that they catch the prevailing breezes.

"The master bedroom has its private ceramic tiled bath and stall shower; ample closets, an oversize carporte and utility room. All bathroom fixtures are in color and the kitchen has custom designed cabinets and formica counter tops.

"This is a commodious home containing 1,060 square feet of living area and 190 square feet in the carporte. Copper and brass plumbing is used throughout and we have installed aluminum frame jalousies and screens on doors and windows.

"The beautiful 'Greenbriar' is priced at $10,690, with a cash down payment of only $240. Monthly payments also are low, amounting to $78. This includes interest and mortgage amortization. Broadview homes all are priced to be the best dollar value in South Florida."

Location of Broadview Estates is approximately five miles north of the intersection of West Broward Blvd. and State Rd. 7, (U.S. Hwy. 441). Entrance to the community is on State Rd. 7. The sales office telephone number is WEbster 3-7175.

Migraine and Other Headaches Eliminated

Migraine headaches usually begin in a small localized spot, generally constant at the temple, forehead, or eyeball. The pain is sharp, boring and penetrating, usually spreading to the entire side of the head and neck and may radiate to the arm. Throbbing pain, nausea and vomiting are characteristic.

Dr. S. Perolman

In many instances, displacements of vertebrae in the neck area produce severe pressure on nerves thus causing the headaches.

Nerve Pressure Released

Your chiropractic doctor locates the displaced vertebrae and skillfully replaces them thus releasing the nerve pressure. As the cause is corrected, the headaches are relieved and eliminated.

For a more complete explanation and correction of migraine headaches, visit your chiropractic doctor.

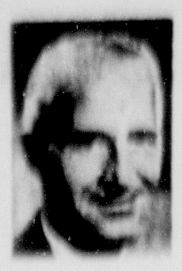
FISHING BROWARD WATERS



Week Theme: Conservation

By GEORGE H. CROWLEY

Herald Writer

TODAY MARKS the beginning of National Wildlife Week, first espoused by President Theodore Roosevelt more than a half century ago.

This year's Wildlife Week will have "conservation in the schools" as its theme and will highlight the need for a better understanding of basic natural resource problems.

In announcing the statewide observance, Dr. H. R. Wilber, president of the Florida Wildlife Federation, said: "All of us have to become more aware of the concepts of conservation and to apply them in our daily living. We must do this if the citizens of tomorrow are to have the wealth of resources that have made America the stronghold of democracy. Our teachers, by giving proper emphasis to conservation, are helping to safeguard this wealth and to insure our leadership among the free nations."

Boca Man Nabs 300-Pound Shark

FOUR CHANGES in leadership plus the first entries in the shark, snook and jack crevalle divisions sparked recent activity in the tourney of the Rod & Reel Club of Deerfield Beach.

R. Wentworth, Boca Raton, won the distinction of entering the first shark, a 300-pounder caught angling from the Broadbill with Capt. Bob Litchfield.

Visiting anglers fishing with Capt. George Strauser on his Mar T Moe accounted for three spots on the display board.

Action was also red-hot at the Ocean Pier with fine catches of mackerel, bluefish and big jacks. The first pompano of the season was caught at the pier last weekend.

TOURNAMENT LEADERS

Amberjack, 34, T. Flickinger, Munster, Ind., boat Mar T Moe.

Grouper, 35, Belva Thomas, Baltimore, boat Mar T Moe.

Wahoo, 38, R. DeWalt, Lafayette Hill, Pa., boat Mar T Moe.

Cobia, 24, J. Fox, Boca Raton, boat Broadbill.

Bonito, 21, Joel Miller, Fort Lauderdale, boat Mar T Moe.

Snapper, 8, William O'Hara, Pompano Beach, boat Broadbill.

Snook, 13, Elmer Mastics, Westlake, Ohio, Intracoastal Waterway.

Shark, 300, R. Wentworth, Boca Raton, boat Broadbill.

Jack Crevalle, 21½, George Peterson, Delray Beach, caught at ocean pier.

Oldest Tourney Offers Prizes

AMERICA'S OLDEST fishing tournament, the 49th annual Field & Stream contest, continues through Dec. 31 with 175 prizes ($8,125 in U.S. bonds) to be awarded in numerous categories. Eligible Florida fish are black bass, bonefish, channel bass, white and blue marlin, sailfish, snook, tarpon, bluefin tuna and sea trout. A special spinning division offers prizes for the heaviest black bass, sea trout, bonefish and snook.

Club to Hear Conservationists

MEMBERS OF the Hollywood Sportsmen's Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. Meetings are in the auditorium of the Hollywood Federal Savings and Loan Building, on Tyler St., and all sportsmen are invited.

H. R. McQuillin, assistant director, State Board of Conversation, will address the group on activities of his department. He will be assisted by Agents Glenn Morehad and Bill Saunderson, with a question period following his talk.

Circuit Judge Richard M. Sauls, former president of the club, will screen and narrate a movie he filmed which includes many sequences of club members fishing numerous spots in South Florida and the Keys.

Lauderdale Anglerette Wins

MRS. INA BOSCH, of Larchmont, N. Y., and Fort Lauderdale, copped two top awards in the 1958 Eastern Airlines Flying Fisherman Contest. Angling off Bimini May 19, Mrs. Bosch caught a 51-pound, 6-ounce wahoo. Her catch established a new all-tackle record in the wahoo division.

On Aug. 26 off Montauk, N. Y., Mrs. Bosch fought and decked a giant bluefin tuna weighing 664 pounds. Both catches were made from her cruiser, Corixa, with Capt. Fred Walters at the controls.

They Found the Range--40 Bass

GENE MURRAY of West Hollywood and Jack Andrews fished the bombing range by air-boat with Capt. Bill Malan. On three trips the trio bagged 40 nice-sized bass with Andrews nailing the largest, 7½ pounds.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 4 of Pompano Beach, will start a course in basic seamanship and boat safety Monday evening. The course is free, with the exception of a small charge for booklets, and begins at 8 p.m. in the Pompano Beach Chamber of Commerce office. Men, women and teenagers are invited and may register now by calling Cmdr. Elmer Bowman at WE 3-6326, or Training Officer Charles Duis at WH 1-1737.

Veteran snook fisherman John Lowe caught a 22-pound snook in the Intracoastal and now holds first place in the Pompano Beach Tournament.

Bob Mixon, manager of Calusa Lodge, Lake Okeechobee, postcards that bass fishing now is tops—R. E. Cooley, Fort Lauderdale, nailed a 7½-pounder; E. D. Williams, also of Lauderdale, caught a six-pounder. Other guests enjoying good luck were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Raunit, Deerfield Beach, and Lauderdale residents Dr. C. Woodall, J. D. Stout and D. E. Whitman.

Cleo Phillips at the Port Boat Livery reports that tons of mackerel were caught last week; also good catches on mangrove snapper and snook.

N.Y. Stake

New York Athletic Club anglers beam proudly by the 6-11 sailfish boated on opening day of their tournament in Fort Lauderdale. Left to right are Steve Raimo and Fred Bernhardt of Great Neck and William V. Brown of Sands Point who landed the 43-pound finster from the Angeline with Capt. Al Sakman.

150 Trying For Spots In Midgets

POMPANO BEACH—There was a turnout of 150 boys 13 years and younger last Saturday, for the Recreation Department's Midget League baseball play.

The boys are holding tryouts daily in an effort to make one of the four Midget League teams that swing into action March 23.

Les Parsons of the Recreation Department said four teams consisting of 15 boys each, will be selected when tryouts are completed.

The boys who don't make that team, will be put in a "Knee-High" League, which serves as a "farm club" for the Midget League.

The league will play a 15-game schedule this year.

When the season ends, about mid-May, the Little League play will get under way, using many of the same boys who play in the Midget League.

A Kudo For Judo In Pompano

POMPANO BEACH — There seems to be a revival of interest in judo classes sponsored by the City Recreation Department, and Les Parsons said "if there is sufficient interest, we'll revive the classes."

Parsons explained, however, that four times classes have been discontinued, after public interest got them started.

"After they get into the series, they seem to lose interest, and pretty soon I find I'm all by myself," Parsons explained.

"I would like to get the series started again," Parsons said.

Pennsylvanian Gaffs 214-Pound Blue Marlin

FORT LAUDERDALE — The jack crevalle and snook division leads changed, but the prime bit of Winter Fishing Festival news last week resulted from the catch of a 214-pound blue marlin.

A visitor from Erie, Pa., J. Robert Baldwin, took the 10-foot-3 blue from Capt. John March's charter cruiser Hi Hopes. He battled the fish for an hour and 45 minutes before bringing it to gaff.

The marlin was 61 pounds lighter than the leader—registered by Pittsburgher Carl Ide.

Shore fishermen were responsible for division changes.

Cass Michiels of Chicago and Jim Harlow of Fort Lauderdale registered catches of a 29-pound jack crevalle and a 38-pound snook.

Indians 'Pitch In' Early

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — As a veteran of the catching trade, Indianapolis Manager Walker Cooper appreciates the need for getting pitchers "ahead" of the batters as early as possible.

So Indian moundsmen have been having lively workouts as they wait for infielders and outfielders to report Monday at Dowdy Field.

Indications are the American Association team's pitchers will be ready to go when intra-squad games begin late this week.

Fifteen non-batterymen are due this weekend as the practice pace at the city ballyard picks up. Knots of fans watching workouts by the Triple-A affiliate of the White Sox are getting bigger.

Chicago and Indianapolis officials pronounced Dowdy in the best condition in the six springs Chisox farmhands have been based there for pre-season drills.

* * *

MOST OF THE PITCHERS and catchers on hand are youngsters, for 11 men on the Indian roster still are at the Chisox camp in Tampa.

Exceptions are Cooper, at 44 still on the active roster, and Karl Drews, 39-year-old Hollywood resident who figures to strengthen the Indianapolis bullpen.

Drews, an ex-Yankee, ended last season in an Indian uniform after opening with Buffalo of the International League.

"Karl pitches with his head as well as his arm," Glen Miller, Chisox farm director, said. "We'll be anxious to see what he shows in exhibition games."

The three Broward-based teams in the four-team "South Florida Grapefruit League" are readying for the start of games late this month.

Memphis of the Southern Association opens camp Monday at Mickel Field in Wilton Manors, and Dallas, a newcomer to the American Association, is accelerating Pompano Beach workouts.

The fourth member of the high-minor "circuit," Miami's International League Marlins, are training in Miami Beach.

* * *

INDIANAPOLIS' DOWDY exhibitions will begin at 2 p.m. The first game, next Sunday, calls for Memphis to play here.

Remainder of the Indian exhibition schedule:

March 23—Dallas at Pompano Beach; March 24—Memphis at Hollywood; March 25—Toronto at Hollywood; March 26 — Dallas at Hollywood; March 27—Miami at Miami Beach; March 28—Memphis at Hollywood; March 29 — Memphis at Wilton Manors; March 30 — Dallas at Hollywood; March 31—Memphis at Wilton Manors.

April 1 and 2—Miami at Hollywood; April 3 and 4—Dallas at Pompano Beach; April 5—Dallas at Hollywood; April 6 and 7—Charleston at Hollywood; April 8—Miami at Miami Beach; April 9—Miami at Hollywood.

Other Chicago farm clubs will arrive late this month and in early April. Charleston, S.C., of the Class A Sally League, will report March 23; Lincoln, Neb., of the Three-I (Class B) in April, and Duluth-Superior and Clinton, Iowa, April 14.

Duluth-Superior is in the Class C Northern League, Clinton in the Class D Midwest League.

Flag Hopes Flying Again

WE GENERALLY KNOW spring training's here when Glen Miller ankles into the office with a sunny grin matching his idea of a Florida sports shirt.

The White Sox farm director's been tardy. Here it is mid-March and we've just got our first glimpse of him.

MILLER

His shirt was a mild polka-dot. His optimism also was of a milder degree.

It was this time last year that Glen told us the 1958 Sox upstarts would whip the Yankees.

Miller grimaced at the reminder.

"I'm not gonna tell you that again," he shuddered.

"But if three of the kids up from Indianapolis come through, the Sox will be right in there after the penant."

He referred to outfielder John Callison and John Romano, who went 1-2 in the American Association home run derby last year, and pitcher Barry Latman, a 3-0 late-season performer with Chicago after moving up from Indianapolis.

* * *

'Interesting' Ball for Broward

GLEN SAID BROWARD FANS can expect the Indianapolis team training in Hollywood to provide "interesting baseball" in their exhibitions throughout the county.

"Walker Cooper has the boys hustling to make the team," he explained. After a year as a Triple-A skipper, the big fellow knows what's needed to win in such company."

Miller said he was glad to hear that construction has started on the Fort Lauderdale sports stadium, and that the city should have a "good chance" of getting a major league team to train here once the place is completed.

Sox officials are glad that big Ed Walsh, the Hall of Fame pitcher seriously ill in Pompano Beach, retains an interest in his old Chicago team.

"Some of us will get up there to see him," Miller said. "I know he'll want a rundown on the current Sox club."

Ron to Run on St. Patrick's Day

WONDER IF RON DELANY finally decided (after two earlier turndowns) to run in the Irish Mile in Hollywood Tuesday because it'll be St. Patrick's Day?

The Irish Fair people kept after the young Irish athlete, and certainly deserve an "A" for effort. Their efforts also resulted in Tom O'Riordan, another fine miler from the auld sod, entering the mile run against his countryman.

Delany didn't want to disappoint Pat Heneghan and others rooting for him to run at Jaycee Field. His presence will help add to the overall program lined up by the Hollywood Optimists Club.

The Optimists apparently believe that there's something to the saying that the third time is the charm. After Delany's two refusals, they took a chance and sent him an airline ticket, along with a fresh invitation. Ron decided to keep the ticket.

Harness Program To Aid Jaycees

POMPANO BEACH—Fred Van Lennep, who intends to introduce pari-mutuel-backed harness racing at Pompano Park, today hopes to whet the racing fan's appetite with some "sample" races.

Trotters and pacers will run in a 2 p.m. program to benefit projects of the Pompano Beach Jaycees.

The show is the first of three charity racing matinees to be held before the Legislature considers a bill which would allow legalized wagering at the track.

Six races are on today's slate and, in addition to drivers here, some from a training plant at Orlando will take part. Fifty horses from the Drummond Farms of Birmingham, Mich., will race, and other stables, including Van Lennep's Castleton Farms, also will be represented.

Harness race procedures differing from thoroughbred training and running will be evaluated over the track microphone.

The 50-member fife and drum corps of the Harvey Seeds Legion Post of Miami will play.

Races will be supervised by the U.S. Trotting Association.

The other standardbred exhibitions are set for March 22 and April 5, under respective sponsorship of the North Broward Society of the Symphony and the Pompano Beach Kiwanis Club.

FORT LAUDERDALE — "Trends in Tropical Living" is the appropriate theme of Broward County's own home show — the Broward Building Exposition — which opens Tuesday for a five-day War Memorial Auditorium run.

At least 55,000 persons are expected to attend the big free show.

The Broward Building Exchange's eighth annual exposition gives the public an opportunity to see and compare the largest and most diversified display of building materials, equipment and services ever assembled in the county.

The 63 booths and exhibits have a common thread — the tropical theme.

Architects, engineers, builders, public officials and other invited guests are to attend a preview showing at 3 p.m. Tuesday, and the general public will be admitted at 7 p.m.

Exhibition awards (bronze plaques) will be presented by guest judges at the preview. Judging is to be on ingenuity, consumer appeal and over-all effect of displays.

* * *

THE $2-MILLION worth of construction equipage will be displayed afternoons and evenings through Saturday night.

To enable visitors to pass through aisles inside the auditorium while inspecting displays, larger equipment will be shown outside.

An added event this year is a Miss Tropic Living beauty contest. Pretty employes will represent their firms in the competition, which will be judged at the preview.

The winner will cut a ribbon Tuesday night to officially open the exposition.

* * *

THE BBE COMMITTEE expects the largest turnout in the exposition's history. Members are Mrs. Lily Goehring, Robert McCann, William L. McGee and Gene Whiddon.

Mrs. Goehring, BBE executive secretary, said the home show is intended to encourage home ownership in Broward County, and to provide ideas for homeowners who have home maintenance or remodeling problems.

Not only will there be no admission or parking charge, but some firms will furnish souvenirs. BBE personnel will man an information booth to provide information relating to any item on display.

A popular feature of other shows — a cake-baking contest — will run continuously.

About 40 homemakers will vie for the $150 to go to the winner ($100 for her club, church or charity and the remainder for herself). The second and third place finishers will receive lesser amounts, and all three winners will be given engraved silver cups.

ORGAN MUSIC will be played throughout the week and nightly entertainment on tap includes a fashion show and dance, acrobatic, tumbling and judo exhibitions.

About 40 per cent of the products shown are new, recently improved, or on the South Florida market for the first time.

The exposition committee said no "sales hawking" will be permitted.

Whiddon, BBE president added that the show is meant to "interest everybody who has a home or who hopes to have one."

* * *

BOOTHS WILL show the latest developments in the building and allied fields, including heating, flooring, plumbing and furniture.

"We intend the exposition as a showcase of our industry," Whiddon said.

Three BBE trade groups — general contractors, trowell tradesmen and ornamental and structural metals specialists — will portray their phases of construction.

General contractors will offer 20 questions to assure the prospective owner the maximum for his building dollar. Trowel trades contractors will demonstrate modern methods for the use of tile, block, brick, marble and terrazzo, and ornamental and structural metals men will exhibit examples of their craft.

The BBE, which has 330 member firms, promotes better construction practices through its committees and apprentice and craftsmanship training programs. The exchange publishes an annual construction guide as part of its public service effort.

Eight-Story Brenton Reef: New Hillsboro Club Home

HILLSBORO BEACH — The Hillsboro Club's five-year program to blend progress with tradition will be launched next summer with construction of an eight-story residential structure for club members.

Wilbur L. Kroetz and G. Chris Keagy announced Saturday that they will build a 26-unit building to be known as the Brenton Reef House, the name being suggested by the famous lightship off the coast of Nantucket, Mass.

Kroetz-Keagy Inc. will spend about $5 million within the next five years to transform the 16-acre Hillsboro tract just north of the Hillsboro lighthouse into a locale of modern residential apartments and club rooms.

Alterations and additions to the venerable Hillsboro Club, for 34 years an East Coast landmark, are embraced in the over-all plan for the scheduled strip.

The Brenton Reef House, an oceanside structure, will have inside parking throughout the first level, four apartments in each of its six next stories, and two penthouses.

Construction, to start in May, will be completed by mid-November, Kroetz, president of the building and development corporation, said.

Architect George D. Storrs Jr. designed each apartment with a private balcony and a wide expanse of glass for a panoramic view of the grounds, which stretch from the ocean along tree-lined drives to the Intracoastal Watersay.

With the Brenton House commitment, the Kroetz-Keagy firm, developer of 12 Florida oceanfront cooperatives, ventures into another construction phase.

Members of the club are offered units in the planned structure on a 20-year lease basis, but at the end of this period they would have the option of purchase provided two-thirds of the occupants favor this proposal.

Only Hillsboro Club members may obtain leases, and as occupants they may call on the catering and service departments of the club. Lease-holders may transfer their apartments only to club members.

The Brenton Reef House will offer elevator service and individual apartment heat controls. It will rise above a strip of private oceanfront.

BROWARD BUILDER

Buyers Now Favoring Higher-Priced Homes

IT'S BEEN PROVED many times at trying to predict what the house-inting public will buy is an uncertain isiness. One local developer is ex-riencing another proof of it, and hat he has discovered may indicate mething to those who say the mar-t is slow on medium-priced housing.

When Plantation Isles was launch-l, off Peters Rd. west of State Rd. 7, e chief pitch was geared to anticipat-l sales in the $16,000-$18,000 range. uilder Norman Johnson and his as-ciates felt that was where the great-demand would lie.

They are pleased to admit now that ey guessed wrong. The average sale around $22,000 and some are ap-roaching $30,000; the better homes re moving considerably faster than ose in the lower ranges.

WHAT PRICE HOME WILL THE PUBLIC BUY?
THAT'S A TOUGH ONE-BUILDERS

This is in contrast to the fact that e biggest selling house in the country day is what is loosely referred to as he $10,000 house," which embraces erything between $8,000 and $12,000.

The single family home permits is-ied by the County Building Depart-ent during February averaged out to most exactly $10,000. The Plantation erage was about $14,000 for January; ebruary was not a representative onth there because some 50 permits ken out for low-cost homes in Planta-on Point brought the average down to n abnormal low—for Plantation—of 10,000.

Plantation Isles could be an isolated ase, but its experience indicates that there's a brand of customer available who's ready to upgrade himself substantially, even when offered a lower-priced house in the same subdivision. All models offered there have waterfront, so the lesser models are at no disadvantage in that respect.

* * *

THE SINGLE-FAMILY permit averages over the county last month provide something of a guide to what the public is buying.

In Hollywood it was just over $18,000, in Fort Lauderdale a little over $19,000, and in Pompano Beach about $16,000.

The total number of such permits issued in all three cities, however, was only 80, or about one-fifth of the number issued for the unincorporated areas of the county.

All three of them combined, moreover, didn't reach Plantation's total, which was 101. It was an unusual month for Plantation, but the January total of 35 single family permits there put the community up among the much larger cities in this type of construction.

With 426 single-family permits issued last month in the unincorporated sections, there's no doubt now as to the direction of the home-buying trend.

* * *

JUST AS HOUSING construction has begun to reach upward toward pre-1958 levels in the county, the mortgage money market has tightened. This may bring about some lessening in home building, according to the quarterly newsletter issued by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

General economic expansion and increased home construction activity are to blame, the quarterly says.

It almost leads one to the conclusion that South Florida is in a perpetual squeeze. When there's no building, our entire economy suffers; when building is good, money becomes hard to get.

,300 SALE involved this three-bed-m, 2½-bath home at 2317 NE Eighth Mr. and Mrs. Mason McGuire sold residence to Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Townsend, formerly of Birmingham, Ala. Agnes W. Jones of Weber Realty handled the transaction.

She Carries Dishes 51 Miles Every Year

FORT LAUDERDALE — Did you know the lady of the house carries dishes 51 miles a year?

Research people say so.

That's why the Alagon Cooperative Apartments, 3100 NE 28th St., have waist-high wall apertures, four feet long and three feet high, between kitchen and dining areas.

Women notice it first when they inspect the model unit in the new six-story co-op.

It enables her to place a prepared meal in dishes on a serving counter on the kitchen side, make one trip from kitchen to dining area, and then serve the meal to the table directly from the counter top.

When not needed, the aperture closes to become a grilled or solid screen.

The furnished model is being shown by Anaconda Realty Co., Alagon sales representative and property manager. It is open daily and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Milbrand to Begin Work on New Hotel

LAUDERDALE-BY-THE-SEA — Owner-Builder Otto Milbrand will begin construction late next month on a 57-room hotel on an oceanfront site east of State Rd. A1A between Lauderdale-By-The-Sea and Pompano Beach, which is to be completed before next winter season.

The contemporary-styled three and four-story structure, tentatively named The Satellite, will be between the Golden Falcon and Traders hotels.

Architect Carl A. Petersen is completing plans for the CBS building, which will have 32,000 square feet of floor area.

A 5,000 square foot thin-shell concrete dome, 28 feet high, and blue-green stone trim will be exterior features. A 40-foot long swimming pool, cabanas, a putting green and two shuffleboard courts are proposed.

Diocese Plans To Buy Tract In Golden Isles

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

THE CATHOLIC DIOCESE in Miami is expected next week to purchase 7½ acres in Hallandale's canal-laced Golden Isles development for $175,000.

A church, school, rectory, convent and social hall are expected to go up in the swanky Golden Isles.

Last week, the Hallandale City Commission passed an ordinance vacating portions of Poinsettia and Flamingo Drives, which the church wanted to consolidate its facilities.

Also notable in church real estate activity last week was the purchase by the First Baptist Church in Hallandale of a 100 by 150-foot tract from Manuel Mendoza, farmer, for $25,000.

The tract has Hallandale Beach Blvd. frontage, and $100,000 church is planned, officials said.

Equipment Dealer Moving

ONE OF THE BIGGEST dealers in surplus heavy equipment in Florida is moving his West Hollywood shop.

Hugh Cramer said the new location is the predominently industrial area just south of State Rd. 84 and west of State Rd. 7. His present quarters are at South State Rd. 7.

Commenting on the move, Cramer said:

"They criticized the looks of my business and said it lowered property values, but they forgot I was there before them."

Residential Construction Up

JANUARY - FEBRUARY residential construction in Hollywood is up over the same period last year. Permits for 79 homes were issued, compared with 45 for the first two months of 1958.

Home construction total for the first two months this year is $1,345,889, an increase over the $685,839 of last year.

Hollywood, which tipped the $16 million building mark last year, reached the $2 million niche toward equalling that figure this year.

Heavy activity in home construction is shaping, according to advance predictions, with a lot of action coming from the Hollywood Hills section.

West Hollywood is expected to give another record account of home construction by year's end.

BUSINESS IN BROWARD

Good Will Customers Pay Off Without Pay

W. I. Warrensford
. . . new bank official

BUSINESS PEOPLE of the area, who have been roundly criticized at times as neglecting the matter of good will among customers, were offered a thorough lesson in the importance of it by Borden Food Co. Vice President Will Foster in Fort Lauderdale last week.

In his talk to the Sales Executive Club, he suggested that the oft-used phrase "word of mouth advertising" be changed to "word of mouth salesmanship" and more attention be paid to what he termed a business firm's "invisible sales force."

In preparation for the talk, he reported, he and his wife recorded for two weeks all the comments made by their friends in normal conversation about products, companies and professional services.

"The tabulation was amazing," he announced. "It showed our friends trying to persuade us to change the source of our groceries, our family dentist, our clothes cleaning and pressing firm, and many other products and services.

"Without being consciously aware of it, we got two new customers for a cabinetmaker who helped remodel our kitchen and exerted influence on two freinds to buy the make of automobile we own. We persuaded other friends to buy their meats in a food store where we shop."

Such an invisible sales force, Foster pointed out, is not only vital to a business but has many advantages. It collects no pay, expects no unemployment compensation or welfare fund contributions.

Debits Jump

BANK DEBITS in Fort Lauderdale jumped 28.8 per cent from January 1958 to the same month this year, according to the most recent tabulation of the Chamber of Commerce. The figure went up from $199,654,272 to $257,248,527.

Postal receipts went up 18 per cent, the number of electric meters seven per cent, the number of telephones 13 per cent, water meters 5.6 per cent and Port Everglades tonnage the same.

Building permits in both the city and county declined, 6.9 per cent and 10.2 per cent, respectively.

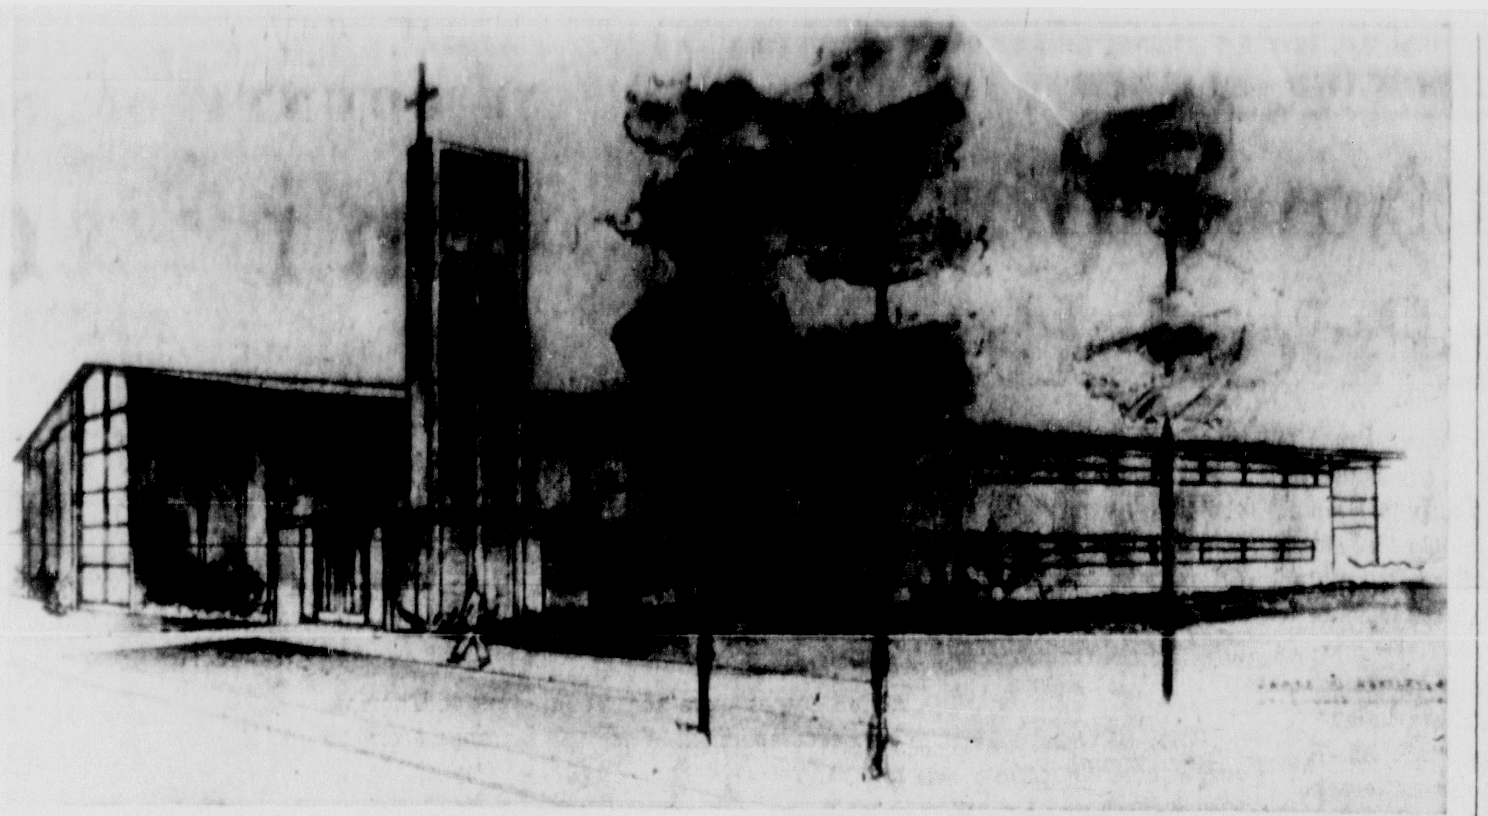
Anchors Aweigh

TODAY IS THE FINAL DAY of a boat show staged annually at the De Padro Yacht Basin. Included in the displays is a new Chris-Craft model, a V-8 powered 23-foot Cavalier Express. The engine develops 208 gross horsepower.

FABRIC-CARPETRY SHOWROOM of the W. L. Brittle Co. has been opened at 2723 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood. The firm has operated in Hollywood for 11 years. A new line of decorator accessories, including Japanese woven-woods for draperies and roll-up shades, is on display. Hand-painted designs are created by the company's staff.



Baptists Build

West Lauderdale Baptist Church is under construction at 3601 Davie Blvd. The present church there will be razed on completion of the auditorium, and the Sunday school addition, to the right, will be built later. Ground was broken after services last Sunday on the first phase of the quarter-million dollar project.

Who Took the First Aerial Picture?

A recent issue of the magazine, Flying, identifed one Flashlight Lawrence as the "first aerial photographer." The magazine said that, using balloons, kites and ingenuity, Lawrence obtained the first air picture in 1906. The subject: the San Francisco earthquake area.

But Edward Rowe Snow, the New England marine historian, disputes this. He says that he has found in the Boston Athenaeum an aerial photograph taken by one J. W. Black from a balloon over downtown Boston on Oct. 13, 1860.

Photography in 1860 meant the use of wet plates, which in this case had to be prepared high in the sky a few moments before the actual picture could be attempted. Curtains were dropped in the balloon so Black could work on the plates in darkness.

By the time the balloon reached 1,200 feet, Black was able to take six pictures.

Dress Up And Shape Up

TUCSON, Ariz. — (AP) — Police Chief Bernard Garmire is helping civic groups in a dress right campaign aimed at schools.

Garmire says most folks who have brushes with the law are dressed shabbily — from the youngest juvenile to the oldest criminal.

"We find that dirty people often have dirty minds," he added.

Insurance Talk

MICHAEL M. McKENNY, director of advanced underwriting for the New York Life Insurance Co., will speak to the Broward County Association of Life Underwriters at their meeting Friday noon at the Yankee Clipper Hotel.

2 Models Open at Deerfield

The styles are the Bristol, three bedrooms and two baths, and the Dover, three bedrooms and one bath. The former is listed at $13,900, the latter at $12,850.

The subdivision, west of Federal Hwy. in South Deerfield Beach, is FHA approved. Developer-Builders Herbert M. Unger and M. M. Schneider have been active in South Florida construction for two years.

Both models feature built-in storage wall closets, tile roofs and tiled baths and sills.

Our Tunnel's Ahead of Schedule

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—The Federal Hwy. tunnel job should be finished ahead of schedule.

Although the contract calls for the tunnel to be finished early in 1961, late word is that traffic should begin moving under New River by Christmas of next year.

James E. Hood, project manager for Thorington Construction Co., said Saturday that the project is 22 per cent completed and "substantially ahead of schedule."

Hood said that before the night work shift was abolished (because persons living near the river were kept awake), an early December 1960 completion date was the target.

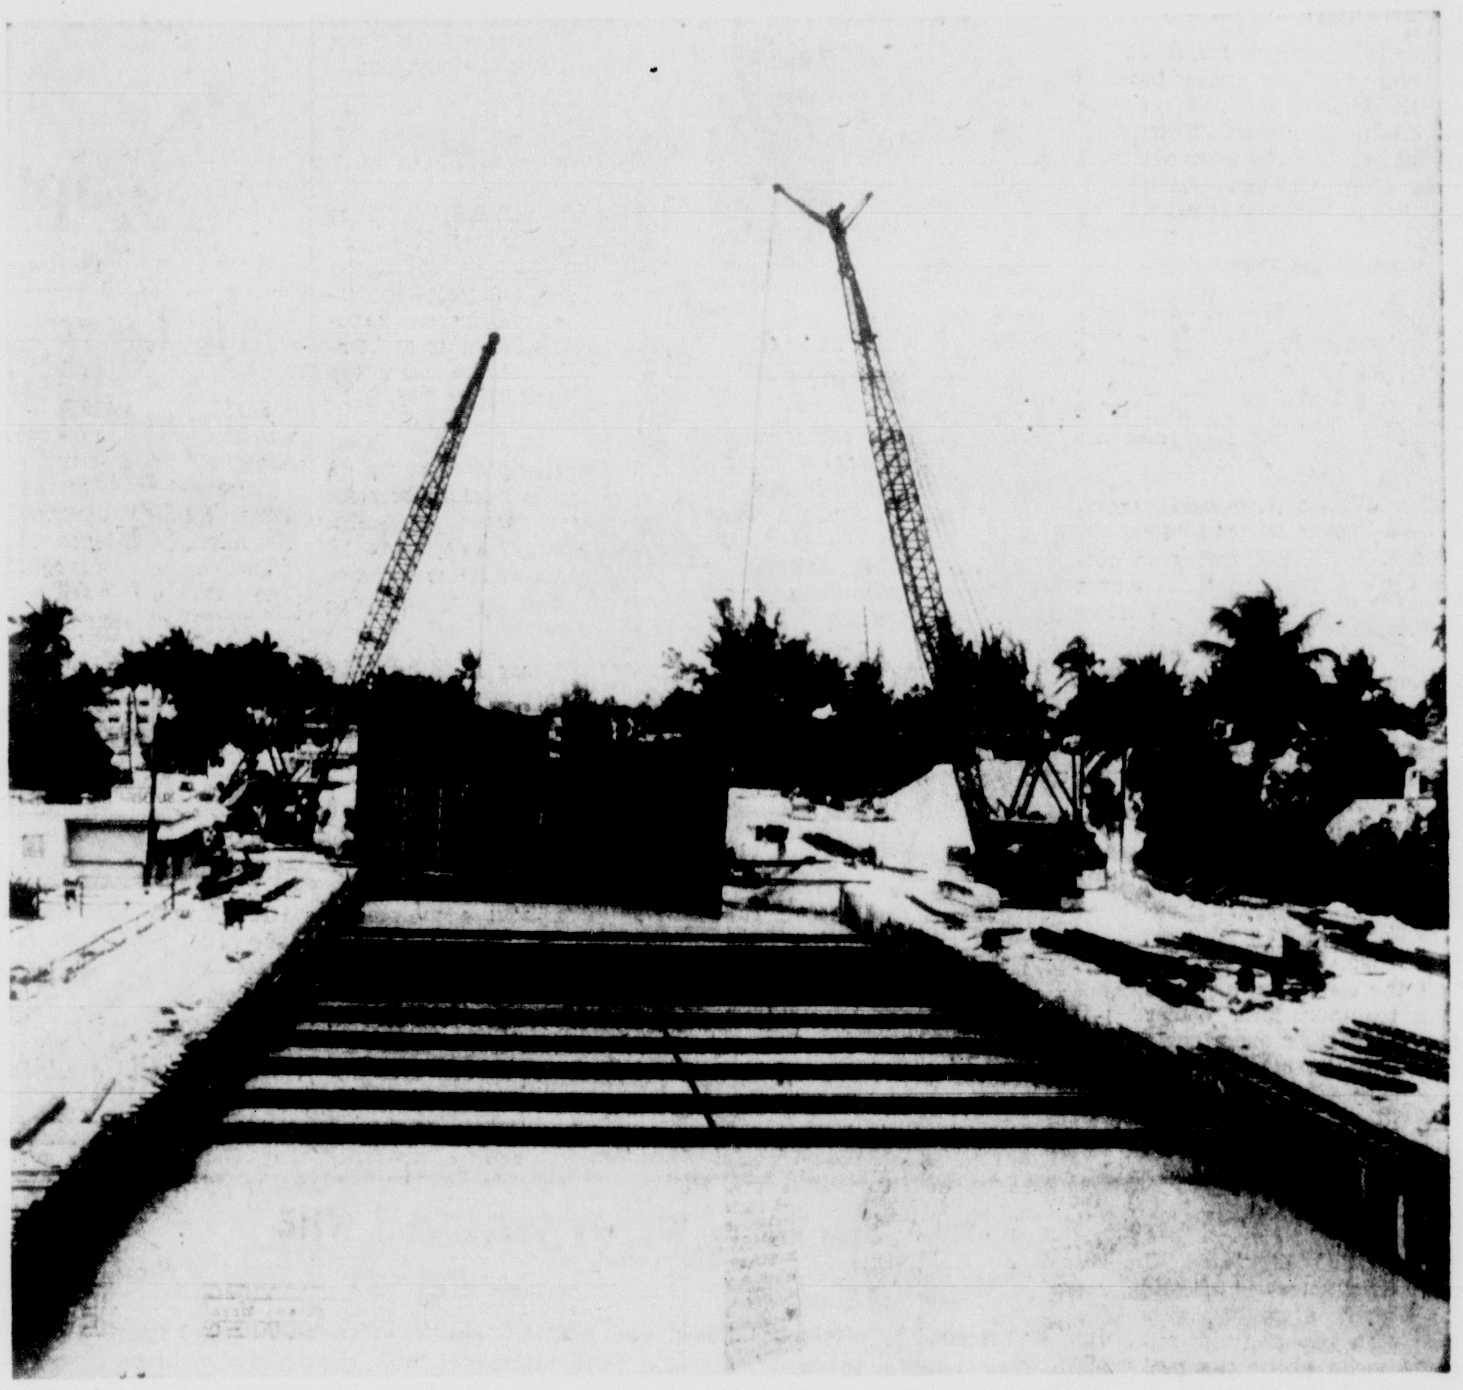
Submerged 125-Ton End Trusses Inspected
.... James E. Hood stands on 'I' beam at mid-river

Two rented cranes were added last week to Thorington's four-crane complement. The cranes range from 25 to 80-tonners.

The $6½-million federal aid job will provide two 24-foot roadways over a .43-mile course under the river.

The actual tunnel will have double 24-foot tubes with a portal-to-portal length of 862 feet and an inside height of 14½ feet. An open trench construction method will be used.

Excavation will run to 123,000 yards within retaining walls and will attain depths of more than 50 feet below water level at the river.



Temporary Wall Permits Stage-Pouring of Tremie Concrete
... wall is needed as tremie must be poured in continuous operation

Work is being done in two segments that will join at midstream. Piling and cofferdam for the first (south) segment, ending slightly beyound midstream, leaves a 40-foot marine passage.

The finished tube will leave a 100-foot river channel 14½ feet deep.

The project will require 32,000 yards of tunnel concrete, 17,000 yards of tremie concrete (a type for use under water) and 2,000 tons of reinforcing bars.

* * *

A PREPONDERANCE of this material will go into the double tube, which will have sides 2 feet, 9 inches thick and a top 3 feet, 4 inches thick.

A maximum of seven-foot depth of roadway under the river will consist of a four-foot remie conrete base under the three-foot depth of the highway surface.

Wheels of automobiles at mid-river will be about 36 feet below the river surface.

Some 2,000 tons of sheet piling will be shifted to the north bank of the river as the work panorama shifts there.

Even with the third — or night — shift out of the picture, 90 workmen are employed, and the total will be graudated to a maximum of about 140.

* * *

Other leading principals, in addition to Hood, include H. C. Guppy, general field superintendent, and George Poland, engineer for the contractor. John Gerren is the State Road Department resident engineer.

They have seen pile-driving hammers, supplied by twin air compressors, drive sheeting as deep as 70 feet. Also intriguing has been the placing of prestressed beams to form a temporary work bridge on which to walk a big rig for excavation of the river bottom.

Divers have been active from time to time for the last four months, checking the fit of steel bracings and removing obstacles from the cofferdam area.

With approval late last week for crews to resume 24-hour drilling, the job could be speeded up somewhat. City officials made it plain, however, that the approval was strictly on a trial basis.

Hood said he sympathizes with those who are bothered by the noise, but reiterated that "this isn't a particularly noisy operation. Some people will say I'm a pretty poor judge."

He added that the extent of noise would be "about the same" in the next few weeks as it has been for some time.

The project manager said he was aware that some boatmen had labeled the pass between the two temporary bridges across New River as "blind" or "narrow."

But really, Hood continued, "All I know about this is what I've read in the papers. We have provided the 40-foot clearance specified for proper maintenance of the channel. The clearance and the schedule of bridge openings were decided upon after long consideration by the marine people concerned."

Steel wales and struts are being placed throughout the first segment.

Some 40,000 cubic yards of excavating material will be used as backfill in the cofferdam.

A job just undertaken involves the drilling of holes and the placing of anchor rods to secure the concrete bottom.

Work is being accelerated by three drills mounted on a traveling bridge spanning the cofferdam.

Their Travels Paying Off

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — As partners in adventure, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weber came to Fort Lauderdale in 1957 on their cruiser, Do-Re-Mi. They traveled nearly 3,000 miles on a trip from Chicago which marked their first try at navigation.

Two years and many thousands of miles later (in 17 countries), the Webers are back at Bahia Mar aboard a new Do-Re-Mi, one they intend calling home six months every year. They sold the first after their trip was recorded for The Chicago Trbune by Mrs. Weber. She is the Tribune's Travel Editor Marion Claire.

Miss Claire is also the well-known soprano who sang many roles at the Chicago Opera Co. when her husband was its artistic director.

"Our careers have run parallel during the entire 30 years of our marriage," said Mr. Weber, who directed the "Theafter of the Air" in which his wife starred. They concluded the program when Col. Robert McCormick, its sponsor, died in 1955.

Now the couple record their travels together. Mrs. Weber writes about their experiences in her weekly column; Mr. Weber pictures the places they go in TV travelogues. Three of his color films appeared on recent programs.

* * *

"I DON'T WRITE MUCH about tourist attractions," said Mrs. Weber, a pretty, slim blonde with pep and enthusiasm. "I write about the people, the food, the customs . . . almost anything."

She dubs her column "African Holiday," "Greek Holiday" or preceded by whatever place they happen to hang their hats.

"We always stayed in a country long enough to get to know the people," she explained. "And sometimes we waited around for things to happen."

In Egypt the Webers inadvertently found themselves in the midst of a throng cheering for Nasser. "We followed him into the big square in Cairo," said Mrs. Weber, "before we knew what was going on."

The celebration marked the beginning of Syria as a republic when she joined Egypt.

* * *

"WE TOOK A luxurious steamer trip down the Nile," said Mrs. Weber, "and met many charming, cultured Egyptians. Many of them take these trips because they have no other way of spending their money, since they can't take it out of the country."

They visited the palatial "rest houses" of former King Farouk, which Mrs. Weber described as "opulent, garish, crowded with treasures."

"He 'lived it up' in unbelievable style," said Mrs. Weber, who saw the decadent Farouk later in Switzerland "looking fat and messy and eating an ice cream cone."

The islands of Greece were so enchanting to the Webers they visited them for six weeks. They were in Rhodes when the king and queen of Greece arrived for the island's 10th anniversary of its freedom. They were invited to a reception by the king and queen.

"They were two dedicated people," said Mrs. Weber.

* * *

"WE ENJOY LIVING on a boat more than anything in the world," she declared. "We were bitten that spring when we were here in 1957 and never got over it."

Their 55-foot yacht is beautifully arranged, roomy and livable. The well-equipped galley opens to the main salon with a counter between.

"It's a great convenience to have everything at hand on the same level," remarked Mrs. Weber.

"We plan to stay put until we get her completely furnished," added Mr. Weber.

In May they will head for their home in Lake Bluff, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, where they have a 16-room house and a garden Mr. Weber tends himself.

DAR Museum Dream Now Becoming Reality

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Women's Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — A dream of two decades of Himmarshee Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is taking form at last.

Fort Lauderdale's history may soon be recorded in a museum sponsored by the chapter.

Its beginning will be small, far less grandiose than once planned by the women who feel that the museum is a cultural must for the community.

But it is a start.

Museum pieces collected by chapter members will be on display in the new city library in Holiday Park after it is opened in June.

* * *

"WE CAN START in a little way and test the interest of Fort Lauderdale through the displays," said Mrs. George R. Cartwright, regent of the 180-member chapter, which was founded in May 1927.

The displays, they hope, will prove the need for a museum as a permanent resting place of items recording the history of Fort Lauderdale.

If public interest is such, the DAR will institute a money-raising campaign to purchase the right location for a museum building.

For several years the chapter has tried repeatedly to interest the city and state in donating public lands for the museum.

They have asked at various times for museum space at Colee Hammock Park, Birch State Park and on the Piper property, which was donated jointly to the city and School Board.

Each request has been refused. The answer seems to be to raise additional money for the purchase of private land. The DAR has funds for the building project.

* * *

THE FIRST museum pieces, all on loan, will be shown to charpter members at their April meeting.

Mrs. Cartwright will display the Stilwell scrapbooks, which tell of the work in Fort Lauderdale of her pioneer father, the late Tim Stilwell, who developed the islands off Las Olas Blvd.

Also in the display will be a collection of antique fans and parasols owned by Mrs. George Z. Miller, the antique doll collection of Mrs. John Kraemer, a collection of Seminole work owned by Mrs. O. H. Abbey and old original books of Mrs. Julian Lowe.

In the meanwhile Mrs. Cartwright is contacting pioneer Fort Lauderdale familes requesting the loan of pieces for displays in the library and, eventually, the museum.

She is asking residents to notify Mrs. Ernest J. Ginter about any items they are willing to donate or loan for exhibit.

The list of articles needed includes anything connected with the history of Fort Lauderdale: Heirlooms, works of art, old scrapbooks, handcraft, fans, dolls, ceramics, Indian handcraft, shawls and guns.

* * *

FORT LAUDERDALE will celebrate its 50th anniversary in 1961. In the attics and closets of many older homes, it is felt, are articles of historical interest.

NATIONAL SORORITY OFFICER

Alumnae of AXD To Hear Miamian

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mrs. Robert F. Mikell of Miami will be honor guest and speaker at 8 p.m. Tuesday at a meeting of the Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae Club at the home of Mrs. W. J. Minton, 2414 Castilla Island.

Mrs. Mikell is national council member-at-large and director of expansion. Her subject will be "Inside National Council."

She has served as the group's province president, is a former national officer and holds office in the Miami Panhellenic Association.

She also has been president of the woman's auxiliary to the Dade County Medical Association and has served the community in many other organizations.

All members of the sorority in this area are invited to attend. Mrs. John Bordeman, president, will discuss plans for the sorority's annual founder's day banquet April 22 at Governors' Club Hotel.

Newest Convert From California: Flamba, a Yacht

By GRIFF PRESTON
Herald Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — That handsome 85-foot acht, Flamba, docked at the Everglades Yacht and Tenis Club is Florida's newest convert from California.

Owned by the Roger Cunninghams (of the Hill-Cuningham Automatic Pilot Co.), the Flamba, with the unninghams and their five young Cunninghams board, left Newport Beach, Calif., Jan. 8, and arrived t her new home port in Fort Lauderdale last week.

The journey from the Pacific to the Atlantic wasn't ll spent at sea—for two weeks the Cunninghams anchord in Acapulco's harbor.

On their arrival in Panama, a friend of the family ame on board, advising them ". . . not to get into town Balboa) that night as there is a revolution scheduled."

The "revolution" took place the next day when stuents escorted an official out of town.

On the eight-hour passage through the Panama Caal, they found "some of the most beautiful scenery of he entire cruise"—best part of the trip for 18-year-old liss Joan Cunningham.

Off Nicaragua they put in at Great Corn Island, a obsterman's Eldorado where the natives claim "500 lobters in a single catch is not at all unusual," and there hey feasted on four dozen of the lovely creatures.

By way of Key West, the Flamba purred up the old Coast and came into her new Fort Lauderdale home, ust 58 days out of the Southern coast of California!

How Much Does It Cost To Own a Freezer?

Can food freezers save you oney?

That depends on how much ozen food your family is willg to eat, says James D. romley, consumer education ecialist at the University of hode Island. To make a eezer pay its way, you have use it often.

"This means having most of our meat, vegetables and fruits from the freezer," said Bromley.

If you fill a 14-cubic-foot freezer only once a year (about 420 pounds of frozen food), the cost of owning and operating the freezer will amount to about 29 cents per pound, he said. If you fill the freezer 2½ times a year (1,050 pounds of food) the cost of owning and operating the freezer drops to 12 cents per pound of frozen food.

Superstitious? You Can Bet That They Are

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

HALLANDALE — Suppress your superstitions? They'll crop up at the race track, it's a sure bet.

Women who are lucky at winning admit that many silly superstitions lead them to the pari-mutuel windows. But they work.

"I can't divulge my lucky number," said Mrs. George Cavanaugh with a smile, "because it's my age."

Whenever Mrs. Cavanaugh sees her age in the daily double she picks that combination — with repeated good luck.

This little secret of success at betting takes precedence over her own horses sometimes. She and Mr. Cavanaugh bet, of course, on their horses stabled every season at Gulfstream Park.

The old "come 7, come 11" comes into the running at Gulfstream for Mrs. Paris Singer, who wins frequently with one or the other. They used to number her home in Atlanta and have figured in some lucky days for her.

"I check the record, then go ahead and pick the prettiest horse," admitted Mrs. Ray Wilcox of Hollywood. "The jockeys call me 'an angel.' In other words, I don't use my head."

Mrs. Wilcox's straight-thinking mind (in professional life she's a lawyer (Ella Jo Stollberg), lets the whim of the moment take over, ". . . and you know, I've been lucky more times picking a pretty horse than I've been when I went carefully by past records."

Mrs. Matt Wynn Williamson III has been placing bets with the same cashier year in and year out at Gulfstream. She looks up his window at the opening race, follows him if he changes — and he frequently pays her off.

"I always put the ticket in my shoe," added Mrs. Williamson, whose husband (grandson of the Kentucky racing Matt Wynn) smiles at such procedures.

Mrs. Lola Stoecklein says she "pops down to the races nearly every day," but her betting goes according to names of horses which remind her of places or people. Sometimes she hits, again she misses.

The old superstition about green being unlucky at the track is one Eugenia Bankhead says is nonsense. Her racing silks are green and orange.

Another racing enthusiast who has the luck of the Irish at the races is Mrs. Albert Houghton, winter vacationer from California, who deliberately picks the horse whose jockey is wearing green.

Diving Horse Answered Her Problem

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Broward Women's Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Riding a diving horse is the ideal solution to a young mother's baby sitting problems.

Marion Lisehora, a pretty blonde takes her three tots with her when whe goes to work at Miami's Aquafair.

"I wouldn't consider working otherwise," she said.

Marion has been working part-time as the bareback rider who hurtles off a high dive on an aquatic steed. In May she'll be back full-time after a year and a half "vacation" during which her son George, now six months, was born.

"Every day a picnic," she blithely said.

★ ★ ★

SHE MEANS that every day (seven days a week) she'll pack up George and his sisters, Barbara, 5, and Patty, 3, and head for work. The picnic bit is the daily lunch she'll have to pack and the poolside living the girls love.

"My act lasts only about 10 minutes each show," she explained. "I can be with the kids most of the time."

Marion does exhibition diving in addition to riding the horse in her act.

When she first returned as a substitute in the diving-horse stunt, she admits she was worried. But not about the daring dive with the horse.

"I worried most about my solo diving," she said. "I figured that the horse would do all right, but I wasn't sure about myself.

★ ★ ★

"AS IT TURNED OUT, I was right. The horse was perfect, but I cracked myself on my solo dive."

Marion and her veterinarian husband, Dr. Anthony Lisehora, met while both were on a gymnastics team at the University of Maryland. He transferred to the University of Pennsylvania for further study and she stayed behind to get her degree.

After she was graduated, they were married.

"We had friends who worked with a water show at Atlantic City," she explained. "We thought, 'Well, gee, what a wonderful way to spend a honeymoon.'"

Soon after they joined the show, the girl who rode the diving horse left the show and Marion took her place.

★ ★ ★

"I WORKED four summers putting Tony through veterinary school," she said. The first winter, she laughingly added, she had Barbara and two winters later Patty was born.

Her sturdy, towheaded daughters practically lived by the edge of the pool — or in it — their first couple of years.

Barbara has dived off a 10-foot board since she was three. She does a side stroke swimming and has tried the back stroke. Patty used the five-foot board, does a pretty good job of handling herself with a "football" on her back.

Neither has had a swimming lesson from their mom. "Barbara has learned by watching. If you're around water, that's all you need at first," her mother said.

"I'm not for making Olympic swimmers or divers out of them. But with all the canals and pools around here, I think swimming is something every child should know."

Women in Siberia Seek More Recruits in Moscow

MOSCOW—(WNS)—There is such a shortage of girls in Siberia that Komsomolskaya Pravda is printing letters begging more women to go there so that fewer male workers will leave the virgin territory.

Oddly enough, the letters are written by women—single women who left Moscow last year to head for Siberia.

"As soon as we arrived, men began to bathe more frequently, to shave more carefully and to watch their dress," they explained. The men's morale has gone up and the women have never received so much attention in their lives.

Confederate Cash To Rise Again-- In Value, That Is

By ALICE FOSTER
Herald Writer

HOLD ON TO THAT Confederate money!

The South isn't rising again but the value of Confederate currency will when it celebrates its centennial in 1960 said Jean Fowler.

Jean, who has joined the ranks of numismatists, commonly called coin collectors, says there are books published on Civil War money for people who specialize in collecting it. The 200 designs of the copper Civil War tokens are considered prize items now.

ALICE FOSTER

"You can give a child a history lesson by looking at old coins," said Jean, who finds her hobby utterly fascinating.

"Take a coin that was issued 120 years ago, and think of where it has been, who might have handled it, what it has bought and how many miles it has traveled."

She feels that collectors and dealers in coins have retained much of our nation's history. According to Jean, George Washington melted his own silver for the first silver issue. She has a penny from 1793 that was considered so ugly it was discontinued.

Collectors of coins differ from other hobbyists as they keep their treasures in the bank for safekeeping. "Children are always so curious and interested, that it is a must to bank the coins to keep a collection intact," she said.

100 Attend Bridge Luncheon

FRIENDS GATHERED in the Pageant Room of Hollywood Beach Hotel Saturday at the invitation of Mrs. Clyde W. Fawcett and Mrs. C. F. Brodbeck of Hollywood.

The occasion was a bridge luncheon and more than 100 guests attended.

Mrs. Louis Zinn entertained last Wednesday at the Diplomat Country Club. A brunch and bridge party summoned about 65 of her Hollywood friends.

A large dinner party last Wednesday night was Mary English's way of introducing her distinguished brother, A. M. (Mac) Secrest of Cheraw, S.C. to her many friends.

Secrest is the young owner and publisher of The Cheraw Chronicle and the holder of many journalism awards.

Sharing the honors with Secrest were Dr. M. W. Williams of Fort Lauderdale and Mrs. Jeanne Neilson of Hollywood. About 45 were in the party.

Pineapple 'Blossoms' in Arrangement

. . . gerber daisies also are used

His Idea Flowered On Pineapple Farm

POMPANO BEACH — An idea grows on Mike Valetti's Cuban pineapple plantation.

It's that the spikey, golden young pineapples are ideal for flower arrangers in the states.

Valetti, who lives at 298 NE 47th St., discovered on his first visit to the plantation that he had invested in worn-out land that bore only unmarketable scrub fruit.

After his first disappointment, he saw the beauty of the small "blossoms" and his idea was born. One Pompano Beach florist has already contracted for a year-around supply of the "blossoms" and Valetti now is on a trip north contacting wholesale florists.

The immature fruit are usually available at Florida florists for a few months in spring, when the pineapple season is beginning. Now, for the first time, it will be possible to purchase them.

* * *

FOR THE NAME of the Pompano Beach florist where the pineapple "blossoms" can be bought, write The Herald's Women's Department, 501 N. Andrews Ave., Fort Lauderdale, enclosing a self-adressed envelope, or call The Herald, JA 3-7341, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday.

Artists in 4 Counties Entering Hortt Show

FORT LAUDERDALE — Artists in Broward, Palm Beach, Dade and Monroe counties are sending their works to the Fort Lauderdale Art Center for the first annual Hortt Memorial Exhibition March 31 through April 26.

Schubert Jonas, director, has announced that the jury will be composed of Willis Woods, director of the Norton Gallery in West Palm Beach; Elmore Brown, noted painter and illustrator of Fort Lauderdale, formerly of New York, and Maurice Stuart, of New York, well-known interior designer and decorator.

The exhibit is open to both amateurs and professionals. Cash prizes amounting to a total of $1,100 will be awarded.

The center will not take a commission for any works which are sold. The winner of the purchase award will be honored with an exhibition the following season.

New River Isles Club Party Set

FORT LAUDERDALE — A style show, luncheon and card party for members of the New River Isles Woman's Club and their guests will be Wednesday in the Marie Antoinette Hotel.

The show will be at 11 a.m. and the luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Cards will follow.

Annual donations by the club to charity will be announced. Charities include the new clinic building fund of the Broward County Society for Crippled Children, Shulten School for Crippled Children and birthday gifts for children in Broward foster homes.

Fanerio to Show Hair Fashions

FORT LAUDERDALE — New spring colors for hair along with new hair fashions will be demonstrated by Joseph Fanerio of Miami Beach at a meeting Tuesday of Unit 15, Broward County Coiffure and Cosmetologist Guild. The program will begin at 8 p.m. at the Governor's Club Hotel.

A "mystery guest," well known in the entertainment world, will appear.

Baked Applesauce With Cider Tasty

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Baked applesauce with cider topping is a good dessert. Place (2-1 pound cans) applesauce in 1½-quart casserole. Combine ½ cup each sifted flour and sugar, cut in ¼ cup butter; sprinkle over applesauce and bake in 450-degree oven 20 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Serve warm or chilled, topped with cider-whipped nonfat dry milk. Combine ½ cup each instant nonfat dry milk crystals and well-chilled apple cider. Whip 3 to 4 minutes, or until soft peaks form. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and continue beating about 3 to 4 minutes or until stiff peaks form.

Just Guy at Piano ...and Happy Music

By PATRICIA BROWN
Herald Columnist

PIANIST JAN AUGUST, who opened last week at the Marie Antoinette, describes his stint: "No kicks, no gimmicks. Just a guy at a piano playing a lot of happy music."

Mr. August is correct although he makes no mention of his precision keyboarding, the fact that he does all his own arranging, and that he and his sidemen provide dance music which can be classed as strictly Grade A.

The maestro, now recording exclusively for Mercury, was one of the first instrumentalists to rack up a million record sales. He's best known for his version of "Misirlou," waxed in 1946 and one of the biggest selling numbers in disc history.

Jan and the boys cover the field from pops to classics, with the bossman taking bows for solos. They'll even oblige with "Misirlou" although by now the piano man is probably as sick of it as was Rachmaninoff with his famous "Prelude in C Sharp Minor." (Sergei's buddies claim he was bored to death, back in 1943.)

LAST WEEK marked the decline and fall of a couple of managers — Escape Hotel's Garry Riggs and Barefoot Mailman's Lee Merriman.

Top dog now at the former inn is Jed Smith, Riggs' erstwhile assistant, latter hostelry is undergoing personnel reorganization under Director Hans Hvide and Howard Sunshine.

Barefoot Mailman also welcomed the return of master chef, George Duke, who traded the Beach Club for a return engagement at the Hillsboro establishment. Most of the Beach Club's kitchen crew tagged along.

Incidentally, what's cooking at the Beach Club, not necessarily in the pots and pans? Place was crawling last week with Alsonett brass. Chain, besides the B. C., operates the Holiday and Poinsettia Beach here; has about 40 other hotels scattered around the country.

KUDOS TO the warmhearted show folk who gave so generously of their time and talent last Sunday night to assure success of the Tusi benefit. The guys and dolls, all topflight entertainers, played to a capacity audience in the big armory on Route 84, with the SRO sign posted early in the evening.

Four-hour marathon went off without a hitch from the moment Milo Stelt first trained the spotlight on the stage with its backdrop of tropical foliage donated by Dietel's to the closing production number featuring Polynesian performers from both Broward and Dade counties.

Show was fast, colorful, and enthusiastically received.

Tusi would have loved it.

LOCAL FASHION-PLATES all a-twitter over the impending arrival of Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli, famed designer. "Schiap," who made "shocking pink" an international fashion byword, is expected to be on hand for the opening of the Marie Antoinette's new French sidewalk cafe toward the end of the month.

Designer, an Italian who spent most of her life in France, will visit old friend Peggy McEvoy at the Marie. Peggy's en route to New York at the moment for a reunion. Schiap will return here with her.

Hotel is rumored to be planning a wingding in her honor; possibly with a showing of her original creations.

HERE AND THERE: Rusty Warren's mom and pop, the Herbert Goldmans, in for a visit with their entertainer-daughter. Mom's comment on Rusty's oh-so-salty repertoire: "I understand it but I'd like to know where she learned it."

Joe Marshall and wife hosted by Manager Larry Maturi at the Seahorse. Two gents worked together (with Tony Curtis) in the movie "Six Bridges to Cross."

Johnny Aladdin Trio played "Happy Birthday" over the phone to Hubert Heilman's mother, Elnora, one night last week but business was so frantic in the restaurant Mom couldnt' hear a note.

Wee Bonnie Baker now warbling seven nights a week in her new oasis at the Boca Key. Husband Billy Rogers is also on hand with guitar and "way out" comedy. Latter is attracting a new cult, sez Billy. "Wealthy beatniks — all sitting around with the same befuddled expression."

Publicist Adelaide Stiles all shook up via a traffic accidnet down in Dade. Eddie de Santis of the Marksmen survived last Wednesday's serious ulcer operation in Palm Beach's Good Samaritan Hospital but desperately needs 30 blood donors. How about giving this wonderful kid a break? Make a date with our local blood bank for his account. Immediately.

Bandman Meyer Davis in town, sparking talk that he may play the forthcoming Deb Ball.

Syrup Farmers Soon To Just Turn a Tap

CHARDON, Ohio — (UPI) — Farmers may soon be able to tap a maple tree by turning on a spigot.

A plastic pipeline for gathering maple sap has been developed. It may make the aluminum buckets and plastic bags now being used as obsolete as the old oaken bucket.

Tubes tapped into each tree are tied into a main pipeline which sends the sap pouring into centrally-located gathering tanks.

Maple syrup production is a major farm industry in parts of northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. Farmers contend their maple syrup is just as good as that produced in Vermont.

Barbara Wants Mom Role

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — BARBARA STANWYCK laughed when I told her I had heard that it was all but settled for her to play Jennie Janis, Elsie Janis' dominating, hard-working mother.

"I never know what I'm going to do," Barbara said, "until I read it in your column. Naturally I would love to play that role—who wouldn't?"

Joe Pasternak told me that he favors Barbara and he thinks she'd be just perfect for the part. As long as she lived Jennie was Elsie's shadow, by her side all through her life, urging her on and keeping her at the top.

DISCOURAGED as Bob Hope is over the blood clot in his eye and the necessity for consulting a New York specialist, he still took time out to discuss with Dolores (Mrs. H.) the March 17 premiere of his picture, "Alias Jesse James."

He will give Dolores the receipts for the first night at the Westwood Village Theatre for her favorite charity, the Holy Name Adoption Society.

He also plans to start a picture in July and will do two more TV shows, that is, providing the New York specialist gives him permission. It's so hard for him to rest, which now is important.

Dick Powell: Violence Not Needed in TV

NEW YORK — (UPI) — "It isn't bloodshed that makes a TV western good. As a matter of fact, you don't need violence at all."

That's Dick Powell speaking and the producer, host and sometime star of TV's Zane Grey Theater, means what he says.

During January, three of his Zane Grey episodes were completely corpse free. No gunsmoke either, for not a gun was fired.

"What makes the West of the 1870's America's favorite era is that it was a period of change and challenge, of growth and unrest, a period in which the individual really counted," Powell said.

"A man controlled his own destiny through his cunning and skill. Gunfighting and bloodshed played a minor role."

So, Powell has instructed all his writers to stress psychological rather than physical reactions in their scripts.

"Because so many westerns have displayed needless killing and brutality," Powell said, "teachers and parents may be confused about their value.

"It is undue violence, not the western setting, that can be emotionally disturbing to youngsters or can inspire teenagers to acts of violence of their own.

"A story set in the West, however, presenting problems solved by non-violent means sets a good dramatic example. We have a story in which Danny Thomas makes his western debut as an immigrant Italian tailor who must face the problems of an immigrant in any country.

To parents, Powell recommends a technique he and his wife, June Allyson, have developed to control their children's television appetite.

Shows seen by Pam, 10, and Ricky, 8, must bear the "parental seal of approval." When the senior Powells turn thumbs down, the set is turned off.

"We're not out to gild the lily," he explained. "The West was a violent place. But that doesn't mean that the only way to portray the frontier is to litter up the screen with excess corpses, does it?"

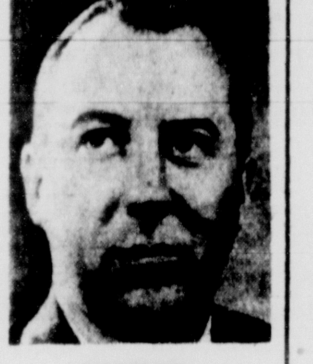
We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.



NICHOL

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1939 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Fender-to-Fender, Miami Drivers Sweat Out a National Ailment
. . . hardening of the traffic arteries: cars, cars everywhere and barely a bus in sight

While We Strangle in Traffic

Transit Systems Are Dying All Over U.S.--Ours Next?

Miami is not alone in its fight to keep from being strangled in its own traffic.

Cities all over the U.S. are struggling with the acute problem of moving people to and from their jobs on traffic-clogged streets.

What's wrong? And what's the solution?

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.*

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.*

By JOSEPH N. BELL
Special to The Herald

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the U.S.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the U.S. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Bus Travel Lures Just Don't Exist

(First of Two Articles)

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

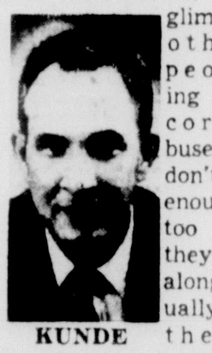
From the windows of their automobiles, they catch glimpses of another 200,000 people waiting on street corners for buses which don't run often enough, charge too much when they do come along, and usually don't take the passenger exactly where he wants to go.



KUNDE

Metro's traffic engineers drew this picture from a six-month survey of Dade's transit "service" and needs. Headed by George Kunde, the engineer found the service woeful, to the surprise of no one, and the needed improvements tremendous.

If the improvements don't come, they predict, transit ridership will continue to drop off, and the shakiest of the seven private bus companies in the area will simply quit.

The result would be still more cars on Metropolitan Miami's already inadequate streets, and an increase in the 75 million dollars a year currently being spent on county roads of all types.

A backdrop for all the engineers' planning and citizens' complaints over transit shortcomings is the simmering negotiation between Metro and bus tycoon William D. Pawley.

Pawley has offered to turn

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100-million-dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers —but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists" —the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Iraqi Planes Attack Village In Syria, Damascus Charges

LONDON — (AP) — The Damascus radio said Iraqi planes attacked a village about six miles inside Syrian territory Saturday.

The broadcast monitored in London said a vehicle was destroyed but made no mention of casualties.

Radio Cairo came on the air at the same time and was believed heard to say that the planes used rockets in the raid.

But London monitors said the Cairo broadcast was indistinct and could not be heard with real accuracy.

Relations between Iraq and Syria have worsened since the Iraqi government put down a rebellion centered at Mosul in the northern provinces early this week.

Syria is linked in the United Arab Republic with Egypt, which has stepped up oral attacks on the Iraqi regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

There was speculation the jets may have been hunting rebels in Northern Iraq fleeing toward the Syrian frontier, about 75 miles northwest of Mosul.

The village of Hamoudiya is about three miles inside Syrian territory.

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid-summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $350,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Buses Fail to Tempt County's Car-Riders

over his three lines to Metro in a "paper" sale. Metro would take title to the companies, saving about $1.5 million a year in federal taxes. Pawley would continue to operate his lines until he was paid, out of transit revenues, about $8.5 million.

The county would put up no cash, and own the Pawley system outright after an estimated six to eight years.

County Manager O. W. Campbell and a Metro Commission transit committee headed by Ben McGahey favor accepting Pawley's offer. The commission voted 9-2 last week to continue negotiations.

Bus-riding here has slumped 25 per cent in the past 10 years — a period which saw population rise 75 per cent. The new Dade Countians are mostly car-riders who have never been tempted, by the lures of convenience or economy, to set foot inside a bus. The lures don't exist.

In the last few months Metro Miami passed Los Angeles in cars-per-capita figures and now leads the nation. This area how has one car for each 1.75 persons. Ninety-one per cent of all travel done inside Dade County is by automobile. In other big cities fighting traffic strangulation and transit-use decline, the percentage of travel by car is far lower. For instance, 31.9 per cent in St. Louis, 17 per cent in Philadelphia, 30 per cent in Chicago

Kunde, Dave Reynolds and others on the Metro traffic staff approached the transit problem with a limited goal, one they considered attainable. There's no hope, in a spread-out, car-owning metropolitan area like this, of getting most of the daily travelers back into buses.

If they can find ways to induce 20 per cent of the moving population to use buses (13 per cent more than at present), Dade will have a reasonable car-transit ratio. The bus companies would carry enough riders to stay solvent, and the road-improvement problem will be merely tremendous instead of hopeless.

During their fact-finding, the engineers learned that many common conceptions of the "transit problem" don't hold true in Metro Miami, and what worked elsewhere would flop here.

The usual idea of a transit's main function is carrying workers and shoppers into the downtown business district. But only 24 per cent of the persons who board a bus anywhere in Dade County end up downtown. This is true even though midtown Miami is served by the largest and most efficient Dade bus line, Miami Transit Company.

Lack of crosstown routes which never approach midtown is the biggest failing of Metro Miami's splintered, disorganized transit service. Miami International Airport, second only to the downtown business district as a traffic generator, draws 12,000 workers a day. But only 100 travel by bus.

Miami Transit Company employes receive free passes, but still 74 per cent drive their own cars to work.

In other cities, providing exclusive bus lanes on major arteries has speeded service and lured commuters back to transit. That gimmick won't work here, the engineers say. Too many arterial streets here have only two moving lanes.

If, by some magic, half the cars could be removed from Flagler St. during rush hour, and buses had lanes all to themselves, the overall speed of traffic still would be increased only three to five per cent, Reynolds concluded.

Metro Miami, a unique area in so many ways, demands a bold, original assault to its transit problem.

(Next — What the engineers recommend.)

Dust Turns Texas Day Into Night

By United Press International

A fast-moving March snowstorm whipped out of the Rockies into the plains Saturday, dmping heavy snow and piling up deep drifts, and dust storms turned daylight "darker than night" over Texas.

The storm headed across an area battered and isolated a week ago by 20-inch snowfalls in one of the worst snowstorms of March in recent years.

The giant dust storm covered the Texas Panhandle, drastically reducing visibility. At Amarillo, visibility was one mile during the storm, while other areas reported zero visibility.

Dust storms also swept over parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through Northern Iowa, northeast Nebraska, southwest South Dakota, southern Minnesota and southern and central Wisconsin, and the central and southern portion of lower Michigan.

Four to six inches of snow whitened the Nebraska landscape shortly after the storm slipped out of the Rockies. Brisk winds, accompanying a cold front, whirled the snow into drifts three to four feet deep over many sections of Nebraska. Highways were treacherous due to snow and drifts.

6 Nabbed As Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.

McLANEY

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Jesus Antonion Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitimate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonion Prieto.

Cuban police said Solomon was carrying $150,000 in pesos and Prieto $30,500.

No address was given by the Cubans for the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

3 Hurt as Car Lands in Canal

HOLLYWOOD — Three Miami men were hospitalized Saturday night when their car turned over and landed in a canal along the Turnpike west of here.

In Hollywood Memorial Hospital are Donald Ellis, 27, of 1770 NW 112th Ter., the driver, with a fractured arm; Fred P. Kinnard, 37, 10100 NW Eighth Ave., the car owner, possible broken jaw and head injury; and James W. Buchanan, 31, 2811 NW 171st Ter., for cuts on the face and legs. All were described as in fair condition.

350 Cities Lose Transit Systems; Are We Next?

pany of Portland, Ore. — sole operator of transit service within the city — has withdrawn its last trackless trolleys and made arrangements for the remaining gasoline buses to run only through October, 1959.

—BOSTON, which has had a comprehensive public transportation blueprint known as the "Coolidge Plan" since 1948, has chosen to ignore it; now, because the Boston suburban areas are reluctant to support mass transportation, the entire system is a deficit operation and tottering on the verge of extinction.

—ALMOST 350 CITIES in the U. S.—including 42 in Illinois alone—have lost their city-wide transit systems since V-J Day.

* * *

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

* * *

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the U.S. has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually—and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

* * *

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away, and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

NEXT: New ways of selling bus rides.

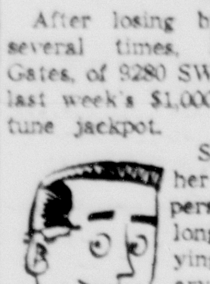
Her 'Fling' At Sunny Pays Off!

By SUNNY FORTUNE
Herald Puzzle Editor

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.



SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Fortune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

Today's puzzle is on page 14B.

Snow Forecast for New England; 70's Recorded in Gulf States

Forecasts

INDIAN RIVER AREA—Partly cloudy through Sunday night. A few showers likely Sunday. Highest Sunday 74 to 78. Low Sunday night 62. Winds southeast to south 15 to 25 mph.

NAPLES AND OKEECHOBEE AREAS—Partly cloudy Sunday and Sunday night. A few showers likely Sunday afternoon. High Sunday 78 to 82 with southerly winds 15 to 25 mph through Sunday night.

BROWARD, PALM BEACH AND KEYS AREAS—Partly cloudy through Sunday night with a few showers likely late Sunday. High Sunday 78 to 82. Low Sunday night 66 to 70. Southeasterly winds 15 to 25 mph.

SMALL BOAT BULLETIN — Seas moderate to locally rough and the inland waters choppy. Southeasterly winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Winds becoming more southerly and increasing some during the day. Warmer.

MARINE — Jacksonville through the Florida Straits: Small craft warnings are displayed from St. Augustine northward. Increasingly southerly winds in the north portion of up to 35 m.p.h. Southeasterly winds over the south portion at 15 to 25 m.p.h. Partly cloudy with showers developing late today. East Gulf: Small craft warnings are displayed north of Tampa. Southerly winds of 20 to 35 m.p.h. in the north portion and southeast to south winds at 15 to 25 m.p.h. over the south portion increasing some during the day. Cloudy with showers in the north portion and partly cloudy with showers developing by afternoon in the south portion.

National Summary

By early afternoon Saturday temperatures neared the 70 degree mark from the Gulf States northward into portions of the Ohio Valley and parts of Texas warmed to the 80's before noon while a wintry storm accompanied by high winds and heavy snow spread out of the Rockies into the central plains.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance, centered over Kansas, controlled the circulation over most of the country Saturday. Warming breezes carrying moisture northward from the Gulf accounted for patches of rain from Eastern Texas into Georgia, while increasing cloudiness was noted over much of the east.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

PFISTER

The masterful male's smug belief that the "little woman" couldn't possibly keep a secret probably has a lot of the gals chuckling in their martinis.

What happened in city circles last week makes it obvious the ladies have a good reason.

It's pretty well confirmed that the West Palm Beach City Commission planned to ease City Finance Director Keith R. Chinn out of office — but to keep it strictly confidential until after the election because of possible repercussions.

No women were involved in the action but the word got out long before City Commissioner L. W. Kelloway made it public.

In fact, Chinn was probably the least surprised of anyone in City Hall. Hours before Kelloway dropped the word, Chinn said "I see you called the shot in the Inside Palm Beach column Sunday." He added, "Well, that's what's going to happen."

'False' Records

IT WILL BE interesting to see what happens if the grand jury goes into charges by County Solicitor Charles A. Nugent that West Palm Beach police substituted a fictitious name in a four dollar larceny case.

Some of the interest stems from the fact that it is the second so-called "record falsification" case in police circles in a matter of a few weeks.

Not very long ago a patrolman who shot and captured a prowler was discharged from the police department on the charges that he falsified his report of the incident.

He was later reinstated with a suspension.

The latest case of altered records may cause more of a sensation.

Bookies About

THE BOYS who follow the dogs, the horses and jai alai where parimutuel betting is permitted, claim it is easier than ever to find a bookie in West Palm Beach this year.

One of the "home town" boys who ostensibly quit the bookie racket along about the time of the Kefauver Committee hearings, is reliably reported to be easily accessible by telephone.

He has four or five drops to pick up and pay off.

At least four places in the immediate downtown area are available for the boys who don't want to go through all the complications of making a telephone call.

Sun Dance Aloha

Sun Danders in West Palm Beach mark statehood for Hawaii by donning Seminole Indian jackets and greeting the hostesses of a Hawaii-bound airliner.

$4 Bracelet 'Stolen'

Grand Jury to Get 'False Record' Case?

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — Whether a grand jury will determine if police here falsified records to conceal the identity of a defendant in a $4 larceny case may be decided Monday.

County Solicitor Charles A. Nugent disclosed in a letter to State Attorney Phil O'Connell that he had obtained evidence of the record falsification and asked that the grand jury be recalled.

The state attorney said Saturday he had received the letter from Nugent giving details of the suspected falsification but had not yet decided if he would ask Circuit Court to call the jury to consider the case.

Nugent said in the letter he had determined there was a violation after questioning 13 subpenaed witnesses and talking with Police Chief R. W. Milburn.

Milburn himself issued a statement declining to discuss the case because "such an inquiry necessarily will involve consideration of my action in this matter."

The chief earlier contended he had only "tempered justice with mercy" in connection with the larceny case but denied he had made any change in permanent records.

According to the solicitor, a Palm Beach woman was the defendant in the case. She reportedly left a downtown store wearing a bracelet with a price tag still dangling from it when she was taken into custody.

Reportedly, she had been trying on the bracelet after making other purchases, forgot to remove it, and made still other purchases before leaving wearing the trinket.

Nugent said he felt there was no "moral turpitude" involved in the change in police records but insisted it was a violation of a state statute. He told O'Connell in the event he decided against calling the grand jury, to advise him and he would continue his investigation.

The county solicitor, under state law, has the authority to press such a case without grand jury action, but explained he felt because the elective office of chief of police was involved, it might better be presented to the grand jury.

Union-Boss Spoof

'Pajama Game' Set For Musicarnival

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — "Pajama Game" concerns a union suit (that's a gag, suh) in a pajama factory, with labor-management problems coming in for a lot of good natured spoofing.

The entertaining musical opens at the Palm Beach Musicarnival Tuesday night for a week's run and should be a lilting affair, with such tunes as "Hey, There," "Hernando's Hideaway" and "I'll Never Be Jealous Again," from the Richard Adler-Jerry Ross score.

Final Musicarnival show of the season will be "Brigadoon," which opens for a week on Tuesday, March 24.

Ingersoll Seeks Post

LAKE WORTH — A battle for Precinct 1 seat on the City Commission began to shape up Friday when George H. Ingersoll, 1205 14th Ct. S., filed for the job.

Ingersoll, a local businessman and developer of Whispering Palm Shopping Center, filed for the post, now held by James Stafford, City Clerk Ruth U. Fales said.

Although he is expected to seek reelection, Stafford has not filed.

Lake Worth to Enact Stiff Bomb Hoax Law

Herald Bureau

LAKE WORTH—The "bomb hoaxers" who have been giving authorities the jitters in recent months are going to get some more attention at a City Commission meeting Monday night.

The board plans to enact an ordinance making it a law violation to give false information or alarms.

West Palm Beach put a similar ordinance on the books as an aftermath of controls discussed at a meeting earlier in the year with the FBI.

The grim determination of officials to halt the false bomb calls was illustrated in municipal court here earlier in the week when two teenagers were sentenced to "30 working days" in jail on charges of engaging in bomb hoaxes.

A rezoning hearing at 7 p.m. will precede the regular meeting of the City Commission.

Among other things, the board will adopt a resolution appointing clerks and inspectors for the April 7 municipal election.

Not By State Standards

School Buses Jammed?

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — When is a school bus overcrowded?

Almost never, under state standards.

Howell Watkins, superintendent of Palm Beach County public schools, admits his office is often plagued with complaints of overcrowded school buses.

"But we're not overcrowded by state standards," he says.

Ralph Kettler, school board chairman, concedes at "peak times" school buses are "way over."

The state standard allows a standee for each grab handle in the bus. This means a 54-passenger bus can transport 72 students; a 60-passenger, 80; and a 66-passenger, 88.

According to Roger Atkins, transportation supervisor, this state rule is adhered to in Palm Beach County in most instances."

The public school system's 84-bus fleet transports an average of 9,400 students each school day. Some buses are pressed into double or triple trips to cope with the passenger load.

In a comprehensive report to the School Board, Atkins pointed out that the "growth of new subdivisions is creating problems" in transportation.

Fourteen new buses are needed — eight to replace some near-rickety buses of '46 vintage and six to take care of the increasing passenger load.

The system needs new bus routes in Boynton Beach, Lake Worth, North Riviera Beach, Western West Palm Beach, Delray-Boca Raton, and in the Glades, Atkins said.

The county's per pupil cost for transportation is only $19 compared to the statewide figure of $31.

Recently the county put a tank wagon into operation for fueling school buses and other school vehicles. This enables the system to buy its own gasoline at lower than retail prices. Atkins reports the tank wagon has netted the school system a savings of $5,391 so far.

'Back Room' Banned?

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—The city apparently is going about the business — but a bit subtly perhaps — of "unmasking" places which operate behind blinds.

Inconspicuous as the last item on the agenda for the Commission meeting Monday is an ordinance which would make it unlawful for a billiard parlor or pool room to operate back of a partition.

The city did not disclose whether the legislation is aimed particularly at a couple of places in the downtown business district.

Ostensibly they are "smoke shops." But behind the partitions there are other operations — such as pool tables.

One police official acted surprised when he was asked about the ordinance. He said, "It's news to me, but it's what we need. I've been advocating such a bill for 16 years."

Other things scheduled for attention by the commission include:

A REVIVED move by Commissioner L. W. Kelloway to get approval for a bill killing the city manager form of government and substituting an elected mayor-commission system.

A REQUEST from Perini Westward Developers, Inc., for conference with city officials to discuss the need of added land where fill can be obtained.

NEW DIRECTOR of Gifts By Wire is Paul Speicher of Delray Beach. Speicher, who is president of Plastridge Agency, joins five other local residents on the board of the national gift sending service, which has headquarters in Delray.

Abolish Port, Says Candidate

Herald Bureau

RIVIERA BEACH — In announcing his candidacy for Group 5 councilman here in the April 7 election, Mel Beckey advocated abolition of the Port of Palm Beach as a state agency.

Beckey pointed out that what the Legislature creates, it can abolish. He said the property should be transferred to the city of Riviera Beach.

Revenues from the port, he said, would meet the cost of operation and sale of property would pay off the bonded debt, while private ownership would produce huge tax revenues for the city.

Beckey, a businessman who resides with his wife and son at 311 W. 29th St. claims the people of Riviera Beach have repeatedly "been offended" by actions at the port.

He pointed to the proposed gas tank farm installation at the port as an example.

Snub of UN By Schools Is Ignored

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—The Palm Beach County Chapter, American Association of the United Nations, is going ahead with its annual high school contest on the U.N. despite a snub from the school board.

The school board turned thumbs down on participation by public high school students in the contest on the U.N. which is held yearly and provides local awards of bonds and larger national awards for top students.

The chapter announced Saturday that Madison Pacetti, the Civitan club's "Outstanding Citizen for 1958," and Watson B. Duncan III, junior college English professor, have been selected as judges.

Local awards will be made at a luncheon meeting scheduled for March 26.

Brush Fire Is Put Out

WEST PALM BEACH—Volunteer fire departments in the Military Trial area Saturday put out a stubborn brush fire that swept 10 acres and threatened homes in the suburban town of Haverhill.

The fire started shortly before noon when a trash fire started by a home owner got out of control, according to M. M. Howze, a member of the Military Park Department. No one was hurt and no serious damage resulted.

4 Youths Lift Key, Skip Jail

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Four youths had a 25-minute fling at freedom early Saturday after breaking out of the county jail — one of them for the second time in less than a month.

The boys lifted their cell key from a sleeping guard and slid four stories down to freedom on a handmade rope of blankets and sheets at 5 a.m.

They were nabbed by alert deputies who spotted them in a stolen car 25 minutes later.

The escape was almost a repeat performance of the breakout Feb. 20 when six juveniles shinnied down a rope of blankets from the sundeck after their guard was called away for 10 minutes. They were all recaptured within a week.

Both jail breaks came dedespite an around-the-clock guard financed by county commissioners after repeated vandalism riots in the juvenile cellblock.

Chief Deputy John Kirk Jr. said this time the guard, William Logsdon, dozed off in the cell. The four youths — including one of the six who broke out Feb. 20—stole the key from the sleeping guard, made their way through the cell block to the hospital ward, where they cut the screen and headed to the sundeck on the roof.

After sliding to the ground, they went to a nearby downtown hotel where they stole a car for their getaway. Deputies, unaware of the jailbreak, happened to be at the intersection of Okeechobee Rd. and Military Trail when the car screeched to a stop a red light.

Suspicious, the deputies investigated and Deputy Gene Ellis recognized James Brooker, the juvenile who escaped jail once before.

All were herded back to jail. Besides Brooker, they are Edward Jeffreys, Edward Darrah, and Wallace Deberry.

Kirk said they will be charged with auto theft.

French Files for Board Job

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—J. H. French, a retired contractor, wants "major problems" like "resurfacing and paving streets and modern light" as primary needs for West Palm Beach.

He said so Saturday in announcing his candidacy for the Group E City Commission post in opposition to Mayor Horace S. Miller.

French, who resides with his wife at 111 Seville Rd. has been a resident here since 1952, is a veteran of World War I with an engineering education and has built over 330 homes in the county.

A member of an array of veterans organizations and St. Juliana Catholic Church, he asked a comparison of his background with that of his opponent.

French said, "I am in a position to give a city commission job full-time, something no other member of the present commission is able to do."

He advocated more recreational facilities for permanent residents and tourists, a practical civic auditorium, favors off-street parking and wants an adequate promotional and advertising program for West Palm Beach.

Brooklyn Man Drowns In PB Surf

PALM BEACH — A 35-year-old New York man trapped 50 yards off shore in a rough surf drowned here Saturday despite efforts to save him.

Michael Colognese, Brooklyn, purchasing agent with natural gas line firm, was spotted floundering off Seaview Ave. and S. Ocean Blvd. at 12:27 p.m.

Lifeguards R. Shrader and Norman Owens were called to the scene and Shrader swam out to bring the man in. Firemen worked on Colognese 40 minutes in futile attempt to revive him.

Colognese had been in West Palm Beach three weeks and was residing at a downtown hotel. He is survived by his wife, Bella; his parents, two brothers, and two sisters, all of New York. Funeral and burial will be in New York.

Benjamin H. Sammis

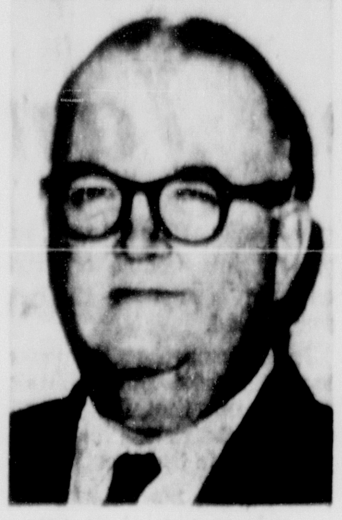
Worried by Younger Rivals, Women Asking for Surgery

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer



Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function.

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons:

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind.—(AP)— A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed in Hutchison.

Marine Study Given $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,000 grant to the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami for basic research on radium distribution in the waters of the Florida Straits, the Bahamas and the Caribbean area.

This work is to ascertain how fast radium escapes from the sediments on the bottom. Research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Fritz Koczy, associate professor of oceanography.

Three to Attend Child Unit Meet

Chairman Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey, Mrs. Sydney Weintraub, and Dr. Stephen Wright, all of Miami, will attend a meeting of the Florida Children's Commission Monday and Tuesday in Jacksonville.

Top item on the agenda will be a discussion of recommendations to be made to the coming session of the Legislature.
